Word of the arrest was sent to Plainfield and friends of the prisoner immediately took steps to secure his release. Lawyer William G. De Meza and several residents went to Paige Herrman's home and after a long conference he agreed to release Payne in their custody until 9 o'clock Saturday evening, the time of the night court's opening. Patrolman Walsh was next interviewed and though he was at first in the mood to be lenient toward Payne he eventually stated he would not press the charge if the prisoner would apologize. The arrangement proved satisfactory to all concerned and when Payne was called Judge Herrman suspended sentence. He took occasion to remark, however, that the New York courts make it a point to protect their policemen and the leniency should not be construed as meaning that there was to be any leniency shown Walsh by Payne. He relented, he said, but he himself did so only with the understanding that the defendant should be punished by his own Police Board.

Assaulting an officer is construed as an exceptionally grave offense in New York and in a case of this kind a man arrested for it is sent to the Island. It has been generally declared since Payne was released that he can congratulate himself on his luck as the charge appears all the more grave in view of the fact that he is a policeman himself and knows what it means. He reported at headquarters Saturday night and was informed by Chief Kiely that he was suspended until further orders.

Payne was appointed a probation officer three or four months ago because of repeated infraction of the department rules has never been confirmed. He has been before the Police Board on more charges than have been preferred against any other two patrolmen combined but has always escaped with a fine or reprimand. Physically he is one of the best men in the department and has proven that he would make a good man for the force if he could keep in mind that it has rules.

PLAINFIELDERS ADDRESS CHARITIES' CONFERENCE

Health Officer Thurlow and Rev. Mr. Nickerson Read Papers on Organized Aid Work.

EDWARD C. STOKES ALSO TALKS

Big Two Days' Meeting At Jersey City Participated In By Prominent Jerseymen—Interesting in Philanthropy.

The New Jersey Conference of Charities and Correction began its three days' annual meeting Sunday afternoon in the Jersey City High School in that city. The Rev. Frank De Hay, of East Nutley, president of the conference, presided. On the stage with him were ex-Governor E. C. Stokes, who was the substitute for Governor Fort; ex-Representative Marshall Van Winkle, of Jersey City; Rabbi Solomon Foster, of Newark; the Rev. Father Cornelius Clifford, of Seton Hall College; the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett, of Jersey City; George B. Wight, State Commissioner of Charities and Correction; Dr. William H. Allen, secretary of the Bureau of Municipal Research, New York; the Very Rev. Dean Smith, of Jersey City; the Rev. Father Farley, Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth; Mrs. Brice Collerd, Mrs. Alexander, Richard Stevens, probation officer for Hudson county, and Warden George Beatty, of the New Jersey State Prison, Hugh F. Fox, of Plainfield, was a prominent figure. Mr. Stokes made the chief address.

At Monday's session, Leon R. Thurlow, health officer of Plainfield, and Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, this city, were among the speakers. Charters. Among the others who read papers were Rev. Francis A. Fay, Dr. Charles A. Clinton, Isaac C. Ogden, Miss Louise Connolly and Dr. Frederick C. Jacobsen.

Mr. Thurlow's Talk.

Mr. Thurlow's subject was "The State and Local Boards of Health in New Jersey." He said in part:

"I understand that in our own State at the present time, a re-organization of our State Board of Health is being contemplated—a re-organization, as recommended by Governor Fort, which will bring under one head all matters which relate to the public health. At present there are several boards whose duties could better be carried out by one well organized Health Department, such as the State Sewage Commission, the State Board of Health, and the State Water Commission; the duties of all these bodies relate to health conditions of the State. Naturally, the authority and duties of these boards overlap and sometimes conflict, and under the existing conditions, no line can be drawn which will place the responsibility on any one particular board.

"If this proposed re-organization is effected, I hope it will include a consolidation of State Board of Health, the State Sewage Commission, the State Potable Water Commission, the State Tuberculosis Commission, dealing with tuberculosis in cattle, and that portion of the Fish and Game Commission which relates to shell fish. If these bodies were merged into one, we would then have a State Department of Health that would be, not only ideal, but practical.

"The members of the State Board of Health should be appointed by the Governor for a term of not less than four years, the appointment so arranged that no one Governor, unless he was re-elected, could appoint the majority of the Board. They should be men who are interested in public hygiene, and who would serve without salary, as I believe stronger and more capable men can be obtained to serve on an honorary board, the salary having little attraction to them. Then, too, a non-salaried board is far more likely to be free from politics.

"Under this advisory board should be the Health Commissioner, a competent sanitarian, responsible to the Board of Health and the State. He should be appointed by the Governor, preferably by the advice and consent of a majority of the advisory board; his term of office to be not less than four years.

"If our State Department of Health was organized along the lines suggested in the foregoing, one of its first duties would be a complete revision of all the health laws of the State, simplifying them, making them more practical and bringing them up to date.

"Many of the present laws are excellent; for instance, the new Pure Food act, the law licensing health officers and sanitary inspectors, the registration of vital statistics, and many others, are equal if not better, than those of other States. However, those laws relating to sewage disposal, the protection of our public water supplies, the protection of our milk supplies, the powers and duties of local boards of health and many others, need a complete revision that will make them more concise and more practical. The work of both the State and local boards of health could then be made more effective.

"In speaking of this ideal State Department of Health, I have described only a few of the endless numbers of duties of a health commissioner. The time will not permit me to go into detail in the questions of milk supply, ice supply, food and drug inspections, registrations of vital statistics, tuberculosis, transportation of the dead, offensive and dangerous trades, and bake-shop inspections—all of which should come within the duties of a health commissioner.

"In our State Department of Health were re-organized and consolidated with the proper boards, given the necessary powers and an appropriation sufficient for the needs of such important work, removed as far as possible from politics, and then placed in the hands of a commissioner with an advisory board to assist him, I firmly believe that within a very short time New Jersey would be in the foreground in health matters."

Rev. Mr. Nickerson.

Rev. Mr. Nickerson discussed "The Alleged Coldness of Official Charity." He said in part:

"Brethren, in this outstanding time in which organized charity has been at work, and the quite continuous perfecting of its methods there is need of that word 'alleged' in my subject today. Not by any means are they alone the thoughtful workers who make the alleged coldness on our part, and with no complimentary implication, but many others are with them in their resentment. Intelligent, kind, charitable persons even at this late day, assume a superior virtue in withholding sympathy from our carefully planned and executed work, because they say it is indifferently given. Yet these are mostly very busy people, who can rarely know accurately the needs they would meet. 'Cold as charity,' rightly directed, briskly serving and saving charity, is a far more complimentary phrase to throw at us than the flingers think. Their intended thorns are changed to roses in transit.

"The warm heartedness of the prodigal is temporarily in the gutter, who, doubtless would 'treat' all around, and indiscriminately, could he regain mastery of his feet and his purse; the giving to him that asks, as alms which open the door of heaven to the very, sinning countries like Italy to swarm with lusty, professional beggars, ready to exploit alms-giving to the farthest limit of human endurance; the unquestioning largess of the riotously generous millionaire, or the shrewd politician, buying favor with charitable gold, scattering his reminders to responsive poverty, to the moral undoing of many; all this is the extreme antithesis of the careful painstaking, wisely anticipative and prudent for which we stand.

"It is, of course, possible to overdo the scientific study of our problem. It is possible to spend too much money in distributing our assistance. But I gravely doubt if even excessive expenditure for training charity workers could possibly balance the money wasted on personal bestowments without consultation of public benevolencies.

"Our principle is that in common with advanced Christianity, with those of the highest belief, their thought, with the doctrine of as yet untried psychical power recently advocated by Prof. William James! It is the support of personal initiative, the evolution of self help, the Kingdom of heaven within.

"The charitable society is the dynamo to which all good will should bring itself, to be enlightened. It is the social power house. It furnishes opportunity for men to bring 'their money to the exchangers' as the gospel admonishes us to do, that, later, they may receive 'their own, with interest.' Our aim is to establish connection with all the good will in the community. 'You wire to us, we wire to you.' Our object is the general bettering of the conditions of living! Our work is the constant evolution of a great principle. The settlements are a social example of deliberate cool intention to prove our consciousness that we are 'our brother's keeper.'

"We work toward civic co-operation. Later speakers will report progress in this direction. The city or state must punish criminals when they commit crimes. But, as the innocent always suffer with the guilty we must co-operate in lessening that suffering as much as may be, the undeserved hardships which so frequently fall upon the families of convicts enlist our sympathies and summon our intelligence. One well qualified to enlighten us will speak this morning on this theme. A New York journal recently declared that, 'The Charity Organization Society by its work will eventually purify the management of the charities of our country,' and make it directly humane instead of sadly human.

"Of all people who have suffered long and suffer still from 'Man's inhumanity to man' probably none are so quickly in our thought as our Hebrew brethren. Perhaps their history, steeped in pain, has made them wisely humane. Certainly there is nothing hysterical or over-fervent in their manner or methods, yet their success has made us desirous to learn of them. 'Still to skate to learn of them. 'Still to skate to feet the nations sit.'

"Unburden yourself of pride, prejudice, philanthropic ambition to lead, to be known of men, and cooly reason with us. A Western journal tells of a young Kansan who took a young woman out to skate. Soon his companion was cold. He applied a match to a hole in the ice. It blazed up instantly with a hot, bright flame. The lake was full of natural gases. Possibly our alleged coldness has within it warmth sufficient for all real needs."

ON CONTRAST IN MUSIC

J. Granville-Smith Shows in His Lecture at P.H.S. How This Improves Selections.

ILLUSTRATED AT THE PIANO.

Illustrating his remarks on contrast in music by numerous examples at the piano, as well as by the musical numbers of the concert program rendered by the vocalists and instrumentalists present, J. Granville-Smith, of New York, won the greatest appreciation from his hearers at the Plainfield High School auditorium Saturday night. The lecture was the second and last of a course of two given to raise money to pay for the tel-electric piano player recently purchased by the pupils of the school, and about $75 was netted toward the fund.

Explaining his topic without any of that technical parlance which makes music so intangible to the average person, Mr. Granville-Smith clearly established his points in a logical manner and captivated the audience by his skill and range of playing, which bridges as displayed at the piano, which he used almost constantly to illustrate the various points of his lecture. At the outset, he stated the necessity of contrast, pointing out that the National anthem is lacking in this value because it lacked contrast in the development of the theme. The French national anthem is superior as a musical composition because of the element of contrast which increases its merit from a musical standpoint.

Contrast in music, the lecturer said, depended upon the principle of kindred yet distinct musical motifs, and may be produced in various ways. Among these he outlined change of key, altered tempo, legato and staccato and contrast in form, demonstrating fully at the piano. He spoke of timbre, or tone color, as still another method of securing contrast, demonstrating that the tone variation as produced by a violin rendition was distinct from that produced by a cornet passage in the same orchestration. Phrasing, and the part played by muted strings and brass instruments, and variation in accent by the employment of syncopation is another pleasing way of producing contrast.

Referring to the compositions of several classic musicians, Mr. Granville-Smith showed how contrast could be produced by variation in style. At the piano, he demonstrated how this same contrast could be produced by embellishment in rendition,—the use of so-called variations. His successful and interesting in the demonstration of his remarks on contrast, was the lecturer's work at the piano by the combination of the musical styles of Bach and Gounod. Later vocal music was rendered by High School pupils and musical clubs, and the lecturer used the selections rendered as examples of his topic.

The feature of the lecture-concert was the extemporization at the piano on suggested themes. At this Mr. Granville-Smith won round of applause by his off-hand rendition of piano selections on the motifs of various selections. The extemporization on "The Merry Widow Waltz" was especially clever.

Among the assisting artists who rendered illustrative selections in the course of the lecture were Mrs. Guy Bender, soprano; G. Morgan Strickler, tenor; Martin A. Korff, violin; Percy L. Mygrant, cornetist; Walter M. Sampson, and Elmer P. Wheeler, flutists; Miss Mabel Maxson, Mrs. Granville-Smith, Miss H. Hummer, and Stephen Ecker, pianists, and the High School orchestra and glee club. S. B. Howe, Jr., was musical conductor.

Hot Stove Starts Blaze.

An overheated stove at the home of Adam Seader, of Steiner place, set fire to the wood-work in one of the upstairs rooms Sunday at about noon. The fire was discovered by Dr. Lufburrow, who smelled smoke as soon as he entered the house. His investigation showed the wainscoting and floor to be blazing fiercely and the bed and a chair were also aflame. An alarm was turned in from box 152, but the flames had been extinguished by the time the firemen arrived. The building is owned by E. P. T. Gavin and the loss will amount to about $100.

ESTIMATION OF JUDAISM

Rev. Dr. Herring Compares Jews' Religion with That of the Christians.

CLAIMS MANY CONVERSIONS.

Although Hebrews Number but 750,000 in New York They Control Two-thirds of Its Wealth.

He Says.

"Jews and Judaism" was the subject of the discourse by the Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday, in the series on comparative religions. He presented the valuable religious teachings in Judaism and then the complete truth in Christianity. His theme was: "Will the Jews Ever Accept Christ As the Messiah?"

Dr. Herring said:

"We are dealing tonight with the religion of a people who number not more than 10,000,000, if that many, and throughout history the average has been about 7,000,000. Contrast that with the 233,000,000 Mahometans or the 530,000,000 Christians. Yet these people are making themselves felt in the history of the world today. New York city contains more than 725,000 Jews, most of whom have come here in the last twenty years, and two-thirds of the wealth of New York is controlled by the Jews.

"These people possess an intense national spirit, and are notably strong in intellectual and financial ability.

"The Rothschild banking house in Europe is said to control $30,000,000, and one-half of the rich people of Germany are Jews.

"Two per cent. of the population of Germany are Jews, and yet at Leipsic, in the highest Law Court of Germany, ten of the seventy-nine judges are Jews.

"This remarkable people have given to us the basis of our faith,—for the Jewish Scriptures are ours. I know of no better picture of the relation between Judaism and Christianity than that which the Apostle Paul presents when he says, 'The law was a tutor to lead us to Christ.' By 'law' he meant the Jewish Scriptures. The Old Testament had a purpose,—the purpose was the Messiah.

"What was a tutor? The picture is taken from an old Greek and Roman custom, when parents put their boys under men who looked after their physical and intellectual development.

"They supervised the boy's life until he was fitted to take care of himself, and then because of that training under a tutor he was better able to enjoy the freedom of citizenship. So the Old Testament was a tutor to lead men to Christ.

"Briefly,—let us note the cardinal teachings of Judaism and see how Christianity completes that Judaism.

"The Jewish Scriptures take account of sin. Its sacrifices disclose the fact and the seriousness of sin. They declare sin not to be merely imperfection or finiteness which we shall overcome by a process of evolution, sin is something that demands expiation and forgiveness.

"The Jewish Scriptures again teach us the holiness of God. Jehovah is the unapproachable Being, but it is not our finiteness that separates us from Him but our sin. The High Priest could enter but once a year into the Holy of Holies with the sins of the people,—the people never. Priest mediated between Jehovah and the people.

"Throughout the Old Testament, the lesson is repeatedly given. It is sin that separates humanity from God.

"The sin of men pardoned, then God is no longer unapproachable but a tender Father to Israel.

"The Old Testament is God coming continually nearer to man, until the time is ripe for God to reveal Himself to the world in His Son.

"Now in what sense is Christianity an advance upon the Jewish religion?

"First in this: The Jewish Scriptures with all their truth do not present God with a glorious conception of immortality.

"Even Isaiah speaks of dead kings in the under world, sitting on thrones and rising up to meet a newcomer, who had recently been a potentate of earth, and saying, 'Art thou become as weak as we, art thou become like unto us?'

"The dead are a shadow of their former selves, who could be brought to earth by magic arts.

"The future was not very clear to them. Jesus Christ who brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel. Christ said, You need never die, that death to a good man is merely a translation, Judaism had some thought of a resurrection but it was a dim and hazy thing until Christ made it luminous.

"Second: You cannot read the teaching of Jesus without becoming convinced of the value of an individual soul. God is the Father not simply of the nation as in the Jewish faith, but the Father of the individual.

"The Jew in the time of our Lord believed in his superiority over other people, and would not recognize the universal element in his religion, only those who were born Jews or who were naturalized Jews could share his religion and he was not anxious to spread his faith, that the world might rejoice,—yet the prophets were pointing to a world wide faith.

"It is an interesting question to us, will the Jews ever accept the Lord as the Messiah? I believe they will, for such belief accords with prophecy. The facts are that today there is a change of thought regarding Christ; fifty years ago the Jews as a body, except the learned Jews, hated the name of Christ; today He is regarded as a great reformer; and many regard His as the greatest man that ever lived. Yes, and today the Jews converted to Christ number 250,000.

"Did I hear someone say, 'Christianity is in danger of becoming extinct.' Well, it numbers one-third of the world's people as believers, and the Jews are changing their thought of Christ. May it not be that our Lord sometime will use these very people to propagate His truth. I believe He will."

FORT AND KEAN WILL BE AT DOLLAR DINNER GUESTS

Governor John Franklin Fort will be the chief speaker at a dollar dinner to be given under the auspices of the Elizabeth Downtown Republican Club, and the Union County Republican Committee jointly in Elizabeth, early in April. Senator John Kean will be the toastmaster and the after dinner promises to be one of the biggest political events held in the county in a long time. There will be other Republicans of prominence and Plainfield, it is expected, will be largely represented.

Arthur Mcdaid, of this city, is treasurer and one of the committee on speakers. County Chairman F. H. Smith is one of the advisory committee appointed. The exact date for the dinner has not been fixed as those in charge want to await the convenience of the Governor so as to insure his presence.

STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN
HE ESCAPES WITH BURISES

Struck by west bound train No. 537, arriving here at 12:45, Lewis Smith, of Summit avenue, a carpenter employed on the Newark Bay bridge, near Elizabethport, miraculously escaped death Saturday afternoon. He was at work on the bridge when the train came along and was struck a glancing blow by the pilot of the engine. Thrown some distance, he escaped with some painful contusions, bruises and abrasions and is now confined to his home in charge of the company's physician, Dr. Fritz.

Dr. Fufburrow, who was on the train, rendered medical assistance to the injured man, who was taken aboard and brought to this city on the train that struck him. His examination failed to disclose, any broken bones or internal injuries and Smith was taken to his home in the ambulance from the North Avenue station.

P. H. S. Juniors' Play.

The Junior class of the Plainfield High School has decided upon a "Miss Civilization" as the class play and this will be presented in the school auditorium Saturday evening, March 14. The play is a comedy by Richard Harding Davis, giving the experiences of a young girl with bandages. The caste has been provisionally chosen and Miss Katherine Ball, of the school faculty, is coaching the pupil thespians.

Holy Cross Club Dance.

Under the auspices of the Holy Cross Club, a delightful informal dance was given Saturday night at the parish house on Mercer avenue. There were about twenty-five couples on the floor and dancing was continued until a late hour.

Dancing until a late hour. The affair was arranged by the entertainment committee of the club, of which Will Little is chairman.

Hansen Purchases a Property.

J. C. Hansen has purchased the property No. 143 East Front street, where he conducts a painting and decorating business, from the estate of Mrs. Mary Mead. The deal was made by Charles H. Lyman and the price is said to be between $14,000 and $15,000. The property adjoins one one side the building at one time occupied by The Plainfield Trust Company, and is considered one of the most valuable in the business section.

GOV. FORT ON AUTO LAW

Doesn't Favor Amendment for Free Use of Roads by Out-of-State Tourists.

At Newark Club's Banquet Guests Heard Decided Expressions of Opinions Concerning Jersey Legislature.

Governor Fort gave strong assurances Thursday that he will lend no support to changes of the New Jersey automobile law designed to give to residents of other States touring privileges in New Jersey without registration here, and stated most positively that he was not in favor of abolishing the speed limit laws in favor of a simple principle that a vehicle shall not be run at a greater speed than is consistent with public safety.

The occasion was the annual banquet of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club in Newark, and Governor Fort's statements came as an answer to a appeal made by Judge William H. Hotchkiss, president of the American Automobile Association, that the New Jersey law as now enforced be done away with, and provisions of wide latitude substituted in its place.

Governor Fort was the first speaker of the evening, but arose at the conclusion of Judge Hotchkiss' speech with the remark that because of his official position he could not remain silent after the opinions voiced by Judge Hotchkiss, and leave the possible inference that he concurred in the judge's sentiments.

"I do not say," asserted Governor Fort, "that the provisions of the New Jersey automobile law in regard to the licensing of chauffeurs properly licensed in the State of their residence is not unduly harsh, but I do say that I can see not the slightest reason why motorists who use New Jersey roads almost, if not quite, as much in the summer months as residents of this State, should not be required to pay some license fee for the wear and tear they cause on the roads.

"The gentlemen from New York must remember that New Jersey is situated far differently from their own State. We have Long Branch, Atlantic City, and a host of other coast resorts to which residents of New York, Pennsylvania and other States tour for three months in the summer. During this period they make as much use of the highways across the State as do motorists who live right here in Newark or the Oranges. Why should they not be made to pay at least in part for the damage they cause the roads?"

In answering a bitter attack by President Hotchkiss and Charles T. Terry, chairman of the legislative board of the American Automobile Association, upon the provision of the law which requires that non-resident motorists, residents of other States, who register here, to acknowledge the Attorney-General as his attorney for service of writs which may arise through civil suits, the Governor said:

"My friend, the judge, in claiming for foreign motorists touring in New Jersey the right to be tried in their own States for crimes alleged to be committed here, has overlooked the fact that the injured party is always a resident of this State, and therefore his right to be heard before a jury of his neighbors is higher than that of the non-resident motorist. Therefore, I must say that I am heartily in favor of the principle of the law, for it guarantees simple justice to the injured party."

President Hotchkiss, in his speech, referred to the evolution of the automobile from the caravan of the desert, and had presumed the higher right for the new vehicle. To this the Governor likewise took exception. He advised the club members that they could never attain their ends through the use of the farmer as belonging to a lesser order.

"As in New York, the balance of power in the Legislature is held by the country districts," said he, "and while the influence of Newark, Jersey City and Hudson is considerable, you must bear in mind that the right way to go about attaining your ends is not to antagonize, but to counsel with the resident of the farming districts. The roads were built for him long before automobiles were thought of, and he has vested rights which must be considered."

Previous to his declaration of principles on the most mooted questions of the automobile legislation, the Governor declared himself as fully in favor of a law requiring lights on all vehicles, and was cheered to the echo for several minutes by the two-hundred motorists present. He declared it to be a measure designed as much for the protection of the carriage driver as the motorist, and said there was not a single valid reason for opposition to it. The chief guest of honor also voiced applause when he asserted that he believed in fifty years would see every tire on the road taxed, horse vehicle as well as automobile.

"The farmer now pays in taxes for road repairs more than a 5-cent tax would amount to. By a universal tax of this sort the cost for the maintenance and building of roads would be placed upon the actual users of the highways. The roads are not used by pedestrians, and the farmer way to assess the cost of their repair is by taxing those directly interested."

FIRE PROBERS GET BUSY

Mayor Fisk and Councilmanic Committee Investigate Into the Letcher Blaze.

MANY WITNESSES EXAMINED.

Practical Test of Water Pressure to Be Made This Afternoon—Report to Council on February 17.

Sitting as investigators, the Councilmanic fire committee met in the office of Mayor Fisk at 4 o'clock Friday night, and began an inquiry to fix responsibility for delay at the Letcher fire Sunday night, which resulted in the complete destruction of the handsome residence on Belvidere avenue. Twenty witnesses in all were called before the body and their testimony was taken separately, making it impossible for any of them to become posted before answering questions. Each councilman took his own notes of the proceedings and in addition it was decided to have a practical test of the water pressure in the Netherwood hydrants at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Two of them near the scene of the blaze on Belvidere avenue will be opened and a stream will be sent through 250 feet of hose, city officials and representatives of the water company watching the proceedings.

The taking of testimony lasted from 8 o'clock until midnight and because of the late hour, the councilmen did not enter into any discussion of what they had learned. The committee decided to make deductions from the evidence and from the hydrant test and a report will be presented to the Common Council at the special meeting on February 17.

The investigation committee comprised Chairman H. D. Hibbard, Charles C. Randolph, Robert H.Hall and H. B. Suydam. Mr. Buxton was the only member of the fire committee who was not present, another engagement calling him out of the city. Mayor Fisk examined the majority of the witnesses and Councilmen Tolles and Gloak were interested spectators, as was also Richard Letcher, Jr., son of the man whose home was destroyed. Many thought they saw—in the political sky. Both wore the "smile-that-won't-come-off," which was intensified, if anything, when the enthusiastic Essex county leader shrieked, "Our next ticket!" and the "Farmer-orator" came in your remarks," replied the "Farmer-orator."

"They seem to make plans at will, without consulting our own wishes," put in the Nebraskan, whose expression showed that he would not be disappointed at such a combination.

"BRYAN AND MARTINE!" -OH, WHAT "A SCREAM"

"Come on, boys, and see our next ticket!" Tyler Parmly, chairman of the Essex county Democratic committee, gave the cry which attracted a crowd of passengers and deck-hands about the cab occupied by William Jennings Bryan and James E. Martine, while crossing the Pennsylvania R. R. ferryboat from Manhattan to Jersey City on Thursday afternoon.

There they sat—"The Peerless One" and the "Farmer-orator," bosom, political and personal friends—chatting away about the Democratic situation they saw—or thought they saw—in the political sky. TEACHERS ARE UNDERPAID

Harold Nomer Says That Higher Salaries Would Benefit Pupils in Schools.

BEFORE MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

Speaker Urges Plainfield Mothers to Secure an Increase in Salaries of Teachers—Modern Education.

Stating that it was to the interest of the parents of pupils in the local schools to secure an increase in teachers' salaries on the ground that the offer of more pay would be the means of securing more efficient work from the teachers and therefore a better education for the child, Harold A. Nomer, a graduate of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1906, and now a teacher in the Poly Prep School at Brooklyn, made a strong appeal for increase in teachers' salaries before the meeting of the Plainfield Mothers' Association held at the High School Friday afternoon.

"Your physician, who takes care of the body of your child," said the speaker, "and your minister, who cares for his spiritual development, draw salaries from private sources three times as large as the teacher, who, in the present day, develops body, soul and mind in the public school." Better salary for the teacher means better education for the child, and this association should devote itself to the work of bringing about the increase that will make it worth while to be a teacher, and will be a means of furnishing the best in the way of education to the child. Appeal to the board of education in this matter, if you cannot get the desired end by this means, bring the matter before the voters through the public press."

Mr. Nomer's address was listened to by a large delegation of members of the local Mothers' Association. The speaker said in part: "I want to set before you this afternoon two phases of educational work which I believe you are not fully cognizant of. The first is the attitude of the child of the present day toward study. There is too much attention paid to athletics and social life in our schools. In a recent address at Harvard, Owen Wister said that there is today no great American scholar to whom the whole world may look as an authority. This is due to the fact that too much attention is paid to the unessential and the social and too little to the intellectual.

"Consider for a moment the rank of the athlete in our colleges as compared with that of the student. The present day college man cannot even tell you the names of the high standing men in his class, but he can name every member of the football and baseball teams and will turn out to cheer these men on the field and attend these entertainments given for their work for the college. The real student he terms a "grind," and such a man is awarded no share in the honors bestowed by the student body. This attitude toward curriculum perfection is the real cause of the lack of an american scholar, recognized the world over.

"The parents of school children today show an astonishing indifference about the child's education. There is no attempt made to cooperate with the teacher in the instruction of the pupil, and in but few cases does the parent know the teacher personally. If the choice of a school and the investigation of what the child is learning were attended by the same degree of care and as is the purchase of a new automobile, for instance, teacher and parent could co-operate most efficiently for the advantage of the pupil in the school.

"More efficient instruction in our public schools can be secured by an increase in the salary of our teachers. The highest paid woman teacher in the Plainfield schools receives $1,200 a year, and $1,800 is the largest salary paid a male teacher. These are extreme figures and the majority of the teachers are underpaid. Statistics show that nine-tenths of the school teachers in this country are dependent upon their relatives, and are unemployed for two months in the summer. This matter should be taken up by the Plainfield Mothers' Association in the interests of the best education for their children."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Good Government, the official journal of the National Civil Service Reform League, in its current number contains the following editorial on Senator Ackerman's civil service bill:

The civil service bill introduced in the New Jersey Senate by Senator Ernest H. Ackerman, has been favorably reported by the committee on municipal corporations, to which the bill was referred. The bill was drafted by Senator Ackerman, in collaboration with Senator Frelinghuysen. Senator Ackerman has made every effort to draft an effective bill, and has had frequent consultations with E. K. Sumerwell, chairman of the legislative committee of the New Jersey Association, and Elliot H. Goodwin, secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League. In introducing this bill Senator Ackerman has proved not only a friend of civil service reform, but a legislator conscious of the best public sentiment and unmindful of the sordid desires of partisan politics.

The bill applies to the entire state service, and contains provisions under which every municipality may adopt the law either by ordinance of the governing body of the municipality, or by popular vote upon petition of a reasonable number of duly qualified voters. The bill provides that the Governor shall appoint a commission of three, each commissioner to serve for a term of six years, except in the case of the first commissioners, whose terms are to be so arranged as to expire at successive periods of two years each. The president of the commission is to receive a salary of $4,000 and each of the other commissioners $3,000. The commission is given broad powers of investigation. The scope of competition under the law is fairly comprehended in the bill contains suitable restrictions upon removals from the civil service, and salutary prohibitions against the use of political influence and the collection of political assessments from employees.

In his annual message to the present Legislature, ex-Governor Stokes recommended the passage of a civil service law as follows:

"A judicious civil service law providing that appointments—municipal, county and State—be based upon efficiency, by competitive test, is recommended for consideration, and the arguments for it so often presented that repetition is unnecessary. The platform of both parties endorsed it in the last campaign, and the fulfillment of the party pledge now becomes a matter of good faith. Twice has a measure of this character passed the Senate. The last measure was prepared by a committee appointed by the Senate. Since the adjournment the latter committee has given further consideration to the question, and have prepared a bill as the result of their investigation.

"A civil service measure should not fail to include within its provisions, election officers, assessors and boards of original valuation. The manner in which election returns are received in the Department of State shows the necessity of improved service and the disadvantage of changing the election officers without notice. The method for placing assessors and boards of valuation under civil service grows out of the responsible character of their work, and their required protection from selfish interests and political influences if they are properly to perform their duties."

Governor Fort, in his inaugural message also recommended the enactment of a civil service law as follows:

"All parties in the last election declared for the enactment of an efficient civil service act. The enlightened public sentiment of our times deems that removals from public positions shall not occur for political reasons. That the present spoils system is bad and demoralizing, and should be ended. Any fair bill intended to attain this result in State, county and municipality will meet with my approval."

The New Jersey Civil Service Reform Association is supporting this bill, as is also the New Jersey State Civic Federation. Copies of Governor Hughes' speech at the recent annual meeting of the League are being sent to members of the Legislature.

LARGEST LUMBER CROP GATHERED LAST YEAR.

Washington, Feb. 6.—More lumber was cut in the United States last year than in any other year in its history. The enormous amount of 37,550,736 board feet was produced and the mill value of this was $621,155,555. In addition, there were produced 11,858,260,000 shingles, valued at $24,155,555, and 3,812,890,000 lath valued at $11,490,570. On the whole, it is safe to say that at present annual lumber cut of the United States approximates 40 billion feet, and that the total mill value of the lumber, lath and shingles each year produced is not less than $700,000,000. These figures give some idea of how vast is the lumber industry and how great is the demand for its products.

A glance at the kinds of lumber produced shows very clearly the passing of white pine and oak, one of the greatest softwood and the other of the greatest hardwood which the forests has ever grown. Since 1899 the cut of white pine has fallen off more than 40 per cent, while that of white oak has fallen off more than 36 per cent. Today yellow pine leads all other woods in amount cut, while Douglas fir—and this will be a surprise to many—comes second. Since 1899 the cut of Douglas fir has increased 186 per cent. Louisiana is the foremost yellow pine State, with Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas following in order. Washington produces by far the greatest amount of Douglas fir of any State.

A comparison of the lumber producing States shows that since 1899 there have been many changes in their relative rank. Washington, which in 1899 stood sixth, now leads, while Wisconsin, which eight years ago led all others, is now third. In the same period Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi, Idaho and California made great strides as lumber-producing States, though, on the other hand, the amount produced in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Georgia, Kansas, Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois and Ohio fell off anywhere from 29 to 54 per cent.

The highest-priced native woods are walnut, hickory and ash, and the cheapest are larch and white fir. From the fact, however, that since 1899 the average increase in the price of lumber has been 49 per cent., it will not be long before cheap woods are few and far between.

FEW MEN WANT WORK ON BOROUGH STREET GANG

Despite the number of men out of employment, the North Plainfield street commissioner has had great difficulty in securing men to work in clearing away the snow after storms. At the Borough Council meeting Friday, Councilman Wildron, of the street committee, reported that the street work was crippled at the last snow by lack of men. This is the reason that the ordinance by which the street commissioner is given in hand the work of cleaning sidewalks uncleaned five hours after the cessation of a storm has not been strictly enforced.

The Mayor spoke especially of the good work done by the commission with snow-plows immediately after the recent storms. Councilman McGee raised the question as to whether the snow-plows' work constituted the legal cleaning of the sidewalk. Mayor Townsend said that the snow-plows' work was only to open up the path, which must later be cleaned more carefully by the property owners.

In the course of the meeting the Mayor called the attention of the Council to the fact that no sinking fund provision was being made for the payment of the sewer certificate bonds, amounting to $10,000, which will be due in 1915. He urged that some provision to meet this be made, and the matter will be taken up at the next meeting. Mayor Townsend also urged continued activity in the matter of the sewer question, and urged the committe to find out accurately the cost of a plant operated in co-operation with Plainfield.

POSTAL NOTES.

At the close of the fiscal year 1907 rural delivery was in operation on 37,728 routes served by 37,582 carriers.

The dead letter office handled 13,005,255 pieces of mail last year. About one-half was restored to the senders.

For Frayed Blankets.

Notice when putting the blankets away for the summer whether they have frayed edges. If so they will soon wear out. It is the best to work the edges with a loose buttonhole stitch, using a coarse darning needle and white or colored yarn for this purpose. Small pieces can be cut from large ones which are considerably worn, and finished in this way for the children's beds.

MISS CHANDLER A BRIDE

Mayor Townsend Officiates for First Time at Civil Ceremony in Borough.

CHARLES BARLOW THE GROOM.

Couple Wedded in Floral Bower at Home of Bride's Aunt, Mrs. L. W. Perrin, at Noon.

Married by the civil ceremony performed by Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, Miss Maud Chandler, niece of Mrs. L. W. Perrin, of Rockview terrace, became the wife of Chas. Barlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, at a home wedding performed at the house of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Perrin, of Rockview terrace, at high noon Saturday. The bride is a member of the Society of Plymouth Brethren and moved to New York city some time ago after living for some time in the borough at the home of her aunt.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room of the Perrin home, in a bower of palms and pink roses. About seventy-five people were present, representing the relatives and immediate friends of the couple. The bride was gowned in pale blue chiffon broadcloth, trimmed with lace and hand embroidery. She also wore a velvet hat trimmed with heavy plumes and carried orchids. Attending her was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Chandler. Miss Chandler wore plum-colored panne velvet, trimmed with roses to match her gown, and she carried violets. The bride was given in marriage by Mrs. W. L. Perrin, gowned in black lace. William Barlow, brother of the groom, was best man. At the conclusion of the ceremony, a collation was served, followed by a reception. The couple left for an extended wedding trip in the South this afternoon and upon their return will reside in this city.

TRINITY MISSION BAND HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

Encouraging reports for the past year, election of officers, together with an informal talk by Mrs. J. S. Allen, secretary of the Women's Executive Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church in America, were interesting features of the annual meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held yesterday afternoon. There was a good attendance of members and friends of the Band, and one thing that especially pleased all was the announcement that twenty-one new members had joined the Band as the result of special effort during the past two months. The total membership now is sixty.

This organization is one of the most active in the church and each year it accomplishes more and more for foreign and domestic missions, besides being a great help to the church in many ways. The report of the retiring treasurer, Miss Miller, showed the receipts for the year to be $338.65, the disbursements $189.46, and abalance of $149.19, which exceeds last year's amount by several dollars. The disbursements have been chiefly for foreign and domestic missions, including work among the Indians.

These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Miss Mabel Wilson; vice president, Miss Edna Dilts; secretary, Miss Edna Cole; treasurer, Mrs. Harry F. Crawford. Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff continues as the corresponding secretary.

A letter was received and read from Mrs. Caroline Hoover, the denominational missionary at Gray Hawk, Kentucky, to whom the Band sent a box of medical supplies. Mrs. Hoover thanked the Band for its delightful remembrance,adding that the supplies were greatly needed as there are several cases of smallpox at Gray Hawk.

After the business was transacted Mrs. Allen was introduced and for nearly an hour she told in her usual entertaining way of the excellent work done by the board of domestic missions among the Indians and the Mountain Whites of Kentucky. She related many amusing and pathetic incidents of this work and impressed upon all the need for even greater effort during the coming year. She said that there are so many people in the home field who are hungering for the story of the Gospel, and the only way they can learn it is through the missionaries.

Mrs. Allen described some of the difficulties with which the missionaries meet in their efforts to carry the message of Christ to those who have never heard the story and how grateful the natives are for everything that is done for them. Her talk was greatly enjoyed by all present and afforded much encouragement to the members of the Band, who expressed the determination to do greater things this year.

A social hour was enjoyed after the meeting during which cocoa and cake were served by members of the Band and all were given an opportunity to meet Mrs. Allen.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 16: "Turning defeat into victory." "The victory that overcomes the world is faith in God and His righteousness."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

The conflict between good and evil is one of the plainest things set forth in the Bible. The Psalms especially have many references to this. The presence of evil is an ever present tragic element in human life. Every one has to face it in some form. No one lives long in this world without coming to the consciousness that some things are right and some things are wrong. With the knowledge of this distinction comes the equally clear conception of obligation to choose and do the right. And after every action which these elements are involved there is an unmistakable consciousness of approval or disapproval according as the course pursued has been the right or wrong.

Where is more than this involved. If the right be chosen, there is a consequent dislike of the right, which grows even stronger as the wrong is persisted in. This gradually comes to be antagonism and enmity toward those who choose the right course. Its strongest expression is hatred of right and the righteous.

Failure of the right implies opposition to the wrong and also of necessity to the wrongdoers. There can be no possible harmony between the two. One or the other must succeed. There can be no compromise, no middle ground. Each must and will use its own weapons.

The words of the Bible are plain as to the course to be pursued. The evil is not to be harbored, but is to be withheld. He is not overcome of evil." On the other hand, it is to be actively resisted and overcome, but the mistake must not be made of trying to overcome evil by another. "Overcome evil with good." There is no other way to permanent victory and lasting peace.

The imprecations in the Psalms and other Scriptures are to be understood in this light. The good must ever long for the removal of the evil. It is not vindictive to desire the destruction of sin, wickedness. Men of very poor sentimentality has been wrecked on expressions of some of the Psalms which pray for the destruction of enemies and the rooting out of the wicked from the earth. A good, healthy abhorrence of vice and the vicious will go more to clean up the earth and bring in purity and love than all the weak coddling of crime and criminals.

The victory that overcomes the world is faith in God and His righteousness. It is the triumph of holiness in its daring. Joseph tried it and turned defeat into victory. The good triumphed in his case, and the evil has ever since been pilloried and shamed before the world. Daniel became his enemies and turned defeat into victory. David was hated and hunted because he was righteous. He waited for God, and defeat was for him turned into victory. He gives an example to men for all time of patience under persecution and refusal to face God's time and place.

Jesus shows the supreme example of victory over all powers of evil. He endured all power of enmity of evil against the good, waited the will and time of the Father and overcame by the power of the universal spirit of holiness. In death itself He was victorious and through life and immortality to light.

Unless him that overcometh are all the promises of the future made.

Laughter as a Christian Duty.

There is a place in this world and a mission for humor. The man who can make others laugh may be a great blessing to his fellows. There are times in one's experience when a bit of fun is better, more a means of grace than a serious sermon would be. There are times when the best help we can give to a friend is to make him laugh. The wise man says, "A merry heart is a good medicine." A hearty laugh would cure many a sickly feeling, driving away the blues and changing the whole aspect of life for a man. The gift of bright, cheerful humor is one to be envied. The man who can keep people laughing is the tonic to both a prosperity of health and a dispenser of happiness. We may set laughter down, therefore, among Christian duties.—Forward.

The Best in the Heart.

"The best in the heart" said a mortal
"The best in the heart is joy.
Pleasure and gladness unsullied,
A heart without alloy."
"The fairest of graces is gladness—
The best in the heart is joy."

"The best in the heart," said another,
"Best in the heart is love
Right to hear songs in the silence,
To rule where we now only grope.
To follow where angels have trod,
The best in the heart is hope."

"The best in the heart!" one made answer,
"The best in the heart is faith.
To feel, though the Father may slay us,
His mercy and love are no myth.
To believe in the brotherhood of mankind—
The best in the heart is faith."

"The best in the heart!" said another,
"The best in the heart is peace.
Peace that abides with us ever,
Though storm clouds their waters release."

And pitiless pains beat upon us,
"The best in the heart is love,
Love for the creatures about us,
And love for the Maker above,
Love for the high and the lowly—
The best in the heart is love,"

"The best in the heart," said the Christ,
"The best in the heart is God,
That who is love, faith and gladness,
Who holds in His hand the world,
Knows above all earthly of having or being—
The best in the heart is God."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 16, 1908.

By REV. R. H. DOYLE.

In this wonderful description that Christ has given us of the day when God shall judge the world and the principles upon which judgment shall be based He gives us a list of the classes of people toward whom Christian sympathy and benevolence should be exercised. In this list we find not only the "strangers and the sick," but also "prisoners and the poor." "I was in prison, and ye came unto me." "I was hungry, and ye fed Me; thirsty, and ye gave me drink." The prisoners behind the bars and the starving and thirsty poor are to be objects of our interest, our sympathy and help. The poor should be in a most natural thing, but the Master took an advanced step in philanthropy when He declared that a visit to an imprisoned criminal was a visit to Him. But this is only another illustration of the broad mission of Christ into the world.

Paganism took no benevolent interest in those whom the state had debarred of their liberty for crimes against an individual or society, but Christ had pity for the criminal men. He Himself was once a prisoner, though falsely accused. He was even condemned and executed. He died between two malefactors and saved the soul of one of them. His apostles and many of His followers have known what it was to endure the weariness and hardships of prison life. Remembering His words and these things, our sympathy and aid are to be extended toward prisoners as well as the poor.

But what young people can do for prisoners is a most perplexing problem. There is one comfort in the fact that prison life today is not what it has been in days gone by. Philanthropic societies, either Christian or inspired by a Christian spirit, have done much to alleviate the sufferings and barbarous treatment that characterized a prisoner's life in the centuries gone by. This work is still progressing. The state itself is realizing more and more that imprisonment should be exercised with mercy as well as justice. Society must protect itself against lawbreakers, but in doing so it is being recognized that reformation as well as punishment must be kept in mind. If not the man who leaves the prison becomes more than ever a danger-ous foe to society and the state. In most of our prisons there are first class libraries, and daily papers are admitted. Religious services are conducted regularly, and some have chaplains. In a number of our prisons Christian Endeavor societies have been organized, and the hearts of many of these unfortunates in prisons and in jails have been cheered by Christian Endeavor services. The average Christian Endeavor has little opportunity for this work, but there is one thing all can do, and that is to pray for the salvation of those imprisoned. Christ heard the prayer of the dying thief on the Cross, and He can and will hear our prayers in behalf of modern malefactors.

Christian benevolence toward the poor is unlimited for want of opportunity. "The poor we have always with us." There is hardly a local Christian Endeavor society that has not some opportunity to care for the poor. Sometimes they are God's poor, and sometimes they consist of those who through their own faults have brought poverty upon them. But these questions should not concern us. We serve in Christ's name and for His sake. Is any one in need? Can I help him? If so the duty rests upon us to do it. Let us remember also that our benevolences will not save us. We are for Christ's sake to love the lost and not to be saved. On this foundation only rests true Christian charity, such as will bring His welcome plaudit, "Well done."

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xv, 11; Job xxix, 15, 16; Ps. xxxiv, 1-6; Matt. x, 40-42; xxvi, 11; Luke xxiii, 33-43; Acts iv, 1-4; II Cor. viii, 9; II Tim. i, 16-18; Jas. ii, 14-26.

Moral Mountain Climbing.

The other day in a Christian Endeavor meeting in Paris the testimony that touched my heart the most was that of a young lady, who told us how when she first spoke for her Master in an Endeavor meeting, besetting and trembling and afraid of her own voice, as she sat down a little girl by her side, who knew of her bashfulness, reached over and took her hand with a comforting squeeze. She said no word, but that gesture told of the little girl's sympathy. It was one of the steps that unconsciously led two souls up the tablelands and into the sunlight of God's presence.

But what is our whole system of Christian Endeavor if it is not a series of steps leading us up the invisible mountains? The prayer meetings, in a sense, are routine affairs. Fulfilling the pledge, in our discouraged moments, may seem like a perfunctory obligation, the committees like the lifeless parts of a machine, and the great object of the society is to form habits of well doing, habits of confession, of devotion, of service.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in Irish Endeavorer.

With Foreign Flavor.

The Endeavorers in Adelaide, South Australia, have formed a cycle corps that travels on moonlight nights to the outlying weaker societies and helps in their meetings.

There is in Leeds, England, 3,000 senior Endeavorers, and of these nearly one-quarter are Sunday school teachers.

The Isle of Man Christian Endeavor union has added nine new societies during the past year, and its members ship has increased from 800 to 1,247.

THE SEGREGATION PLAN FOR BOYS.

This is an experimental age. There is nothing too seemingly impracticable to get its day in court with an opportunity to demonstrate whether or not it is deserving of serious consideration. And necessity being the parent of invention it is likewise the immediate ancestor of the experiment which proves to be invention. Some time ago a flat dweller in Manhattan discovered, as some of his predecessors had already discovered, that for various reasons it was not expedient to bring up a large family in a flat. As a consequence, not caring to give up the vocation, he refurnished the flat and moved to Berkeley Heights, N. J., where, after living for some time in a tent, he erected a house suited to his needs, without, however, running afoul of the building inspector, as did the Brooklynite who sought to escape the iniquitous landlord by building, in add moments, a house after a plan that was all his own.

The public did not become interested in the Berkeley Heights man until, after making the startling discovery that boys would bring in mud, leave the door open and break up furniture, he determined that either himself and his wife or the boys would have to be segregated, and proceeded to erect in his back yard a bungalow, where they might work out their own salvation or go without it as the case might be. It is understood that the furniture placed in the new house was not of delicate design and that a quantity of dirt was a limited as the exigencies of the case would admit. The boys, we are told, fell in with the plan as enthusiastically as the parents, but some of the neighbors and the critical public filed protests, the former for purely personal reasons, fearful of the consequences of establishing a wild Indian camp thereabouts, and the latter because the public always loves to assist others in solving their problems, and it assumed that here was a proposition which must result disastrously for the young people, feeling that constant contact with civilization was necessary in order to prevent reversion to barbarism.

After a fair trial, extending over several months, the originator of the idea now declares it to be a success. He declares that the non-interference has been the keynote of the arrangement, and the father has permitted the boys to manage their own affairs on condition that they permit him to conduct his. Put on their mettle so to speak, the members of the once disastrous pair of the bungalow have not only taken their responsibilities seriously but have become industrious and economical, and the older ones have a much better conception of the duties and possibilities of life than they would have had if they had been trained in the orthodox manner.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, and one successful experiment does not necessarily demonstrate the truth of a questionable proposition. There is a possibility, too, that the writer has allowed his judgment to be roseately colored by his hopes, but as the neighbors haven't risen in revolt it would appear that in any event the plan cannot be considered an entire failure.—New York Tribune.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

It is considered quite the thing to purchase a ready made gown and finish it oneself with appropriate trimmings.

Ribbon was never used more than this season, and some of the highest priced princess dresses are trimmed with this and with nothing else.

The woman who makes a negligee these days can, if she be so inclined, construct it in such a way that it can be worn only late in the day. Even the dinner gowns are built upon the negligee lines, and it does not require such a great stretch of the imagination to fancy an empire negligee converted into a dinner gown to be worn on very nice occasions.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Easier Way.

"How I hated work in those days!" said Mark Twain, recalling his boyhood in Hannibal, Mo. "One morning my father led me into the garden and pointed to a lot of flowers that had a considerable number of weeds in it.

"'I want you,' said my father, 'to weed out this flower bed.'

"I examined the task ahead of me, and the more I looked at it the larger it seemed to grow. Certainly I had never seen so many weeds in my life.

"'Wouldn't it be a simpler operation,' I said to my father, 'to flower the weeds out of the bed?'"—Woman's Home Companion.

Best for Him.

"Now," said Professor Goodley, "these exercises should perfect you in the rudiments at least. Memorize the rules and"—

"But," interrupted the rich man's son, "what do you consider the best exercise of memory?"

"Remember the poor!"

GOVERNOR PORT'S WIFE IS A CHARMING WOMAN.

Mrs. John Franklin Fort, wife of the Governor, is a woman of charming and gracious personality, very retiring in disposition.

Before her marriage she was Miss Lottie Stainsby, daughter of William Stainsby, a prominent politician, of Newark. She is tall and slender with hair tinged with gray and expressive dark eyes.

Being very domestic in her tastes, she devotes most of her time to her home and children, and especially to her little grandchild, son of Franklin W. Fort, Mrs. Fort is a member of the Women's Club of Orange and the Essex Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of East Orange.

The Fort family attend the Mann Avenue Presbyterian church, of East Orange, of which Dr. James M. Ludlow, who made the prayer at the inaugural ceremonies, is pastor. For some years they have resided at 51 Arlington avenue, East Orange.

There are two sons and one daughter. Theodore W. Fort, who resides in East Orange; Leslie R. Fort, of Lakewood, editor and proprietor of the Lakewood Times and Journal, and secretary to the Governor, and Margaretta Fort, a young woman of attractive personality. The two sons are married.—Trenton Times.

"Sir," said the tall man as he rose up and glowered down on the short man, "when I entered this car I had a roll of money amounting to $65 in my pocket."

"Yeth, sir," lisped the short man in reply.

"And now I have only this nickel."

"Thath all, thir?"

"Then someone must have picked my pocket."

"Thath don't follow thir."

"Don't follow? Of course it does. You have been sitting right beside me ever since I got on."

"What in the devil do you mean by saying it's just my way?" demanded the tall man.

"Why, thir, when the conductor came for your fare you handed him the roll instead of the nickel, and you put there counting it over now. He thinks it's a present."—Chicago News.

The Cleanest Town.

The cleanest town in the world is said to be Brock, in Holland. It is only a few miles from the capital and has been famous for its cleanliness from time immemorial. It is also notable on account of the fanciful style of its houses and yards and gardens and streets. The people, though only peasants, are well to do, and all feel a pride in their town. It seems to be the first business of their lives to keep their houses freshly painted, their gardens in perfect order and their yards and streets as clean as a parlor. No carts are allowed in the streets and no cattle, though the raising of stock and the making of butter and cheese are their occupations.

AN EDITOR'S CREED.

The policy of The Tribune under the new owners may be summed up in a single sentence, viz., it will try to be a good newspaper, and these are the main articles of its creed:

A good newspaper tells the news, as faithfully and fully as it can, without fear and without favor, and comments on it with the best intelligence it can command.

A good newspaper is in league with all men and women who think, and with all the agencies that strive for the betterment of mankind.

A good newspaper shields no wrong that ought to be exposed and stops at no truth that ought to be uttered.

A good newspaper does not lend itself to the making of strife between citizens neither rants like a demagogue nor weeps like a charlatan.

A good newspaper has ideals, believes in progress, and wins its way by courage, plain speaking and fair dealing.

A good newspaper assembles each day as much of the good things that are done in the world as it can find and no more of the foul than it must.

A good newspaper has political opinions and may belong to a party, but it cannot be an organ and keep its fields free for the best journalism.

A good newspaper knows no boss, bows to no pretty satrap of office and owes no allegiance but to that which it believes to be true.

A good newspaper is run on business principles, so that it may make money and prosper like any other business, but probably won't if that is its sole aim.

A good newspaper takes a cheerful view of the world, is kind to human failings and helps men more by entertaining them than by ranting and scolding at them.

These are the ten articles which if a newspaper keep in all loyalty and good faith will make it a good newspaper. An eleventh should be added. A good newspaper does not take to itself haughty airs and deceive itself by foolishly thinking that what it says is therefore true, and what it thinks right or wrong, or that the mere act of putting one or a hundred men's thoughts on a printed page imparts to those thoughts a weight and authority they would otherwise not possess. In other words, a good newspaper crowns its merits with the virtue of modesty.—Robert D. Towne in the Scranton Tribune.

FOR THE MARTHAS.

The Seven Real Worries of a Woman's Life.

Not half the horrors that women suppose are going to happen to them ever do happen. Yet it is in the nature of the gentle sex to expect and look out for them—to anticipate what fate may never send. The form that women nurture it, too, is so nebulous, so vague, so terrifying because so undefined, that it is the more easily possessive. It takes a horrible hold of the imagination and works upon the mind like subtle poison.

The chief fears to which women are prone have been numbered as seven. Dr. Crichton Browne is a good authority to be, first, "the fear of being an old maid," and secondly, that of "growing old."

The others are fear of losing a husband's love, of accidents, of loss of money, of loss of friends and of the future generally.

The third fear is a very potent one. It is the fear of losing a husband's love. Tradition teaches women that men soon tire of their wives and that when the bloom of women's youth has grown away the love of man goes with it.

The thrill of alarm is to some curiously constituted natures a pleasant one. Upon no other hypothesis can one account for the states of wild anguish to which so many women work themselves, when, delayed by some quite trivial occurrence, the husband or son does not come home at the usual hour. As the little wife sits and waits at home for the better half she conjures up in her mind's eye in street accidents of various awful kinds, herself in widow's weeds, the funeral, the breaking up of the little home, the awful avalanche of grief sweeping her into an early tomb.

Or if it is not her husband who is the hero of her morbid imagination it is her baby or her growing brood of children who may be killed before her eyes or when they are old enough to marry may choose some one she does not like. The last situation is about the most absurd of the whole seven, but it is nevertheless a fear that haunts hundreds of good mothers.

How British Ships Salute.

A salute in the British navy between ships of equal rank is made by firing an equal number of guns. If the vessels are of unequal rank, the superior fires the fewer rounds. A royal salute consists, first, in firing twenty-one great guns; second, the officers draw their sword points, and, third, in dipping the colors.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES MUST APPLY FOR LICENSE.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh has notified Mayor Charles J. Fisk that the law providing for the regulation of employment agencies, applies to Plainfield, having become effective January 1 of this year, and that the power of fixing the fee and granting licenses is invested in the Mayor.

The law is very strict and states that employment agencies shall not be maintained where people sleep, eat, in a lodging house for unemployed or where liquor is sold. The applicant must furnish a complete description of the place of business, together with full name and address, together with an affidavit of good moral character. They must keep a correct book of record, which must be examined at least twice a month by the chief of police.

Other provisions of the law are that after an application for such a license is made it must be posted in the office of the city clerk for one week as a matter of public information. Anyone knowing any reason why such application should not be granted is given an opportunity to object.

The law in giving the Mayor the right to fix the license fee, says that it shall not exceed $25. It further provides the fee which such agencies are permitted to charge for securing employment to applicants. One half of the license fee goes to the chief of police, who is directly held responsible for the conduct of these agencies. The law exempts from regulations as to charges for the employment of teachers. Mayor Fisk has ascertained that there are now about fifteen employment agencies in the city and the proprietors have been informed that they must apply at once for a license to do business. In the meantime the Mayor will decide upon the license fee.

THE IMMIGRANTS' MONEY.

How They Dispose of It When They Return to Europe.

One of the interesting articles in the North American Review is written by Charles F. Speare and is entitled "What America Pays Europe for Immigrant Labor." In it Mr. Speare presents statistics relating *to the sums which are sent by immi*grant laborers to those whom they have left at home in various countries—which in the aggregate represent a vast sum. He describes the manner in which these remittances are made, and the influence which is thus exerted from this side of the Atlantic to remote towns and villages in the Old World. He says:

"A few years ago, in the Italian village along the Mediterranean, where I spent part of the winter, I well remember the commotion caused by the arrival of some laborers who had been two years absent in the United States. Their daily wage when they left Italy had never been more than a few francs, but in this country they had been able to command from seven to ten lire, with but a slightly increased cost of living. They sowed the seeds of discontent so deeply in the minds and hearts of their neighbors that it was almost impossible for a time, to get the ordinary work of the place done. But this is not all. The inflow of foreign money into impoverished sections increases prices in every direction. This is prominently illustrated in the case of wine, so chiefly in the taverns, and that the fruit of this ready money is increased drunkenness, epidemics of venereal diseases and a rising percentage of crime and insanity."

A Pity to Destroy It.

CIVIL SERVICE FRIENDS PRAISE ACKERMAN BILL

On behalf of the New Jersey State Civil Service Association, E. K. Sumwalt, chairman of its legislative committee, has given out this statement concerning the Ackerman civil service bill. The Union county legislator's measure, as favorably reported by the Senate committee:

"The Ackerman bill is really a composite bill, made up of the best features of the original Colby bill and the Thompson bill of last year, revised and improved in the light of suggestions made by our association with the aid of Elliot H. Goodwin, secretary of the National Civil Service League. Mr. Goodwin is recognized as the leading authority in this country on the practical workings of civil service laws, derived through a long experience in dealing with the federal and various State laws. The suggestions have been cordially received by the Senate committee in charge of the bill, composed of Senators Ackerman, Frelinghuysen and Gebhardt, and in addition the attorney general's office has rendered invaluable aid, respecting the constitutionality of the measure.

"We therefore believe that in view of the extreme care and attention to detail bestowed upon this bill, it offers the best civil service law yet offered for the State of New Jersey, and are of the opinion that it can with safety be adopted in its present form practically without amendment."

THE COOKBOOK.

Cold boiled rice left from a meal can be utilized by adding a beaten egg and milk and formed into cakes and fried.

When boiling the water when poaching eggs they are rendered whiter and cleaner than without this help. A certain French cook adds half a tablespoonful of vinegar to every two quarts of water when poaching eggs.

When making ordinary peach tarts a teaspoonful of currant jelly is sometimes put at the bottom of each mold, which is then filled with the peaches, cut in small, thin slices. When cooked the jelly is sprinkled with sugar. Decorate with jelly and whipped cream.

The Time to Quarrel.

In Lanarkshire there lived a laird named Haddiston. He was noted for his economy, and when on one occasion a neighbor waited upon his asking the favor as a neighbor with the loan of a pony. It was only a bill of accommodation for three months, which led to the following reply:

"No, my friend canna do that."

"What gar no', laird? Ye have done the same thing for ithers."

"Aye, gae, Tammas, but there's wheels within ye ken naething aboot! I canna doot."

"It's a sma' affair to refuse me, laird," said he.

Badly Handicapped.

A Boston minister says that not long ago he was walking along a street in the suburbs when he came up to a little fellow, apparently about six years old, who had one thumb in his mouth and who was jumping up and down in a dumb rage. He had evidently been nailing on some loose fence pickets, for a hammer and a handful of loose nails lay on the ground.

"How can you mean?" the minister asked kindly.

"Oh," was the disgusted reply, "I'm too big to cry like sis when she gets hurt, and I ain't big enough to swear like when he smashes his thumb!"

A Handy Iron Cleaner.

You can make a very practical little contrivance for use on ironing days, says the Delineator. It consists of a block of wood about two inches square. Five holes are bored in this block and filled with beeswax. These are covered with a piece of muslin. The other side of the block is covered with emery cloth. The emery side of the block is used to rub the iron on if the starch sticks, and the wax side gives the iron smoothness.

SINCLAIR STUART DEAD

As Result of Paring Corn, Gangrene Sets in Proving Fatal to Aged Resident.

CONNECTED WITH "LLOYDS."

Native of Scotland, He Had Made Plainfield His Home For Twenty-Seven Years.

Sinclair Stuart, aged 72 years, a well-known resident of this city for twenty-seven years, died Tuesday at his home on Madison avenue, of diabetic gangrene which resulted from the paring of a corn on his right foot about six weeks ago. The treatment was given in New York by a specialist and soon afterward Mr. Stuart was called to Boston on a business trip.

He returned to Plainfield about a month ago and a few days later experienced severe pains in his foot, which was at first though to be rheumatism. A physician was called and he diagnosed the trouble as diabetic gangrene. Everything known to medical skill and science was sought to save life, but to no purpose.

Mr. Stuart was a native of Scotland and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sinclair Stuart, who afterward located in Montreal, Canada. For many years Mr. Stuart's father was revenue inspector of the Canadian Government for the lower provinces and was a man of great ability.

Mr. Stuart was a marine engineer and for forty years was connected with the United States Standard Steamship Owners, Builders and Underwriters' Association, a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, the New York Maritime Exchange and the Engineers Club, of New York. He was a member of Grace church, identifying himself with that parish soon after coming to Plainfield.

Mr. Stuart is survived by a wife, one daughter, Miss Florence Stewart, with one son, Sinclair Stuart, Jr., reside here. There are three other sons, Donald and Gordon Stuart, of Rochester, N. Y., and Linden Stuart, of Boston. One sister, Mrs. Robert B. Wood, resides in Montreal, Canada.

MOXON BOMBARDED BY ANTI-LOCAL OPTIONISTS

Persons opposed to a local option law sent a flood of circular letters to members of the Assembly Monday at Trenton. They were signed individually by Newark German-Americans. The action was precon certed, having been planned at a meeting held last week by German-American citizens.

Chairman John R. Moxon, of the House committee, a member from Union county, on municipal corporations, to which was referred the local option bill, introduced last week by Assemblyman Benjamin F. Crosby, of Ocean, as the measure of the Anti-Saloon League, received no less than forty-five letters. Under Henry Young, Jr., of the Essex county Assembly delegation, was the recipient of as many more, and next in order of number of letters received were Messrs. Joseph Potter, of Camden; John Clark, of Essex; William V. Voorhees, of Middlesex, and Levi Morris, of Sussex, who, with Chairman Moxon, make up the committee on municipal corporations.

The letters were sent in envelopes that bore printed addresses and had all been mailed at one time. The text follows:

"Greeting. The undersigned respectfully requests you to use your best endeavors against the passage of a local option bill now pending in the Legislature of our State. The failure of local option in several cities has proved it to be a fact that local option brings about the greatest lawlessness, vice, immorality and intemperance."

"I have been requested to report the Crosby bill, House 2, either one way or the other, tonight," said Mr. Moxon, when questioned. "I propose, however, to wait awhile. I see no reason for hurry in the matter, and I believe my committee agrees with me in desiring to give a public hearing some time soon, where those for and against local option may be heard. So the bill will be reported neither favorably or unfavorably tonight."

Mr. Moxon said he had no doubt there would be other bills aiming to accomplish the same ends as those sought by the Crosby measure, and that he believed there would be time and trouble saved by holding a little and arranging a hearing.

Dinner for J. Hartley Mellick.

Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, has issued invitations to a dinner which she will give on Monday night in honor of her son, J. Hartley Mellick, who will attain his majority at that time. Covers will be laid for eighteen and the affair promise to be an elaborate one as to details.

BAR TO GIVE BANQUET TO CHANCELLOR MAGIE

The Bench and Bar of New Jersey will tender former Chancellor William J. Magie a banquet as a tribute of esteem for his long service as a member of the New Jersey judiciary in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on February 29, if a banquet hall can be obtained for that date. This was decided upon at a meeting of lawyers from different parts of the State held in the Chancery chambers here yesterday. Edward Q. Keasbey presided and District Court Judge Thomas L. Raymond was chosen secretary and treasurer of the general committee which is to make arrangements for the banquet.

In outlining the reason for calling the members of the bar together, Mr. Keasbey gave a brief history of Chancellor Magie's career from the time he was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1880 until the close of his seven years' term as chancellor. Mr. Keasbey said that the 28th day of this month would be the twenty-eighth anniversary of Chancellor Magie's elevation of the bench.

These committees were appointed by Mr. Keasbey to take charge of the banquet arrangements: Speakers and toasts, Edward M. Colie, chairman; Richard V. Linabury, Chauncey G. Parker, Thomas E. French, of Camden; John Griffin, of Jersey City; dinner and menu, Charles D. Thompson, Edward A. Day, Hobart Tuttle. A reception committee will be appointed later.

It was decided to have local committees in each county, and Mr. Keasbey appointed chairmen of such committees as follows: Atlantic, Allen B. Endicott; Burlington, Eckard P. Budd; Bergen, William M. Johnson; Camden, E. Ambler Armstrong; Cape May, Vhe Chancellor J. Spicer Leaming; Cumberland, Bert Collins Hinderton, Richard S. Kuhl; Mercer, George O. Vanderbilt; Middlesex, S. Silsee; Cumberland, Walter H. Bacon; Essex, Halsey M. Barrett; Gloucester, J. Boyd Avis; Monmouth, John E. Laning; Morris, John B. Vreeland; Ocean, Isaac W. Carmichael; Passaic, William B. MIKE READINGTON GOES DOWN FOR THIRTY DAYS

Thirty days in jail were doled out to Mike Readington, the champion return date player in the city court, when he was arraigned before Judge Runyon Tuesday. Three weeks ago he answered roll call on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and was found to have climbed aboard the water wagon and stayed there a year, sentence would be suspended and he would be let off the first time he appeared after the twelve months elapsed. Mike promised and the court had hopes of his temporary reformation, but it was not to be.

Early Monday afternoon a cop discovered a man rolling about the snow banks in East Front street and after getting him straightened out discovered it was Mike. He was hustled to headquarters and thawed back to life over a register but the combination of heat and the booze he already had added the finishing touches to his souse. He was just about in shape to be arraigned Tuesday morning but was in no frame of mind to hand out an excuse for breaking his promise.

Mike has been in court so many times the cops have got the habit of passing him without assistance on his particular cell door and counting them when he arrives. They number about thirty at the present time.

A LEAP YEAR DANCE.

Young Women Arrange and Conduct a Successful Social Affair.

One hundred young people from the city and borough enjoyed a novel "Leap Year" dance in the Camera Club rooms, Monday. The affair was arranged by Miss Mabel Hamilton and Miss Margaret Kennedy and was replete with features that are considered proper in the years when February has an extra day. The young women received the invitations and paid them on to their "best fellows." They are compelled to ask the young men for dances and also made it their business to see that they were provided with refreshments at the midnight intermission.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra and Warnock was the caterer. The young women paid the assessments.

Routine Hospital Business.

Only business of a routine character was transacted at the February meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, at the Casino. The medical director reported the number of patients in January as follows: Patients remaining at date of last report, 27; admitted, 54; discharged cured, 27; improved, 7; not improved, 1; died, 8; remaining, 38; total number treated, 81; operations, 45; number of hospital days, 919. In the dispensary, number of patients, 49; visits of patients, 151; operations, 2.

DEFENDS THE CHINAMAN

Rev. Mr. Smith in Lecture Before Baptist Men Says that They are Better than Japs.

HE PREDICTS GREAT THINGS.

Looks Forward to the Day When Chinese Will Surpass the Japanese—A More Honest Race.

The wonderful transformation, educationally and industrially, that is now going on in China was illustrated and described in an interesting manner at the First Baptist church, Monday, by Rev. Frank Smith, pastor of the Baptist church at Hackfield. Mr. Smith visited China in company with a party of ministers and he gained a wealth of knowledge concerning that country. His views, all taken by himself, were among the finest yet seen and gave the audience a clearer and better idea of this part of the world which has attracted so much interest.

Mr. Smith did not dwell on the missionary work especially. He described the Chinese as being the most conservative and self-opinionated people on earth, and referred at some length to the war between Japan and China, and the Boxer uprising. He declared his belief that the time would come when China would do things of which Japan is but dreaming. With their excessive defeats China had been led to wonder the cause and had come to the conclusion that they were due to western methods, western civilization, and the natives are now taking advantage of these things. As a result, he said, there is a great transformation going on in the country.

In speaking of the Chinese the speaker said that they are far superior to the Japanese, although he once had an idea to the contrary. They are honest commercially and the Japanese are not. He said that there is a popular feeling in this country favorable to the Japanese, but when China awakens she will perform wonders that will open the eyes of the world.

A few of his views were shown by him illustrating the extensive country through which Mr. Smith traveled, and several showed educational centers, where the young men and women of China are rapidly being prepared to take the lead in all the prominent walks of life in that country. Speaking of the opium trade, he said that the government had taken steps which it was believed would eventually wipe it out of the country.

The scholar of China is now considered fully as important as the soldier in Japan and the leading men of the country are bending every effort to educate the people and bring them up to a higher plane of civilization. He spoke of the Chinese as being great gamblers and said that when they could not get money with which to gamble they would use sticks or in fact anything that they could get hold of to wager.

The views, showing the great temples and various forms of religious worship proved interesting. He also displayed a picture of one of the large iron mills which would be a credit to any to be found in N. H. country. In conclusion Mr. Smith said that China wants everything that we have in this country and above all she needs the Gospel of Christ.

UNION BUILDING LOAN HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association was held Monday. The officers and directors elected were as follows: President, Dr. M. B. Long; vice-president, J. V. Hoagland, Jr.; treasurer, A. D. Vanderhoef; treasurer, M. C. Van Arsdale; auditors, C. B. Vail, H. R. Thorn, W. L. Long; directors for three years, J. P. Emmons, J. C. Manning, Nelson Runyon, M. F. Elderton; attorney, Nelson Runyon.

The report of the secretary presented showed the association to be in a flourishing condition, the profits averaging nearly 10½ per cent. for the past nine years, and the indications are that the first series which has been running 108 months, will mature next year, which was very gratifying to the shareholders present. Other business transacted was the granting of three applications for loans and the withdrawal of another's report. The secretary stated that he had received many applications for shares in the new series opened last month and that the printed reports would be ready for distribution at the next meeting.

"AD" SWIFT HOST OF UNION COUNTY'S POLITICAL LEADERS

District Court Judge C. Addison Swift, of Elizabeth, gave a dinner at Martin's, New York, on Saturday night, to many of the appointment by Governor Fort and his confreres at the Pleas of Union county. A number of Union county politicians were gathered about the festive board.

Among the guests were: County Chairman Frank H. Smith, County Clerk James C. Calvert, Robert H. McAdams, Counselor Samuel Schleimer, Andrew McCardell and Walter L. Hetfield, who is slated to become Mr. Swift's assistant. There was no speechmaking.

Y.M.C.A. EVENS UP BY TRIMMING P.H.S. FIVE

The Y. M. C. A. five came back hard at the Plainfield High School basketball team at the association gymnasium, Monday night, and got even for their defeat by the school boys several weeks ago by trimming them 29 to 19 in a game which showed they are out of the high school class at least. The schoolboys put up a hard fight for the game and at times excelled in team work and passing. But, opposed by the regular league players, who made twelve baskets each half, they could only make twenty-nine points, three of them from the foul line.

At the end of the first period, the association five had a comfortable lead of 17-12, Gilmore and Collier making the scoring. When the teams lined up again, the Y. M. C. A. players got right to work and rolled up twenty-four points from the floor while the high school players only found the hoop eight times, while Dean dropped in a pretty throw once from the foul line. Gilmore and Collier tied in the scoring honors with seven baskets apiece, Collier also making two on fouls. For the high school Snyder excelled, making five baskets. (The Y. M. C. A. was awarded a point technically in the first half. The lineups and summaries:

Y. M. C. A.—Gilmore, Loizeaux and Rumsey, forwards; Collier, centre; Miner and Gavett, guards. P. H. S.—Mortimer and Doane, forwards; Caldwell, centre; Snyder and Parsons, guards.

Field goals: Gilmore, 7; Collier, 7; Miner, 4; Snyder, 5; Mortimer, 4; Rumsey, 2; Gavett, 2; Doane, 2; Caldwell, 2; Loizeaux, 1. Goals from fouls: Doane, 3; Collier, 2. Referee, Charles B. Morse, Plainfield. Woodhull and Listman; timers, Morris and Vail. Twenty minute halves.

BUSINESS MEN FORGE SENIORS TO THIRD PLACE

The business men's five in the local league of the Y. M. C. A. took their sixth straight victory from the Seniors in a well played game at the association gymnasium Monday night. Without the fifteen point handicap which the Seniors allow their opponents, the score was 27-17, in favor of the Seniors, but with the handicap, the business men won out by five points. A feature of the game was the scoring rally of the Seniors in the second half. They scored twelve baskets and added five points from the foul line, guarding their opponents closely and preventing them from scoring more than two scratch baskets the entire period.

There was a tie end of the first half was 13-10 in favor of the business men, feature work being done by Doane, Listman and Dunning. Martin, for the Seniors, scored the most points, finding the iron hoop five times for scores. The lineups and summaries:

Business Men.		Seniors.
Spicer, Doane		Sheppard left forward
Listman		Templin
	right forward
Dunning		Jacot
	centre
Smith		Martin
	left guard
Jarvis		Woodland
	right guard

Field goals: Martin, 5; Doane, 4; Woodland, 3; Listman, 2; Dunning, 2; Templin, Sheppard, Jacot. Goals from fouls: Jacot, 3; Templin, 2; Listman. Referee, Charles B. Morse; twenty minute halves.

Parcels Post Facts

The European countries have long been using the parcels post to advantage. In Germany an 11-pound parcel is carried for 22 cents. So prompt is the government in handling the parcels that the retail houses and laundries in the cities find it cheaper to deliver by parcels post than by delivery wagon, by saving a small fee extra immediate delivery is secured, as the special delivery of a letter is secured in this country. Besides this, up to a certain amount practically all the goods sent by parcels post are insured. In Germany 1 mill per parcel weighing 1 pound for 12 cents, and those weighing as much as 110 pounds can be sent for a little over 60 cents. Even such things as trees are sent by parcels post over there.—Pathfinder.

Boys' Department Straw Ride.

Twenty-two members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., in company with Retiring General Secretary Kenneth Robbie and Boys' Secretary L. A. Hance, went on a sleigh-ride to Westfield Saturday night. The party had a "feed" of doughnuts and hot chocolate upon the return to the association building.

To Dance For Church Benefit.

A charity dance for the benefit of St. Stephen's church will be held at Truell Hall Saturday evening. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Mrs. H. H. McCready, Mrs. S. S. Schuyler and Miss Catherine Knox. For the same benefit, a leap year dance will be held at the Hall, the use of which has been tendered by Mrs. Truell, on the evening of February 29.

"CHILDREN'S DAY" WITH ANTS.

"Mamma, next Sunday is to be Children's day. Shall I have my new white dress for that day? All the little girls are to be dressed in white." "Yes, Gertrude, I will promise you your dress for that day." "And shall I send them to you?" asked the two-year-old Roy, the little sunbeam of the family. "Oh, you are only a little bit of a boy, just the 'sunbeam' of our home. You don't go to Sunday school, you know." "Can't I go Children's day, mamma? Can't I go, papa?" "Well, no; not, little sunbeam. I should think you might, on this great day for children." And so it was decided that little "Sunbeam" should go, if he would promise not to get tired, and also promise to be a "good boy." It was a very proud little boy who joined with the infant class, and marched out into the main room, and tried to join in with the singing. He watched the other classes march in two by two, and it made a very great impression on him. On the following day he was playing in the grounds which surrounded his home when he noticed what seemed to him to be an army of ants, all going in the same direction. He ran breathless to his mother, calling: "Mamma, come quick, and see! It must be children's day with the ants."

ICELANDERS ARE LONG LIVED.

Average Age There Double Mean Duration of Human Life.

It would be interesting to know if any part of the world beats Iceland in the average length of life of its inhabitants. It is shown in the census of 1906 that on an average the people of that island live to the age of 48 years, which is very nearly double the mean duration of human life as it was anticipated a generation ago. Sweden and Norway also recorded satisfactorily healthful countries, but Iceland takes the palm in longevity, the mean duration of life in Sweden being 50.02 years and in Norway 49.94 years. Some of Iceland's earthquakes are nerve-rending, but on the whole the lives of most of its simple and industrious inhabitants slip along with few incidents that unduly stimulate or depress the pulse. Summer and winter the same old mail boat from Leith steams into the harbor of Reykjavik every three weeks, but very rarely brings news that touches Iceland so closely as to make excitement. In fact, the little island enjoys many of the advantages of civilization and avoids most of its drawbacks.—Christian Advocate.

A Hard Task.

A Chicago man tells of a resident of that city who had been unsuccessful in one venture after another. At last, however, he made a large sum of money by means of an invention for car wheels; and very soon there after his family, consisting of his wife and two young daughters, were to be seen taking their daily outing in a motor car. One day the three were being driven rapidly through the park, while a look of intense self-satisfaction overspread the features of their inventor's wife, as she sat bolt upright, looking straight before her. "Now, ma," came in clear tones from one of the daughters, whose keen face was alive with interest, "tell us, ma, can't you loll back and not look as if the water was boiling over?"—Youth's Companion.

World's Oldest Republics.

So far as practical consideration go Switzerland is the oldest of surviving republics. Two puny republics, however, long antedate the Helvetic confederation and in strict accuracy one of these two must be the oldest republic of all now in existence. One of them is the republic of San Marino in Italy, on Mount Titano, the smallest state in Europe and one of the smallest in the world. The other is the republic of Andorra in the Pyrenees, made independent by Charlemagne. No fixed date can be assigned to either of these, both are mediæval relics, and San Marino may be identified even before the middle ages began.

Woes of the Druggist.

"If you want to meet the limit of nerve," remarked a druggist, "you must keep a drug store. Most people seem to think that they have a public accommodation, without the necessity of any real patronage on their part. We have had a good many nerve requests, but one the other day capped the climax. It was raining hard and a woman called me to know, who lived three blocks away, telephone and to send her two two-cent postage stamps."

Why Letters Are Unwritten.

Why not keep up writing-desk supplies just as conscientiously as those for the penny? asks a writer. Few households would care to be left week without sugar, salt or soap, yet how many letters are unanswered for the lack of a good pen, a stamp or an envelope? It is not the expense but lack of thought, that keeps an ample stock of necessary supplies on hand.

Dignity of Ownership.

"I saw a sign in a restaurant down at Galion the other day," said a Cleveland man, "that struck me as a effective means of upholding the dignity of the establishment. The proprietor of the restaurant is a big man, weighing about 200 pounds and put up like a prize ox. His sign says: 'If You Want to Know Who Runs This Place Just Start Something.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MADE HIS HOME A FORTRESS.

Tenant Had Neat Way of Shutting Out Undesirable Visitors.

"Alterations to suit tenant" was a part of the sign in a Philadelphia building, telling that a loft over the store was to let. One day lately a prospective tenant applied and examined himself as pleased with the location and quarters, as well as the terms. As to alterations he had only one thing to suggest, namely, that the stair steps be fixed to the top door with a pair of stout hinges, and could be attached so that they might be raised and lowered, in a way that illustrated perhaps by the attachments of a fire escape. Anxious to get a tenant and seeing no particular objection to this arrangement, the landlord complied. His tenant, a silent man, was wont to go to his quarters early in the forenoon and at once draw the steps up to the ceiling. A few only of his many visitors, those, in fact, who gave a peculiar whistle, were accommodated by the lowering of the steps. The others were left on the ground. Sometimes the less openly unlawful transactions might be going on in his building, called upon the tenant for an explanation. "Oh," was the reply, "my friends have the whistle. The other fellows are creditors." The hinges are still working.

THIEF CONSCIENCE STRICKEN.

The Rev. Isaac P. Whelan, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, explained on Saturday that a return of $800 which was fraudulently obtained from the People's Building and Loan Association, of Harrison, some time ago. The money was mailed to the treasurer of the association, Thomas E. Gleason, a few days ago, and there had been much guessing as to the reason for its return. There was nothing about the letter that could help to trace the sender and the only note accompanying the money stated that the thief was conscience stricken.

Father Whelan said yesterday that the guilty person had used the clergyman as a go-between, confiding in him through confessional. Later the priest was given permission to tell the facts, and he met the officers of the building and loan association and completed the details of the transfer. Two persons were directly concerned in the fraud by which the $800 was obtained on the certificate of stock of Thomas Anderson, of Harrison. Anderson's name was forged on the back of the certificate and again on

ON METROPOLITAN JERSEY

William Jeffery Tells Realty Men of Supremacy of the Suburban District.

AT JERSEY CITY BANQUET.

Former Mayor Fagan, Robert E. Carey and Others Are Among the Galaxy of Speakers.

The fourth annual dinner of the real estate brokers of Jersey City and vicinity was held in the Jersey City Club house, in Clinton avenue, Jersey City, last night. One hundred and fifty persons were present. Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, was to have been the guest of honor, but illness prevented him from being present.

State Senator James F. Fielder was to have been a guest and was down for the toast "The Broker and His Rights," but he was detained in Trenton. Ex-Mayor Mark M. Fagan was a guest. The speakers and their addresses were: Former Mayor Francis McCauley, of Weehawken, "North Hudson Towns;" the Rev. Walter B. Greenway, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Jersey City, "Bargains Good and Bad;" Robert Carey, "The Broker Professionally;" Otto Kempner, "The Value of Organization for the Broker;" Joseph Day, "The Auctioneer and Broker and His Value in the Realty Market;" William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights and formerly of Plainfield, "Metropolitan New Jersey." Mayor Wittpenn's address was to have been "The Municipality and Its Real Estate Interests."

Mr. Jeffery met with a flattering reception. In discussing "Metropolitan New Jersey" he said incidentally:

"Jersey City stands next to the borough of Manhattan in the per capita value of real estate, just think of that. The assessed value of real estate in Jersey City is $1,066 per inhabitant, Newark with $870 assessed value per inhabitant, is $120 per capita ahead of Brooklyn. The five counties in our metropolitan district have a million and a quarter people—and the land value is $5,000,000,000, exceeding Brooklyn. Our area is much larger and most of it is acreage which can be bought low enough to give homes to all who are being crowded out of the cities. With the increased population sure to come it will not be long until our land values double and then will equal the present per inhabitant values of Greater New York.

"In 1870 Hudson county was behind Essex in population, by about fifteen thousand, also behind Essex in value of real estate to the amount of twenty-five million dollars. In 1907 Hudson leads Essex in population by fifty or sixty thousand, and in real estate assessments by fifty-six million dollars.

"You don't seem to worry your citizens about the personal property assessment. That is wise. Some towns have been making great efforts—or at least threatening—to get all personal property on the rolls. This is a shortsighted policy and besides doesn't work. CHINA AS WORLD POWER

Rev. Mr. Stuchell at First Presbyterian Men's Club Banquet Forcasts This.

A MISSIONARY A STATESMAN.

Railway Pastor Declares That Righteousness Is Not To Be Learned In An Art Gallery.

Rev. William T. Stuchell, of Rahway, was the chief speaker at the First Presbyterian church Men's Club banquet last night. "The Church and the Changing Order" was his topic and incidently he made the declaration that Japan's power is now declining and that China is destined to become a world force.

The minister declared that there is today a great yearning on the part of church people for a development of the social side. In the changing order of the day emphasis should be laid on the social features. "People are not finding in the church what they are looking for," said Mr. Stuchell. "There is a great change going on. The Church of Christ is more triumphant today than ever. Although it may be fashionable to stay away from church, it is not desirable. You cannot learn righteousness in an art gallery and the spiritual uplift is not found in a soup kitchen.

"The present day combination of capital and labor has got beyond us, hence the disturbance. The church has made mighty progress and we have reached that point where the individual must be educated for society. We are beginning to recognize something of the duty before us. There is no government that can make a man free. True freedom is a matter of the heart. The progress of Christianity shows that there is something doing in the world today for God. The awakening of China is significant. She is destined to become the Latin race of the Orient. Japan has lost her day and her star will decline. China is the sleeping giant with her 400,000,000 of people. She has progressed more in the last 35,000 years than during the previous 3,000 years. With her great wealth of coal and iron she is destined to be a world power.

"Missions is a man's job, the crowning of women's efforts. The missionary who goes abroad today becomes an international statesman, and will live in the white light of the hour. He will not be a statesman as politicians view the term, but a statesman of a higher order for Christ."

Mr. Stuchell's remarks were listened to attentively and at the close long applause greeted him. He was followed by Dr. F. A. Kinch, president of the Men's Club of the Westfield Presbyterian church, who made a few remarks concerning the club upon its attainments. It was announced that owing to a previous engagement of great importance, S. S. Swackhamer was unable to be present.

W. T. Duning, as president of the club, was in charge of the program, introducing the speakers. During the evening the men enjoyed several bass solos by F. C. Ighehart, Jr., accompanied by Clifford A. Braider.

The committee in charge of the banquet consisted of W. T. Currie, Joseph C. Allen and George A. Ballentyne. The women who assisted in the serving of the excellent dinner prepared by Demolli, were Mrs. John S. Johnston, Mrs. N. H. Currie, Mrs. C. M. Hummer, Mrs. George A. Ballentyne, Miss Alice Miller, Miss Georgia Ricker, Miss Ella Lounsbury, Miss Bessie Bond and Miss Beatrice Miner.

Notable Production Booked.

One of the most notable casts of the present season will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, when Henry B. Harris will present Dustin Farnum in "The Rector's Garden," a new play of American life by Byron Ongley, author of "Brewster's Millions." In support of the star are Miss Grace Elliston, who is the original Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse;" William Courtenay who appeared for a number of years under the direction of Charles Frohman in leading roles; Edgen Errol, Thomas Findley, Edward N. Ellis, Robert Roberts, Chas. Abbott, Al Roberts, Alice Reife and A. H. Simmons.

"Glorious and Inglorious India."

The services at the First Baptist church Sunday night will be under the auspices of the Young People's Association and Rev. Milnor Wilbur, who has just returned from a trip around the world will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Glorious and Inglorious India." The views were taken by Mr. Wilbur.

ALL HALL WITH FANWOOD

Mayor Hall Buys a Hall for Borough Which Has Tired of Hiring a Hall.

PURCHASE BRICK STRUCTURE.

Building To Be Remodelled For Municipal Purposes—Work To Be Begun At Once.

Having outgrown its swaddling clothes, the progressive borough of Fanwood has arisen to the dignity of a Borough Hall, which will include a central point for the police station, borough offices and Council chamber. The deal was closed yesterday when Mayor Burton P. Hall and the Council purchased the one brick building, which stands near the rail*road station, from the Central New* Jersey Land Improvement Company. While the consideration is not stated, it is said that the borough has a bargain.

Negotiations for the purchase of this property have been underway since the first of the year, when Mayor Hall took office. The real need for suitable quarters for all the borough offices and various departments was so apparent that no time was lost in closing the deal. A considerable sum will have to be expended in putting the building in condition for occupancy and the work of remodeling was started today.

The plan is to locate the police station and borough offices on the first floor, where they will be easy of access. The police station will be equipped in a modern manner and there will be a place reserved for the holding of court. The second floor will be devoted to the Council chamber and it is proposed to make it attractive and up-to-date. The new property is especially desirable because of its proximity to the railroad station and at the same time being almost at the central point in the borough. The work of remodelling the building will be hastened so that the borough officials may be able to take possession at the earliest possible date.

ALIENISTS TO EXAMINE COUNTESS DE ANDERSON

Whether Mary De Anderson, the swindler of tradesmen, also known as "the countess," who created a scene yesterday in the Essex county Court House in Newark and afterward raised another fuss in police headquarters, is shamming insanity, or whether she really became crazy on the verge of insanity, is an open question. Mrs. De Anderson during her operations here was known as "Mrs. Col. Wheeling." It is quite likely, however, that steps will be taken shortly to find out through experts if she is more fit for an asylum than a penitentiary.

According to the authorities there is a "record as long as a man's arm," against her, gathered from various parts of the country, and yesterday when she was brought down from the county jail, where she is held, together with her daughters, Bessie and Helen, charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses from Jersey merchants, she acted queerly.

"I will not allow it," she shouted. I am innocent and I have never been in Baltimore, Washington, Boston, or other places in my life, and my husband was a cripple, not a crook."

Jacob Ruhl, messenger at police headquarters, was finally compelled to hold the woman in a chair while the photographer squeezed the bulb.

While the camera man managed to get a picture, Superintendent Schwartz, of the Bertillion system, was unable to get her finger prints.

The daughters were also photographed, but they protested vigorously and refused permission for a time.

When led into court, the "Countess" screamed: "My God! My God! Everybody knows that I am an innocent woman! I never intentionally wronged anybody in my life!"

Then she said that a lawyer had advised her to plead guilty, but that she could not conscientiously do it. The fact is that a lawyer has been engaged by her and he expected to plead for her, but she obstinately refused to take the advice.

Local Bill in House.

Senate Bill No. 84 has passed the Senate and is now in the House, where it will probably come up for passage next Monday. This bill is for the purpose of validating the Plainfield sewer bond issue where a slight error was made by the printer in not publishing the advertisement for the full period of 15 days. Through an oversight the advertisement appeared for only 14 days.

POLICEMAN RUN OVER BY BOROUGH CHEMICAL

Marshal Charles Keller, of the North Plainfield police force, had his right foot painfully crushed last night as he was trying to climb to the side step of the borough chemical engine. The accident happened as the apparatus was running to the second fire late last evening. Keller, who, is on night duty on Som*erset street, was riding on the back* step of the engine to the fire. At Hudson lane, the apparatus slowed down and he jumped off, thinking the team would stop there. The truck started up again, and in attempting to climb to the side step of the engine, Keller fell off and the rear wheel passed over his foot.

The injured officer was removed to Dr. A. H. Dundon's office, where an examination showed that no bones were broken. He will be "off the job" for several days, however, as the foot is badly crushed. During his absence from duty, Special Officer John Reinmann has been detailed to his beat by Chief Marshal Weiss. Keller is the second regular borough policeman who is now off duty, for Marshal Pope is confined to his home with inflammatory rheumatism.

TWO NIGHT ALARMS KEEP BOROUGH FIREMEN BUSY

North Plainfield firemen were kept on the jump last night as the de*partment was called out for two fires* in as many hours, and the first one, a chimney blaze for which two alarms were turned in, was sounded while the men were testing the recently repaired steamer Green Brook. The first blaze was at the home of H. E. Tapscott, at 68 Willow avenue, and a burning chimney was extinguished without loss. This was at about 7:30, and at shortly after 11 o'clock the department was again called out for a blaze at the end of Watchung avenue, near Coddington avenue. The fire was in a boys' bungalow, built of boards at the edge of the woods on the Meyers' property, and the little shack was entirely destroyed by the flames.

Accompanied by Chief Howard Wooiston, of the borough department, the men hitched up the steamer at shortly after 6 o'clock for a test run. They proceeded to Brook avenue, where a satisfactory test was held. While the firement were at work at the brook, an alarm was sounded from box 153. The engine was working, and the idea of hitching the team and riding back to headquarters for the chemical. On his way back to the house, Gaub, who is living with Tuck, was thrown off near Lincoln place, when the animal balked, so that he was a few minutes late in getting back with the horse.

Excited by the delay in the apparatus, which really amounted to but *five minutes, Tapscott sounded a sec*ond alarm, from box 153, a few minutes after turning in the first one. The apparatus made a quick run and two extinguishers were used. The damage was slight.

After the Tapscott fire, the firemen returned to the brook for the steamer, and had scarcely got it back to the house, and the horses unhitched, when an alarm was sounded from box 145, at about 9 o'clock. The department made a quick run, and found a small 8 by 10 shack at the edge of the woods near the end of Watchung avenue in a mass of flames. A chemical stream was used, but the little place was burned to the ground. It was built by a party of small boys who live in the vicinity and used it as a club house. Members of the club are Joseph Flack, Jr., and Jacob Weiss. The fire started from an overheated stove.

Too Late to Attend Funeral.

Wesley Randolph, formerly a telegraph operator at the North Avenue station, who with his brother has been enjoying an extended trip through the West, has been visiting relatives in town for a few days. They were in the West when their father, George Randolph, himself a noted telegraph operator, died at his home in Brooklyn, and despite every effort it was impossible to get word to the sons so that they could reach home in time for the funeral. They first learned of their father's death while in Denver. Although taking a limited train from that city soon after receiving the telegram they did not reach Brooklyn until a day after the funeral.

BOROUGH PLAN DEFEATED

Taxpayers of South Plainfield Decide Incorporation Would Be too Expensive.

THE BENEFITS TOO SLIGHT.

After a Full Discussion at Largely Attended Meeting the Scheme Is Voted Down.

The taxpayers of South Plainfield at a largely attended meeting in Washington Hall, last night, decided upon a vote of sixty-six to twenty-eight against the proposed action of establishing a borough. The vote was taken with a view to ascertaining the sentiment of those present and it is the general opinion that the result kills the proposed old borough bill.

Peter McDonough was chairman of the meeting and Thomas Linabury was secretary. Mr. McDonough presented the question of debate, stating that in accordance with a carefully prepared report a substantial sum would be available under borough conditions which now goes to the township. The taxes paid by the whole of the proposed borough district and the amount received back from the State as well as the township were included in the report.

In the discussion which followed it was shown that the amount in excess of present revenue would be about $1,400, and this was considered a very small amount for improvements that would be desired should a borough be established. According to the old bill the territory to be included in the proposed borough would aggregate about 6,000 acres, extending as far south as New Durham and as far west as the Dunellen line. It was argued that there would be so much vacant and unimproved land that with the higher rate of assessment, which would follow under borough conditions, the taxpayers would have to pay more money than at present and the returns would not be correspondingly as large. It was further argued to show that the action would be unwise, that it would be several years before this improved land would be developed so that a fair and proportionate return in taxes could be expected to support the borough government.

It seemed to be the sense of a majority of those present at the meeting that very good progress is being made as town and that while the suggested improvements would be welcome, the ultimate cost would be so great that it would prove more of a burden than a blessing to the taxpayers. The greatest harmony prevailed throughout the discussion and while there were many different opinions everyone was good natured and agreed that the discussion had been a benefit in advancing the interests of the community.

AUTO BUS IN FLAMES; OWNER'S LOSS $2,000

The large Reo auto-bus, used in the passenger service between this city and South Plainfield, caught fire on the road last night yesterday afternoon and was totally destroyed within a few minutes. The driver, George Nichols, of West Sixth street, noticed the flames about the engine in the floor barely in time to hustle a half-dozen passengers out of danger before the gasolene tank exploded. The burning occurred on Plainfield avenue at Wolf's hill, just over the city line, and nothing could be done to save the vehicle.

The service between the city and the suburb was established by Edward B. Ryder, of Central avenue, and the bus was his property. It was worth about $2,000 and had only recently been refitted with a new engine and a top with glass sides.

According to Nichols, he had just climbed the hill and on driving chain broke and one end tore a hole in the gasolene tank. The fumes ignited instantly and began spreading across the bottom of the bus and he realized that the tank might explode. The most passengers were able to adopt some plan to put out the blaze but the explosion took place before they could act and there was nothing to be done after that. Only a heap of twisted iron was left.

The destruction of the machine once more cuts South Plainfield people off from regular transportation to the city and the loss will be greatly felt. The line had proved to be a great convenience and the passenger traffic was increasing daily.

MISHAP; THEN ROMANCE

Accident to Maze Edwards Unites Borough Girl and Wealthy Hotel Man.

MARRIED AT ATLANTIC CITY.

Bride Formerly the Major's Nurse and the Groom a Friend Who Came to Visit Him.

Subsequent events that have followed the accident to Mr. and Mrs. Maze Edwards at Block Island, last August, and as a result of which the former is still under a doctor's care, once more substantiate the adage that *"It's an ill wind that blows no*body good." The disablement of the genial Major led to the meeting of Miss Anna Hoagland, of North Plainfield, who has acted as his nurse and attendant for the past four months, and D. A. Mitchell, a wealthy farmer, owner of the Highland House and Pequot House, Block Island, and well known New Englander. Dan Cupid became interested and the busy little fellow with the bow and arrows added two more victims to his unerring aim. Miss Hoagland and Mr. Mitchell were married in Atlantic City, last night, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. J. O. P. Lowry, pastor of the First Baptist church at the shore resort.

It has been the custom of Major and Mrs. Edwards to spend a portion of each summer at the Highland House, Block Island, and it was while on a drive near the hotel grounds last year that the carriage was upset and both were hurt. Mrs. Edwards recovered quickly but her husband was badly hurt and when he returned to Plainfield Miss Hoagland was engaged as nurse. Mr. Mitchell came to the city Christmas week to visit his two friends and there for the first time met the young woman in charge of the sick room. It was a case of love at first sight on the part of the New Englander, and he paid great attention to her. When he left for home it was with Miss Hoagland's promise that they would be married as soon as the patient no longer required her services, probably in April or May.

Mr. Edwards' sickness and ailment became such that a change to Atlantic City was determined upon and carried out three weeks ago. Without sending any previous notice, Mr. Mitchell put in an appearance at the sort last Saturday and pressed his suit for an immediate marriage with so much ardor that Miss Hoagland consented. A new nurse was provided for Mr. Edwards and the ceremony took place at the Chester Inn, where the party have been stopping, in order that the disabled man might be in attendance and confer his blessing. Mrs. Edwards was also a witness.

Mr. Mitchell is fifty-five years old and was a widower, while his bride has just turned twenty-two. She is a sister of John Hoagland, of Somerset street, and has numerous relatives in the West End. She has been a practicing nurse for the past two years and is a decidedly attractive young woman. The couple will remain at Atlantic City for a few days and then go to Philadelphia for a brief visit, after which they will leave for Block Island, their future home.

BONIFACE STILL MOURNS

Princeton Inn Owner Fails to Locate Vanonis Who Left Unpaid Board Bill.

THEY REGISTERED FROM SHERIDAN.

Mrs. E. Vanoni Not Known In Plainfield But Family Description Answers to Former Local Residents.

As told in yesterday's Daily Press The Nassau Inn management in Princeton have expressed anxiety as to the whereabouts of a family of four who arrived at the hotel last Wednesday and left town Monday. *According to the boniface they neg*lected to pay a bill of $25. They registered as Mrs. E. Vanoni, Miss Pauline Vanoni and J. and L. Vanoni, all of Plainfield.

The Nassau Inn proprietor inquired about them at the Trenton House, Trenton, and was told that *that hos*telry had had a similar experience with parties believed to be the same persons.

Mrs. E. Vanoni is not known here but a Mrs. Eugenia Vanoni resided at No. 920 Park avenue until November last. She had a daughter, Miss Pauline Vanoni and two sons, one of whom was Frederick L. Vanoni. Miss Vanoni was an accomplished and attractive young woman. She was employed at the office of a local electrician and after giving a day's notice quit her position early in November.

F. L. Vanoni represented himself, it is said, as the treasurer of the Francis Bacon Piano Company and is alleged to have told his friends that the family had a $5,000 share in the concern which was left to them by the father, John Vanoni. Young Vanoni before leaving town gave it out, it is also reported, that the family had withdrawn from the piano business and intended to invest in a traveling vaudeville company.

MERCHANTS TO OBSERVE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The agitation on the part of several merchants to obtain the closing of the local stores on Saturday, Washington's Birthday, is meeting with success. *At a meeting of those in*terested on Monday night a committee was appointed to call on the merchants of the city and obtain their signatures agreeing to close on the coming legal holiday. A majority of the store-keepers have agreed to observe the day by a suspension of business. It is understood that the stores will remain open Friday night.

No effort was made to get the cooperation of the grocers and butchers, for it is said that they all have decided to keep their places of business open as usual. They argue that it would prove a great inconvenience to their customers if they should close their doors for night until Monday as in most cases it might be difficult for some to stock with provisions for that length of time. Those who have agreed to close their stores are as follows:

J. A. Force & Co., Woodhull & Martin Company, James R. Blair, M. C. Van Arsdale, M. & A. Tepper, F. A. Featherhofer, Martin Herin, George J. Finger, A. M. Griffen, S. H. Whitney, H. E. F. M. VOORHEES INDICTED

Former Governor of Jersey Accused of Making False Insurance Reports.

SAYS HE'S NO CRIMINAL.

As the President of Bankers Life Insurance Company It Is Alleged He Swore to Falsehoods.

The special Grand Jury in New York which has been investigating the affairs of the Bankers' Life Insurance Company for two weeks handed up two indictments Thursday against Foster M. Voorhees, former Governor of New Jersey and president of the company, and Frank G. Combs, its secretary.

Only two witnesses were examined. Ex-Gov. Voorhees appeared before the Grand Jury at his own request. The other witness was Howard N. Stokes, treasurer of the company and a brother of former Gov. Stokes of New Jersey. Mr. Combs was under subpoena, but was never called to testify.

No arrests were made following the indictments, which were presented to Justice Dowling in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court of New York. The indicted men are expected to surrender themselves today and give bail.

Both indictments charge perjury, based on reports to the State Insurance Department. A few months ago the Bankers' Life was reorganized and new men in the company submitted to Superintendent Kelsey a report charging flagrant violation of the law in the past management of the company.

It was declared that the company's report to the Insurance Department for the year 1904, made in February of 1905, stated that $28,000 in dividends were not due the stockholders when in fact they were.

It is understood the indictments were based on this alleged false report. Perjury is a felony which can be punished with imprisonment for ten years. There is no alternative of a fine.

"From the published accounts of the finding of the indictment that I have read it would seem that there were some dividends left out in one of the reports. I cannot understand that and until I know more definitely upon what charges an indictment is based I do not care to make any statement. This I will say, however, I have never knowingly committed a crime.

"I have served three years as president of the Bankers' Life Insurance Company, incorporated in New York, and signed the annual reports and signed three annual reports which were sent to the Insurance Commission at Albany. I am satisfied that I never knowingly signed a false report. In the meantime my friends may rest assured that my conscience is easy."

When an effort was made to see former Governor Voorhees at his home on North Broad street, Elizabeth, last night, Dr. N. M. Voorhees, the former Governor's brother, said that Mr. Voorhees was in bed and could not be seen. Dr. Voorhees said, however, that his brother has been much worried over the case before the Grand Jury, about two weeks ago.

"My brother," Dr. Voorhees said, "is not a criminal, and I don't think they can prove him one. What he has done, we understand correctly, is a common offense, one that is committed thousands of times every day. He had no time to verify every statement of the facts in those voluminous reports, and naturally took for granted statements made by subordinates."

Friends of the former State Executive assert that ignorance of the insurance business is responsible for his indictment. They say that he knew nothing about the business, and when the reports were handed him to sign he accepted them as correct and affixed his signature.

The Bankers' Life Insurance Company, of which he was president, was organized about fifteen or twenty years ago. It did a general life insurance business, but its principal business was insuring the lives of bankers and bankers' clerks.

Former Governor Voorhees became the head of the company soon after his term as Governor of New Jersey expired. At this time the company was suffering from internal troubles, and its officers believed that the opposing factions could be reconciled if he were made the company's head. He remained with the company two or three years, and, being unable to accomplish this end, resigned.

Wm. Jones, Jr., Surprised.

A surprise party was tendered to William Jones, Jr., at his home on East Third street, Thursday night, in honor of his seventeenth birthday anniversary. There were about twenty-five friends present and the evening was spent dancing and with vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served.

MISS ADELIA PATTERSON DIES AT LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Miss Adelia A. Patterson, daughter of the late Joseph A. and Adelia Patterson, who were residents of Scotch Plains for thirty-five years, died on February 4 at her home in Los Angeles, Cal. The family moved to the Pacific coast after the death of the father in 1904. Miss Patterson was stricken with pneumonia a few weeks ago and complications which set in resulted fatally.

Miss Patterson is survived by three brothers, Joseph A., George Henry and Charles F. Patterson, who under the firm names of Patterson, Brothers, conducted a wholesale tobacco business on West Front street for many years. They are all residents at Los Angeles at the present time. The funeral was held in that city and the body was afterward forwarded to Plainfield, reaching here yesterday in charge of Charles F. Patterson. Burial was in the Scotch Plains cemetery Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Mulford officiating at the grave.

SONS OF VETS. OBSERVE LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, was one of the few local organizations to observe Lincoln's Birthday, and the affair held at G. A. R. Hall, Wednesday night, was largely attended. There was a program of vocal, instrumental music and recitations, which the members and their friends enjoyed a lunch-box social. The members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps were guests.

Captain Edward P. T. Smith was chairman of the committee in charge, and presented the program, which opened with a piano solo by Miss Clara Barton Smith. Captain Smith then delivered an address of welcome and commented on the significance of the day. A vocal solo, "Won't You Be My Honey?" by Miss Loretta Lantran, and a monologue, "The Heartrending Affair," by Miss May Smith and a vocal solo by Miss Lydia Edgar were well received, as were also readings by Mrs. Hattie Goldsboro, a vocal solo, "Irish Love Song," by Mrs. William J. Dodd, a cornet solo by Edward Tallamy and additional vocal solos by Miss Lydia Edgar and Miss Loretta Lantran.

In connection with the sale of the lunch-boxes, from which a good sum was realized, there was the award of the quit presented by Mrs. William Hand for the Sons of Veterans fair. It was presented to Victor Lorton. A shaving set was given to William Sheppard, by Bloomerville. This concluded the entertainment and the committee from the Sons of Veterans served cake, coffee and cigars and a social hour was enjoyed.

Two cures for the Blues.

"What do you do when you have the blues?" asked the first woman.

"I walk up Fifth avenue and look in all the jewelers' windows and at the orchids and high priced hats. What do you do?"

"I go way down to Rivington street and look at the wretched poor women with seventeen children struggling in the dirt. That makes me thankful my affairs are no worse."—New York Press.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII, returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called up on Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished that letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

DISCUSS P. E. MISSIONS

ADDRESSES BY MISSIONARIES.

Grace, Holy Cross and Heavenly Rest Churches Represented at New Brunswick Meeting.

The upper division of the Women's Auxiliary to Missions of the New Jersey Diocese of the Episcopal church, met at Christ church, New Brunswick, Thursday. Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. George A. Warner, Mrs. J. O. Stevens, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Brown, Miss Ida Davis and Miss Louise Davis, of the Church of the Holy Cross, and Rev. Mr. Townsend, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest. Grace church was also represented by the usual number of delegates. The auxiliary received and accepted the invitation to meet with the Church of the Holy Cross a year hence.

One of the principal speakers of the day was Mrs. Wallace, of Tokio, Japan, who described the customs of the Japanese, the work that the Episcopal church is doing, and spoke especially of the excellent results at St. Hilda's School, where there are 750 pupils. She also told of the hospital work and the progress at the theological seminary.

Another speaker was Rev. Mr. Hunter, of Raleigh, N. C., who gave an interesting talk of the American Church Institute and its work among the colored people of the South. He dwelt especially on the industrial and educational features of the work, as being the most important.

The meeting was considered one of the best held in recent years. There was a large attendance of women from the entire upper division and great interest was shown in the various topics under discussion.

CARTS IN WHEELBARROW THEIR VALENTINE LUNCH

In celebration of St. Valentine's Day, a delightful luncheon was given Friday at the home of Mrs. Edson C. Martin on Albert street. The affair was in the nature of a surprise and was arranged by Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, of the Finech Club, of which she was one of the organizers. In order to make the surprise complete, the women members of the club and their guests furnished their own lunch. This was left at the home of Mrs. Woodhull, while the women pro*ceeded to the home of Mrs. Martin.*

A little later Mr. Woodhull appeared at the Martin home with the lunch, having brought it from his home in a wheelbarrow. The unique proposition was conceived by Mr. Woodhull and he offered to deliver the refreshments in the wheelbarrow. On his way to Mrs. Martin's residence he met a number of his friends and acquaintances and all were much puzzled to know what his actions meant. The women folks thoroughly enjoyed the affair and both Mrs. Martin and her guests gave Mr. Woodhull a rousing reception. After lunch the women spent the afternoon playing finch.

GLIB-TONGUED SCOUNDREL PREYS ON THE UNEMPLOYED.

A man about 40 years old, of neat attire and a fluent talker, is going about the city of Elizabeth fleecing men out of work. His plan is to go to the home of a man he knows to be out of employment, tell him he is the head of a labor bureau, and that if the man desires employment he can procure it for him at once, providing that he will join the union covering the work in which he desires to engage.

The victim, anxious to get work, agrees, and is told he must pay at once money for his union fees. One of the victims who reported his loss to the police said that he and his wife were so completely taken in by the persuasive stranger that he paid over to him $9, the amount demanded. In order to do so, his wife was obliged to borrow about half of that sum from a neighbor. The stranger promised to find him employment without delay at the Rising Sun Brewery. He was told that before the stranger would take him to the brewery he must first shave himself and dress neatly. The man went upstairs to change his clothing. When he returned the stranger had disappeared.

Leap Year Dance at Truell Hall.

An informal leap year dance will be given at Truell Hall, Friday night, February 28, by a younger set. Arrangements for the affair are in charge of Miss Maude Emmons, assisted by a committee of young women. Dancing will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

New York Teas.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Frederick Lindsey Curtis, formerly Miss Marjorie Fleming, of Park avenue, for Thursdays, February 20 and 27, at her home on 116th street, New York.

CONTRACTOR KIRCH IS NOW IN BANKRUPTCY

Through Counsellor Francis J. Blatz, William H. Kirch, a contractor of North Plainfield, filed a petition in bankruptcy Thursday in the United States District Court at Trenton. The petition shows the liabilities to be $4,900 and the assets $3,150. The settlements will be in charge of W. V. Steele, of Somerville, referee in bankruptcy proceedings.

Mr. Kirch has been one of the leading contractors of the city for many years and has enjoyed a good reputation for business integrity. His action is entirely due to the fact that he has been unable to collect money due him from contracts already executed. If he were able to make proper collections, it is said, he would have sufficient to meet all claims against him.

About twenty creditors are listed in the petition.

SOMERSET SCHOOL PUPILS' QUICK TIME IN FIRE DRILL

Leaving the school building in exactly fifty seconds, the pupils of the Somerset street school demonstrated the efficiency of the school fire drill to Supervising Principal Sage, of Warren Township Friday. The general alarm was sounded at 11:20 without any previous warning and the pupils filed rapidly and quietly from the building by its three entrances. Mr. Sage, who was Mr. Kreba's guest at the school this morning, was enthusiastic over the rapid and orderly system in use at the school.

The test was of especial value in that it was the first fire drill since Miss Brindange and Mr. Scarborough have been at the school. Scarborough is at the school temporarily, being a member of the senior class of the State Normal School, who, with two other members of his class is getting practical teaching experience at the school. As soon as the alarm was sounded, the pupils began to file back, and were at work in their various class rooms again in four minutes after the alarm was sounded.

PLANS LARGEST CITY IN WORLD FOR JERSEY.

"The City of 7,000,000 Inhabitants" was discussed at the meeting of the Board of Trade of Newark Thursday night, and the rosy view of the future establishment of the largest city in the world by Jersey City, Newark as it is at the present, the centre, was explained by Calvin Tomkins.

He spoke of the merging of Jersey City and Newark and surrounding towns into one large municipality, the consolidation of the docks between Newark and Jersey City to allow these cities to grow together, and he declared that when this was an assured fact "our interests are so closely related to those of New York that there will be practically one large city, the business centre of the civilized world."

Librarian John Cotton Dana, of the Free Public Library, chairman of the interburban committee, which prepared the report on the matter in 1906, requested that the report be reprinted and distributed and steps be taken to perfect the scheme. He suggested a metropolitan commission to take the matter up.

NOVEL GAMES PLAYED AT Y. W. C. A. VALENTINE PARTY.

In the true spirit of St. Valentine's eve, ninety members of the Y. W. C. A. met at the association building, Thursday, exchanging valentines and playing heart games. A feature of the evening's entertainment was the "postoffice," where Miss Georgia Bonnell was postmistress and sorted and distributed the valentines exchanged by the members. Miss Eleanor Warning, Miss Frances Hyde and Miss Eva Browne presented a series of valentine tableaux in the gymnasium. The various "valentines" were posed by Miss Elsie Goddard.

After playing "hunting the hearts" and the "Dan Cupid Game," in which bows and arrows were used, the prizes were awarded. "Sweet hearts," in the form of dainty cakes, were passed around, and their influence was counteracted by lemonade. During the evening, several of the young women rendered vocal selections.

Bachelor Dance at Casino.

The bachelor dance given at the Casino Friday night, February 28, promises to be even more successful than the first one earlier in the season. A large invitation list has been completed and the affair will be attended by quite a lot of town guests. J. Hartley Mellick and Harvey Fisk have the arrangements in charge.

"Magic" Cline Recovering.

Red Bank, Feb. 15.—Miss "Maggie" Cline, the actress, who has been ill for a couple of weeks with bloodpoisoning, at the home of her sister, on Branch avenue, this place, is now on the road to recovery. It is understood that her illness was caused by the use of cosmetics, and that for a time she was in a serious condition Miss Cline has retired from the stage permanently and it is understood that a testimonial will be given here shortly by her friends.

TO BRIDGE NEWARK BAY

Elizabeth and Bayonne Talk of Putting Public Span Across the Waterway.

NEWARK OPPOSES THE SCHEME.

Plan to Construct Combination Foot, Wagon and Trolley Car Bridge at Cost of $2,000,000.

Arrangements are under way for a conference and later, probably, a mass meeting of citizens of Elizabeth and Bayonne and residents of other parts of Union and Hudson counties, to consider the proposed plan of erecting a bridge, connecting these cities on either side of Newark Bay. The Board of Trade of Bayonne has approved the plan, and so has the Board of Trade of Elizabeth. Both Boards of Freeholders have gone so far as to say that the scheme is a good one, but they decline to take any steps in the matter before some unmistakable expression is made by the people on the question. Before

In the meantime the city of Newark is trying to halt the project. It has succeeded in squelching the agitation in the past, and it is trying to do the same thing now. Its objection to the bridge is that it will be an impediment to navigation. The Newark Board of Trade is vigorously opposing the plan on this account; *bold*ing that every additional bridge thrown across the Passaic river or Newark bay holds back the city's growth just that much.

The plan is to construct a combination foot, wagon and trolley car bridge from the end of Fairmount avenue, in Elizabeth, across the bay, parallel with the present Central Railroad, or "Two Mile," bridge, as it is frequently called, but about two thousand feet to the northward. The cost, it is estimated, with street grading and other work, will be about $2,000,000 for the bridge proper, but perhaps one-fifth of the approaches will be filled in from the Elizabeth shore.

At present all wagon traffic passes through Newark and by way of the Plank Road or turnpike to Jersey City and New York. The proposed route, it is said, will enable the Union county farmers to carry their products to Jersey City, through Bayonne, thus saving almost eight miles of hauling.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL GIVES A BIG EUCHRE

Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, gave a social and euchre in its rooms on East Front street, Thursday, Friends of the members from this city and other places being the guests. There were 200 players in all and some very spirited playing marked the progress of the games. First prize for the women was taken by Miss Margaret Burke, while Mrs. John Simpson was awarded second. Patrick Connolly took first of the men's prizes and John Kyle second. There were also two booby awards.

Following the awards refreshments were served and the Messrs. Brennan, of New York, entertained with an informal program of vocal and instrumental selections.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of A. E. La Forte, John J. Hines, Thomas Carty, J. J. Varley and Michael D. O'Keefe.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH OF H. E. BENNETT.

Harry E. Bennett, a former well known resident of this city, died Wednesday night at his home in New York. He had suffered a long time with a spinal trouble which compelled his retirement from work last October.

Mr. Bennett was born in North Wales in 1862 and came to this country with his parents when he was six years old. He learned telegraphy and in 1888 became associated with the Western Union Company, remaining in its service until his health failed. In 1884 he married Lauretta Cora Qsmun, of Finderne, who survives him. He enjoyed the friendship of everyone with whom he came in contact and as one of them expressed it: "All through Harry Bennett there ran a fine, silken fibre, a kindliness, gentleness and consideration of others seldom met with in the rush and hurry of every day life."

While residents of Plainfield, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett made their home on East Sixth street and also for a time on Manning avenue in the borough.

For Ties and Hatpins.

When making a pretty holder for ties, do not forget to make a padded lid in which to run the hatpins. It makes a pretty combination article to be used on the dresser and keeps neat jewelled pins much cleaner than when exposed to the dust of the room.

Everybody Happy.

Oh, what a charming world 'twould be,
If man would never turn a crook;
If married people would agree,
And every maid knew how to cook.

LEONARD SMITH DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Following a long illness with throat trouble, Leonard Scott Smith, a resident of Plainfield for the past eighteen years, died Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home on Duer street. He underwent an operation for the trouble at the hands of Dr. Ard in October and it was quite successful but had been delayed so long that poison had penetrated the system. His nerves were left in a bad condition and last February he took a trip south hoping to be able to return to business in the spring, but he never regained his strength. Complications set in at the end and the immediate cause of death was Bright's Disease.

Mr. Smith was born in 1870 at Jessups, Anne Arundel County, Maryland, and was the youngest son of the late Col. John L. and Virginia C. Smith. His father was a prominent lawyer of Washington, D. C., for seventeen years. Mr. Smith held responsible positions with the firm of Henry W. Peabody & Co., export and import merchants, 17 State street, New York. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., and Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, No. 1,307. He formerly was a member of an Episcopal church in New York city, but for a number of years had been a member and regular attendant of Trinity Reformed church, of this city.

He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Margaret Virginia, aged seven years, also by a brother, Lowndes A. Smith, and a sister, Mrs. George F. Cashield, of New York city.

The funeral will be held at his late home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Dr. E. N. Rodman. Burial will be at Hillside.

DUTCH MARKET FEATURE OF THIS ENTERTAINMENT

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held an entertainment, followed by a "Dutch Market," in the parlors of the church, Wednesday. The affair was largely attended by the young people and friends of the society. The program opened with the singing of "America," and at the same time Old Glory was displayed from a conspicuous corner.

There was a piano duet by Miss Eva Rogers, a vocal solo and encore by Charles Potter Titsworth, a short sketch of the life of Lincoln by Dr. Henry Sayre and a soprano solo by Mrs. Theodore G. Davis.

Following this part of the program all were invited to visit the "Dutch Market," where various booths were arranged and all which offered delicacies were served. In front of each booth was an artistic placard, the work of Charles Neagle, indicating the dish served. One was privileged to select their own refreshments for a nominal sum. The booths and those in charge were as follows:

Dishes, Miss Mildred Green; brown bread and butter, Miss Ernestine C. Smith; cheese salad, Mrs. Theodore G. Davis and Miss Eva Rogers; baked beans, Miss Evalyn St. John; cake, Miss Ida Spicer; buttermilk and coffee cheese, Mrs. Rachel Vail; Welsh rarebit, Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson and Mrs. Asa Randolph; coffee, Mrs. O. S. Rogers. The rooms were attractively decorated with American flags and these taking part were dressed in costume. The committee in charge comprised Miss Mary Greene, Miss Eva Rogers and Miss Ernestine C. Smith.

PLAINFIELDERS ATTEND PEDDIE'S DUAL CELEBRATION

Founder's Day was celebrated at Peddie Institute at Hightstown Wednesday afternoon. The event was of unusual interest this year, as the day was not only an anniversary of the founding of the school, but also the semi-centennial anniversary of the birth of Thomas B. Peddie, after whom the school is named. There was an address by Rev. Dr. George H. Ferris, pastor of the First Baptist church, Philadelphia, followed by a reception and luncheon. The Peddie Dramatic Club presented the comedy drama "Among the Breakers," in the evening.

Among those at the celebration were: Mrs. Tomzo L. Sauvage and children, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Winter, Mrs. William A. Sharwell, Newark; Mrs. W. F. Smith, Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. William Bittles, Newark; Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Webb, Hanover; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Deats, Flemington; Mr. and Mrs. James C. Coleman, Newark; Miss Ingrid Pierce, Perth Amboy; Mr. and Mrs. G. Bauer, Newark; Mr. and Mrs. F. Lyons, Plainfield; Mrs. E. Knies, Newark; Miss Mary L. Topping, Rutherford.

Those present were Mrs. E. J. Martin, Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, Mrs. W. H. Druse, Mrs. Robert A. Meeker, Mrs. Fred Dickerson, Mrs. Frank Wynkoop, Mrs. W. D. Williams, Mrs. Blanchard Williams, Miss Nola Briggs and Mrs. Lottie Blackford, the last named of Morristown, and a cousin of Mrs. Martin.

FAREWELL AND WELCOME

Joint Reception at Y. M. C. A. for Kenneth Robbie and Herbert L. Parker.

REMARKS MADE BY BOTH MEN.

Mr. Robbie the Founder of the Boys' Department of the Local Association—Rev. J. A. Chambliss Speaks.

To bid farewell to Kenneth Robbie, retiring general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and to welcome his successor, Herbert L. Parker, who comes to this city from Trenton several days ago, members and friends of the association, both men and women, attended an informal reception given at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Thursday night. The reception was tendered by the directors of the association assisted by a committee of the women's auxiliary. Both Mrs. Robbie and Mrs. Parker were present, as well as Physical Director George L. Listman and wife, and Boys' Secretary L. A Soule.

It has been through the efforts of Mr. Robbie, who has been at the local association since July, 1902, that the boys' department of the association has been formed and has grown to its present state of efficiency, with a membership of nearly 200 boys. Previous to taking up work in this city Mr. Robbie had been boys' secretary at the associations in New Haven, Conn., and Holyoke, Mass. When he came to the local association, there were about fifty boy members, and his first work was the organization of the boys' department, effected October 1, 1902. He served as boys' secretary until 1906, when, upon the resignation of J. H. Manning, he was appointed general secretary of the association.

In the course of his informal remarks of farewell at the reception last night, the retiring general secretary spoke of the many pleasant memories in the work with the boys here. He thanked the association officers and members for their support of the work he was doing and urged that that be successor be given the same whole-hearted support. Speak*ing in lighter vein in conclusion*, Mr. Robbie said that Plainfield and especially the Plainfield public schools would always be remembered by him. He was married in 1904, his wife having been a teacher in the Irving School.

Herbert E. Parker, who assumes his duties as general secretary with in a few days, also made informal remarks. He comes to the work from the Trenton association, succeeding as assistant secretary of the association there since August, 1906. Previous to that he was assistant secretary of the Scranton, Pa., association for a year. He spoke simply in acknowledging the welcome extended, emphasizing the importance of the work of the association to the boys, the young men, the city, and finally, the nation. He said that the association has a broader field of work than the churches, and that all denominations should co-operate with it in the three-fold development of body, mind and spirit.

Rev. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, referred to the Y. M. C. A. as the executive right arm of the church. He said that while association work could never take the place of the work of the church, the fundamental aims were the same, and should be earnestly supported. He spoke of the loss of Mr. and Mrs. Robbie, who have been members of his church during their residence here, as the loss of two personal friends, and tendered to them his best wishes, in the name of the association and the church.

President J. W. Gayett, of the association, presided during the speeches. Refreshments were served by a committee of members of the women's auxiliary. During the evening there were vocal solos by Miss Grace Carroll and Martin A. Korff rendered several violin selections. The auditorium was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The association committee in charge of the affair consisted of A. B. Beers, Morris C. Van Arsdale and W. D. Murray.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL PUPILS HOLD ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

The annual exhibition in calisthenics and gymnasium work by the pupils of the Hartridge School was held at the Casino, Friday afternoon and it was witnessed by an audience of more than 500 parents and friends of the school. The exhibition was considered one of the most successful in the history of the school and Miss Kinnish, of the Gardner Institute, of New York, who is the instructor in this department, was highly complimented upon the excellent showing of the pupils.

The program opened with a grand march participated in by all the pupils and then the different grades gave exhibitions of the particular work followed during the year. The fifth and sixth grades executed the Highland fling in a manner that aroused great enthusiasm. The seventh grade gave a pretty fancy dance, while the pupils of the second grade won much applause in a Tyrolean dance. The older girls went through the stately figures at minuet, and the the first grade pupils, in costume, executed an attractive Swedish dance.

LOCAL OPTION'S HEARING

Mr. Moxon Announces That Arguments on Bill will be Heard on March 2.

PROVISIONS OF THE MEASURE.

It is Made Up of Seventeen Lengthy Sections and Its Sponsor Is Assemblyman Crosby.

In keeping with the announcement made on Wednesday, Chairman John R. Moxon, of the House Committee on Municipal Corporations, having in charge the local option bill, has arranged for a hearing on the issue to be held in the Assembly chamber on 2 p. m. on March 2. This open meeting was decided on as the only satisfactory method of securing a definite opinion from those who have interested themselves in the local option movement, and it is expected that after the hearing it will be possible to draw the line sharply between the local optionists and the opposition.

There has been quite a demand for printed copies of Assemblyman Crosby's bill and it is possible that sermons favorable to its passage preached Sunday have stimulated curiosity in relation to its provisions.

The first section of the bill contains definitions of words and phrases used in the act. This is a comparatively new fad in legislation, and in this instance is intended to deprive saloonkeepers' counsel of technical objections. For instance, the political division in which a local option election may be held is defined as a "town, township village, borough, city or other municipality or ward thereof." Intoxicating liquor is defined as any distilled, spirituous, fermented or malt liquor by whatever name it shall be known. Anti-saloon territory is any municipal division in which the people by a majority vote have decided against the sale of liquor. Giving away liquor is prohibited even in a man's home if his home is in a public resort.

The second section provides for a petition to the court for a special election. It requires the signatures of 10 per cent of the total number of votes cast at the preceding general election and all that the judge is required to ascertain is whether the applicants constitute 30 per cent., based upon the vote at the last preceding general election. It is almost the universal opinion will show that in a great many of the municipalities and their sub-divisions the 30 per cent will be a very small number. In some extreme cases there will be less than a dozen signatures. Special efforts will be put forth in many towns and those who are especially interested generally win. It might have been a more fair proposition to require 51 per cent. of the voters, but the bill seems to have been drawn with the intention to give a minority power to initiate the movement for a special election. The notice of application is not to be advertised in the newspapers, but notices are to be posted in three places in the ward or municipality, and one notice is to be posted in the County Clerk's office. The directions to the judge are mandatory. He must issue an order for the special election within fifteen days after the hearing and must fix the date for the election within thirty-five days of the date of the order. The election cannot be held within sixty days of the general election. This makes it come prior to October 5 for the next general election will be held on November 3 next. If this legislature adopts the constitutional amendments there will be a special general election "not less than four months after the Legislature adjourned." Thus there will be a clash between dates for the constitutional election will be held in September. The third section provides that this special local option election shall be held under the general election law.

The fourth section provides that the result of the election shall be entered in the court records to supply prima facie evidence, where a majority of the voters in a ward or municipality have voted against saloons, that the ward is anti-saloon territory where liquor-selling shall be illegal. This section also contains the penalties. These are largely discretionary with the judge. Ten days' grace is allowed for saloonkeepers to get out of business. The first offense involves a fine of $50 to $200; the second offense involves fines from $100 to $500 and imprisonment from three months to a year, while the saloon will be shut up as a nuisance.

The fifth section permits manufacturers to sell to retailers in wholesale quantities outside of anti-saloon territory. Licensed saloonkeepers will be allowed to sell until their licenses expire. Druggists are allowed to sell liquor on prescription, each prescription to be filled but once, and recorded in a book, which book is to be open to police inspection or by any officer of the county. The liquor sold on prescription is not to be drank upon the premises. The druggists are also allowed to sell alcohol in packages of a quart or more for manufacturing purposes on an order to be kept on file.

The sixth section is designed to prevent defense by saloonkeepers. It provides that in all prosecutions under the act it shall not be necessary to prove the kind of liquor sold, or to describe the place where sold, or to give the name of purchaser, or to show that the principal had knowledge of his agent's acts.

The seventh section prescribes the forms for petitions to the court. The eighth section prescribes the form of ballot, which is very simple. The words on the ballot are to give the name of the word or municipality in a question thus: Shall the First ward of Jersey City be anti-saloon territory?—Yes—No. The voters to cross after either the affirmative or the negative.

The ninth section provides that the number of votes cast at an election need not be set forth in prosecutions.

The tenth section gives the form for the record to be made in the court records by the clerk of the court.

The eleventh section provides for two challengers for proponents and opponents in each election district.

The twelfth section provides that a special election on local option may be held at intervals of two years, counting from the date of the election. This will ensure continuous agitation.

The thirteenth section provides that any city or county may hold a special election, and if a majority shall favor prohibition, then wards which have opposed prohibition shall become anti-saloon territory, because the larger unit includes the smaller. This provision will probably excite the most opposition, because it deprives the local option law of its home-rule feature.

Section fourteen provides that all money received by fines or forfeited bonds under the act shall go into the common fund of the municipality. This will wipe out the law under which this money has been appropriated to sinking funds.

Section fifteen provides that any citizen of a ward or municipality where an election is held may contest such election by filing a petition and giving security for the costs. This is to enable prohibitionists to keep up the agitation. Any citizen may appear on the other side in any contest of election. Notice of contest is to be published in one newspaper.

Section sixteen provides that the judge or justice in the county shall have final jurisdiction and the hearing shall be governed by the general election law.

The seventeenth section repeals all acts and parts of act inconsistent. This section is useless, because it repeals nothing. The final section provides that the act take effect immediately.

A PRISONER'S OPINIONS COST HIM THIRTY DAYS

Venting his opinion of Judge Runyon in anything but polite terms cost William Kennedy an additional sentence of thirty days in jail after he had been arraigned in the city court Saturday on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Kennedy was arrested on Second street and Park avenue by Patrolman Nolan, Friday, and Judge Runyon believed that his conduct had been sufficiently bad to warrant his going to Elizabeth for awhile and made it a month. As he was being taken back to a cell he made several surly remarks and ended up by declaring in loud tones what he thought of the court. Judge Runyon couldn't help hearing them and he called to Doorman McCue to bring the prisoner back.

"I thought I was treating you squarely," he said to Kennedy when he faced the desk again, "but I see you don't know enough to appreciate it. I'll just add another thirty days to your sentence and I guess you have plenty of time to convince yourself that this court is entitled to respect."

ICE COMPANY COMPLETES HARVESTING RECORD CROP

Bearing the elements out by just a few hours, employes of the Natural Ice Company completed cutting the frozen water crop on the lakes in the vicinity of Boonton. They have been working constantly in regular shifts since the big freeze-over occurred and have stacked away one of the finest supplies of ice that has ever been harvested in this vicinity. Everyone of the company's houses are filled to their capacity and 1,000 tons are piled up outside.

The zero weather of last week froze the water to a thickness of twelve inches so that when the cutting began it required but little time to load up the storage bins. The average thickness of the crops in recent years has been ten inches. The solidity of the ice also held off the warm wave of the past two days so that none of the ice had a chance to begin rotting. Had the rain today chanced along a little bit sooner a good part of it would have been spoiled.

Debele and Stahl also completed the harvesting of a full crop from their Maple avenue pond just before the rain came.

NATIONS' FAMOUS FLAGS

Historic Banners in Various Countries of Great Significance.

THE ROYAL STANDARDS.

Flags of Great Britian—Origin of Ensign is Still a Much Disputed Question.

Sir Walter Scott, in one of his fascinating romances, tells the story of a battle between two rival clans during the Middle Ages. Each clan had its banner or standard, borne by a stalwart, lion-hearted warrior. As the battle was unusually fierce *and protracted, and as the fray was dead*liest where the standards were, it happened that both of the standard-bearers were killed. But each ban*ner was immediately seized by an*other strong arm, and became the rallying point of the contending forces. In a short time, however, one of the banners again fell, and though the third man and the fourth man was cut down, there was still somebody to grasp the banner and raise it aloft in the strife. At last, such was the fury of the battle, one man alone was left on the defeated side, and he still clutching the ensign of his clan, fell fighting with the foe.

Such is the sacredness with which a banner or flag is regarded, that an army would sacrifice its last man before relinquishing it to the enemy.

It is probable that almost as soon as men began to collect together for common purposes, some kind of conspicuous object was used as the symbol of the common sentiment, or as the rallying point of the common *force. During a time of war or mili*tary operations this would be particularly desirable, to mark out the lines and stations of encampment, and to keep in order the different bands when marching or engaged in battle.

In addition to this, there is reason to suppose that flags or their equivalents have often served by reminding men of past illustrious deeds, past heroes, to rally to enthusiasm those sentiments of National spirit, of family pride and honor, of personal devotion, patriotism, or religion, upon which, as well as upon good leadership, discipline, and numerical force, success in warfare depends.

The earliest flags proper were probably square cloths of a single color. According to Homer, Agamemnon used a purple veil to rally his men; but as nations multiplied, particolors and different national ensigns were adopted to secure variety, and finally the devices or bearings of chieftains or tribes were added.

In modern times flags of a single color have generally a universally accepted meaning, as a white flag is a token of peace or cessation of hostilities; a red, of defiance; a black flag denotes piracy, or is sometimes hoisted to indicate that no quarter will be given; a yellow flag denotes quarantine.

Ancient standards were of many shapes—long, square, pointed, swallow-tailed, and not a few ending in several points. The banner which Charlemagne received from the pope was oblong, and split into three points. The oriflamme of France was of the same shape with five points. The standards of Henry VIII. of England were long, pointed streamers, rather than flags.

Nearly all the standards and ensigns of modern nations are rectangular but there are some exceptions. The naval flag of Sweden has three points, that of Denmark two, and the flag of China, with its golden dragon, is triangular.

Not a few of the European nations, as well as our own country, have each two or more flags, a royal or imperial standard, a national ensign, and a flag for merchantmen.

Royal and imperial standards are never hoisted, except on occasions of great ceremony, when the sovereign or some member of the royal family is present, or one the sovereign's birthday anniversary. It is well to bear this distinction in mind to avoid confusion.

The most famous of all flags is the royal standard of Great Britain, which displays the heraldic insignia of England, Scotland and Ireland, quartered, the field of the first and fourth quarters being red, with three lions passant; the second yellow, with a lion rampant; and the third blue, with a harp. The ancient standard of England was red, ornamented with a golden dragon *which was the former ensign of Wes*sex, one of the Saxon Kingdoms. The three lions were the emblem of William of Normandy, but several of the English monarchs adopted the old dragon of Wessex. It was the device of Edward I. and of Henry V.

The National ensign of the United Kingdom, called the "Union Jack," is blue, charged with the three crosses of St. George, St. Andrew, and St. Patrick, the patron saints respectively of England, Scotland and Ireland. The cross of St. George is red, on a white field. The Union Jack when adopted by James I., in 1606, combined only the first two; but on the union with Ireland in 1800, the cross of St. Patrick was added.

Historical events have also caused great changes in the standards and national ensigns of France. The ancient kings bore the blue hood of St. Martin upon their standards and this was succeeded by the oriflamme which originally was the banner of the abbey of St. Denis.

The oriflamme was a banner of dark-green satin, charged with a royal diadem of gold, surrounded by six tongues of flame, from which its name.

This banner was succeeded in the sixteenth century by the white standard powdered with fleur-de-lis, introduced by Henry IV., that being the escutcheon of his family.

The tri-color was introduced at the time of the revolution, and is divided vertically into three parts, colored blue, white and red—blue next to the fly and the white in the middle.

The origin of this flag and its col*ors is a disputed question. It is said* by some to have been intended to combine the colors of the St. Martin's flag, the white banner, and of the white flag of the Bourbons; by others the colors are said to be those of the city of Paris; and other authorities assert that the flag is copied from the shield of the Orleans family after Philip Egalite had knocked off the fleur-de-lis.

The imperial standard of Germany is white, charged with a black cross, with the black eagle of the empire at its intersection. In the dexter canton is the arms of Prussia on a black, white and red field.

The royal standard of Italy is green, white and red in equal vertical bars, the red to fly; on the white are the arms of Savoy, surmounted by a crown.

The Russian imperial standard is yellow, charged with the double-headed eagle of Constantine the Great, symbolical of the Eastern and Western empires. This emblem was adopted by Ivan III., on his marriage with the princess Sophia, of the Imperial house of Byzantium. On the breast of the eagle, which is black, are emblazoned the ancient arms of Russia—St. George and the dragon on a red field, now the arms of the city of Moscow.

The imperial standard of Austria is yellow also, charged with the double-headed eagle of the Roman empire, but it has an indented border of gold, silver, blue and black. The Austro-Hungarian national ensign is made up of past illustrious bars, the chief red, the middle white, and the base red in the dexter half, and green on the fly. The green is added for Hungary, the national colors of which are red, white and green. The middle bar also is white, charged with red, white and red, surmounted by the imperial crown.

In the time of Ferdinand and Isabella the royal standard of Spain displayed the arms of Castile, Leon, Aragon, Navarre and Granda, the different quarterings being charged with the lion of Leon, the castle of Castile, the chain of Navarre, the eagle of Aragon, and the pineapple of Granda.

Under the Bourbons it combined the arms of Castile, Leon, Granda and the fleur-de-lis of Bourbon. It is the most showy and regal, after that of Great Britain, of all the flags that float today. It is well to remember that King Alphonso does not call himself king of Spain, but of the Spains, referring to the several principalities once independent which have been united to form his kingdom.

The national standard of Turkey is a flag bearing the figure of a new moon and a star. This was the an*cient device of Diana Byzantina*, the patroness of Greek Byzantium, and was hoisted first by Mohammed II. after the capture of Constantinople in 1453.

The ensign of the kingdom of Sweden is blue with a yellow cross, that of Norway is red with a blue cross. The royal standard of the latter displays the ensignia of a lion rampant, grasping a battle ax, the ancient device of the sea king's kingdom.

The flag of the United States is said to have been suggested by the coat of arms belonging to the Washington family. Since it was first adopted by the Continental Congress, in June, 1777, it has undergone several changes.

At the present time it bears thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, with a star for each state embraced in the Union. These stars are on a blue field and grouped together, and symbolize the harmonious nature of the constitution, and the united character it would seek to elevate. The red stripes are said to indicate blazing, and the white, purity.—The American Boy.

Must Charge to Get Crowd.

The ladies guild of an uptown church had planned an evening entertainment and reception and asked the rector to make announcement of it on the Sunday preceding.

"Shall we charge admission?" he said, "but you must charge admission."

*"Why, this is just a social eve*ning," they protested. "We are inviting people."

"They won't come," said the rector, "because they will think it is not worth while. But charge a small admission and you will have a good crowd." So the women gave in, and subsequent events proved the rector was right.—New York Press.

118 YEARS OF CONGRESS; FACTS ABOUT SESSIONS

Since the first Congress met in 1789, 118 years ago, there have been 134 sessions of the National body of lawmakers, says the Brooklyn Eagle. There have been 119 regular and 15 extra sessions; 39 different Speakers and Speakers pro tempore and 25 clerks. The longest regular sitting was the first session of the Fiftieth Congress, which met December 5, 1887, and adjourned October 20, 1888, ap eriod of 321 days. Other long sessions were the first of the Fifty-first Congress, 304 days, and the first of the Thirty-first, 301 days.

The second regular sessions of each Congress are always short, both Houses assembling according to law on the first Monday in December and adjourning by limitation on the 4th of the following day. These sessions last from 90 to 95 days. Aside from these the shortest ever held was the first session of the Triteenth Congress, which covered 134 days, and came immediately after an extra session. Other notably short sessions were during the Fifteenth Congress, 141 days; the Fifty-eighth, 144 days; the Fourteenth, 148 days; the Eleventh, 156 days, and the Fifty-fifth, 184 days.

Extra sessions are as old as Congress itself, the first having been called together January 4, 1790, a little over three months after the first session ever held came to a close. Next came the extra session of the Fifth Congress, then others during the Eleventh and Thirteenth, after which there was a lapse of 24 years before it was deemed necessary to meet more than twice in two years. The next extra session come with the Thirty-fourth Congress, nearly 15 years after.

Others were during the Thirty-*seventh, Fortieth, Forty-first, Forty*fifth, Forty-sixth, Fifty-third, Fifty-fifth and Fifty-eighth Congresses.

The longest extra session was dur*ing the First Congress and continued* 221 days. The next was a part of the Fifty-fifth Congress and lasted 142 days. The shortest was of ten days' duration, during the life of the Thirty-fourth Congress. Altogether Congress has, since its beginning, been in extra session, 1,085 days, or, about three years.

Only seventeen States have furnished Speakers of the House of Representatives, Pennsylvania leads with five, Massachusetts, Virginia and Kentucky coming next with four each. Other States have been represented as follows: New York, three; Indiana, three; Tennessee, two; New Jersey, two; Georgia, two; Maine, two; South Carolina, two, and Connecticut, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Iowa and Illinois have each sent a man to the Speaker's chair.

James G. Blaine, of Maine, was Speaker for eight sessions—longer than any other man ever presided over the deliberations of the House. Schuyler Colfax and Samuel J. Randall each occupied the Speaker's chair for seven sessions. John Bell, of Tennessee, was Speaker for 93 days, having been elected to fill the unexpired term of Andrew Stevenson, Minister to England. Bell's term is the shortest on record.

Only two Speakers resigned—Henry Clay and Andrew Stevenson. Mr. Clay sent in his resignation by mail, October 20, 1829, during a recess, and was succeeded by John W. Taylor, of New York. Mr. Stevenson resigned June 2, 1834, and was succeeded by John Bell.

IF GOV. PORT SHOULD BE ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT.

*The likelihood of Gov. Fort be*coming Vice-President of the United States has quickened interest in the question of his probable successor. If elected Vice-President, Mr. Fort would not resign as Governor until March 4, 1909, and his successor would be the President of the Senate, upon whom, under the Constitution, the "powers, duties and emoluments" of the Gubernatorial office would devolve. At the following election for members of the State Legislature—that is, in the fall of 1909, a new Governor would be elected.

It is not known who the President of the Senate will be next year, and there is naturally almost as much speculative interest in the situation as though a Governor were to be elected. Senator Hillery's term as President of the Senate will expire next January. Senator Wakelee of Bergen, who has presided over the Senate before, is talked of as Hillery's successor, and so is Senator Robbins, of Burlington, who this year *is leader of the majority in the Sen*ate.

It is known, however, that Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, will be a candidate for re-election next fall, and, if elected, of which there is little doubt, he will be in line for the Presidency of the Senate, as will also Senator A. S. Gardner, of Gloucester, who, it is understood, will also be a candidate for re-election to the Senate next fall.

The second term of Senator Brad*ley, of Camden, will expire next year* and, although he has not announced himself as a candidate for a third term, his popularity would, no doubt, ensure his renomination, if he wished it. Bradley was President of the Senate two years ago. In the event of Gov. Fort's resignation, Camden would be pretty sure to want Bradley to succeed him as Governor, and that would necessarily put him in the race for President of the Senate.

Inasmuch as Senator Frelinghuysen was a candidate for the nomination for Governor last year until illness compelled him to retire from the race, he is looked upon by many as the logical candidate three years hence. Should a vacancy occur in the meantime, however, through the resignation of Gov. Fort, Frelinghuysen's prospects of succeeding him by election would be materially helped by a preliminary experience as Acting Governor. In view of this contingency, Frelinghuysen's friends will be sure to urge his candidacy for the Presidency of the Senate next year.

Seldom in the history of the State has a more engaging situation presented itself. What will come of it, to be sure, will depend upon Gov. Fort's attitude toward the Vice-Presidency. It is quite generally believed that the Governor can have that honor if he wants it.—Jersey City Journal.

MISSION AT ST. MARY'S

Father Bogan Announces Series of Special Services Beginning on Easter.

FATHER DOWNES IN CHARGE

Hartford, Conn., Priest Will Be Assisted By Five Others—Mission Will Last Two Weeks.

In accordance with custom, Father B. M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, has arranged for a mission to be held at the local church for two weeks, beginning on Easter Sunday. There will be special services daily, with special masses and three sermons a day. Rev. Father Edward J. Downes, of the Hartford, Conn., diocese, with five assistant priests, will have charge of the services. The first week of the mission will be devoted especially to services for men, while the second and last week will be primarily for the women. A series of sermon topics of a revivalistic nature is being arranged, but has not yet been made public.

Rev. Father Downes, who will be in charge of the mission services, was a classmate of Father Bogan at St. Charles College, Maryland. At the completion of his course there, he was eager to pursue his studies and be admitted to orders, but was prevented from immediately realizing his aim by the necessity of acting as breadwinner for his family. Prominent in public life during Cleveland's campaign, when he made ex*tensive stumping tours, Rev. Father* Downes was rewarded by being made consul at Amsterdam, Holland, when Mr. Cleveland became president. While he was abroad, he went to Rome, where, after continuing studies for seven years, he was ordained to the priesthood at the Papal College.

Since his return to this country Father Downes has been constantly active in mission work at Milford, Conn., where he is now at the head of a band of mission priests, who will come with him to this city for the mission at St. Mary's. Father Downes is brother to Secretary Downes, of the New York fire commission, who died last month in New York. He is a former newspaper man, having represented the New York Sun at New Haven, Conn., for many years.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MRS. HENRY DE MOTT

About thirty friends and relatives of Mrs. Henry DeMott tendered her a pleasant surprise party at her home Friday night in honor of her birthday. The affair was arranged by her daughter, Miss Belle DeMott, and proved a complete surprise. The guest, met at the home of Mrs. W. J. Conroy, on Linden avenue, going from there to Mrs. DeMott's. Bearing with them birthday gifts, the unexpected visitors came from Bound Brook, Westfield, New Brunswick and Green Brook, including also many friends from city and borough. The evening passed quickly with singing, music and dancing, and refreshments were served at a late hour. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Giddes, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Giddes, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Giddes, of Green Brook; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Boehm and Miss Marguerite Boehm, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brokaw and daughter, Miss Gladys Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Giddes, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Giles, of Bound Brook; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Conroy, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lambert, of Westfield; Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Lambert, Mrs. Percy Lambert, Miss Emma Lambert, the Misses Clara, Tina and Florence Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Amos [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zimmerman, Miss Annie Giddes, the Misses Florence and Bessie Conroy, Mrs. Isaac Giddes, Mrs. Jonathan Giddes, Mrs. W. G. Smalley, Miss Elizabeth Perrine, Mr. and Mrs. Kirch and Miss Lizzie Kirch, Louis Kastler, Miss Nellie Giddes, Clifford Giddes, Arthur Williams, William Williams, Newell Williams, of Bound Brook; Grover O'Neill, of New Brunswick, and Ronald Conroy.

FORT TALKS IN NEW YORK

Gov. Tells Rutgers "Grads" Men Who Started Panic Ought to Be in Jail.

GEO. B. McCLELLAN A SPEAKER.

New York's Mayor Reminds Jersey Governor That All His Friends Are Not Republicans.

With Mayor McClellan, Governor Fort of New Jersey, the Rev. William Rivers Taylor and President Demarest, of Rutgers, as speakers, the Rutgers College Alumni Association of New York held its annual banquet in the Waldorf Plaza in that city Friday night. Two hundred and fifty guests were present. President Robert E. Farley presided. Of Governor Fort the Mayor said:

"As the Democratic Mayor of New York let me assure him (Gov. Fort) that all his friends are not in New Jersey and all his admirers not in the Republican party."

The Mayor, whose subject was "New York," went on to say that, for the light and leading of the muckraker or the human interest story, nor even the dark prophecies and awful revelations of Boston's mighty self-advertiser." At this there was a mighty cheer for Tom Lawson.

Governor Fort in his speech laid stress on the fact that the success of the country was not based upon the Constitution, but upon the individual.

"The financial flurry is but temporary," he said; "it was brought on by people who are out of jail, but ought not to be."

The Governor, like the Mayor, also paid his tribute to New Jersey by saying "there had been no business failures in the State for the last five years in life insurance." "And I am not an insurance agent either," he added.

All the features of the occasion were very special. The faculty of the college arrived on a special car, ate from special plates, and drank special vintages from special glasses. There were special cheers for each special speaker and each special word that was uttered.

HEARTS GAMES PLAYED AT WARREN'S SOCIAL

Heart games predominated in a delightful St. Valentine's Day sociable held at Warren chapel under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society on Friday night. Despite the stormy weather several persons were out, and the evening passed rapidly as the various games were played. The first game was "Hunting Sweethearts," and John Schenck, who found forty-two of the hidden candies, received the winner. Then came the drawing competition, in which the company, blind-folded, drew hearts on a blackboard and wrote their names across them. Miss Nora Sickenick and Earle Smith did the best in this.

"Mending broken hearts" was done with cut cardboard hearts at tables. Miss Sadie Steile proved the greatest "comforter" in this contest. Dividing into teams, the company then entered upon a competition of matching cardboard hearts into basques. Captain John Schenck's team and Captain John Green's team won the honors. Women were proved to be more observing than men in the observation contest which followed. Divided into "teams" of ten, the company was led to a table bearing all sorts of St. Valentine's Day trifles, where they were looked for three minutes. After this they were given five minutes to write down what they had seen, in another room. In each case, this contest was won by a woman.

When it came time for refreshments the women drew hearts, on which were written the names of their partners, from a basket. It being leap year, they then served their partners, Miss Sadie Steile and Miss Bessie Schenck, at Miss May Bennett's. Miss Harriet Squires and Charles Windham, while Charles Bryan, president of the Christian Endeavor Society, Charles Windham and the Misses Harriet Squires and Nora Schenck welcomed the guests as they arrived. Miss Helen Van Fleasburgh was in charge of the women's wraps, and Francis Caldwell was in the men's coat room.

Gen. O. O. Howard to Speak.

The Washington Camp Ground Association, of Bound Brook, has secured Gen. O. O. Howard as orator *for the Washington's Birthday cele*bration at Bound Brook. He will speak at a meeting to be held in the Presbyterian church, Sunday afternoon, February 23, at 4 o'clock.

AUTOMOBILE TAX.

In this connection, it is only fair to ask why the automobile is the only vehicle which must pay for the wear entailed upon the roads. Granting that it is more destructive to macadam than others, it is probable that more wear is entailed by horse-drawn vehicles, because they are so much more numerous. Certainly roads were worn before automobiles were dreamed of, and certainly roads are worn today by "sharp shod" horses and the steel tires of wagons and carriages. It would seem, therefore, that if roads were to be kept roads in repair, which is entirely logical, all vehicles should pay an equitable tax. It may be popular to shoulder the entire burden on to the motorist, but it hardly squares with one's sense of justice.—Newark News.

Before expressing himself further, the Newark News editorial writer should for his own sake get away from that city and gather some information on the subject which he so freely discusses. The New Jersey highways are built to withstand the general wear and tear of horse-drawn vehicles, but not of fast moving, heavy tonnage automobiles. The damage done to such thoroughfares as the Mountain avenue road and the Springfield road, for instance, clearly demonstrates the automobile abuse. The taxpayers on these highways use them as a matter of necessity and take pride in their preservation. This is not so with the autoist. As a rule he cares little for the road using it only for temporary enjoyment.

It is a matter of general knowledge that the State Road Commissioner's office at this time is sorely perplexed in its effort to find some method of preventing further damage to the roads caused by automobiles. The fact is that State Road Supervisor Meeker is now in the West on that mission. Just before he left, he stated that it had been found that the top dressing on the State roads had been removed by the constant speeding of high tonnage machines and that the condition had become a serious problem.

The automobile has come to stay but it is only fair that the people who can afford such luxuries so injurious in many cases to the State's roads should be made to pay for the damage done.

OVERHEAD WIRES.

It probably might be well if the provisions of a bill that the Newark Board of Works prepared to have introduced in the Legislature on Monday night could be extended so as to apply to Plainfield. The measure in question will vest in Newark the power to construct and maintain conduits for wires now strung overhead. In addition it will give that city authority to acquire subways owned by public utility corporations either by condemnation or purchase. One important provision will make it mandatory for all public service corporations to pay the municipality a rendal therefor.

Highly charged overhead wires are a constant menace to any city. For several years Plainfield has been agitation in favor of compelling public utility concerns to place them underground but nothing has ever come of it. The attention of the city fathers has often been called to the condition of affairs in the city after one death resulted in the Netherwood section from such a cause, there was a little stir among the authorities in favor of remedying the evil. Along Second street, from Madison avenue to Watchung avenue, there is one big string of wires carrying heavy voltage. Coming into the city, from Metuchen is another. The Plainfield Protective Association has within the last few days called public attention to the latter and the association very properly has taken the position that if such a wire is dangerous it should be removed forthwith. Under no circumstances should the P. S. C. be given three years within which to place it underground.

Why this menace is allowed to continue its inconceivable. Public safety demands prompt action. To allow the P. S. C. or any other public utilities concern three years or even three months is all together out of reason.

If the Bishops' Law cannot be enforced, what is the sense in enacting more stringent excise legislation?—Elizabeth Times.

Are we to understand that the recent preeminent of the Union County Grand Jury as to the deplorable excise conditions in Elizabeth has had no effect?

An exchange declares that "it is not surprising that Union county has suddenly become the hotbed of local option." So far as Plainfield is concerned we should say that it is quite surprising for we had thought that the excise problem had been fairly well solved here.

It will take more than a Jerome to make the people of New Jersey believe that Foster M. Voorhees has been guilty of criminal acts. The general impression prevails today in this locality at least that New York's District Attorney is a mighty small potato.

JUST EIGHT HUNDRED POSTOFFICES IN STATE

According to the United States Official Postal Guide, for January, which is the year book, there are 61, 866 postoffices in the United States. Of this number just 800 are located in New Jersey. The number of Presidential offices in the Mosquito State are 153, divided as follows: First class, 29; second class, 47, and third class, 86. The balance, 647, are fourth-class offices, the postmasters being named by the Congressman from that district.

Strange as it may seem, New York, the Empire State of the Union, is found on the list of total postoffices, but second on the list of Presidential offices. Pennsylvania ranks first, with 3,912 postoffices, 479 of which are Presidential. Kentucky is second with 2,004 offices, 104 of which are Presidential. Virginia comes third with a total of 2,873 offices, 107 of which are Presidential. New York follows with 2,796 offices, 473 of which are Presidential.

The State with the least number of offices is Nevada, with 244 stations, 22 of which are Presidential. There is but one postoffice in the District of Columbia, but there are 82 substations where money orders may be obtained or cashed.

Toastmaster John Kean.

The fact that Senator John Kean is to be toastmaster at a dollar dinner of the Republican Republican Club of Elizabeth in April, is being heralded as a sure sign that the Senator, in anticipation of having to stand as a candidte for re-election by direct choice in the party primaries this fall, has made a popular campaign to secure the popular vote. In the two elections of Senator Kean to the Senate, as in all other Senatorial elections, the preliminary object was to nominate for Governor the man who, if elected, would vote in the Legislature for him. In 1910 the candidate for the Legislature will give his pledge to the party voters direct before he is nominated, so it will be the party voter who will have to be solicited. But it doesn't need the toastmastership of a dollar dinner among political friends and neighbors to show that Senator John Kean would like another term at Washington.—Newark Morning Star.

and he will tell you that it takes much longer to conscientiously try to list up personalty, than to make his real estate assessments, and that the result is grossly inequitable, and a nuisance. Besides we want to attract people of modest means, on whom such taxes fall heaviest—the rich who wish to know how to escape. Assessments obtained through personal property taxes is so little that it is ridiculous, yet the assessor is annoyed, and so is everybody else. Evasions of every kind are indulged in, when business should be free as the air we breathe.

"You can't know that a liberal exemption of industries attracts capital and business, increase production, and that real estate in consequence thereof increases in value.

"Why money invested in Jersey City today in factories is over eighty millions of dollars; fifteen years ago it was only about twenty millions of dollars. This is a result of liberal treatment. Yet every once in a while someone gets up a cry for strict enforcement of the antiquated personalty tax laws.

"Don't bottle up the McAdoo tunnels with a personal property tax cork. Proclaim it abroad, that Jersey City at least holds out inducement to capital. Aluminum Money.

Nearly $2,000,000 coins made of aluminum have just been struck from the Royal Mint for circulation in Uganda and the Nigerian protectorates. Each coin bears the value either of one cent or two mills, and is perforated in the centre, like Chinese coins, in order to permit the natives to string them together. The advantage of aluminum as a coin is due to its light weight and the fact that it is the best non-germbearing metal known.

Bronze coins, as well as some silver, are circulated on the west coast of Africa, but in the interior the natives use little shells, known as cowries, as fractional currency. It is primarily for replacing these cowries that the new coins have been struck. Ellison Macartney, the deputy master of the mint, is very enthusiastic over the use of aluminum for coins. He believes that it will shortly take the place of bronze, copper and nickel throughout the civilized world. In speaking of the new coins he explained how their low value rendered it necessary to make them of some extremely light metal, hence the adoption of aluminum. "The smaller the amount the greater the cost of coinage," he explained, "that fluence are much more costly to coin than pennies, and yield far less profit. So far as I know, these are the only aluminum coins in the world."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

THE HOTBED OF LOCAL OPTION.

It is not surprising that Union county has suddenly become the hotbed of local option. Many things have conspired, in a land of cumulative wealth, to the boom of sentiment favoring a change in that county. In the first place, the liquor interests have been exceedingly aggressive, particularly in the city of Elizabeth, which is the county seat. There are about 250 saloons, inns and taverns, hotels and wholesale places in the county, of which 240 are in Elizabeth, twenty-eight in Rahway and twelve in Plainfield.

The charge of the grand jury, in June last, was to the effect that Elizabeth was governed by the liquor interests, and that the board of the city council was the president of a brewery, and that several members of council were connected with brewery interests; that the police force and members of the fire department were appointed for political reasons, and that the relations between the brewers and the Excise Board were noticeably close. Scores of saloonkeepers in the county have been indicted for violations of the law, but the juries have refused to act on these cases have so invariably acquitted the accused that the prosecutor has abandoned untried cases, because hopeless of getting a conviction.

This sort of business has been going on for years in Union county, and Elizabeth has long been the Sunday violations there are outrageous in numbers and boldness. There is no efficient effort made to suppress them, nothing done to bring the offenders to justice, for the reason that, as the charge plainly declared, the city is wholly in the hands of the liquor interests. The screen provision of the "bishops' law" is observed by those who wish to observe it.

A reaction of public sentiment has at last set in. Assemblyman Moxon, who is a resident of the liquor governed city, the chairman of the Municipal Corporations Committee, to whom the Crosby local option bill has been referred. He is being overwhelmed by the flood of letters, petitions and memorials on this topic, some urging him to support local option, others to defeat it. If he can get the bill in committee and never report it. This latter, however, he can't do, because the House has adopted a rule whereby fifteen members can call a bill out of committee whether the chairman wants it or not.

All the Union County Assemblymen are in more or less distress over the new situation. Mr. Moxon doesn't want to express any opinion, but is willing that the bill shall have a hearing. Mr. Pierce thinks the bill seems to have adherents now, but just wait till the other side is heard. Mr. Kierstein, of Rahway, whose Excise Board Moxon tried so hard to save by a trick, hasn't any opinion to express, but is willing to be guided by the people.

Why Mr. Moxon should hesitate to give his views is inexplicable. He believes in majority rule. He fought the anti-smothering amendment because it imperilled majority rule and he insisted upon local option for Rahway, on the question of abolishing or retaining the present Excise Board. A man who is strictly in favor of home rule and majority rule as Mr. Moxon cannot consistently shy at local option. Union county has suddenly become the storm centre of this policy and Mr. Moxon is in the midst of it without lightning rod or umbrella.—Newark News.

JESUS AND CHRISTIANITY

Theme of Rev. Dr. Herring in Last of Series of Sermons on Comparative Religion.

EXPLAINS THE SEVERAL CREEDS

Christian Religion Means Many Things to Many People—Injunction to Preach Christ.

The last discourse on the series of comparative religions was delivered by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, the theme being "Jesus and Christianity." It was listened to by a large congregation and was considered the strongest and best of the discourses given by this divine. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"That may seem a strange theme for Christianity and the religion of Jesus are not two thoughts but one. The religion of Jesus is Christianity. "But what is Christianity? It should ask Harnack, the greatest Protestant theologian, who has written a popular work with that title. I should discover his conception of Christianity to be—the revelation of the Fatherhood of God, the infinite value of a single human soul, the capability of infinite development for that soul, and the Kingdom of God. But another equally learned scholar of the Catholic faith, Abbe Loisy, would not accept that definition but would rather say Christianity is a church, the primacy over that church handed down from Peter the first Apostle, but even the learned Abbe is not perfectly orthodox in all that he says—that he has been punished by the church, then according to the church he is not a perfect exponent of the faith.

"Can we affirm therefore just what Christianity is with so many interpretations of it?

"Here is what we may assert as to the relation of Christianity to Jesus:

"Christianity is the progressive realization of the ideals of Jesus. Historic Christianity has not always been ideal religion. It has also been the religion of the ideal character.

"The Crusaders with the sword sought to free the holy sites of Palestine from the power of the Moslem.

"The Huguenots of France, Waldensians of Italy, Christians of Bohemia were persecuted in the name of Christianity. Even John Calvin is not our ideal of Christian moderation and gentleness. The Jews throughout history have been the recipients of insult and spoliation.

"So of the Christianity and the religions of the world, but Jesus and the religions of the world—Jesus and Christianity.

"The message of Jesus in men is the gospel of a person. His words have their personal application. I am the Way, the Shepherd, I am the Door, Learn of Me, Come unto Me. No other religious teacher ever employed this personal element in religion. Jesus said, "I am my religion, Which of you convinceth Me of sin?

"The self assertiveness of Jesus was the basis of the apostles' faith.

"They were devoted not to the truth of Jesus but to Jesus Himself. It was, the love of Christ constraineth me. I know whom I have believed. He is my peace. He is my hope. John, who was one of his intimates, said, The word was made flesh and tabernacled among us, and we beheld His glory.'

"Christ attracted the men of His day, not by what He did, so much as by what He personally was.

"I am in a quandary then about Christianity. It means so many different things to different people.

"The church into which one enters into Christianity begins when baptism is administered, and baptism is savingly effective as administered by that church. In another church, Christianity seems to be mainly the worship of images and pictures which possess most miraculous powers, and which may be exerted both for good and evil. Christianity is to many the external thing that is done. The heart and the life don't count.

"But we are not told to preach Christianity but to preach Christ. Obliterate the thought of Christianity for a moment and behold the glory of that unique figure in all history. What do you personally think of Christ? Have you ever studied His character—a character so wonderful that hundreds of attempts have been made to declare Christ a myth? These attempts have proved futile, and Christ stands a historic character who says to all men, 'Come unto Me and I will rest you.'

"Perhaps a man of Jewish faith associates the Christianity of the Middle Ages, when his own forefathers suffered persecution, with the spirit of Jesus himself. Let him for a moment put aside historic Christianity and honestly, sincerely, intensely, hopefully study the life of Jesus Himself and settle for himself the claims of Jesus upon his own life.

"We are not to task men to accept Christianity but to accept Christ as the Savior and Master of their lives so that the sweetness and the power of His character becomes transfused into their being."

4 MILE AUTO COURSE: STADIUM SEATS 50,000

Preliminary plans have been prepared by Clyde S. Adams, a Philadelphia architect, at the direction of the American Automobile Association, for an automobile stadium, including the erection of a mammoth auto course, hotel, garage, exhibition buildings, horse track, clubhouse and repair shops. The plan will involve an expenditure of $2,000,000, and it is said an option has already been obtained on a tract of land at Pleasantville, N. J., near the Atlantic City Railroad, measuring 3½x2½ miles, which will be used for the course.

The automobile course will be four miles in circumference and 200 feet wide, being constructed entirely of cement. The corners will be banked to allow for a speed by racing cars of 120 miles an hour. At the centre of the course and inside the oval will be a horse track, one mile in circumference, erected along the lines of the best tracks in the country. At the other end of the track will be a clubhouse of the most modern design, three stories high, while surrounding the course will be a concrete grandstand seating 50,000. The land will be excavated to provide for the two tracks, and on the plateau surrounding them provision will be made for the accommodation of 25,000.

The plans also provide for the erection of a large garage and repair shops which will accommodate 500 cars. At some little distance from the race course a hotel will be erected which will be of modern fireproof construction, six stories high, with a roof garden, and with 1,000 rooms, single and en suite, with every modern hotel convenience. In connection with the hotel there will be a large garage and stable for the public which will accommodate a few hundred cars. There will also be a number of exhibition buildings for fair and exposition purposes.

TO HAVE 'NEW IDEA' WING OF DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Many Democrats in Newark are interested in a plan to form a "New Idea" section in the Democratic party in Newark and Essex county, to openly throw the control of City Counsel James R. Nugent, which is characterized as "bossism," and to accomplish other reforms in the Democratic ranks, such as have been successfully accomplished by the "New Idea" section of the Republican party.

Several conferences recently have been held and a meeting is soon to be held in Newark to discuss the formation of an organization.

Men who have attended the recent conferences, which will result in a public meeting within a week or ten days to make the fight against the boss rule, say that they are pledged to secrecy for the present as to exactly what lines the "insurgents" are proceeding on. One of the interesting features is that several Aldermen have allied themselves with the movement and one of them is John F. Sinnott, president of last year's Common Council, who has been fighting the Nugent influence in the Aldermanic body.

It is said that prior to the proposed general meeting the Democratic "New Idea" managers will have well paved way the formation of ward organizations in Newark and that similar organizations from around the county will be welcomed at the big conference.

There was to have been a monthly meeting of the Essex County Democratic Committee last Monday night, but it was postponed indefinitely, as no quorum of there was no business to be transacted. It is now said that the real reason was fear of a disturbance by the "New Idea" element.

There is a plan on foot to petition Tyler Parmley, county chairman, for a special meeting, one purpose of which will be the forcing by the "New Idea" men of the question of the liability of Richard Franz, of the Eighth ward, to be treasurer of the county committee, because he is not a member of that body.

NOTED ARTIST DRAWN ON THE PETIT JURY

George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, the noted artist and author, has been drawn as one of the Plainfield members of the petit jury to serve for two weeks, beginning next Monday. The names were announced Monday morning and Sheriff Lawrence showed by his selections that he intends to get the best men possible for jury duty in the Union county court. Those chosen from Plainfield for the next two weeks, commencing February 24, are as follows:

DISCUSSES OPEN SUNDAY

Rev. A. C. McCrea Says He is Not in Sympathy With Puritanical Sabbath.

FAVORS PRESENT OBSERVANCE

Does Not Fear Any General Desecration of the Day—Some Work Is Necessary, He Believes.

I am not in sympathy with an organization that is attempting to obtain such a strict observance of the Sabbath day which includes the stopping of all railroad and steamboat travel and many other necessary forms of labor," said Rev. A. C. McCrea in his discourse on "The Open Sunday," at the First M. E. church Sunday night. "Some travel is necessary. I can understand that it is often necessary for certain industries to be operated on Sunday, with reduced force," said the preacher, "and I do not believe it is the spirit of the Master to forbid everything as some people interpret the Scriptures."

Mr. McCrea took his theme from Mark 2, 27-28: "And He said unto them, the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath: therefore the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath."

In referring to "The Open Sunday," the preacher said that he did not believe that in the present day there is any great demand for such a Sabbath and he did not think that there would be any change in the observance of the Sabbath as people now understand it. "A year ago an attempt was made to submit the question to a vote of the Legislature, but it failed, and Mr. McCrea. "The open Sunday has been experimented with in all parts of the world, but the day has been established so long as one for worship and rest that there is very little fear of it being changed. Some fear that it will become a day of labor, but our holidays are multiplying at such a rapid pace that there is not much danger of the people giving up the Sabbath.

"In certain parts of the country there is a tendency toward the abuse of the Sabbath. There are some men who have no conscience as to what means they employ to get money, they have no regard for God or man. They are not satisfied with making money during six days of the week, but they want to keep open on Sunday, by so doing which is changed to open all night if permitted. Their only regard is for the almighty dollar and we need never expect them to have respect for the Sabbath. They are willing to rob God in any way possible.

"We see little labor on the Sabbath. People, as a rule, I believe, properly observe the day. There are three principles, to my mind, which grow out of the Scripture narrative, which I will name in the law of liberty. I once heard of a boy who was compelled to so strictly observe the Sabbath that when he became a man he made the day one of recreation. In his youth it was a burden to him and it has remained so. Such abuses might make the day irksome. Bath day to keep it holy,' yet if it is bath day to keep it holy,' yet if it is necessary to gather grain or bake bread on that day to sustain life I do not believe that such labor is a violation of the law.

"Then there is the law of necessity. Things are sure to arise on the Sabbath which would come under this law and necessity knows no law. If thine ox should fall in a pit on the Sabbath day you would be justified in rescuing the animal.

"The third principle is the law of loyalty. Loyalty to Him who is God of life, the day and mankind. There is no question about the actions of a man who is loyal to God. He will do nothing on Sabbath day which would be of a compromising nature. Let loyalty run through your life and you will cut off many things, pleasures you have indulged in, places you visit, persons you are found with and you will be very particular about your secular work on Sunday. Necessity may make you do certain things on Sunday, but you will not do these things as a rule. Let it always be a question of loyalty to Christ first and your acts will not only be negative, but positive. You will be found in the house of worship on Sunday and doing works of charity and mercy.

"It is natural that a man should have one day of rest and I do not believe that there is much danger of our losing the sanctity of the Sabbath day if the people observe the rules of which I have spoken, and recognize that the day was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."

Next Sunday night Mr. McCrea will discuss "The Open Church."

SOCIETY GROWS BETTER

Conditions Today Vastly Improved Over Those of Yore

Says Dr. Chambliss.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS OF TIMES.

The Drink Evil and Gambling Not Nearly So Bad As They Were In the Olden Days, Pastor Declares.

Were the Former Days Better than These," was the subject of a sermon discourse delivered by Rev. Dr. A. Chambliss at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning. He refuted the opinion of some people that the former days were so much better than those of the present and offered strong arguments to prove his contention. In part Dr. Chambliss spoke as follows:

"It is a curious and solemn commentary on the flusiveness of our earthly life that men everywhere are accustomed to speak of their occupations as pursuits. We are so familiar with the use of the term that we never think of the suggestion which it carries with it of the unrest of the human heart—the universal failure to find satisfaction in whatever we get—however good, in the point we reach, however high it may be.

"Paul said, 'not as though I had already attained—but I pursue onward.' He was speaking of spiritual things, but everyone of us must confess it of natural and material things—'not yet attained—pressing toward a mark, ever and ever toward a mark.' And it is well for us that it is so. For in worldly things, as in heavenly, we are saved by hope—saved from listlessness and despair. It is hope of something more, something richer, that holds us up and moves us on.

"But here is a sort of condition in our nature. While it is true that we continually look forward—lean forward—march forward—press forward hoping for some future brighter than the present, it is also true that we are so apt to send our thoughts roving through the years gone by. To indulge in pensive reviews upon former days, as if they were better than these. We are like travellers through a rough country, who feel sharply enough the ruggedness of each portion of the road, and grumble about it while they are passing over it, but to whom the same road seems smooth and carpeted with softest verdure when they look back upon it with enchanting distance lying between.

"We spend our lives under illusions, like the deceitful appearances which cheat the weary pilgrim in Arabian deserts. Of the unapproachable mirage in the future I do not say anything today. The text or the two texts with which I have brought together for our present consideration. How we should view the past and what use we should make of it. 'Say not what is the cause that the former days were better than these?' for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this.' Now certainly that is not meant to condemn as foolish all comparisons of the present with the past which may be unfavorable to the present. One and another of us may say it and it may be true 'the former years were better than these,' in my experience. And if it is true the word here does not forbid us to see it, to look the fact squarely in the face and to say it with utmost seriousness and anxiety to our own hearts.

"In the writings of the most ancient authors we find lamentations over some golden age of the past, some legendary millenium hidden in the depths of fabulous antiquity—a golden age for them and for men and women now is only the romantic dream of a warm imagination. Is it not one of the most striking evidences of the vanity of human life that we are forever seeing something better far away in the past ever preferring the ideal 'was' to the real 'is'?

"But let us look at some of the facts. I need hardly pause a minute to show how foolish it would be to speak of the 'former days as better than these' as to the physical conditions of life, though there are some who see in all the present day conveniences of living—the introduction of time saving and labor-saving machinery, the cultivation of arts, the improvements in furniture and dress, the multiplicity of books and newspapers, the building of fine dwellings and fine churches, the construction of the sky-scrapers and subways, as well as elevated roads and the incalculable net-work of railways. Who see in all this, not progress, but degeneration, not an evidence that the world is becoming a better place, but rather a worse place to live in, and actually sigh for the simple life of our forefathers.

"Well, before we meet here again we shall celebrate the birthday of Washington. We need not go so far back as to the time he was born, but look back even to the time when he died or somewhat later still, when the grandfathers of some of us were living and mark the conditions. The streets of the largest cities were unpaved, a writer of the day mentions looking out of his office window and seeing horses mired in the streets of Philadelphia. The streets of London even were filled with mud and filth and the gentleman was carried about in his sedan chair. The use of street lamps were almost unknown, leather was so dear that boys and girls went barefotted most of the year, if the had a headache he was bled purposely, and if that intensified the headache he was given calomel.

"The schools even of New England were open two months in the winter for boys and two months in the summer for girls. Sanitation was unknown. Every fifth person on the street was horribly disfigured with smallpox and in the open country the death rate was higher than in the worst tenemtn districts of New York today.

"Many are pessimistic regarding the times in which they live by reason of the rum traffic and the gambling and speculative tendencies of our age. Dreadful enough are all these vices. Unless they are checked their future is dark, indeed. The tremendous sweep of the anti-saloon reform over the country is one of the brightest signs of the times. As to the terrible evils of gambling, whether on the race track or in Wall street, we ought to be thankful that the true men have far-reaching influence in the United States today have made their voices heard in no uncertain tones. But gigantic as evil is, yet the contrast of the present with earlier days encourages hope. Some year ago, after a long struggle, the Louisiana State lottery was finally expelled from our land and in this victory the whole country rejoices. But how striking the change in sentiment that had come over the people. In the days of our grandfathers the lottery was the favorite form of benevolence. Schools, colleges and churches were built thereby. The library of Harvard College was built by the sale of lottery tickets, and good orthodox Princeton adopted the same method of advancing its interest. Even the English Government went into the lottery business. At one time the authorities of London were selling lottery tickets for twenty different objects.

"And drunkenness was well nigh universal. Births, marriages, funerals, the dedication of public buildings and of churches, all were consecrated with liquor. Almost every business transaction was concluded with a drink. For the hostess not to offer wine to her lady callers was an offense against good breeding. As late as the time which some of us remember a deacon in a prominent church in Boston was at the same time a distiller of whiskey and an agent for the Bible Society. And that was not exceptional. The fortune that founded one most celebrated college for women was made in brewing beer and the founder was honored in the church. The fortune that founded our richest university was made by means which only in recent years have been generally condemned.

"If the scandals of today are great, the scandals of an earlier day in American and English society were infamous. Many vices of that day are now unknown and not one single vice or crime can be mentioned that has not been so decreed as to encourage hope of its determination."

In conclusion, Dr. Chambliss briefly reviewed the progress of the church, the Sunday-school, charity and missionary benevolence to show how much better the present day is than the days of former years.

RAPID FIRE TALK EARNS PRISONER HIS FREEDOM

The possession of a glib tongue earned William Jeroloman, a Newark, a suspension of sentence when he was arraigned in the city court Monday on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct preferred by Patrolman Nolan. Though he admitted that he had imbibed so much red eye he didn't know just what he had done he was positive his actions could not have been such as to warrant his being arrested. The officer informed Judge Kunyon that Jeroloman resisted being put out of the North avenue station at 2:30 yesterday morning and when finally ejected consigned the cop and the night baggagemaster to a place where snowballs have a slim chance of existing.

"Hold on," ejaculated Jeroloman. "You're mistaken about that. What I said was, 'Well, well, this is a nice way to treat me.'"

This original construction of what he had said to amused the court that the defendant handed out several more before the magistrate recovered his usual demeanor. Jeroloman launched out into an account of how many officials he knew in Essex, how many counties and the number of his acquaintances in Liberty Corner, one of whom had been Judge Kunyon's great-uncle. He ended up by stating that he never knew of a Kunyon who wasn't a good man and the salve had the desired effect on His Honor. Jeroloman was bidden to streak it back to Newark and be good for the rest of his natural life. He formerly conducted a pool room on Somerset street.

"Yes, all is lost but honor."

"He wouldn't very well lose that."

FEAST OF SACRED MUSIC

FAMOUS HYMNS EXPLAINED.

Acting Pastor Johnson Makes Brief Remarks On Origin of Each Composition Rendered During Service.

Music lovers thronged Trinity Reformed church to its utmost seating capacity Sunday on the occasion of a special musical service rendered by the church quartet choir. Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston, violinist, furnished a violin obligato to the organ accompaniment by Arthur L. Titsworth, the organist, and an elaborate musical program of vocal and instrumental music was excellently rendered.

A feature of the service was the explanatory remarks by Rev. Dr. W. F. Johnson in connection with the singing of the three hymns sung in connection with the service. These explanations, referring briefly to the author of each hymn and giving the circumstances of its composition, were given by the pastor before the singing of the hymn, in which the congregation took part, with the quartet. Explanatory of the first hymn, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Dr. Johnson said that it was composed by Rev. Ray Palmer, in 1830, when under a cloud of great discouragement. He wrote the poem in his study, little thinking that it would become famous as a hymn, but tendered it to Lowell Mason, who urged him to write something to go in the new hymn book he was preparing. The hymn is the best of his composition, and was impressively rendered.

The second hymn was "Art Thou Weary?" and the pastor referred briefly to the circumstances of its composition by Joseph of the Studium, a monk in a monastery in lower Jedea, in the sixth century. The last hymn, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," was referred to as the greatest composition of Charles Wesley, the famous hymn writer. It was inspired by the helplessness of a pursued bird, whose flight and refuge suggested the theme to the author. It was composed in 1740, and although Wesley is the author of about 7,000 hymns and songs in all, this stands supreme as his masterpiece.

The musical program gave opportunity for the display of vocal skill and training of each of the members of the quartet. The solos and choruses showed the results of careful training. Titsworth, the choir-master, and each member of the choir had excellent opportunity in their solo parts to show an excellent range of voice and tone. Especially commendable was the solo work of Miss Etta Rapert in her song, "Calm as the Night," which also developed the firm, strong tones of Mr. Cutter's voice to perhaps the best advantage. The offertory, "The Great Day of the Lord Is Near," also gave opportunity for excellence on the part of the members in solo work, and Miss Carroll's singing in "Still, Still with Thee," showed her at her best. The regular chants, "The Lord Is In His Holy Temple," "The Lord's Prayer," and "the response, 'Our Father, Thou In Heaven Above,' were excellently rendered with little supporting music. Mr. Titsworth and Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston gave excellent renditions of the prelude—"Abendlied" and the postlude—Mendelssohn's "War March of the Priests."

Prelude, organ and violin, "Abendlied," Robert Schumann; sentence, "The Lord Is In His Holy Temple," quartet, "Still, Still With Thee," Olen; Speaks; gloria, D. E. Davis; duet, "Calm as the Night," Carl Gotze; trio, "O Salutaris Hostia," John Wiegan; response, "Lord's Prayer," Charles H. Hoyt; quartet, "The Great Day of the Lord Is Near," Lucien E. Chaffin; contralto solo, "Hold Thou My Hand," with violin obligato, C. S. Briggs; response, "Our Father, Thou in Heaven Above;" sentence, "Keep Us Through the Night;" Postlude, organ and violin, "War March of the Priests," Mendelssohn.

Directing Folks in Boston.

The stranger had been searching nearly half an hour among the mysterious curving ways of the park for Fenway street. At last the trim figure of a hurrying student attracted her eye, and she resolved to ask for the necessary information.

"Can you tell me, please, where Fenway street is?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed," answered the student. "Why, we're in it now."

"Yes?" The stranger looked rather helplessly around at the wealth of shrubbery, the smooth roads that seemed to lead only to Mrs. Gardner's green roofed palace. "But I wanted to find a certain number on Fenway street."

"Oh!" said the student, a helpless expression for a moment clouding her face.

"Do you know, there's a street down there." She pointed a daintily gloved hand straight into a clump of elms. "I don't know the name of it. I never did know that. It had a name. Why don't you try that one?"—Boston Herald.

DON'TS.

Don't use more than one ounce of salt to every hundred adult fowls. This quantity is helpful.

Don't mix soft feed with beets from salt beasts. This kind of assault and battery often ends in murder.

Don't throw coarse salt where your fowls run. They pick it up for grit and are soaked down for good.

Don't use coal ashes for grit. It's too soft. Use a piece of the tooth. Try it and see how you like it.

Don't forget that grit is hen teeth. The rough is best. Buy "granite crystal." It's sharp. Comes from Boston. See?

Don't think ducks are frost proof because they have thick down. You'll have a downfall if you do.

Don't feed homers as you do chickens. Buy the special mixed pigeon feeds and prosper.

The Value of Labor-Saving Devices.

When Mr. McCormick built his first hundred reapers in 1845, he paid four and a half cents for bolts. That was in the mythical age of hand labor. Today fifty bolts are made for a cent. So with guard-fingers; Mr. Cormick paid twenty-four cents each when James K. Polk was in the White House. Now there is a ferocious machine, which, with the least possible assistance from one man, cuts out 1,300 guard-fingers in ten hours, at a labor cost of one cent for all. Also, while exploring one of the Chicago factories, I came upon a herd of cud-chewing machines that were grumbling out satisfaction at the rate of 56,000,000 million a year. Nearer by four smaller and more irritable automata, which were biting off pieces of wire and chewing them into linchpins at a speed of 400,000 bites a day.

"Take out your watch and time this man," said Superintendent Brooks of the McCormick plant. "See how long he is in boring five holes in that great casting."

"Exactly six minutes," I answered.

"Well, that's progress, observed Brooks. Before we bought that machine it was a matter of four hours to bore those holes."

Premature Obituaries.

One of the traditions of the office of the New York Herald has to do with an editor who was a great upholder of the infallibility of his paper. It simply couldn't make a mistake.

A flustered citizen once burst into his office and bustled up to the editorial desk. "See here!" he demanded. "This obituary notice. It's all wrong."

"What's wrong about it?" asked the editor in calm confidence."

"Why, it's about me. I'm not dead!"

"If the Herald says you're dead," sternly replied the editor, "you're dead. And he said it in a manner plainly, "if you don't like being dead we'll print your birth notice."

His attitude was rather different from that of another editor, who on being shown by the man most interested that the death of the complainant was falsely reported, apologized profusely and offered to make it all right.

"We'll print a correction at once," he said.

"Well," said the man that wasn't dead, "perhaps it would be better to let it stand. I'll show it to my friends when they want to borrow money."—Woman's Home Companion for February.

Legal Solid Gold.

The term "solid gold" has been the cause of much discussion on the part of manufacturers of gold articles and of much misapprehension on the part of the public for some time, and the recent fixing of the commercial definition of the phrase is welcomed on all sides.

According to this law ten-karat gold is the commercial "solid gold," all articles containing more alloy than this, or articles with parts which contain more alloy, are henceforth not known as plated, filled or rolled gold, and must be so marked by the manufacturer. For example, a pin with top of "solid gold," even to the value of 18 karats, cannot be legally called solid if hinge, hook or pin is of ten-karat gold; while another pin of 10 karats throughout, though of much less intrinsic value than that of 18 karats, is legally "solid gold."

This law was made to protect the manufacturing jewelers against the makers and sellers of "phony" jewelry, and has been heartily endorsed by the legitimate trade all over the country.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DAVIS OUT FOR BRYAN

Hudson County Boss Roasts James Smith, Jr. and Knocks Essex Democrats.

THE PARTY'S "EVIL GENIUS."

Says Former Senator Magins He Has an Anti-Bryan Delegation Ticket in His Vest Pocket.

Robert Davis, the Democratic boss of Hudson county, in an interview Friday, declared that if he was chosen as a delegate-at-large to the Democratic convention at Denver, his choice for the nomination for President would be William J. Bryan. He also made some caustic remarks on ex-United States Senator James Smith, Jr.

The interview follows:

"I have no use for State leaders who make annual retirements from politics and then hob up each year just before party candidates are to be nominated. In Hudson we believe in the rule of the majority, and I am proud to say that Hudson has never bolted a party nomination. That cannot be said of Essex county.

"I think that the 'State leader' in Essex, who imagines that he has an anti-Bryan delegation to the national convention all selected and the list of names in his pocket, is mistaken. The Democrats of New Jersey are tired of defeat under that so-called leader's evil influence, and they are ready to throw off old yokes and give the young men of the party a chance to manage it. The young men are for Bryan, for they think that he can defeat any Republican except Roosevelt.

"The man behind the recent attack on Robert S. Hudspeth as State chairman, and who is working hard to defeat him for re-election, is doing and has done his utmost to destroy the Democratic party of New Jersey. He profits more by Republican administrations that he would by a real Democratic administration. I haven't mentioned any name because I don't think it necessary. There isn't a Democrat in the State who does not know who is the evil genius of the party.

"Essex county has no candidate. It is not for Judge Gray, of Delaware. It is for any man to beat Bryan. It is for the reason because the Republican machine fears his nomination. Democratic allies of that machine in this State are, therefore, against Mr. Bryan. They want to put up a man whom it will be easy for Taft to defeat. Taft could not defeat Bryan because the Roosevelt Democrats are against Taft and will support Bryan.

"Let me tell you, the Democrats of New Jersey, from what I have heard, do not propose to let the vest pocket of their leader swallow the delegates to the national convention. In every county the supporters of Colonel Bryan are active, and Republicans and corporation money, with the aid of a few Democrats, will not be allowed to name delegates who will nominate a weakling for the Presidency.

"In Hudson we believe in a fair deal and the rule of the party majority. I do not know positively that I will be a delegate to Denver, for I do not carry the Democratic votes of Hudson in my vest pocket, like the Newark 'State leader,' but if I am elected a delegates there will be no one-man control of the New Jersey delegation at the Denver convention."

When Mr. Smith was asked for his opinion of the interview yesterday afternoon, all he would say was: "I have no idea to whom the gentleman refers."

PLAINFIELD BOY MAKES SHOT PUTTING RECORD

Russell Lawrence, of Leal's School, smashed all metropolitan records for the indoor/and Indoor 12-pound shot by a put of 49 ft. 4¼ in., at the Brooklyn Poly Prep. meet, at the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, Saturday afternoon. Lawrence's performance surpasses Ralph Rose's best schoolboy mark by 7 feet 3 which is the American record until Lee R. Talbot, Mercersburg's star, made a heave of 51 ft. 1 in. at Philadelphia last spring. Lawrence, who is not over average height and weighs only 170 pounds, has been putting the shot only a year, but his form is perfect. Addison H. Bissell, of Newark Academy, was second, with 46 ft. Lawrence also took second place in the standing broad jump.

THE DREAMER.

In the busy world of action,
Where the race is to the strong,
Dreamers do not win the prizes
But they somehow get along.
Doors gather in the bakeshop,
Take the cookey and the bun
But in missing things substantial
Dreamers have a lot of fun.

With his feet incased in slippers,
Seated in his easy chair,
And his pipe at hand the dreamer
Can defy the world of care.
Business in the street may bustle
Commerce in the mart may hum,
But that doesn't jar the dreamer
Or effect his kingdom come.

He can daily in the valley
Where the lilies lurk,
He can wander in the forest
When he ought to be at work.
When he should be chasing dollars
He can saunter down the street,
Calm, unmoved and quite complacent
If he gets enough to eat.

Dreaming doesn't bring him money
Nor put treasure in his sack,
But it helps along digestion
And it doesn't hurt his back;
He can analyze the struggle,
He can see unmoved the strife,
And if there is cause for worry
Shift the burden to his wife.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Jan. 9, 1908, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll was called and the following members present:

Absent, Freeholders Cady and Swain—2.

The minutes of the previous meeting, with a slight correction, were, on motion, approved as per printed copies on the members' desks.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Union County Board of Taxation, as follows:

Dec. 23, 1907.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, N. J.:

Gentlemen—This board desires to take up with your board the question of better office accommodations for the Union County Board of Taxation.

We submit the disadvantages we labor under when appeals are being heard, when appeals are being heard, others can sit around and listen to the appellants' private statements.

The present accommodations by the board is unfortunate in that it cannot be ventilated without opening the window, which cannot be well done in the winter, and often roiled be breathe the atmosphere of the prison.

We believe the business of this board is of such a character and importance as to require better facilities and more privacy.

For these reasons we would be pleased to take the question up with the committee under whose charge it rightly belongs. Very truly yours,

C. C. POLLARD,
President.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek received and referred to the committee on public grounds and buildings.

From the mayor and Council of the Borough of Garwood:

Garwood, N. J., Jan. 2, 1908.

Resolved, That the Board of Freeholders be requested to build a square culvert with gratings on top at the intersection of Centre street and North avenue.

Signed,
WALLACE E. KAYLOR.

Approved Jan. 2, 1908.

F. SARTORIUS, Mayor.
Attest: WILLIAM DARROCH,
Borough Clerk.

Freeholder Pierson moved that the communication be received and referred to a committee, which was so ordered.

From the Funeral Directors' Association of Essex and Union counties:

Elizabeth, Jan. 8, 1908.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.:

Gentlemen—I am directed by this association to communicate with your honorable body, apprising you of an action taken at a meeting of the association held in the city of Newark on Dec. 31, 1907, in regard to the dangerous conditions existing at the crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Linden avenue, known as Dardis lane.

This thoroughfare is extensively used by the undertakers of both Union and Essex counties as well as those living in the central counties, it being the main approach to the cemeteries and crematory situated in Linden. The crossing is absolutely ungarded and is considered by all as the most deadly spot over which funeral partoes are required to drive. The catastrophe of Sunday last at the Dardis lane crossing in which the driver of the funeral coach lost his life, the horses were killed, coach demolished and the several occupants severely injured, vividly impresses us with the necessity of protection at that point. Othe fatalities have also recently occurred there, and we feel that it is the reasonable thing no longer remain without some protective device is nothing short of criminal. The association therefore wishes to bring to your honorable body a formal protest as regards the carelessness of the railroad company in not affording the necessary protection to human life, as the common laws of preservation would suggest, and would also request and urge that a demand be made upon the railroad company for the erection of gates erected at the Dark lane crossing and that a guard man be stationed there in charge of same.

Hoping that you will realize the reasonableness of our request and that you will promptly act in the matter, we are, Your very truly,

THE FUNERAL DIRECTORS' ASSOCIATION OF ESSEX AND UNION COUNTIES.
W. J. Knowles, Secretary.

County Attorney Coddington stated that the matter was one in which the municipality had full power to act, and on motion of Freeholder Woodruff the communication was received and referred to the committee on legal questions and county attorney.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the committee on South Broad street bridge sidewalks, Elizabeth, as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed in this matter has received bids for the work according to plan prepared by the county engineer and find the lowest bid to be $438.86.

The appropriation asked for and stated was $350, and the difference of cost in the work to be done in inclement season for this kind of work.

Your committee is of the opinion that the walks should be repaired at once, as they are in very bad condition, and would therefore recommend that the appropriation for the work be increased from the sum first appropriated—namely, $350 to the sum of $450.

J. LOGAN FAY.
J. ROBINSON.
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the report be received and recommendation be adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote, for the committee on jail inspection:

Elizabeth, Jan. 9, 1908.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—At a meeting of the committee on jail inspection held Jan. 9, 1908, we appointed Dr. M. A. Shangle as jail physician for the ensuing year at the usual compensation of $250 per year, said amount to cover all medical services needed to prisoners of county jail during the year.

E. K. ADAMS.
J. HERVEY DOANE.
J. LOGAN FAY.
Committee On Jail Inspection.

Freeholder Robison moved that the report be received and the action of the committee confirmed, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the committee on jail inspection:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned committee would respectfully report that they have had a conference with William H. Lawrence, the sheriff of this county, and in relation to a contract with this board for keeping of prisoners, care of jail, county buildings, etc., and have arranged at an interview with the sheriff to the effect that we would recommend to this board the making of a contract upon the same terms as for the year 1907, and in accordance therewith we would recommend that the director and clerk of this board be authorized to execute a contract with William H. Lawrence, sheriff, upon the same terms as the last previous contract and that said contract bear date as of Dec. 1, 1907, and to continue during the balance of the unexpired term of said sheriff.

Dated Jan. 9, 1908. Respectfully submitter,

E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. LOGAN FAY,
Committee of Jail Inspection.

Freeholder Cladek moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse it was ordered that the board proceed to vote on the appointment of a county road inspector.

Freeholder Maurer nominated James W. Fink for said office, and there were no further nominations.

The director appointed Freeholders Wilbur and Cladek as tellers.

Upon ballot being taken Mr. Fink received 10 votes; blank, 8 votes.

Mr. Fink not having received a majority vote of the whole board, was thereupon declared appointed as county road inspector for the legal term.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Adams:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to investigate the advisability of building a box culvert at the junction of Center street and Morris avenue, Union township, and report at the next regular meeting of this board as to the probable cost of the same.

The motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Adams, Perry and Maurer.

By Freeholder Adams:

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be tendered to Assistant Engineer and Collector N. R. Leavitt for the handsome bound volumes of the session laws of 1907 presented to the several members of this board.

On motion of Freeholder ones the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be extended to W. H. Kirk for the convenient and useful pocket memorandum books presented by him to the members of this board.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Whereas an agreement was several months ago entered into by and between the county of Union and Capt. Ryan as to the purchase of a vacant lot adjoining the courthouse property in the rear for the sum of $2,750, and whereas the matter of title to said premises was delayed until Jan. 8, and whereas the taxes assessed against said premises are the um of $67, therefore be it resolved that the county collector be and hereby is authorized to pay said taxes from the county funds.

Freeholder Woodruff moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

The director announced the appointment of Freeholder Stephan to the place on the South Broad street bridge committee formerly held by Freeholder Gruener.

The director also announced the appointment of Freeholder Cladek to the place on the Rahway avenue bridge committee, Rahway, formerly held by Freeholder Gruener.

Hunting In An Automobile.

Automobiles are being used for about everything these days by ingenious owners, from sawing cordwood and driving printing presses to carrying money in a Wall street panic. In the possibilities are not yet exhausted, apparently. Ray Faye, a Boston autoist, has converted his car into a traveling camp for hunting in the Maine woods. He has built an extension top of heavy waterproof canvas and fitted up the rear end of the machine with bunks for sleeping quarters at night. Along the sides of the tonneau and canopy are arranged hooks on which to hang clothing and hunting accoutrements.

The berths in the car have been adjusted by widening their hangers four inches. This makes it possible to keep the beds made up ready to be dropped into place when needed. The blankets have been converted into semi-sleeping bags that fold up with the pneumatic mattresses in such a manner that they fall easily into place when the berths are lowered. A large canvas tent is taken along, which can be attached to the car and give additional quarters, making the whole as spacious a camp as any built for permanent use. The provisions are packed in chests in the body of the car, each chest having many compartments. Folding tables, cooking utensils arranged in nests for more convenient transportation, and other things add to the comfort of camping expeditions.—Popular Mechanics.

PRINCETON FURNISHES COLLEGE PRESIDENTS.

Within the las' five years, Princeton University has been the training school for three college presidents. Two of them have received their appointments this year and will sever connections with the Princeton University faculty in June; these are Henry A. Garfield, professor of politics, a son of the ex-president. He has been chosen as the head of Williams College, and Edgar O. Lovett, professor of astronomy, elected president of Rice Institute of Texas, an educational foundation about to be developed in Houston, Texas. Four years ago Prof. John H. Finley, of Princeton, became president of the College of the City of New York.

Professor Lovett received his Ph. D. at Leipsic and succeeded the late Professor Charles A. Young as head of the astronomical department. Rice Institute is as yet unknown to the country. The charter which has been granted by the State of Texas is very liberal, and the institution may yet become one of the strongest in the South.

Professor Garfield, who will lead Williams College, as professor of politics at Princeton has become one of the most distinguished members of the faculty. It will be hard for Princeton to fill these vacancies. Announcement will be made in June of their successors.

In connection with the presidents which Princeton has given to the college world might be mentioned the offer of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to Professor Andrew Fleming West, dean of the Graduate School, to assume the presidential office of Boston's technical institute. Undergraduate sentiment, as well as alumni influence, however, was brought to bear, and the man largely responsible for the success of the present preceptorial system was not lost to Princeton.

HOW TO DARN OLD LACE.

Dainty and Pretty Bits May Look Almost Like New.

If the tear is a serious one the edges of the lace can be basted upon the selvedge of muslin and placed in the embroidery hoop.

Care must be taken not to sew into the muslin.

If the lace is destroyed entirely or in part the lace may be basted upon white letter paper and stitched several times to form a new edge and cross-threads stitched to hold this edge in place, then the paper pulled away and the remaining stitches put in on the machine or by hand.

Hamburg edgings and insertions can be darned in the same way. They should preferably be free of starch and smoothly ironed to facilitate work.

White mosquito netting that has been washed will be found to give a good foundation for darning coarsely woven underwear on the machine and soft black mosquito netting should be basted under the holes in the knees of boys' stockings.

It should be basted directly across the hole and the machine darning done directly upon it. The rough edges and threads can afterward be trimmed away.

When you are through darning upon the machine, do not forget to replace the pressure on the pressure foot and the stitch action to the feed, otherwise you may be very much puzzled the next time you go to use the machine and wonder why "it won't make a stitch."

Darning upon the single thread or chain-stitch machine is somewhat more difficult, as the machine will sew it only one direction, and the muslin must be basted before the hole is worn away. Miss Agnes Egan, of Plainfield. She came near singing it but the effort died in infancy.

Second money was awarded the Bould Brook lyricist and third was taken by Westfield.

The gallery patrons were again somewhat personal in their remarks last night and as a result one of them had to be escorted to the box office to offer an apology. A certain amount of good-natured raillery is not objected to by the management but the line is drawn at "Freshness" and Manager Counihan has sought to impress this on the minds of the Stadlitown comedy people who go to the limit. A continuance is sure to lead to drastic measures as the offenders will realize after a fine or two.

NEAR ACTORS TRY AGAIN THIN OUT SHADE TREES

"FOREIGN ACTS" ON THE BILL.

Dunellen Dancer, Helped Out by a Pair of Wooden Shoes, Gets the First Award.

Manager Counihan's weekly try-out of future Vests Victorias and James J. Mortons drew another large crowd to the New Plainfield theatre, Friday night. In the words of the big vaudeville managers, there were "five foreign acts on the bill and one home number." One aspirant hailed from Somerville, another from Bound Brook, a third from Rahway, a fourth from Cranford and modest Dunellen contributed the genius that copped first money.

Eva Hale, the Somerville soprano, pranced on for Act 1 and proceed back quicker than she came. However told her story and she would be drawn and quartered as she appeared to know as much about scales as a catfish and they began any. It was impossible to learn what song she started to disect. Dunellen's representative came next and Master George White, who gave a wooden shoe dance. The shoes are entitled to some of the credit for the owner getting first money but to give him his due, he had one back-action flip that was good and saked alive, how he did manage to get his feet down on the ends and then threw in two or three for good measure when the gallery applauded.

May West, who Manager Counihan said was known as "the Bound Brook baritone," came third on the bill and by nearly the big act again for the night. Her song was announced as "The Girl That Threw Me Down," the title and May's appearance recalling Maggie Cline in her palmy days. She was left to the pool when the piano man started on his journey and he but she caught up to him at the quarter-pole. At the half she was somewhat in the lead and bidding fair to win by two bars but unfortunately May's memory was unable to stand the strain and it broke in the home stretch. She essayed to reach a high note but it ended in a gurgle and the rest appeared in the form of a pantomime sketch, the "get the hook" rules during out what she had to say. She was game, however, and bowled for a second try and got it. She finished out "The Girl That Threw Me Down" but fell from grace by trying "Take Me Back to New York Town." The wheelbarrow used in place of the old-time hook removed the last of the act she escaped to the other side of the stage.

Peter Ross, of Cranford, came on for a soft shoe dance a la George Primrose and they led him away after one minute had elapsed. Peter is a good fellow in all appearances but somebody ought to poison him if he ever dares to breathe to anyone that he can dance, even if he says "cross my heart, hope I may die." A young lady introduced as "Miss Marie" the Rahway fire dancer, follows Peter's example with dire and executed some steps the way they teach them in Peter Tillman's town. The dancing instructor over there works in the Woodbridge clay banks in the day time so there is some excuse for Wanita. The last number on the bill was a near-solo by Miss Agnes Egan, of Plainfield. She came near singing it but the effort died in infancy.

Second money was awarded the Bould Brook lyricist and third was taken by Westfield.

The gallery patrons were again somewhat personal in their remarks last night and as a result one of them had to be escorted to the box office to offer an apology. Commissioners Decide That Those Along Many Streets are Set too Close Together.

MENACE TO PUBLIC HEALTH.

Thoroughfares Too Damp—Proximity of Trees Makes Them Ill-Shapen—Many Will Be Removed.

In carrying out its plans for the care and preservation of shade trees in the city we outline the removal of those which are found to be a detriment, the Shade Tree Commission, E. T. Barrows, Miles Roberts and City Engineer A. J. Gavett, find that on many of the streets the trees stand altogether too close to each other, causing the soil to become parched, sour and over-grown with moss, as well as making the streets damp and the trees ill-shapen.

When the trees were first planted they were placed at short distances apart to provided needed shade, but now that they have grown larger it is the belief of the commission that they should be given more room by cutting out some of the intervening ones. This will give the others an opportunity to develop symmetrically, and allow needed sunlight to help prevent the fatal effects of the retention of air. It is also the belief that the ground should receive a good dressing of fertilizer.

The commission, feeling that the proper thinning of the trees is one of the greatest needs of the city to preserve its beauty and health, and, as now making arrangements to co-operate with property-owners with a view to removing as many overcrowded and defective trees as its facilities will permit.

Application for the removal of such trees may be made to the commission at 151 North avenue.

SOMERSET AUTHORITIES HUNT A BARN BURNER

"The mysterious destruction by fire of an automobile near Harlingen Thursday night, has led to an investigation by the Somerset county authorities, and it is believed that criminal action will follow. The automobile, which was owned by Augustus Drake, of Grand avenue, was used by him, his brother and C. C. Snyder, also of this city, to make a trip to Harlingen, on Wednesday, where the trio went to look after a property deal.

Returning home that night, the party had gone but a short distance when the automobile broke down. After repeated unnecessful attempts to repair the machine, it was finally run in a farmer's barn nearby, and, the three men came back to Plainfield by train. Late Wednesday night the barn was set on fire and completely destroyed. The farmer and his neighbors rescued the machine after great difficulty. Mr. Drake intended going after his automobile on Thursday, but was prevented for some reason, and that night the barn was again set on fire and this time it was completely destroyed and with it the machine. Nothing was left but the iron fame. When Mr. Drake went to Harlingen yesterday he learned of the loss of his machine.

Following the fire in connection with the fire were reported to the county authorities and Detective George Totten has been busy on the case ever since. There is a report that he has obtained sufficient evidence that will lead to an indictment and the possible prosecution of a well-known man. As the automobile was covered by insurance the loss will not be a total one for Mr. Drake.

C. E. SOCIETY HOLDS VALENTINE SOCIABLE.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church enjoyed a Valentine social in the chapel of the church Friday. The rooms were elaborately decorated with red paper hearts, and in each of the five class rooms, where progressive games were played, the decorations were appropriate to the occasion. After playing games the young people were invited to the church to enjoy refreshments. These were distributed later by the "queen of hearts," which honor was accorded Miss Marion Englehart.

The refreshments consisted of pink lemonade, heart shaped cakes, cooling ices and mints. The ushers were: Jesse Lounsbury, Wilbur Dunning, Elmer Ackor, Stanley Karner, Louis Fisher and Orlando Lounsbury. The social committee which arranged the affair comprised Miss Cornelia Lounsbury, Miss Beatrice Miller, Miss Winifred Hammond, Miss Barbara Pescock, Wilbur Dunning, Stanley Karner and George Ballentyne.

A Philadelphia Dream.

"Will, you please drive off the track," asked the motorman. The truck driver promptly reined to one side.

"Thank you ever so much," added the motorman, with a smile.

"You're very welcome," responded the truck driver, "but you must pardon my carelessness. I had no idea your car was so near."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 23, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The foreign mission work of our denomination; a survey.—Rom. x, 8-15.

The argument of Paul the apostle to the gentiles in this portion of his greatest epistle is clearly in favor of foreign missions. In the opening part of the chapter he expresses his deep interest in the salvation of his countrymen. "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is that they might be saved." He then goes on to show that the salvation of the soul may be accomplished through faith in Christ and confession of Christ and, since salvation is "to every one who believeth." it is equally efficient both for the Jew and the Greek. As there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him; for whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." But the Greek or gentile world had not had the opportunity of believing on Christ and calling upon Him because they had not heard of Him; hence arises his series of questions, ending "with How shall they hear without a preacher?" and again, "How shall they preach except they be sent?"—sent of God through His ordinance of call to missionaries to their work, but the church, at least today, must send them as their places of labor and support them in their work.

The plain duty of the church, therefore, is to send the missionaries into the foreign as well as to the home field. Up until a little over a century ago the modern church neglected this plain duty, that then the modern movement in foreign missions began. It began, also, with small movements, in the day of small things." Those who were in favor of the worldwide movement were few in number compared to those who were opposed to it. The difficulties in the way were almost insurmountable. Some countries were closed to the entrance of Christian missionaries. The difficulties and dangers of travel to distant shores can scarcely be appreciated today, when the Atlantic is crossed in a little over five days and a trip around the whole world is no longer a novelty. Months were required for communications between home and foreign lands. It required great hearts in those days to undertake such arduous toils and labors, to make such sacrifices, to endure such privations in dangerous climates, deadly diseases and frequent native opposition and persecution. But God picked His men. His disciples sent them, and the result today is that every country and clime is open to missionary endeavor, and every land "the gospel's joyful sound" has been heard, and every great Christian denomination is putting forth tremendous efforts to win the world for Christ.

In the early years of this great movement much confusion and lack of progress resulted from the overlapping of denominational labors. Indeed, until very recent years this was sadly the case in Christian lands. The gospel was divided among the various Christian denominations, and even where they occupy the same fields co-operation and not competition exists. Denominational differences are minimized, and the aim of all is to spread over every where may hear the gospel and through hearing believe in Christ and, believing in Him, call upon Him and be saved.

This modern arrangement of foreign mission work makes it possible for the members of each denomination to become familiar with the work of its denomination. Christian Endeavorers especially should be thoroughly posted upon all subjects concerning the missionary fields and laborers of its church. A study of the topic suggests the various fields should be reviewed in connection with the names and the lives of the missionaries and the features of their work surveyed, such as evangelistic, educational and medical work. Knowledge that is being done by the entire church may be impossible, but no intelligent Endeavorer need lack full information concerning his own denomination's work. Such information will inspire a new interest in and zeal for missions. It will make our prayers more definite and therefore more prevailing before God. It will increase our gifts to missions through our denominational agencies, and it is through these that we should give to the great cause. Moreover, it will increase our joy in giving and multiply the blessings that return to us as a result of our efforts to win the world for Christ.

C. E. Greetings to Sankey.

Sixty-seven years ago Ira D. Sankey, the world-renowned evangelist in gospel song and coworker with D. L. Moody, was born. Bedridden and stricken with blindness, but with firm faith and a buoyant, confident spirit, he celebrated his sixty-seventh birthday in his Brooklyn home, receiving the greetings and congratulations of his worldwide army of friends. Among the messages sent him is this one from an army of admiring Christian Endeavorers:

Kirkwood, N. Y., Aug. 28.
To Mr. Ira D. Sankey, 18 South Oxford street, Brooklyn, N. Y.:
Greetings and wishes for happy birthday, October 2, 1.

Feb. 23: "The power house of faith," "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth."

By REV. WALTER J. TATES, D. D.

Faith is not foolishness, nor is it even remotely related to it. It is not even credulity. It is not independent of evidence, as some have seemed to think, nor is it ever irrational. The idea some have entertained that the holding to an absurdity was a sign of great faith has no basis in Christianity. Scriptures and should have no place in Christian thought. Faith does not and cannot make the incredible to be credible, the irrational to be reasonable. Nor can either one ever become matter of faith.

Faith is assurance of a fact. It is not mere intellectual assent to the truthfulness of an idea. It is confidence in its accuracy. It has an element of feeling in it, of personal warmth of emotion toward it. But there is in it a distinct element of personal choosing. There is evidence which appeals to the whole man—intellect, sensibility and will. It may not be sufficient to convince another, but it does appeal efficiently to this one.

This is not nearly as mysterious as many would have us think. Most of our knowledge is not such as will admit of true demonstration, yet we are living upon it on rational account. We believe vastly more than we can prove. Nearly all of the higher things of our nature are subjects of faith rather than of demonstrable certainty. The system of personal life is particularly illustrative of this. Who ever thought of asking a demonstration of love, as one would perform a mathematical problem? We take it on trust.

Religion in its true nature is loving confidence in God. This is far from being the conception of the truth in many minds. Stress is spent to the truth of any doctrine or system of truth, it has a basis in some sort of knowledge of God and self and the world. Abram has a very definite idea of God and of his own relation to God and His world. Very likely he did not greatly differ in this respect from many others around him, except in one small particular. He had a glimpse of a truth which others did not see and so might be call a seer among men. He thought of God as a friend. Does that seem a small difference? It had mighty consequences.

He not only thought. He felt also. He felt that God was a friend, and then he felt friendly toward God. This feeling he did not keep to himself, but put all to the touch of that thought and feeling. He ventured all, risked all. What he knew to be God's thought he accepted as true, was glad in it and let his faith be unwavering.

Did God want a man from native land into a strange land? He went, believing God would lead him and take care of him. That was faith. Did God promise him an heir, a son, when all was unfruitful? He did not put his ignorance of nature against God's knowledge, as so many now do, but in his simplicity believed God could do as He promised and just expected the son. That was not surprised when he was given.

When God demanded the sacrifice of that same son he did not withhold him, but believed God could raise him from the dead if necessary to keep His word and His purpose. In fact, the faith of Abraham was a childlike confidence in God which led him into simple obedience to His commands.

"Have faith in God," not so you can curse some mountain tree, but so you can heave mountains of evil into the realm of oblivion. Have faith so you may discover new truths of God, as have all the prophets through all the ages, so your heart may rejoice and all your powers may do His bidding.

True Beauty.

That is not the most perfect beauty which in public would attract the greatest observation, nor even that which the statuary would admit to be of faultless plan or clay kneaded with blood. But that is true beauty which has not only a substance, but a spirit, a beauty that we must intimately know justly to appreciate, a beauty lighted up in conversation, where the mind shines, as it were, through its casket, when, in the language of the poet, "the eloquent blood speaks in her cheeks, and so distinctly wrought that we might almost say her body thought." An order and a mode of beauty which the more we know the more we accuse ourselves for not having before discovered those thousand graces which bespeak that their owner has a soul—this is that beauty that never cloys, possessing charms as restless as the fascinating Egyptian for which antony nearly paid the bauble of the world—a beauty like the rising of his own Italian suns, always enchanting, never the same.—Rev. C. C. Colton.

Happiness Makers.

Great hearts are those whose presence is sunshine. Their coming changes our climate. They oil the bearings of life; they make right living easy. Blessed are the happiness makers! They represent the best forces of civilization.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

The Happiest Heart.

Who drives the fleet steed of the sun
Shall lord it but a day;
Better the lowly deed were done
And kept the humble way.

The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Ay, none shall nail so high his name
Time will not tear it down.

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight sweet
And left to heaven the rest.
—Henry Vance Cheney in Schoolmaster.

SOME GREAT ATHLETES PRODUCED IN NEW JERSEY.

The State of New Jersey is fast coming to the front as a producer of top-notch athletic talent. In recent years the Mosquito State has given to the track and field world such sterling men as Fred Bellairs, of Lyndhurst; John Eisle, of Orange; Joe Bromilow, of Paterson; Harry Hillman and R. C. Taylor, of New Brunswick; Harry Coates, of Newark; Platt Adams, of Orange, and Joe Bauderman, of Newark—all men who have at one time or another won championship titles against America's best. But wait! Jersey has a new one.

His name is Thaddeus S. White, and he hails from Closter, N. J., a little hamlet near Englewood. "Dis covered" a few short months ago by Ernie Hjertberg. White took so rapidly to running that he is now rated as one of the foremost middle distance runners in the metropolitan district. According to Hjertberg, White has excellent chance to startle the athletic world this year with some mile performances that will approach Haskins' great intercollegiate record.

Besides being fleet of foot, White has a head on his shoulders that would do credit to any veteran runner of five year's experience. This was well illustrated at the B. A. A. games, when after receiving instructions on "how to run his race" from one of the advisers that always turn up at such a time, White went out and ran his own style, incidentally getting away with a lot of crack milers, including Harvey Cohn and F. P. Sullivan. The race was one of the prettiest judged handicaps seen this year. White, instead of following the "expert" instructions given him, viz., to run right from the gun, waited until the big field strung out a bit, then he "went out," and the way he cut down his rivals was a caution.

White has the English style of running—short, quick and snappy strides. A ludicrous incident took place at the recent B. A. A. games, when a college coach of more or less prominence went up to the track captain of one of the largest clubs in New York and advised him to protest White as an English professional. "He is not a amateur," the trainer, not by the way he runs. He has the style of an English pro." A quiet investigation revealed the fact that White is a native of Closter, N. J., and has worked as a wire expert with the New York Telephone Company for several years.

MIDWINTER KINKS IN FASHION'S FANCIES.

Girls who want to wear thin, transparent waists in their shirtwaists should not discard their woolen underwear, but should rip open the shoulder seam and fasten with buttons and buttonholes.

The tops of many of the sleeves are being cut in one with the fronts of the bodice, joining the underarm portion of both sleeve and bodice in a few small plaits.

The most appropriate hats for street wear these cold days are the small, snug turbans of fur. Lynx, mink and the darker furs are for street wear, while the lighter and daintier furs are suitable only for evening.

At fashionable afternoon weddings, the bridesmaids are wearing rather large hats of rose point lace trimmed with pale plumes.

By all means alter the sleeves of your last summer's waists if you would be up-to-date. The puffs above the elbow must be considerably reduced in size for this season's wear.

Getting His Own Back.

An ironworker, having had the worst of an argument with a friend, decided to get even with him.

Waiting, therefore, until his enemy had retired to rest one night, he approached his street door and knocked loudly in order to wake him.

Then, opening the bedroom window, the other hurriedly inquired what the noise was all about.

"Which one?"

"The one you have your head through," chuckled the other as he went away satisfied with the success of his plot.—Illustrated Bits.

Its Worth.

The actress, having been arrested for running her automobile seventy miles an hour, was describing the superb car to a reporter.

The young man inquired:

"How much did you say it was worth?"

"At least two columns on the front page," she answered absently.—Kansas City Independent.

Shut Her Off.

THE THEATRE CAT.

One Time When It Saved a Show and Another When It Disrupted It.

"There was a play on in a house where I worked; it had a pretty good cast, but everybody was nervous because it didn't measure up strong in lines and situations. On the opening night there's a crowded house, but the first act is a sad sketch. We know the second will be worse, because, barring a lot of quiet talk-talk, there's nothing in it but a swell setting showing a fireplace and real gas logs down left.

"It's a cold, sleety night, and Pete, our house cat, has been out visiting. He comes in while the act is on and walks down off side. He looks across and sees the logs burning, and naturally they appeal to him. First thing you know he starts over the stage with a dignified actor walk, and proceeds to make his toilet right down in front of the blaze.

"Say, the homelike effect is great! The fire and dog's notice is just right on. I'm looking for the house to throw a laugh, but instead of that a few moments later, there's a burst of applause that almost knocks us silly.

"Next day the papers were enthusiastic about 'the wonderful piece of realism,' and said the cat is the best actor in the cast and has made a success of what would have been a sure frost.

"Of course you kept Pete in the play," said the student.

"We did," said the veteran reminiscently. "Luckily next day was Sunday, so an early rehearsal is called to break Pete in on that scene. The log-fire is set going, and Pete is carried down and his head pointed from the opposite entrance. But it's no go. He just turns and sneaks for the prop room. The boss thinks of a plan to open everything up and chill off the stage so that the heat will attract Pete's nose to the work; and anyway, the ladies say they'll quit if they have to take chances on getting pneumonia.

"It's about 10 o'clock at night with everybody exhausted and sore, when the property-boy dopes out the way. He's a bright kid, and knew a thing or two about cat nature. Says he:

"'No cat ain't dams fool enough to let itself be trained to do extra work. Leave this to me, unless is Pete's job, and we got to make him do the stunt along them lines.'

"The manager is down and out; he says go ahead and try something. So the kid produces a trap with two mice in it, and lets his line and Pete's amusement. Pete is immediately very much lit up, and if we hold him off side and set the cage by the fireplace, he makes a beeline across. Then the kid cuts a little hole in one corner of the fireplace and sticks one of the mice's heads out from behind just far enough for Pete to see, but not reach. After he gets on to the game, he'll sneak across the stage and camp in front of the fire and just sit there quiet, watchin' and waitin' his call, same as any cat on the trail. After that by keeping him hungry and always pushin' out a mouse when the curtain drops, we manage to pull through a season of ten weeks with only one fall-down."

"What was that?" asked the student.

"Well," said the veteran, "one night the boy who is holding the mouse lets it slip. It jumps by Pete and reaches where the leading lady is nodding to some of the lines. Pete is right behind and makes a beautiful merry-go-round chase circling her skirts. The audience thinks it's great; and, by gum, the manager was fool enough to figure if we could repeat it we'd be set.

"Did you try?" asked the student.

"Not on your life," said the veteran. "The leading lady said she'd quit on the spot if they ever pulled a rehearsal."—John S. Lopez, in Harper's Weekly.

TWO SOCIETY PERSONS HURT WHILE COASTING.

Miss Margaret Goddard, of East Ninth street, and Boardman Tyler, of West Seventh street, members of a party of seven coasting on the Watchung avenue hill Saturday afternoon, were severely injured as the result of a collision between the bob and sled on which they were riding at Watchung and Woodland avenues.

The injured ones were carried to the home of A. M. Wilcox nearby, where Dr. Corbusier gave temporary treatment. Miss Goddard's injuries were chiefly about the face, while Mr. Tyler's face was considerably cut. Later they were removed to their homes, where they are now reported as doing well.

The coasters were traveling at a terrific speed on the roaring Woodland avenue, when suddenly a coal wagon turned from the latter avenue into Watchung. It was too late for Mr. Tyler, who was steering the bob, to change the course of the sled and it struck the left front wheel of the wagon full force, throwing the coasters off. All escaped injury except Mr. Tyler and Miss Goddard.

For Cleaning.

Fuller's earth is one of the best methods for cleaning white or any delicate fabric. The powder is harmless, used dry, and will remove every particle of dust and grease from a garment. It should be brushed on the garment with a moderately stiff brush. French chalk is splendid for cleaning white goods, especially voiles, but has no good effect with smooth surface goods.

THE HISTORICO-PATRIOTICS TO HOLD UNION MEETING.

The union meeting of the Historico-Patriotic societies of the State will be held in Trenton on Washington's Birthday, and the officers of the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the Revolution will be given a special meeting. The society will be held at the Trenton House, Trenton, at 10.30 o'clock on the morning of February 22. New members will be elected and a new standard of colors, valued at $100, will be presented by a committee consisting of Colonel Jordan, of Merchantville; Captain John Lilly, of Lambertville, and Frederick H. Clark, of Trenton.

At 11 o'clock religious and patriotic services will be held in the First Presbyterian church, with the following societies taking part as guests of the Sons of the Revolution: Cincinnati, Colonial Governors, Colonial Wars, Colonial Dames, Sons of the American Revolution, Founders and Patriots, War of 1812, Washington Headquarters Association and Sons of Veterans. Rev. Dr. Hugh B. MacCauley will offer prayer, and Rev. Henry Collin Minton will deliver a patriotic address. Frederick H. Clark has charge of the church program.

The union meeting will convene at 12.30 o'clock in the assembly chamber of the capitol. Each society's set of colors will be presented to the president of the meeting by a color guard of three members. An address will be delivered by a speaker not yet selected. Luncheon will be served at the close of the meeting.

The committees follow: General, Bayard Stockton, Princeton, chairman; Colonel William Libbey, Rev. Hamilton Schuyler, N. R. Montgomery, F. H. Clark. Luncheon, Rev. Hamilton Schuyler, N. R. Montgomery, F. H. Clark. Church services, F. H. Clark.

N. Y. U. LAW GRADUATES TO HONOR JERSEY BARRISTERS.

Invitations are out for a dinner to be tendered the members of the New Jersey Bench and Bar by the Alumni Association of the New York University Law School. The dinner will be given in the Hotel Astor, New York city, on March 19 and is intended as a compliment to New Jersey and its bench and bar. Many prominent lawyers in New Jersey, and several who are now on the bench, are members of the association giving the dinner.

The committee arranging the dinner have received acceptance from Governor John Franklin Fort, Chief Justice Gummere, Chancellor Mahlon H. Pitney and all the vice-chancellors as well as the Supreme Court justices of the State. It is also expected that Governor Hughes, of New York, will accept his invitation, and an effort is being put forth to secure the attendance of all the justices in the first and second departments of the New York State Supreme Court.

The Exposed Water Snake Bill.

Senator Herman says he's deceived. He not only says he's deceived. He introduced in the Senate that East Jersey water snake bill in the belief that it was meant to fit a certain situation in his own county. He had no idea that the bill handed to him had been constructed by an East Jersey Water Company attorney for the purpose of anticipating the issue of a suit in the courts, get possession of Jersey City's streets and supply the city's principal customers with water. Now that he has discovered what the real intention is he has agreed to keep the bill in committee and not let it out as long as the joker is in it. But should it not be an indictable offense for anybody to deceive a Senator or Assemblyman to introducing a "joker" bill in the Legislature? Is not a covert attempt to misuse the statutes as bad as the offense of violating a statute? Who gave this bill to Senator Ackerman, anyhow?—Newark Morning Star.

How He Would Act.

This is not the hoary bearded tale of the raw recruit who halted the officer of the day in the middle of the stream and forced him to dismount and wade through the water and be recognized, although there be a similarity of settings.

A cavalry "rookie" on his first night's tour was approached by the officer, who, after outstanding his special and general orders and asking a number of more or less reasonable questions, wound up by requesting the guard's method of procedure if he were to see a steamboat coming down him across the parade ground.

To which the "rookie" respectfully replied, "I'd quit drinking, sir."—Judge.

Miss Dorothy Barret Surprised.

Miss Dorothy Barrett, of 1020 East Front street, was given a surprise party last night. When she returned from school about 4:30 she found a company of forty young people gathered at her home. The evening was spent in dancing and playing games. Music was furnished by Charles and George Nathen, of Newark. Refreshments were served at midnight. The out-of-town guests were A. Lorthman, Fred VanCott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nathen, of Newark; the Misses Greig, of Brooklyn; Miss Harvey and Mrs. W. L. Warren, of New York. The affair was arranged by Miss Ida Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Oscar Pierson.

Those Resolutions.

The end of the good resolutions made on January 1 usually sets in about this time. Just as well, perhaps, for at the best they are frozen and unhuman devices to attain unrighteous. It may be the third week in January; it may be February; but they are pretty sure to go by the board at last. A very lifelike document is the diary of the county old boy, Johnson. We select a few jottings:

"1760. Resolved, To rise as early as I can.

"1761. My purpose is, To regulate my sleep.

"1764. My purpose is from this time, to rise early;

"1764 (September). I resolve, To rise early; not later than six, if I can; I hope sooner, but as soon as I can.

"1765. My resolution, I propose to rise at eight, because, though I shall not yet rise early, it will be much earlier than I now rise, for I often lie till two.

"1769. I purpose and hope to rise early in the morning, at eight, and by degrees sooner.

"1772. I hope to rise by degrees more early in the morning.

"1774. I hope to rise at eight."

Evidently no lack of good resolutions; yet only a few years before his death we find him writing:

"I have now spent about fifty-five years in resolving; having from the earliest time almost that I can remember, been forming schemes of a better life. I have done nothing. . . . My life has, from earliest years, been wasted in a morning bed."

Few would agree with Dr. Johnson's estimate of his life, but we may concede that his resolutions were not of great assistance.—Collier's Weekly.

ADVICE TO THE NEW HOUSEKEEPER.

One woman, who does her own ironing, has a high chair made for the purpose, in which she sits before the board while she is working.

In dampening clothes use a clean white brush. This will dampen the clothes evenly, all over, and make the weekly ironing a much easier task.

To keep the silver from tarnishing, put a piece of gum camphor in the trunk, chest or drawers where the silver is kept.

Whipped cream served on top of a freshly made squash pie adds much to its appearance and flavor.

A mixture of olive oil and black ink will be found useful to paint the tips of black kid gloves which are slightly worn.

The best polish for engraved silver is whiting and ammonia. It should be applied with a soft brush, then rubbed with cheesecloth or soft cotton cloths.

To remove cream spots from embroidered centrepieces or doilies, dampen the spot with household ammonia, then lay a fresh piece of blotting paper over it and iron lightly. This treatment will remove any grease from white goods.

ACUTE BRIGHT'S DISEASE FATAL TO LEWIS DE CAMP.

Lewis DeCamp, son of Levina and the late Frederick DeCamp, died suddenly at the home of his mother on West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon at 5:30. He was taken ill early yesterday morning with what was at first supposed to be paralysis but afterward diagnosed as acute Bright's disease. Previous to yesterday he had been enjoying apparent good health and his death came as a great surprise.

Mr. DeCamp was fifty-five years old and had lived in Plainfield practically all his life. He was a painter by trade and was employed in the paint department at the Potter Press Works for a long while. He was a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and other fraternal organizations. Beside his mother he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. B. Higgins, of West Front street, and Mrs. Melinda Garbold, of West Fifth street; also a brother, Frank DeCamp, of Linden avenue.

The funeral will be held at his mother's home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

THOUGHT AGONY FEIGNED.

An audience at Burlington, N. J., mistook the cries of pain from the operator of a moving picture machine as part of the performance Wednesday night, and it was only when John Riker, the operator, was nearly killed before his predicament was discovered. Groping for switch in the narrow sheet-iron cage that surrounds the film machine, Riker by mistake seized an exposed wire.

The iron floor completed a circuit and a thousand volts went through his body. Riker's screams when they reached the audience through the narrow lense aperture of the cage sounded as if they came from a phonograph. Andrew Harris, the pianist, finally recognized that something was wrong, and breaking into the cage found Riker unconscious but still grasping the live wire.

Marrying.

PATERSON'S EXECUTIVE PLAN MAYORS' LEAGUE

It is proposed to form a mayors' league of New Jersey cities, in the organization of which Mayor Andrew F. McBride of Paterson will soon take the initiative. The object is to have the cities of the State co-operate in securing legislation that will be of benefit to them all.

The finance board realizes that a movement is necessary to bring about the gradual advancing of the fiscal year until it coincides with the time that the taxes are due, so that the city will not have to borrow about a million dollars each year in anticipation of the collection of taxes in order to carry the city from March 20, the time the fiscal year now closes, to December 20, when the city's taxes become due. The city counsel said that several other cities in the State were in a position similar to that of Paterson, and he thought their co-operation could be obtained in any movement designed to have all bring them relief. Mayor McBride then suggested the formation of a mayors' league, which could confer on this matter and others that affected the interests of the different cities. The suggestion was approved by the board, and the Mayor is to take action within a few days. The league will be similar to that started by ex-Mayor Egan of Jersey City and ex-Mayor Lackering of Hoboken in 1904 but which ceased to exist owing to a disagreement over tax matters.

To Renovate Ostrich Feathers.

Have a teakettle full of boiling water and shake the feather vigorously through the escaping steam, taking care that it does not get too the silver. Then curl up the plume and restores its brilliancy, if it has become dull and rusty. Next take a silver fruit knife and, commencing with the fluen nearest the quill, take a very small bunch of them between the thumb and blade of the knife, and draw it down the plume rapidly over the edge until they curl as closely as desired. Follow this process on each side of the feather, and then, with a very coarse comb, comb all the fibres out carefully and the plume will be as good as ever. A pair of feather fans is always a good investment, as it can be done over many times.

Mending a Corset.

When you least expected it that corset steel broke! Every woman knows the inconvenience it causes. If you have time get an old piece of steel or strong whalebone and run through the casing. It will last until you can get a new steel. If a strong whalebone is run in a casing and roughly stitched with coarse thread at the back it will answer the purpose. When steels or ribs puncture the corset cloth, tip them with chamois or old pieces of kid.

With Tiny Shells.

If you have a collection of pretty shells, there is no prettier way to use them than by covering a flower vase. The vase can be any pretty shaped receptacle, but must be covered with potters' clay. Cover this with the shells, working row after row alike and not jostled all over. Use the largest shell for the base, gradually decreasing the size until it is entirely covered. The clay hardens and firmly holds the shells, making a very handsome vase.

PROPOSED CITY LIGHTING CONTRACT IS REJECTED

COMMITTEE IS DISCHARGED.

Mayor and Corporation Counsel Tell Of Its Merits While R. Henry Depew and Others Successfully Attack Its Provisions.

After practically spending the whole evening discussing pro and con the relative merits and disadvantages of the proposed electric lighting contract between the city and the Public Service Corporation, the agreement was finally rejected and the committee which drafted it was discharged, at an adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday night. The fact that there was to be a public hearing on the matter, which had been agitated so vigorously by the Plainfield Protective Association, brought out an unusually large number of representative citizens, occupying every bit of available space in the lobby.

Judging by the frequent applause of the speakers the Plainfield Protective Association was supported by a majority of those present as its contention for a better contract. The Public Service Corporation was well represented by L. D. H. Gilmour, Farley Osgood, H. P. Church and E. C. Deal, the last named of this city, who occupied front seats and listened attentively to all the arguments. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was present to represent the city and at the request of the Councilmen to whom questions were put by various ones in the lobby, he interpreted different parts of the contract and explained other knotty problems. In the absence of President Tolles the chair was filled by Chairman Buxton, of the finance committee.

Mayor's Address.

The hearing began, when Mayor Charles A. Fisk, who presided over the privileges of the floor and for over a half hour presented his views and opinions regarding the matter under discussion. "I want to tell you at the outset," said the Mayor, "that the Public Service Corporation don't want a new contract. They are willing to operate under the old one of 1883, which calls for a price of $15.50 per incandescent lamp. Under the terms of that contract the price for commercial use of electricity was 18 kilo-watts, which has since been reduced to 10 cents, and I want to say that the reduction would have been made whether any society or organization had been formed or not."

Referring to the old contract Mr. Fisk said that it gave the company the right to string wires as will conveying electricity for light, power and heat. Other rights were also given to the company by the State, permitting the stringing of wires wherever the company pleased and the city could not deny it the right.

Mayor Raps P. P. A.

"The P. P. A. wants a new contract," continued Mr. Fisk, "and I have been trying to find out what it does want. It is always ready to object to everything, but without offering any reasonable suggestions. The Board of Trade, through its president and other members, called on me in my office, and I asked the lights be adopted at any cost and they were willing to waive any specified term of years for a contract. The Commercial Travelers' Association says it favors a one year contract for the reason that the cost of producing electricity is growing less and it believes the city should get the benefit of the reduction.

"The Mayor and Common Council has but one object in view, that is to make the best contract possible, no matter who it is made with. We want the best lighted streets in the State. With that object in view a committee was appointed last October to confer with the Public Service Corporation. The question of street lighting was taken up on two grounds, namely, the best rate possible and to regulate the manner in which wires should be strung and to cause the removal of high tension wires. The committee did not intend to waste any time in argument over the question of regulating wires, etc.

P. P. A. Dictatorial.

"At the conference the proposition was made to remove wires from the highways. The company absolutely refused to do this in one year or eighteen months, but finally said that they would comply with the request during the next three years. If the contract had been signed at that time I believe the wires would have been removed in six months.

"An examination of the wires by our electrical expert, Dr. F. A. C. Perrine, showed that they were in poor condition and irregular, and the insulation was worn off in many instances. In his opinion the wires throughout the whole city would have to be replaced to be in a safe condition. This brought the city up to one of its biggest fights with the company. It absolutely refused to accept rules and regulations covering this part of the work on the ground that if it agreed to the proposition here the same thing would be required of the company in other cities throughout the State. Our ordinance was passed and the only place to insert such a clause was in a contract. Finally the company agreed to the proposition. The contract preserved to the city all the rights of previous contracts, with an option to purchase the local plant at the expiration of the terms of agreement.

Benefits of Contract.

"Under the proposed new contract the city has all these rights and new ones. The company agrees to furnish 25 candle power lamps for $15 each per year. The city says it has the kind of lamp to be used and it is to be changed on schedule dates. It is not to go below 20 candle power. That may be too much lee-way, but when left to our engineer he said it was not, that lamps begin to deteriorate the minute they are put in service.

"Another clause gives the city the right to place at the company's station a self-recording register showing at all times the voltage. I don't want this in a laboratory, but on the street. If the lamps fall below 20 candle power they are to be removed and the company pays the penalty. Another provision is that when a lamp is found to be defective notification is made on a percentage basis. We are to get a lamp that is required to furnish light for 4,000 hours a year at a cost of $15. It is between sunset and midnight that the lights are needed the most, but when a light is found to be out before daylight is made for the whole night, unless it be due to some unavoidable accident.

"The maximum rate for commercial lighting has been fixed at 12 cents per kilo-watt, which the present rate is 10 cents. Many say that 12 cents is too high, but if you cannot get it for less you would certainly take it at the lowest possible figure. I cannot get these lamps for $15 as the price suggested by some-one.

The Three-Year Period.

"As to the three year period. This is a question of negotiation. The company says it will do certain things for a contract of three years. It agrees, under a five year term to furnish twenty-five arc lights for $85 each and fifty for $80 each, while the present two will be continued at a rate of $90 each if no additional ones are ordered.

"The life of the contract is objected to on the grounds that the company is to specify the lamp decided upon for use and which the city is to secure in the open market for test. It is believed that the responsibility can be shifted to the city, but this is not so. The company can penalize the company so heavily that in case the lamps are not satisfactory a change can be obtained.

"Such tests as have been proposed would cost too much the city. One has the right to take a representative of the company with him and show him where a light fails to come up to requirements, but taking a lamp out of service on one's own responsibility would be bad and void. It would be impossible to penalize the company under such conditions.

"Another objection is made to the wording 'As far as may be practical,' in requiring certain changes. If an improvement is decided practical it is easy to determine the fact and the company would have to comply. As to high potential wires. They have a right to be where they are and we cannot force them to go below. The wire referred to carries 13,000 volts, but it wouldn't kill much quicker than those of 2,300 volts. While the company has the right to put them up anywhere in the city, it has agreed to take them down after three years.

Dares to Do Right.

"There is one thing I want for Plainfield and that is the very best contract I can get. The P. P. A. published a circular in which a statement I made was quoted and declared to be 'uncalled for.' What the association wanted was to be done and it knew the fact. The members were informed that everyone would be given free and full opportunity to be heard, and a contract would not be rushed through.

"There sits a man here tonight that made the remark to me that if I signed a contract for more than one year I would never be Mayor again. Such a threatening attitude is not the right way to obtain anything. I don't know whether I want to be Mayor. If a man should tell me tonight that I would be shot on my way home if I signed a contract which I believed to be right, I would sign the contract. Now here is what the Common Council is going to do about the contract: I have purposely refrained from asking the members, but I want them to listen to every word of argument and not to act hastily. I want the corporation counsel to explain the law points in the contract. We have no axes to grind and we want the best results. Senator Silzer once said that the salary of a Mayor is abuse, but I do not agree with him. I believe it to be the good will of taxpayers and citizens such I feel that I enjoy. When the time comes that I will step down and out and I won't wait for election day, either."

In reply to Mayor Fisk's suggestion that he explain the legal phraseology of the contract, Corporation Counsel Marsh said that he would try to answer any questions as the legal adviser of the Mayor and Common Council, but he declined to address the assemblage or enter into the discussion.

Mr. Depew's Argument.

When the hearing was thrown open to the public, R. Henry Depew, president of the Plainfield Protective Association, was the first person to respond to the invitation. "I came here to talk light contract," said Mr. Depew, "and not personalities. The Mayor suggested at the time the hearing was appointed that remarks be confined to the contract and I am not going to answer personal remarks. Neither I nor any other member of the P. P. A. have any apologies to make for the association. It is comprised of a body of citizens organized to take up questions for the public good. There is no intention of criticising the city officials. We have made a careful study of the light question during the past two years, and while it is difficult to learn very much about it, we have gained some knowledge which we think may be of benefit to the Mayor and Common Council. It is in this spirit that we take the matter up.

Not Attacking Corporations.

"The Public Service Corporation has engaged trained engineers and lawyers to look after its interests and they are going to do it and I don't think that too much light can be shed on this question. We appreciate what they have we have no feeling against the P. S. C. The company has treated us courteously and have given us a reduction in the price of light, whether it is due to the efforts of the association or not.

"As to the contract. We seek better light, lower rates, greater safety in the maintenance of wires, etc. If we are going to pay for 25 candle power light, let us have that and not 20 candle-power. Regarding the frequency of changing lamps. In May-or Townsend's town the company changes them seven times a year and yet when we suggest six times it is thought unreasonable.

"Under the provisions of the contract of 1890, of which the Mayor speaks, price of the candle-power lamp was $4.60 within a certain district and $17 outside of that territory. Now $15 is proposed as the price to be charged and under the new contract there is a reduction of 16 2-3 per cent. in candle-power at a loss to the city of about $1,920. The company proposes to cut off two hours of lighting. Why not have a corresponding reduction in price for this. Under the terms of the old contract there was evidently two systems of lighting. In a bill which the company rendered January 3, 1898, shows a graduated scale of charges tions, yet it is left to the company to do this 'whenever practical.' If we are going to have a contract let us have a practical one that will be equal and fair to both the city and company. We are told that the company won't spend any money unless they get a contract. They certainly can trust us as we trust them. It is proposed to install three wires for the removal of the wires carrying 13,000 voltage. Now most of the wires carry 2,300 volts and yet the contract proposes to give the company the privilege of stringing wires of 5,000 volts, provided that the wires shall be placed underground. The electrical engineer engaged by the city advises the aerial stringing of the wire of 13,000 voltage under improved construction. It seems to me it would be wise to follow the engineer's advice. For if anything should happen by placing the wires underground, the city might be liable. I do not believe the city's best than 18 to 7 cents.

"Whenever Practical?"

"It is the purpose of the new contract to do away with unsafe conditions interest will be conserved by a contract that requires the people to pay for only fifty or sixty per cent. of what they should receive."

Mr. McCready's Objections.

"Unfortunately, I am not a member of the P. P. A.," said R. H. McCready, the next speaker, "but I do belong to this class that likes to kick once in awhile. The contract strikes me as being made up of limitations wherever the Public Service Corporation is to suffer for what they do not do. I have confidence in the Mayor and Common Council. We are not obliged to have a contract to remove wires that may be a menace to life and limb when there is a good instrument. Not many months ago I was called from my home because of the death of a neighbor who had come in contact with a wire of 2,000 volts. As to the required candle-power, P. S. C. agrees to furnish 25 candle-power and then any question about it, let the power be made 30 and the city would be sure to get what it pays for. I agree with the Mayor regarding the price of 12 cents per kilo-watt. Strikes and other causes combine to make it impossible to increase the cost of production and the company is entitled to that lee-way. As to the clause compelling the company to change wiring, that seems to be in the previous contract. The whole question seems to be a question of what the company agrees to pay for not doing certain things, and suggested that the contract be headed, 'An act to limit the liabilities of the Public Service Corporation and protect them from their sins.'"

At this point Mr. Marsh stated in reply to questions, that he was not present to address the gathering, but that he would be perfectly willing to answer questions.

Others Opposing It.

G. W. V. Moy objected to the leeway permitted in the percentage of candle-power and he wanted to know whether it would be an advantage to the city or not to cut off two hours of lighting at a reduction of fifty cents a lamp. This question remained unanswered. Then David E. Titsworth arose to a question of privilege. He stated that if the corporation counsel was not present to represent the city, but the Mayor and Council, he would like to ask him through Councilman Frank Randolph whether it was true as stated that the city has no right to compel the removal of high tension wires and the company has the right to string wires at will.

In reply, Mr. Marsh explained that the affairs of the city are conducted as a business corporation, and its interests are to be guarded by what might be called a board of directors. It was his duty to advise this board whenever necessary. He had always declined to engage in public debates for this reason. He expressed his willingness to answer Mr. Titsworth's question put to him by Councilman Randolph.

Corporation Counsel Explains.

It was then stated by Mr. Marsh that the act under which the Public Service Corporation was given the right to string wires, was passed in 1896, and that act provided that the city should designate the streets and the place where the poles should be erected. Legislative enactments then gave the company further privileges. Then the first act in the ordinance under which the company operates, a clause was inserted giving exercise of certain privileges, all to be governed by the ordinance in question and other ordinances. Under these provisions the city may go on and describe conditions, and I advised Councilmen Myrall and Tyler. The city may prescribe reasonable provisions. As to high potential wires the Legislature said 'you can string these wires' but it did not name the voltage. One member of the Legislature wanted to take an axe to remove the poles and wires, but I advised against it. If these high potential wires are a menace, the city has redress. It can go before the Grand Jury and have the company indicted, or a bill can be filed with the Attorney-General and obtain a mandamus.

Overhead Wires.

"The doctors of electricity court seem to agree as to the danger from the overhead stringing of such wires. We tried to get evidence proving them to be dangerous, but could not. One may measure voltage at will without the consent of the company. As to the question of paying for 25 candle-power lamps, when possibly only 20 is furnished, I would say that we could not get the company to agree to always maintain the 25 candle-power. It was declared to be an impossibility. In the original contract of 1898, the city paid for 25 candle-power lamps with the agreement that the company was not to go below 80 per cent. of the maximum. The Mayor tried to obtain lamps for $10, but discovered that it required two to make a bargain.

At the request of Mr. Buxton, Mr. Marsh explained the last paragraph in the proposed contract which relates to forfeiture of rights under failure to keep lamps burning. Mr. Marsh explained that he drafted that paragraph as a substitute for one offered by Mr. Titsworth of the company. He did not propose to let the company off with a simple fine for the failure to perform its contract, but made a provision that would give the city the right to go to the courts and compel the company to live up to its contract. Both the city and company would have the right to all remedies, still a breach could not abruptly terminate the contract.

Lighting Hours.

"I was a member of the committee, with Former President Leslie M. Daniel, than whom there is no abler man, the object of which was to make the best contract we could. It was not our suggestion to waive the two hours regarding the lighting of street lamps, but I think that a similar ordinance applies to the lighting of lamps on bicycles and autos, although I am not positive about the latter. The company said that if the city insisted on having a 25 candle power lamp maintained throughout the night, it would agree to furnish it at a cost of $25 per lamp."

Corporation Counsel Elect, David E. Titsworth said that if the city could get as good light as that furnished by the corporation counsel it would be all right. He added that he was a member of the executive committee of the P. P. A., an organization not composed of dictators, but of open argument. He objected to the contract as a citizen, a taxpayer, as a member of the P. P. A. and a representative of a local industry.

"Whenever Practical" Again.

"I am glad that tonight we don't have to write the word 'Ichabod, Thy Glory Has Departed' on the wall. We can trust you at present. Some other company may come here and do what we want. The possible passage of a public utilities bill may be of benefit to us. Although it is stated that it will cost the company to much money to place and keep its wires in good condition, it should do so. At a recent meeting of the P. P. A., a recognized representative of the P. S. C. appeared and stated that within thirty days all of its wires in the city would be in first-class condition and that a new boiler was being installed in the local light plant that would furnish power for electric lighting here independent of Metuchen. Mr. Titsworth believes that a spirit of reciprocity should be shown in the making of a contract, suggesting that the $15 per lamp be paid 'whenever practical.' This be paid 'whenever practical.'" This caused a hearty outburst of laughter.

F. E. Kinsman, who had not talked to any considerable extent during the evening wanted to know if the present high tension wires were put in under any existing ordinances. He understood that they had been strung without full and complete knowledge. Personally, he had heard nothing about the wires until they were in position. He explained that there was a difference in high and low tension wires. In reply Mr. Marsh stated that the wires were strung under the act of 1896, after the city had designated the six streets.

Old Contract Void.

In reply to a question from Councilman Hall as to forfeiture of a franchise through merger, Mr. Marsh said that the present company is bound by all the provisions incorporated in the contracts held by previous companies.

Then R. Henry Depew was given the privilege of the floor and referring to Mr. Marsh's suggestion about bicycle lamps being lighted one hour before sunrise and one hour before sunset did not in his opinion apply to the light contract.

At the close of the hearing, and immediately Mr. Montgomery, chairman of the light committee, moved that the Council go into executive session. On the roll call, called for by Mr. Suydam, the motion was lost by a vote of five to four, Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Frank Randolph and Montgomery voting in the affirmative and Councilmen Hall, Hibbard, Mygatt, Charles C. Randolph, Suydam and Tyler in the negative.

After the regular order of business was resumed Mr. Mygatt introduced a resolution, providing that the committee having charge of the proposed light contract be discharged and that the contract be rejected.

Councilman Frank Randolph replying to the resolution said that many representative citizens had been heard, the hour was growing late, and he moved that the contract be laid on the table. This motion was lost by a vote of six to four, Councilmen Hall, Hibbard, Mygatt, Charles C. Randolph, Suydam and Tyler voting in the negative and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Montgomery and Frank Randolph in the affirmative.

Reject the Contract.

Then the vote was called for on the resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and it was passed by a vote of five to four, Councilmen Hall, Hibbard, Mygatt, Charles C. Randolph, Suydam and Tyler voting in favor of it and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Montgomery and Frank Randolph against. The result seemed to please a majority of those in the lobby, who quickly left the room, satisfied that at least something had been accomplished. There was evident disappointment on the part of those who favored the contract and those who have spent a great deal of time and labor in drafting the agreement.

NO CONTROVERSY OVER PRIMARY LAWS—STOKES

Ex-Governor Stokes, chairman of the commission appointed by Governor Fort to revise the primary and election laws, when asked at Trenton for a statement as to the facts regarding the alleged controversy over the question of the primary laws as to the selection of delegates to the national conventions, said:

"There seems to be a misapprehension concerning the situation and a misunderstanding of the present laws. The commission has had no conference, except at a formal meeting for organization, and no decision has been reached as to the recommendations that will be made or the policy to be pursued.

"Governor Fort's recent special message suggested the application of the primary law to the selection of delegates to the district conventions. The immediate work of the commission will be the drafting of a law on these lines, and if such a law is framed and adopted by the Legislature these primaries will be conducted under party management, as now, but under the regulation of the State laws and the supervision of the State election officers."

SUMMIT HIGH SCHOOL EASILY DEFEAT P. H. S.

The Summit High School basketball five defeated the Plainfield High School team at the former place Saturday afternoon, by a final score of 50 to 26. The home team got off to a good start when the game opened that the Plainfield boys were unable to overtake the lead. At the end of the first half the score stood 22 to 10 in favor of Summit and the home players after than had things mostly their own way.

Morris did the best work for Plainfield, shooting six baskets from the field, while Caldwell was a close second with six baskets from foul and one from the field. Parks was the star member of the home five, being credited with seven baskets from the field and three from foul. The lineup:

Summit H. S.	Plainfield H.
Parks	Mortimer
Edgar	Morris
forwards.
Alesbury	Caldwell
centre.
Burkley	Sayber
Kirkpatrick	Parsons
guards.

MUSICAL TREAT ARRANGED BY H. RAYMOND LODER.

What promises to be one of the musical events of the season will be given at the Park Club on February 25. The program arranged by H. Raymond Loder, who recently made his debut at the Waldorf Astoria and who has been singing in churches in New York and Plainfield, shows an array of good things which augurs well for intelligent and discriminating music-lovers of this city.

Associated with Mr. Loder in this musicale will be John Bland, basso, of New York. Those who heard Mr. Bland last spring while he was in this city need no further introduction. Mrs. Joseph McIntyre will be the pianist. Miss Gertrude Lobske, of East Orange, will be the soprano soloist. J. Edmund Stahl will accompanist of S. B. Howe, Jr., Frederick J. Pope, E. E. Runyon and Dr. George D. Herring rendered two selections, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Asleep in Jesus." The floral tributes were very numerous and included pieces from the Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, Plainfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, Jerusalem Lodge, F. and A. M., the Trinity Church Mission Band and Mrs. Smith's Sunday-school class at Trinity and the King's Daughters of the same church.

CHAS. MESSLER'S RUDE AWAKENING FROM A NAP.

Charles Messler, who has been in the habit of sleeping in the hay loft of his barn, had a rather rude awakening Saturday afternoon while taking one of his "beauty naps." When he laid down he selected a spot a little too near the edge of the mow and in attempting to turn over he fell a distance of nearly fifteen feet to the floor below. He struck on his head, inflicting a painful wound.

Several workmen about the barn heard the commotion and hastening to learn the cause found Messler in a semi-conscious condition. The ambulance was summoned and the man was hurried to the hospital. After examination showed that the man's condition was not serious. He will be detained at the hospital for a few days.

Plumbago of Ceylon.

Consul E. A. Creeves, of Colombo, reports that the first export of plumbago from Ceylon in 1825 was consigned to Josiah Dixon, the founder of the American Crucible Company, and that from that time up to the present the United States has led all countries in the consumption of this product. The exports of plumbago from Ceylon in 1906 amounted to 35,183 tons, the largest export of any year in the history of the trade, and were to the following principal countries, in tons: United States, 15,495; United Kingdom, 9,385; Germany, 4,152; Belgium, 1,520; France, 239; Japan, 120; Russia, 852.

Mother's Cook Book.

The girl who is always making something useful for the kitchen made a handy cook book, using different colored sheets of paper for various articles, like white for cakes, blue for pies, green for pickles, etc. The sheets were bound in blue and white checked oilcloth, fastened with blue ribbons. The front sheets were indexed in alphabetical order, with numbers of the pages. When a good recipe was tested, it was cut from the paper or magazine and pasted in the book. A reliable cook book is the handiest thing in the kitchen.

Miss Halloway's Tea.

A very delightful tea was given Saturday afternoon by Miss Hectiet Halloway, of East Seventh street, in honor of Miss Cochran, who has recently moved to Watchung avenue. were assisted in receiving by their mothers, Mrs. Halloway and Mrs. Cichran. At the tea table Mrs. John S. Zelle and Mrs. Henry Cochran presided, assisted by the Misses Elsie Goddard, Elsie Martin, May Cahoone, Josephine Randolph and Miss Stevens. A large number of guests were present.

Grace M. E. Church Basaar.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church, an entertainment and bazaar will be held in the lecture room Thursday and Friday of this week. The various committees in charge of the affair are hard at work on a program of entertainment, which will be different each evening of the bazaar.

HUGH FOX DISCUSSES PRISONS AND PRISONERS

Hugh F. Fox, president of the Plainfield Charity Organization and one of the best known pleomonary workers in the State, gave an address at Sunday's service in the Congregational church. His subject was "Prisons and Prisoners" and because of his years of experience in visiting the penal institutions in this and other States his remarks were of absorbing interest to the large audience.

Mr. Fox is a member of the executive committee of the New Jersey Prison Reform Association and many changes in the conduct of institutions have been brought about through this organization. The speaker detailed the manner in which criminals are taken care of and also the steps that have been followed out in the curbing of criminal tendencies in young men and boys. The reformatories have been an important factor in this respect and the addition of probationary officers has also accomplished the saving of many young men who would otherwise become confirmed law-breakers and menaces to society.

Mr. Fox compared the institutions of this State with those of its neighbors and pointed out advantages to either, crediting New Jersey with having an excellent system.

LEONARD SMITH'S FUNERAL.

Service at His Late Home Attended by Large Gathering of Relatives and Friends.

The funeral of Leonard S. Smith, whose death occured after a long illness, was held Saturday afternoon at his late home on Duer street. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The simple Episcopal service was used and Dr. Rodman took occasion at the close to recite the poem, "Now the Laborer's Task Is O'er."

During the service a quartette composed of S. B. Howe, Jr., Frederick J. Pope, E. E. Runyon and Dr. George D. Herring rendered two selections, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Asleep in Jesus." The floral tributes were very numerous and included pieces from the Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, Plainfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, Jerusalem Lodge, F. and A. M., the Trinity Church Mission Band and Mrs. Smith's Sunday-school class at Trinity and the King's Daughters of the same church.

NOTABLE DEMONSTRATIONS MARK FORMAL OPENING OF HUDSON RIVER TUBE; GOVERNORS FORT AND HUGHES AMONG DISTINGUISHED ONES ON FIRST TRAIN

New Jersey and New York were linked together yesterday afternoon when Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, touched a button. The electric current that sent the official train of eight cars on its premiere trip through the great tunnel from Nineteenth street, New York, to Hoboken, also served as a signal for William G. McAdoo to take his place in the Nation's hall of fame. The greatest engineering feat probably in the world's history had been accomplished by this man, who had dared to undertake it a hundred or even fifty years ago would have made him an object of ridicule.

It was a great day for New Jersey, for it marked a new bond of union with New Yorkers, bring them closer together in time by many minutes. Governor Charles Evans Hughes of New York, and his military staff of seventeen were present, as were Governor John Franklin Fort and his staff. Prominent sons of both States were present at the personal invitation of William G. McAdoo, president of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad, Company, owners of the twin tubes which were thrown open to the public last midnight, following the formal ceremonies in the afternoon.

Both Governors and their parties warmly greeted Mr. McAdoo, when they gathered at the Nineteenth street entrance to the big tube, and then a squad of officials of the company *escorted them to the two for*ward cars of the train, which were reserved for them.

As soon as the two State executives were aboard Mr. McAdoo stepped to the little desk, where was stationed the telegraph key, and at exactly 3:32:27 he flashed the signal to the White House informing President Roosevelt that everything was in readiness. Then the following telegram, penned on the scene by Mr. McAdoo, was sent by the operator in charge of the instrument:

"To the President of the United States:

"The first special train of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company under the Hudson River awaits your signal and pleasure.

"WILLIAM G. McADOO.

"President Hudson and Manhattan R. R. Co.'

Roosevelt Presses the Button.

Six minutes later there was a flash of the lights in the cars, which were only partly lighted, and everybody knew that President Roosevelt, 250 miles away, had started the machinery in motion, for as soon as the cars lighted up the motors under the cars controlling the air supply for the brakes began to turn. This moving of the machinery was accompanied by a mighty cheer from the 800 voices in the train.

Two minutes later Mr. McAdoo sounded the bell and the train started, moving slowly down Sixth avenue in the west tunnel. The trip was comparatively slow until after making the turn at Morton street, where the train began the descent under the river.

Governor Fort and Governor Hughes and their sides-de-camp stood in the doorway of the first car, by the side of the motorman. Mr. McAdoo stood near by during the entire trip.

When the circle of red, white and blue incandescent lamps marking the dividing line between the two States was passed, there was a mighty cheer from all in the car. It reechoed over and above the rumble of the fast moving train. Everybody had been waiting for it, but it came and disappeared so quickly that hardly a person in the car noticed it. When the two chief executives recovered from their surprise they turned to each other, clasped hands and exchanged felicitations.

The trip was made in exactly eleven minutes and without a hitch. When Hoboken was reached Mr. McAdoo himself made the announcement:

Hoboken, Ho!

"Hoboken: all out," he said.

"Well, I declare, so soon?" was Governor 'Fort's only comment, as he turned with the crowd to leave the car.

"It was certainly a speedy trip," commented Governor Hughes.

A special platform had been erected for the accommodation of the two Governors and their staffs. This was located just outside the terminal at Hoboken, and while it was roomy, an effort was made to prevent all but those directly connected with the Governors and the officials of the company from obtaining access to it, but the accommodations for the crowd were so small that this was impossible.

It was a gala day for Hoboken, and never before was such a crowd seen on the streets of the little Hudson county city. Conservative estimates place the number clamoring for a glimpse of the celebrities on the platform at 8,000. All the streets leading to the terminal were packed. The windows of all the office buildings were filled, while the entire town took on a holiday appearance.

Divine Blessing Invoked.

The ceremonies were commenced by the Rev. Dr. William R. Jenvey, the Protestant Episcopal Archdeacon of the diocese of Newark, who asked the Divine blessing on the great engineering achievement. Dr. Jenvey is the oldest Episcopal rector in Hoboken.

It was an inspiring scene. Every one in Hoboken knows Dr. Jenvey and when he stepped from the crowd arrayed in military uniform, brilliant with gold braid, almost every man in the vast crowd bared his head despite the raw wind that was blowing from the east. While it was a restless crowd during the remainder of the ceremonies and prior to this time, scarcely a man, woman or child moved as the aged rector invoked the Divine blessing.

President Oakman, of the Hudson Companies, the chief contractors who built the tunnels, stepped to the front of the platform as Dr. Jenvey stepped down and officially turned over to President McAdoo, of the railroad company, that part of the work which is completed—the section formally opened yesterday.

Short speeches were made by Messrs. Oakman and McAdoo. The latter acted as master of ceremonies in introducing the speakers who included Governors Hughes and Fort, Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and Mayor Steil, Hoboken.

The President's Message.

Mr. McAdoo read the following letter from President Roosevelt:

"My Dear Mr. McAdoo:

"Now that beginning is to be made in opening for operation the Hudson tunnel system, I write to express my regret that I cannot be present in person, and my high appreciation of what you have accomplished.

"The tunneling of the Hudson River is indeed a notable achievement—one of those achievements of which all Americans are, as they should be, lastly proud. The tunnel itself and the great buildings constructed in connection therewith, represent a work of extraordinary magnitude, represent extraordinary difficulties successfully overcome, while difficulty and magnitude are even surpassed by the usefulness of the achievement.

"The whole system is practically below tidal water, and this makes it much the greatest subaqueous tunnel in the world.

"It is a bigger undertaking than any Alpine tunnel which has yet been constructed, and the successful completion represents the moving of New Jersey bodily three miles nearer to New York in point of time and immensely increases the ease of access from one State to the other.

"All the engineers and business men who have taken part in bringing this great achievement to a successful conclusion ought to be most heartily congratulated. It is the kind of business achievement which is in the highest degree creditable to the American people, and for which American people should feel and publicly acknowledge their hearty gratitude. Sincerely yours,

"(Signed)

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Fort's Remarks.

Governors Fort and Hughes were introduced in turn by Mr. McAdoo.

Governor Fort said in the course of his speech:

"New York should be congratulated on the completion of this tunnel. The company should be congratulated on the triumph of the engineering skill. I congratulate Governor Hughes and the people of New York and the people of New Jersey that our two peoples are by this tunnel bonded together, cemented more closely, if that were possible, than they were before. The tunnel means much to New York and New Jersey. It means much to the future development of the two great states. I thank you, Mr. President, for the opportunity you have given me to ride on the first public train that passed through the tunnel."

Governor Hughes Applauded.

Governor Hughes met with a remarkable salute and was forced to bow a dozen times before he could begin his speech. He said:

"New York is proud to greet New Jersey at all times and under all circumstances, on land and on and under water. We, today, congratulate ourselves on the completion of this work and the skill which has created this new avenue of communication. A source of congratulation is that we are constantly in this country emancipating ourselves from local prejudices. New Yorkers do not look askance at what this tunnel may do for New Jersey, but are glad for what it will do for New York. We are glad for this extension of area for the people now living in the congested districts. The tunnel means much for New York and New Jersey."

Speeches by Jersey Mayors.

Mayor Steil and Mayor Wittpenn spoke briefly, and President McGowan, who is suffering from hoarseness, did not attempt to talk in the chilly air. Then the exercises ended, and every one squeezed back into the tube. The return trip was made in half a minute better time than the outgoing, and the distinguished passengers dispersed to prepare for the dinner at Sherry's a few hours later.

The oldest traveller was John Bigelow, former United States Minister to France and a distinguished writer. Mr. Bigelow expressed his delight on the trip, and remarked that although he was born by the banks of the Hudson he "would have been called a lunatic" had he even as a young man, said he would some day ride beneath its waters.

Last night was a time of rejoicing in Hoboken, Jersey City, and outlying towns. There were fireworks in Jersey City, although some of the aldermen were disgruntled because they were not invited to the dinner.

Jerseymen Present.

The following New Jersey citizens were invited guests at the opening of the tunnel in the afternoon:

Senator John Boyd Avis, Woodbury; Lee R. Ackerman, Trenton; A. X. Allen, Hoboken; E. P. Abercrombie, superintendent of New York Division, Pennsylvania Railroad; United States Senator Frank O. DEFER WAGNER SENTENCE

MILD ON JOHN KENNEDY.

Man Who Assaulted Elizabeth Station Porter is Placed in Charge of Probation Officer.

James Wagner, of this city, was not sentenced by Judge Atwater in the Union County Court this morning for the reason that two lengthy petitions were presented, one by the friends of Baggagemaster J. F. Garretson, whom Mr. Wagner assaulted, and the other by the friends of the defendant. It was the intention of the court to pronounce sentence today, but *the petitions left Judge At*water in a quandary and he said the matter would be deferred for one week to give him an opportunity to look further into the merits of the applications.

John Kennedy, of this city, indicted on a charge of assault and battery on William Carter, the colored porter at the Elizabeth station of the New Jersey Central, was put in charge of the probation officer for one year and is required to pay the cost of the prosecution. The money *must be paid to the probation of*ficer.

Frank Brown, colored, of this city, found guilty of stealing a bag of barber's tools, and who changed his plea of not guilty to that of non vult was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

Emile Cooper, colored, indicted on a charge of assault and battery on a woman, will be sentenced tomorrow. It is expected that he will receive a severe penalty.

VISITOR ARRESTED ON FALSE RETENSE CHARGE.

Phillip Thompson, a professional baseball player, came down from Central Valley, N. Y., to visit local relatives a few days ago. He started off on a spree soon after his arrival and was booze-logged the greater part of the time. While still under the influence yesterday, he went to A. M. Griffin's store and by pretending that he wanted it for his brother-in-law, secured a $6 revolver without paying for it. He sold the weapon in a saloon for $2.

The store people afterward learned that the brother-in-law had not sent for the weapon and complaint was preferred against Thompson. The police picked him up last night and when arraigned in court this morning he acknowledged wrongdoing but told back on the drunk stunt. His relatives agreed to reimburse Mr. Griffin and Thompson was given until 6 o'clock to hike back to Central Valley.

To Close Schools in His Memory.

At the special meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education held at the High School last night to frame resolutions on the death of President John B. Probasco, it was decided that the afternoon session in the city schools be omitted Friday, the day of Dr. Probasco's funeral. Principal Ira W. Travell, of the High School announced at the morning exercises today that the session of that school Friday will end at noon. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, who is at the school superintendents' conference at Washington, D. C., was informed of Dr. Probasco's death by telegram yesterday. He will be unable to return to this city until Saturday.

DEATH OF MRS. NELSON RUNYON

Mrs. Wilhemina Runyon, wife of Nelson Runyon and mother of Judge William N. Runyon and Carrol T. Runyon, died at her home on East Ninth street, shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon. She had been ill since last July with heart trouble and complications, but it was not until last week that her condition became serious. She was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church and had a wide acquaintance throughout the city and borough.

PASS CIVIL SERVICE BILL

State Senate Officially Stamps Its Approval to Ernest R. Ackerman's Measure.

NOW GOES TO THE ASSEMBLY.

Mr. Frelinghuysen Largely Instrumental in Framing Bill Which Will Remove State Employes from Bosses.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman won a signal triumph today, when the Upper House of the Legislature passed his civil service bill by a vote of 13 to 3. The measure called forth considerable argument, the weight of it being in favor of the measure. Senator Ackerman made a strong plea in behalf of the provisions. The bill now goes to the House.

*The bill provides for the employ*ment, tenure and discharge of certain officers of this State and of the various counties and municipalities thereof and providing for a Civil Service Commission and defining its duties. It represents a large amount of labor on the part of Senator Ackerman, who was also assisted by Senator Joseph F. Freilnghuysen in the drafting of the bill.

Six months after the approval of the act appointments to and promotions in the Civil Service of the State, and three months after its adoption by a municipality appointments to and promotions in such municipality, shall be made only according to merit and fitness. The act is mandatory on the State, but optional with counties and municipalities. The reference to "municipality" signifies village, town, township, borough, city or county or other local government in distinguishing it from the State government. The provisions of the act may be adopted by ordinance by the governing body of a municipality or, on a petition signed by at least five hundred legal voters in municipalities having a population of seven hundred and fifty voters in municipalities of the third class and at least 10 per cent. of the legal voters in other municipalities, it shall be the duty of the governing body to submit the question to the voters of the municipality at the next regular election.

Provision is made for the appointment of three commissioners by the Governor, with the advice and con*sent of the Senate and the term of* one commissioner will expire every two years. They also remove commissioners for inefficiency or on charges. The commissioners will receive a salary of $3,000 a year, the one chosen president getting an extra $1,000. The commissioner may choose a chief examiner, secretary and such other clerical help as may be necessary, and all traveling and other expenses will be paid by the State, cut expenses, including salaries, shall not exceed $30,000 a year.

Section two provides that the terms of office or officers of the State of municipality, upon this act becoming a law, that come within the classified service are abolished and without examination are removed except on charges. The unclassified service is not subject to the provisions of the act, and includes all officers elected by popular vote, those appointed by the Governor, employes of the Legislature, officers officers, all heads of departments, all low officers, all superintendents of and teachers and instructors in the public schools and State institutions, county superintendents and members of all boards of education.

The classified service is arranged into four classes—exempt, competitive, non-competitive and labor. Appointments in the above four classes are made for a period of three months, and if satisfactory will be made permanent.

No employe in the classified service shall, according to this act, be discharged, removed or reduced in payment or position because of his religious or political affiliations, or until he has been furnished with a written statement of the charges and has reasonable time to make written answer thereto. A head of department, however, may suspend a subordinate for not longer than thirty days, but successive suspensions are not allowed.

The act makes it a misdemeanor to solicit, either directly or indirectly, any contributions for political purposes.

Plainfielders Home From Jamaica.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Vail, L. L. Manning and James C. Manning returned yesterday on the Steamship Admiral Schley after a delightful twenty weeks' trip to Jamaica. They were members of A. W. D. Honeyman's tourist party of ten. Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sandford and Mr. Honeyman remained at Jamaica for a longer stay. While away the Plainfielders took in all the points of interest at Jamaica and they were pleased with the beautiful island as well as the climate.

PHYSICIAN IS FINED $10 FOR VIOLATING ORDINANCE

Dr. Sherman Cooper, of Westfield, Punished for Violating an Ordinance.

IN NORTH PLAINFIELD COURT.

Borough Recorder Dolliver Sees Mitigating Circumstances and Decides Not to Impose the $100 Penalty.

Dr. Sherman Cooper, of Westfield, arrested last week on a warrant from the North Plainfield Board of Health for violation of the borough health ordinance, changed his plea from "not guilty" to "non vult" at a postponed hearing last night before Borough Recorder Charles Dolliver and was fined $10. He said the penalty.

Through his attorney, Robert Newton Crane, Dr. Cooper admitted a technical violation of Section 5, Article 9, of the North Plainfield health ordinance, which provides that all cases of contagious disease shall be reported by the attending physician within twenty-four hours after diagnosis. The case was that of Mrs. Horace J. Martin, Jr., and Dr. Cooper's attorney claimed that it was not diagnosed as typhoid until five hours before death. In his plea to the court, the physician called attention to the fact that he was not a resident and claimed that he had never had that particular part of the health code brought to his attention. The doctor was arrested on a warrant last week, and was brought before the North Plainfield court at a session Friday night, when the case was laid over until last night.

In passing sentence on the case, Borough Recorder Dolliver said that it was in his power to impose a fine of $100 for violation of this section of the ordinance, but stated that, owing to the mitigated circumstances developed at the hearing, he would make the fine but $10. Francis J. Quinn, counsel for the Board of Health, was the other lawyer, and there was a big crowd out for the hearing.

SUTTERLEIN ACQUITTED OF STEALING A SHAWL.

Augustus Sutterlein, of this city, was acquitted yesterday in the Union County Court of the charge of stealing a shawl on October 9 last, belonging to Mrs. Dora Fagan, of Rahway. The case begun on Monday. The jury was out but a short time, when it returned a verdict of not guilty. The defendant was represented by Robert Newton Crane, assisted by William G. DeMeza.

Among the witnesses called by the prosecution were Chief Kiely, Captain Frederickson and Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, of the police department.

According to the story of the defendant he was a passenger on a main line trolley car in this city on October 9 when he picked up a shawl belonging to Mrs. Fagan. He contended that he was holding the shawl for the purpose of finding the owner and possibly getting a reward. He afterward left it at a local saloon for keeping.

At the trial yesterday counsel for the defendant attempted to prove by Mrs. Fagan that Chief Kiely told her he wanted to railroad Sutterlein. This statement was flatly denied by Chief Kiely.

In his cross-examination of Mrs. Fagan there was considerable of a stir when Judge Atwater took occasion to admonish Mr. Crane following certain questions put to the witness. Mr. DeMeza immediately addressed the court informing it that this was Mr. Crane's first case in the county court. In view of this the matter was overlooked by Judge Atwater.

Travelogue Lecture Postponed.

On account of the very stormy weather the travelogue lecture scheduled for the First Presbyterian church tonight by Dr. Ward E. Ward, has been postponed to Wednesday night, March 11. Dr. Ward recently gave an illustrated lecture at the First Baptist church and it was so pleasing that arrangements were made to have him appear at the First Presbyterian church.

Chambliss Reception Postponed.

On account of the death of Dr. John B. Probasco, a beacon and much beloved member of the First Baptist church, the reception planned for Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chamblise on the evening of Tuesday, March 10, will be indefinitely postponed.

BOGUS VANONIS CAUGHT

Arrested in Summit This Morning on Instructions from Chief Kiely.

CHARGES AGAINST THEM HERE.

Induced Local Caterer to Cash a Worthless Check—Real Name of Prisoners Is Said to Be Chapet.

Acting on instructions from Chief of Police Kiely, of this city, the authorities of Summit today arrested the alleged bogus Vanoni family that has been swindling hotel people throughout the State. They were found in a hostelry conducted by James Bailey, at one time one of the proprietors of the Park Avenue Hotel, now Truell Inn. Mr. Bailey furnished the information that led to their capture, coming here this morning to do so.

The family numbers four in all, a mother, daughter, nephew and a son. They have been using the name of Vanoni and the members correspond with a family of the same name formerly living here and who they knew. The real name of the family under arrest is Chapet. As soon as they were in custody, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn hurried to Summit and positively identified the four people as the same who had robbed Willett's Hotel, of Westfield, and who passed two forged checks on D. Demolli, the Plainfield caterer. They will be brought to this city this afternoon, the Demolli charges taking precedence over several that had been preferred.

The so-called Vanonis, or Chapets, lived in New York for many years, the husband working in a large catering house where Demolli was also employed. They became acquainted with the Vanoni family which afterward came to Plainfield and when they stepped on their swindling operations. They adopted the name and why they did so when they could have taken any other with just as much benefit is a matter the police will try to figure out. They stayed some time at Willett's hotel in Westfield and when they suddenly departed the proprietor discovered that $400 worth of clothing belonging to himself and guests had gone with them. While at Westfield, a side trip was made to Plainfield and on the strength of a forged indorsement, Caterer Demolli was induced to cash a couple of checks. They were signed by "Mrs. Vanoni," the woman stating that she had changed her name by a second marriage.

Early this month, a family answering the description of the swindling Vanonis, jumped hotel bills at Princeton and Trenton and the police of these cities joined the chase already being conducted by Chief Kiely. They were traced from at various times in an indefinite way but the first positive information of their whereabopts came to Plainfield this morning when Proprietor Bailey called at Police headquarters. He said a family of that name had registered at his hotel several days ago and yesterday he cashed a $70 check for the mother. Just after he had done so he recalled that he had read an article in a newspaper stating that four people answering their description were wanted in this city and he made up his mind to see Chief Kiely about the matter and came over as soon as possible.

The chief 'phoned the Summit police to arrest the four and Detective-Sergeant Flynn was sent over by auto. The prisoners will be arraigned on complaints preferred by Demolli and Willett.

Concerning a Petition.

The petition which has been circulated by the friends of Baggagemaster J. F. Garretson in his interest in connection with the assault case in which James Wagner is the defendant, contains a recital of the facts of the case and does not petition the court to impose the most severe sentence under this charge. After giving the facts, it concludes with an admonition to those who take the law in their own hands instead of seeking redress through the courts.

Successful Dance Assured.

The responses thus far received by the committee in charge of the bachelors' dance to be held at the Casino Friday night give assurance of a large attendance of the younger society set. This will be the last society event prior to Lent and the committee is making every effort to eclipse previous affairs of the kind. There will be a number of surprises that will delight and entertain the guests.

Fire Alarm by 'Phone.

Something telephoned to North Plainfield fire headquarters at 11:45 today that there was "a fire on Pearl street." The department went to the street, but were unable to locate the "alarm." Chief Howard Woolston has reported the matter to Chief Marshal George Weiss and will endeavor to locate the false alarm sender.

REGRETS LEADERS' WAR PLAN

LAUDS ROBERT HUDSPETH.

"Farmer-Orator" Would Be Tickled to Death If Named As Delegate to the Denver Convention.

"Farmer-Orator" James E. Martine, the past grand master of New Jersey Democracy, "views with alarm" the growing discontent with the army of the party in New Jersey and from his home at Cedar Brook farm, where he is confined by a severe attack of grip, issued a proclamation for peace, perfect peace. He declares that he has no knowledge of the merits of the war of words between former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark, and Commodore Robert Davis, of Jersey City, the two leaders of Jersey Democracy, but "has hopes" for harmony.

"I am not in politics for place, pelf or favor," said Mr. Martine today. "My political faith is a religion and until I pass into the great beyond, I shall remain steadfast in my advocacy of its principles. I know of no factions in our party and I hope to be charitable to my colleagues in the fight for the supremacy of Democracy whether it be Robert Davis or James Smith, Jr.

"It is certain that Mr. Davis admires Mr. Bryan and I respect Mr. Davis for his correct estimate. He is a bright politician and a great organizer. Mr. Bryan's nomination is inevitable. Only an act of Providence can prevent it. As for the controversy between Mr. Smith and Mr. Davis I do not know anything about the argument and neither do I care to. Personally I cannot be drawn into their dispute. I have the greatest esteem for Mr. Smith. It has never been my aim to fight my friends in the Democratic ranks. My battle is with the Republican party.

"I want to add," said Mr. Martine, "that I much oppose the removal of Robert S. Hudspeth as State chairman. He has made a splendid chairman and I know of no man who could do better than he has done. In my opinion Hudspeth is a fine fellow and a man of great executive ability."

In conclusion, Mr. Martine said: "As to this talk of my being named as a delegate at large, all I have to say is that it would be a great pleasure to me if I were honored. Should I be selected to go to Denver you may depend upon it that I will use my voice, vote and influence in behalf of William Jennings Bryan. What I want to see in the New Jersey Democracy is the best of harmony."

BAKER VOEHL SUES NEWARK FLOUR FIRM

Suit has been started in the New Jersey Supreme Court by George Voehl, a baker of this city, against the firm of Cornelius Smith and Harry W. Morehouse, of Newark, for $540. In the declaration filed Voehl states that he entered into an agreement with Smith & Morehouse to purchase from them 1,000 barrels of first spring flour. Only 600 barrels he alleges were delivered, and the firm has refused to deliver the other 400.

Mr. Voehl alleges that he was compelled to purchase 400 barrels elsewhere and that they cost him $2,280, and if they had been delivered by the defendants the costs under his contract would have been but $1,740. He claims that the difference of $540, that he had to pay in excess should be paid by the defendants. Morehouse and Smith are represented by attorney H. S. Terhune, of Newark, and he has filed a plea denying all the statements made by Voehl.

The case will be tried before Judge Swayze at Elizabeth.

LOCAL SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO COMPETE IN ATHLETIC MEET.

The annual track meet of the Sunday-school Athletic Association will be held at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Thursday, April 2, and entries are now being received from the members of the six church teams in contest for the second leg of the President's Cup. This trophy is offered by C. W. McCutcheon, president of the association, and at the track meet last year the first year's was competed for. It is necessary for the same team to win this trophy twice, in order to obtain permanent possession.

There will be five classes of events in the meet. These are as follows: Special events—standing broad jump, running hop, step and jump. Senior events—440-yard potato race, sack race, running high jump. Intermediate events—300-yard potato race, running broad jump. Junior events—15-yard dash, potato race (twelve potatoes, three feet apart). Boys' events—15-yard dash, three legged race. Entries in any of the events may be handed to Physical Director George L. Listman.

Appropriation of $50,000 "Is Said, Will Be Made for an Eight Room Structure.

DARROW AVE. BUILDING, TOO.

Either $90,000 or $100,000 for Proposed Larger School House—Board of Estimate at Work.

Recognizing the merits of the petition of residents of the West End for an additional public school building on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, the Councilmanic members of the Board of School Estimate, it is reported, will undoubtedly recommend that an appropriation of $50,000 be made for that purpose. This, it is said, will be in addition to the proposed school at Darrow avenue and Essex street.

If the plan proposed by the Councilmanic members prevail, that is to appropriate $50,000 for the new school, it will result in cutting down the amount to be allowed for the building at Darrow avenue and Essex street. The original sum appropriated for this purpose was $90,000, but even this was found to be insufficient when the bids were received in accordance with the accepted plans. Now an effort is being made to simplify the plans with a view to bringing the cost of erection within a reasonable figure so that a second building can be erected.

Some of the city authorities favor an eight-room building at West Front street and Clinton avenue, and they believe that somewhat larger building should fill the purpose at Darrow avenue and Essex street. They also believe that the two buildings should be constructed at a cost not to exceed $140,000. This plan, it is said, is not likely to meet with the approval of the school members of the board of estimate, but as it is up to the Common Council to name the amount to be appropriated for new schools, it is the opinion that that body will favor the two school plan.

MOTORMAN GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Daniel Leary, formerly a motorman on the Public Service trolley lines in Essex county, was convicted of manslaughter on Thursday afternoon in the Quarter Sessions Court in Newark, before Judge Ten Eyck and a jury. He was held responsible for the death of Winifred J. Landers, seven years old, of Belleville, who was struck and instantly killed by a trolley car operated by Leary on December 29, 1904.

Leary was surrendered in court immediately after the verdict was rendered by the Public Service Corporation, which had given a bond for his appearance. He was sent to jail to await sentence on March. The jury was out exactly one hour after the conclusion of the testimony and a charge by Judge Ten Eyck, in which the latter said that if the jurymen were satisfied that Leary had been wilfully negligent in the operation of the car they should find a verdict of guilty.

Testimony by several witnesses, some of whom were passengers on the car which killed the child, and some of whom were not on it because Leary ran past them, was that the car at the time it struck the child was going at a high rate of speed.

Mrs. May Pope testified that she was on the car and that its speed was so great that she became alarmed and screamed several times. Once was when she saw the child step on the tracks at Cleveland and Belleville, when the car was one hundred feet away. Mrs. Pope said that Leary paid no attention to her. When the accident occurred the speed of the car was so great that the child's head was almost cut off and the body was dragged at least a hundred feet before the car could be stopped. Death was instantaneous.

Leary took the stand in his own behalf, being the only witness for the defence, which was conducted by Howard McSherry of the Public Service legal department. Leary declared that the tracks were slippery owing to the recent storm, that he was operating the car on only half speed and that he did not see the child until the car was within five or six feet of her. He shut off the power and did all he could, he declared, to avert the accident.

Convocation at St. Stephen's Church.

St. Stephen's church has been named by Bishop Scarborough as the place of meeting for the Convocation of New Brunswick for its early session during the first or second week in June. The convocation is composed of the Bishop ex-officio president, and a dean, who is elected yearly, and the parishes in the upper or Northern part of this diocese, represented by their rectors. Its business is concerning home mission work.

FIGHTING MAXIMUM TAX

DEMAND REPEAL OF THE ACT.

Conference at State House in Trenton Yesterday—Arrangements Made in Favor of Radical Action.

Mayors and representatives of mayors of a few of the smaller municipalities, including Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, got together at the State House Wednesday and decided to appeal to the governor for the relief of municipalities of a burden which they allege has been imposed upon taxing districts in the form of the maximum tax acts, one enacted in 1903 and the other in 1906.

The titles of the acts referred to are: "An act to amend an act for the collection and assessment of taxes," of April, 1903, and "An act for the reduction and legislation of the rate of taxation in the several taxing districts of this State," of April, 1906. Mayor Townsend was the principal speaker. The mayors will frame up a petition and present it to the governor. They ask for the repeal of so much of the acts as shall leave the various municipalities of the State a free hand to impose such a tax rate for local government and improvements as may be deemed advisable by the governing bodies of the same.

In the petition reasons are set forth for the repeal of the acts. It is argued that no requirement limiting a tax rate should be made in view of the fact that it cannot be complied with. It is further contended that assessments have been jacked up higher than the true values of the properties under these laws in order that the expenses of improvements begun before the enactment of the statutes can be met.

The petitioners say that the county boards have already cut down appraisements and therefore it will be impossible to increase the assessments to meet the expenses of improvements, and under the law the rate cannot go upwards. They argue that the problem can only be solved by repealing the acts in order that a governing body can fix a rate which it believes will meet the municipality's requirements.

TWO SUITS AGAINST NEWARK REALTY CO

Suit has been started in the New Jersey Supreme Court at Trenton by Kenyon Messick, of Cranford, on an assigned claim to him from Isaac P. Farrand, of New York, against the Metropolitan Realty Company, of Newark, and the plaintiff asks for a judgment of $500.83 for goods sold and delivered by Browne & Farrand. Isaac P. Runyon represents the plaintiff.

Proceedings have been started in the New Jersey Supreme Court by I. F. Hersh and Brother, of Plainfield, against the Metropolitan Realty Company, of Newark, on a claim for $2,238.28 for goods sold to the defendant. The papers have been served by Sheriff Somer. Isaac P. Runyon represents the plaintiffs.

FINE SILVER LOVING CUP FOR WARREN'S ORGANIST

After nineteen years' continuous service as organist at Warren chapel, Charles D. Wheeler resigned his position on January 1 and in recognition of his faithful work the members and friends presented him with a handsome solid silver loving cup, Wednesday, following the weekly prayer meeting. The affair was a complete surprise to him.

Although Mr. Wheeler has not been organist since the first of the year, Mrs. J. O. McKelvey having taken his place, he has been assisting in the choir. It was planned to bring it at the chapel last night and despite the stormy weather a company of thirty people was present. Immediately following the prayer service, Rev. J. O. McKelvey made a few remarks referring to the long and faithful service of Mr. Wheeler, to whom he presented the loving cup. "He said that its sterling composition was typical of Mr. Wheeler's qualities and that the cup expressed the affection and regard on the part of all members of the chapel for him. Mr. Wheeler made a graceful response.

"Lest We Forget."

Some people in Plainfield seem to have failed to recollect that President Thomas N. McCarter made a speech there about the fairness of the Public Service Corporation only a year ago. This shows how quickly the words of great men are forgotten.—Newark News.

DR. PARSON'S SUCCESSOR

Presiding Elder Recommends Cranford Dominie to Grace M. E. Church People.

THE BISHOP MAY APPOINT.

When Newark Conference Ends, Rev. O. J. Shoop Probably Will Take Charge of Methodism in North Plainfield.

A committee of the elders of Grace M. E. church will present the name of Rev. Orra J. Shoop, of Cranford, as successor to Dr. Charles Wesley Parsons, former pastor of the North Plainfield church, at the Methodist Conference to be held in this city April 1. Dr. Shoop is pastor of St. Paul's church at Cranford, and it is reported that he will accept the call, if it is approved by Bishop Spellmeyer.

Dr. Shoop has preached at Grace M. E. church but once. That was three or four months ago, when he was the speaker at the evening service. This was before the death of Dr. Parsons, and it was not believed that he would come permanently to this city. After the death of Dr. Parsons, Rev. Daniel Halleron, presiding elder of the Newark district, recommended Dr. Shoop's name to the elders of the church as his successor.

The official board of the church, consisting of twenty members, received the recommendation several weeks ago, and since that time, several members have been present at services in the Cranford church, hearing Dr. Shoop preach. Three days ago, the formal recommendation for the Cranford minister to Grace was sent to Bishop Spellmeyer and his cabinet. The matter will be decided by the church government officials in conference at the First M. E. church here.

ONLY ONE BIG GAME FOR PRINCETON ELEVEN

The Princeton football schedule for 1908 was announced last night by the management of the football association.

The schedule:

Oct. 3—Springfield Training School at Princeton; 7—Stevens Institute, at Princeton; 10—Lafayette, at Princeton; 14—Villa Nova, at Princeton; 17—Swarthmore, at Princeton; 21—Fordham, at Princeton; 24—Syracuse, at Princeton; 31—West Point, at West Point.

Nov. 7—Dartmouth, place not decided; 14—Yale, at Princeton.

FORDYCE IS OUT FOR CONGRESS IN THIRD.

Colonel Alexander Fordyce, Jr., former head of the people's lobby, wants the congressional nomination in the Third District, comprising Middlesex, Monmouth and Ocean counties, against Congressman Benjamin Franklin Howell. Colonel Fordyce bases his hopes for the nomination on the direct primary act, which Governor Fort is asking to have applied to the nomination of congressmen. Colonel Fordyce said of his candidacy yesterday:

"Any candidate for public office this year will be compelled to clearly define his attitude on the great political issues of the day, and will not be allowed to hide behind party regularity and general statements meaning nothing.

"Should I become a candidate, I would stand for the progressive policies of the Roosevelt administration."

RICH FARMER SUED.

Accused of Selling Milk Not Up to Standard.

Matthew Suydam, Jr., son of Matthew Suydam, the wealthy farmer of Three Mile Run, and a director in the National Bank of New Jersey, of New Brunswick, has been sued by the State Board of Health for a penalty. Inspectors of the board took samples of milk which he was bringing into town some time ago, and found that the milk was below standard.

The case has created a sensation, owing to the prominence of the Suydam family. They are the richest farmers in that part of the State, and are interested financially and deeply in several local industries. Suydam declares that the inspectors did not take samples of the milk from his farm, but that they took them from a can of milk belonging to a neighbor, which he was hauling into town for him.

EXPRESS CONCERN'S SUIT AGAINST CLEANER CO. ENDED.

An order for the discontinuance of the suit started by the Hand Storage and Express Company against the Vacuum Cleaner Company, both of Plainfield, has been filed at Trenton. The Hand people brought suit against David T. Kenney's concern for $206.73, claiming that the same was for hauling, trucking and moving of materials, and the order just filed end the suit.

Judge William Negborn was attorney for the Hand Storage and Express Co.

COLLINS ISSUES A DEFI

Democratic County Chairman Serves Notice He'll Fight for State Committeeship.

NEW EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Martine Is on It—Charles Sturtevant Chairman of Naturalization Committee.

General D. F. Collins, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, announced Wednesday the members of the standing committees for the present year. The executive committee includes: Chairman, Charles H. Moore, Elizabeth; Milford M. Scudder, Westfield; James C. Connolly, Elizabeth; John L. Crowell, Rahway; James E. Martine, Plainfield; Owen Farrelly, Elizabeth, and John J. Lane, Summit.

The chairmen of the other standing committees are: Finance, William E. Tuttle, Jr., Westfield; organization, Jacob W. Sheppard, Elizabeth; entertainment, Hugh F. Boyle, Roselle; naturalization, Charles A. Sturtevant, Plainfield, printing, Arthur O'Brien, Elizabeth, and canvass and halls, Owen P. Mahon, Elizabeth.

General Collins made his first definite statement yesterday concerning his plans in regard to the successorship of Peter Egenolf as member of the State Democratic Committee. The statement was pursuant to a recent interviews which have stated that John J. Lane, of Summit, is after the post and claims that General Collins promised it to him. The county chairman said yesterday:

"I am in that race to the end, now, I will fight for all there is in it, no matter who may be my opponent. I originally stated that if the party wanted me to take the place I would accept. I change that statement now, and say emphatically that I want the honor and am going to fight for it."

NEAR-DRUNK PRISONER GETS A RUNYONIZATION

James Donnolly, an employe of a West End shop and living on Evona avenue, got about the most scathing lecture that has been handed out in the city court in a long time, Thursday. The ordinary prisoner generally prefers to take a fine or sentence in preference to a mild Runyonization, but the one Donnolly stood for was a triple dose.

There was no particular charge against the defendant as he was brought in by Patrolman Kelley as he put it, "to keep him from getting drunk." Donnolly got drunk Wednesday and started out before 6 a. m. Thursday to repeat the doses. He went from saloon to saloon, a sad-faced little wife with a few-months-old baby in her arms following him about in an effort to get him home. She appealed to the cop to help her and Kelley ran him in while he was still sober. The baby's face at the time was swollen with the cold.

Donnolly was arraigned for a talking in the court. He was hauled over the coals until his knees shook and every time he attempted to say a word in defense he was told to "shut up" in tones louder than the banging of the men removing the stoves in the rear. The verbal volley lasted ten minutes and when it subsided Donnolly looked like a whipped cur.

"You can go now," the magistrate said in conclusion; "but if you come here again for any reason I'll make it so hot for you you'll wish you had never been Plainfield."

MRS. HAND'S BROTHER KILLED IN LANDSLIDE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hand and Mrs. Hand's sister, Mrs. McClellan, returned Thursday morning from New Bedford, Mass., where they attended the funeral service of Mrs. Hand's brother, James Gourley, who was killed last Saturday in a landslide at Sullivan's quarry in that State, where he was employed as a foreman.

The unfortunate man was buried beneath fifty tons of rock and earth that were jarred loose by a blast. The man was alive when taken out, but he expired within a few minutes, never regaining consciousness. He was terribly crushed by the falling stone. William Barrineau, who was working with Mr. Gourley at the time, had a narrow escape from death. Mr. Gourley had been employed at Sullivan's quarry for fifteen years. He leaves a wife and three daughters.

Boys' Track Meet.

A dual track meet between teams of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. M. C. of Hope chapel will be held at the association gymnasium Saturday, March 7. The events will include the standing broad jump, 220-yard potato race, running high jump, 9-pound shot put, running broad jump, and standing broad jump.

DEMOCRATIC CONFAB WITH PRESIDENT

Murphy Follows Fort and Colby in Conference on Jersey Sentiment.

IT LOOKS LIKE TAFT JUST NOW.

Roosevelt Says Governor Is a "Corker"—Picking Out the Delegates-at-Large.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman of the New Jersey Republican Committee, went to Washington Wednesday afternoon, having been summoned by President Roosevelt for a conference at the White House. Governor Fort, Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, was present at the confab. During yesterday former United States Attorney General John W. Griggs and State Attorney General Robert H. McCarter, two other Jerseymen, were in conference with Messrs. Fort and Murphy. A suggestion that the Governor would be chosen by the Roosevelt men for Vice-President.

Senator Everett Colby, of Essex county, who was in Washington on Wednesday, didn't give much satisfaction to those who expected to find out what the President thinks of Fort for Vice-Presidential timber. He said that Mr. Roosevelt thought Fort "a corker," but the impression was gained that Mr. Colby did not take the Vice-Presidential boom seriously.

Former Governor Murphy had been invited to attend the army and navy reception last night and to have supper with the President later, but was understood that a hurry call went out Wednesday for him to come to the capital early in the day. He left Newark in time to reach there about 2 o'clock and went almost immediately to the White House. So far Mr. Murphy has declined to commit himself as to candidates, but it is understood that he prepared to get aboard the Taft bandwagon.

Griggs a Taft Man.

Mr. Griggs, who, in addition to his office of United States Attorney-General, has to his past credit the election to the Governorship in 1895 is a Taft man, but not a Roosevelt admirer. He says he believes in the Roosevelt policies if they can be carried out in a different and less "brutal" manner. He doesn't like what the President says nor the way he says it when commentating with Congress and issuing broadsides.

As the program for the national convention has been worked out by the men who take the Taft and Fort proposition as the winning one, Mr. Griggs will make the speech placing Fort in nomination if he can win out as a delegate-at-large.

The President is understood to have talked over the question of the Jersey delegation not only with Messrs. Fort, Colby and Murphy, but with State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, and United States Senator Frank O. Briggs.

New Jersey is entitled to four delegates-at-large, and twenty delegates, two from each Congressional district, in the National Republican convention. It is generally understood that the sentiment of the party managers is expressed by the delegates-at-large, and are looked upon as the men to swing the delegation as a whole.

According to precedent, Governor Fort, State Chairman Murphy and United States Senators John Kean, Jr., and Briggs would be the delegates-at-large, but there is a plan afoot to have Messrs. Murphy, Griggs and Baird as the four.

Hot Fight in Prospect.

An effort has been made to get Mr. Baird and former Governor Griggs at war with each other so that there might be a better chance of some other getting a place. What Baird wants is a seat, and it is said that the Camden county man and the Paterson lawyer may stand together against the two United States Senators.

It was said last night by a Republican who hails from New Jersey that the siring given to Republican politics in this State and national material in the last few days had a tendency to develop one fact more plainly than anything else, and that was the fight in prospect for the control of the State machine. As the first battle of the coming year, there will be a heavy fight, he averred, over the selection of the delegates-at-large to the national convention. It was his impression that the plans for the national convention party didn't include a place for Senator Kean, but that Senator Briggs might be chosen.

PRESIDENT HONORS JERSEY

Governor and Apostle of Reform are Roosevelt's Guests of Honor.

BRIGGS DINES "HAS-BEENS."

Brilliant Affair at White House—"Great Conspiracy" at the Willard House.

Governor J. Franklin Fort and State Senator Colby, of the White House at Washington, D. C., Wednesday. Governor Fort was accompanied by Mrs. Fort. The dinner was in the state dining room and the table was handsomely decorated with emeralds and white carnations. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a handsome gown of yellow satin, trimmed with white lace. After dinner the guests were entertained by Miss Beatrice Herford, who was heard in several monologues.

Those present at the dinner were: The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, the German ambassador and Baroness von Sterberg, Senator and Mrs. Crane, Senator and Mrs. Warner, Governor and Mrs. John Franklin Fort, Representative and Mrs. Hepburn, Representative and Mrs. Townsend, Representative and Mrs. Cockran, Representative and Mrs. Washburn, the Hon. Benito Legarda, the Hon. Pablo Ocampo de Leon, Professor and Mrs. Rudolph Leonhart, Civil Engineer and Mrs. Robert E. Peary, Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler, former Governor and Mrs. John L. Bates, State Senator Everett Colby, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Brandegee, Mrs. James Robert McKee, Mrs. Rowditch, Mrs. Frank Taylor Evans, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Miss Paulding, James Speyer, Captain McCoy.

Senator Briggs entertained at dinner Wednesday at the New Willard in Washington, the guests of honor being Vice President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon. Representative Wood and other senators and congressmen were present, as well as R. G. and F. W. Roebling, of Trenton. Senator Kean also gave a dinner party at his residence last night.

The Taft managers have been worried over conditions in Governor Fort's constituency. The idea of having Governor Fort on the ticket with Taft had been under consideration ever since the governor made some remarks about regulating corporations in his inaugural address, but according to what was said in political circles in Washington yesterday one of the main reasons why he is wanted on the Taft side is to obtain his influence in an effort to have the Jersey delegates to the Republican national convention instructed for Taft. That Governor Fort can do this work is doubted by politicians at Washington who are familiar with the New Jersey situation.

At midnight Wednesday it was learned that the dinner at the Briggs dinner were holding a conference, the nature of which could not be ascertained.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS APPOINT COMMITTEES

The annual convention of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, Knights of Pythias, concluded Thursday at Trenton by the appointment of committees and installation of the new officers. The salary of the grand master of the exchequer was increased $50 a year. Supreme Keeper of Records and Seals R. L. C. White, of Nashville, Tenn., addressed the delegates yesterday afternoon. The following committees were appointed:

Law and Supervision—Moses F. Badger, Irvington; Asa D. Pope, Plainfield, and Silas W. Barton, Asbury Park.

Obituary—D. Sharps Mellick, Belvidere; John W. Mehl, Hoboken, and Joseph A. Walker, Atlantic City.

Wrage—Miller.

The marriage of Miss Emma Miller, of New York, and Charles Wrage, son of Henry Wrage, formerly of Flemington, has been announced. Their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wrage will reside in this city.

Bishop to Visit Plainfield.

Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of the Diocese, will visit the Church of the Heavenly Rest on the Sunday before Easter Day, for the purpose of confirming a class which will soon be formed.

HE SPEAKS ON EDUCATION HIGH SCHOOL GETS GIFT

Pres. Demarest, of Rutgers, Address City and Borough High School Pupils.

TELLS OF COLLEGE'S CLAIMS. IN HIS FATHER'S MEMORY.

Educator Also Refers to the Value of a College Education During His Interesting Talks.

Emphasizing the value of a college education to a young man or woman of the present day, William Demarest, president of Rutgers College, spoke of the broadening advantages of such an education and its influence in character development, aside from the curriculum advantages acknowledged, at the Washington's Birthday exercises of the Plainfield High School Friday morning and at 10:30 repeated his remarks at the exercises of the North Plainfield High School. His remarks were especially about Rutgers, "the Old Colonial College," the scientific school of which is a State institution. President Demarest said in part:

"In emphasizing the advantages of a college education, it is a fact to be acknowledged at the outset that neither of our two greatest presidents, Washington or Lincoln, were college men. Washington, however, did receive the honorary surveyor from William and Mary College, the second oldest college in the country. Lincoln, perhaps, stands as the example of what the lack of college education can do for a man. But Lincoln was a man of great ambition, great power and great ideas for the cultivation of that power. His education was accomplished without the aid of college instruction, but was efficient because of the character of the man.

"The charcheristics of Washington and Lincoln are the great things we must bear in mind as examples set before us in our schools and colleges today. Manliness, sterling character, strong moral courage, and a spirit unconquerable by whatever emergency or mishap were the qualities which led to Washington's success despite his inferior opportunities for advancement.

The American colleges played a prominent part in the Revolutionary War. At the time the war broke out, there were nine colleges in this country, Harvard, William and Mary, Yale, Princeton (called Prince's College), Columbia (King's College), Brown, Rutgers, (Queen's College), the University of Pennsylvania and Dartmouth. The undergraduates of all these institutions, as well as the alumni and professors were instrumental as soldiers, State and government officials during those troublous times. Soldiery was a part of the training in the colleges, and was maintained even when the college was forced to move to North Branch during the time that the British occupied New Brunswick. Among the graduates of Rutgers prominent at this time were Brigadier General George H. Shaw, Secretary of State Frederick P. Frelinghuysen and many other high officials, including governors and justices.

"But I plan to speak primarily of the advantages of a college education. Is it worth while? In the present day, I tell you it is of inestimable worth to both boys and girls. It is first a preparation for life work, and second an enlargement of the life and character of a boy or girl. Of course, many who have attained success in life without a college education, and not all college graduates are successful, but in general, I believe it may be positively said that college best fits a man for success in life. And such success does not mean not only financial success but an increased value in life itself, an increase in capacity and a powerful element in the broadening of a man's life.

The college president concluded his remarks with a summary development of what is being done to make it easier for school graduates to enter college. He spoke of the financial aid furnished by State and college scholarships and outlined the various courses offered at Rutgers, champioing the cause of a small college for general education as compared with the training in the college departments of universities and technical schools.

HORACE ADAMS WINS IN ASSIGNED CLAIM SUIT.

A judgment on a relicta has been entered in the Supreme Court at Trenton in the case of Horace G. Adams, of this city, against Crowell & Collier, of Atlantic City. Adams had an assigned claim against the defendant from the Kentucky Distilling Company. The declaration of file shows that the Kentucky concern had sold to the Princes Hotel, of Atlantic City a bill of goods. The case was contested by Crowell & Collier, but under the relicta signed by their attorney and which has been filed they consent to judgment being entered against them for $270.59.

Judge William Newcorn was counsel for Adams.

J. A. Coles Presents Replica of Houden's Bust of George Washington.

IN THE SUPREME COURT. TELL OF AGE OF THE EARTH.

Dr. Maxson Makes Presentation Speech—Pupils Sing Patriotic Song Whose Words Were Written by Dr. Coles.

In behalf of the donor, J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, Superintendent Henry M. Maxson of the city schools, presented a bronze bust of George Washington, mounted upon an imported marble pedestal, to the Plainfield High School in connection with the Washington's Birthday exercises Friday. The bust, made by Jean Antoine Houden in 1785, The bronze is an imported life-size replica of the bust of George Washington, made by Jean Antoine Houdeg, the famous French sculptor from measurements and casts of Washington taken by the artist at Mount Vernon in 1785. General Lafayette and others considered it the best likeness of Washington ever made. The base is of imported marble, standing about four feet high.

The gift, which was formally accepted for the school by Principal Ira W. Travell after Dr. Maxson's presentation speech, is given by Mr. Coles in memory of his father, Dr. Abraham Coles, A. M., M. D., Ph. D., LL.D., who, at the age of seventeen, taught Latin and mathematics in the school of Rev. Lewis Bond in this city.

In connection with the exercises and presentation, the song "Our Country's Banner" was sung by the school. This was written by Dr. Abraham Coles in 1861, and in 1894 was set to music by Robert Lowry, a former Plainfielder.

EXERCISES IN SCHOOLS

Plainfield Public School Children Appropriately Observe Washington's Birthday.

RECITATIONS AND ADDRESSES.

In City and Borough Children Honor the Memory of "the Father of His Country" Today.

Exercises appropriate to the commemoration of Washington's Birthday were held at the city and borough schools Friday, marked by recitations, readings from the life and deeds of the first President and the singing of patriotic songs. At the Plainfield High School, where a bronze bust of George Washington was received as the gift of J. Ackerman Coles, there was a program of national music by the school and an address by President Demarest, of Rutgers College. The college president also spoke at the exercises at the North Plainfield High School, held at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Here the song "Our Washington's Birthday" was spiritedly rendered by the school. The patriotic exercises of the day were held at 11:45, including speaking by County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs, singing of patriotic songs and readings and recitations by the pupils.

At all the primary schools of the city and borough, the day was observed with appropriate exercises. A program rendered at the primary department excises of the Somerset street school follows:

Singing, "Our Country," by the school; recitation, "February," Bernice Debele; recitation, "Greeting," Randolph Douglas; recitation, "Washington," by twelve pupils the second grade; recitation, "A Maxim," Edith Mundy; singing, "Mt. Vernon Bells," by the school; recitation, "Lincoln and the entry," Donald Conner; piano solo, by Jubilee Rowley; recitation, "The Patriotic boys of the second grade; recitation, "Hats Off," Walter Debele; singing, "Sonny Flag," by the school; recitation, "Washington," Marion Woolley; recitation, "Good Advice," Carman Emmons; recitation, "Boys of America," Clarence Skiff; recitation, "A Puzzling Question," Henry Leitner; singing, "Little George Washington," by the school.

At a heart party given for a bride, the tally cards bore pictures of the bride, the pasters being placed on the reverse side. At the close of the game there were no prizes awarded, but each guest received a hand-painted heart-shaped frame exactly fitted over the tally card, and after being tied in place, made a pretty souvenir of the occasion.

Mrs. Jenkins Asks Damages from Railroad for Her Husband's Death.

Papers have been filed by Craig A. Marsh in the Supreme Court in the case of Carrie J. Jenkins against the Central Railroad of New Jersey, his client seeking to recover $15,000 for the loss of her husband whom she claims was killed by the cars of the New Jersey Central Railroad in the freight yard at Elizabethport while in the performance of his duty as brakeman.

Mrs. Jenkins alleges that he was ordered to unfasten a chain connecting two cars and that the cars were apart enough for him to go between the tracks and that he did so. There was no timber or draw back on the car, it is alleged, and the cars came together without notice to him. Because of the alleged absence of the timber or draw back, it is claimed, the two trains crushed him and he was instantly killed. Mrs. Jenkins states that she has two children.

The Central Railroad through George Holmes has filed a plea denying the allegations. The case will have to be heard before Judge Swayze at Elizabeth.

Geologist Makes Calculations—Scientist Figures That Age of It Is 5,302,170 Years.

The assumption of an original uniform temperature for the earth is only a first approximation to the true condition, not justified by a closer examination of the subject. The mathematical theory of the heat distribution in a gaseous globe shows that the temperature increases rapidly toward the centre, and hence falls off correspondingly near the surface. Relatively to the average temperature of the whole mass, that of the surface is very low, and that of the centre quite high. This is the condition in a gaseous sphere, and it seems certain that it cannot be greatly modified by the surface cooling which leads to incrustation. This latter arises mainly from resisted circulation, and retarded supply of heat from the under layers, as the surface density increases. Prior to the beginning of incrustation the planet passes through a stage of maximum temperature, and heat is both radiated and conducted through to the outer layers; but eventually the resistance to propagation of heat becomes so great that a fall of temperature is inevitable. In the case of the earth there is excellent reason to conclude that the surface temperature never much exceeded 2000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The experiments of Professor Rucker and Roberts-Austen at the Royal College of Science, London, on basalt or diberite, showed that this rock was completely fused at 1683 degrees Fahrenheit. Basalt is a typical rock of the earth's crust, prevalent in nearly all volcanic districts; and it seems probable that a temperature of 2000 degrees Fahrenheit would therefore not only fuse all the principal rocks of the earth's surface, but also reduce many of them to a state of vapor.

The fact that the other planets of our solar system are not at present self-luminous, though the larger masses are known to have high internal temperature, tells against the theory of very high surface temperature also in the case of the earth. For although we view the other planets at only one stage of their existence, and therefore cannot fully judge of their conditions at other canonical stages, the extreme self-luminosity when so much heat is known to be stored up within these planets can only indicate that a great lowering of temperature always takes place near the surface, as is also true in a sphere of incandescent gas. Thus it is not probable that even at the maximum the surface temperature of such masses would be very high. Lord Kelvin has estimated the temperature of 7000 degrees Fahrenheit, but there are clear indications that this is much too great, and in all probability we shall not be far wrong in using 2000 degrees as the most acceptable value in all calculations on the secular cooling of the terrestial globe. The temperature of lava as we know with the crust, but for a shallow layer we may take it to be uni*form; the temperature of 2000 de*grees then would not correspond exactly to the surface, but rather to the average of a thin sheet forming the boundary of the molten mass. As the outer layer was no doubt agitated from beneath, it would both lack in uniformity of temperature, and also be constantly changing, so that a mean temperature of 2000 degrees Fahrenheit—which is now agreed on as a more probable figure—we get an age of 5,302,210 years. Accordingly, we conclude from this that the age of our incrusted planet can scarcely exceed ten million years, which accords well with the results inferred from the theory of the sun's heat.

Rev. O. Fisher has developed another method for calculating the age of the earth, based on a consideration of the thickness of the crust and its rate of growth. He considers that the thickness of the crust as 17.5 miles, which is very near the thickness indicated by the San Francisco earthquake, the age of the earth appears as 5,278,170 years. Fisher, however, calculates the crust as not exceeding 21.91 miles. Taking this latter figure, the age of the earth is found to be 8,248,230 years.

This agreement with Lord Kelvin's figures is the more interesting since Rev. O. Fisher cannot reconcile it with what he has hitherto thought the approximate age of the earth, and endeavors to explain it away. He says:

"This is a far shorter period than geological phenomena appear to call for, although it is not possible for them to assign any definite limit to the world's age, we can form some idea of an inferior limit which it must have exceeded. Sir A. Geike thinks that the stratified rocks alone, which contain organic remains, cannot have taken much less than 100,000,000 years for their formation."

He then proceeds to examine the hypothesis of an energetic substratum, and by this process reaches a greater age for the world. But the hypothesis of an inert substratum is obviously the proper one. For the substratum is shown to move only under the throes of an earthquake, and no circulatory movement of lava exists even just beneath the crust. Hence we adhere to the result there obtained, and must consider the significance of the small age of the earth. It will be seen that for a thickness of twenty-two miles the age of the earth's consolidation is almost exactly the same as that reached by the use of Lord Kelvin's formula.

The result found by Lord Kelvin's method rests upon the observed rate of increase of temperature downward; namely, 1 degree Farhenheit for 51 feet, which is about the same as the value used by Fourier nearly a century ago, and not improved upon by the deep borings made in recent years. It also rests upon the assumed surface temperature of 2000 degrees Fahrenheit, which probably is comparatively near the truth. It is purely an accidental coincidence that with these data one is led by the Fourier-Kelvin formula to an age of 8,302,210 years, while by Fisher's formula, depending on the thickness of the crust essentially verified by earthquake phenomena, one finds the almost identical age of 8,248,230 years. Moderate variations of the data might derange this excellent agreement somewhat, but probably no change of the contestants within admissible limits would produce extreme discordance in the resulting ages of the earth. It seems, therefore, difficult to escape the conclusion that these figures really approximate the true age of our encrusted planet. At least the period since the consolidation is of the order of ten million years.

Different investigators will naturally form different estimates of the age of the earth as found by the several *different methods of approxi*mation; but it is difficult to see how the larger values formerly current can be justified by physical research based on the population of heat involved in the secular cooling of the globe. The writer has not the geological learning requisite for the use of the methods based in sedimentary rocks and their deposits of organic remains, but it seems to be doubtful if these methods can lay claim to even approximate accuracy; and to most minds the conclusions drawn from the much greater weight.

FROM A PASTOR'S DIARY

Rev. Dr. Geo. B. Shaw Writes of His First Impressions of North Loup.

A VERY INTERESTING LETTER.

Former Plainfield Pastor Addresses Religious Editor Whom He Succeeded in Nebraska.

From his new home at North Loup, Nebraska, Rev. Dr. George B. Shaw, until recently pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, this city, has written an interesting letter to the Sabbath Recorder, which is herewith reproduced, with the remarks made by the editor of that paper, Rev. Mr. Gardner, who was his predecessor at North Loup:

"I remember making a promise to some one at Plainfield that as soon as we were settled in Nebraska I would write something for the Recorder. I have forgotten to whom the promise was made, but it must be kept. Usually one wonders what to write, but this time it is what not to write. There are so many things of interest that I hardly know where to begin, and certainly would not know where to end.

"Suppose I give you an outline history of two days in the life of the pastor of North Loup church. Of course, there are hundreds of Seventh-day Baptist people in this village whose lives are equally interesting, and there are three hundred and sixty-five days in this year.

"Last Sabbath was the pastor's birthday (1865). The sun rose bright and late—as bright as usual and as late as usual. The sun has shone bright every day that I have been in Nebraska, and it has been thirty minutes later than my good watch all this time. It is all right at evening, but in the morning! Yes, it seems like a waste of good coal oil. The sunsets and sunrises in this country are very beautiful; that is as Frank Robbins said one cold morning last week, 'We won't have the sun-dogs here that we used to have in Minnesota.

His First Sunday.

"The Sabbath of January 25 was a beautiful day. The church was filled with people very soon after 10:30. Considering the fact that so many families come so great a distance, they are very prompt. (It evidently is not a case of datasce, as one could tell by a little study). Geographically it is like having in one congregation the churches of Alfred, 2d Alfred, Hartsville, Hornell, Andover, and Independence. [Mr. Andover, if I have that too large, suppose you cut off a few churches. You will know.—Well, brother Shaw, we will let it stand as it is.]

"Two hundred and fifty people will fill the room here. [This is pretty small. Could you not crowd in another fifty with chairs?—Ed.] Mrs. Grace Clement Hutchins is our choir-ister, and Mrs. Esther Davis Babcock our organist. We have a chorus choir. The Sabbath-school comes immediately after the preaching service. There were one hundred and seventy-seven present. The superintendent is Charles Thorngate. A class of young ladies studying the 'Bereans' (See Acts 17:10-11), and who have the pastor for their teacher, go to the parsonage for thirty minutes given to the lesson study. This week Elder Oscar Babcock reviewed the lesson for the school.

The Day's Routine.

"The Junior Christian Endeavor Society meets at 3 p. m. with Mr. Walter Rood as superintendent? This week there were present one hundred and fourteen Juniors and sixteen visitors,—a very few more than usual. The class of Mrs. Raymond Rood had charge of the opening exercises for the day. I wish the readers of the Recorder could look in some Sabbath afternoon on this crowd.

"The Senior Society meets at 6 o'clock, immediately after the dismissal of the Juniors. I will have to guess at the attendance here, will venture to say fifty. Ray Thorngate is president. Dr. G. M. Burdick was leader that day, and the subject was 'Home Missions.' Fred Green led the singing and Mrs. Green played the organ. There was special music by five small girls, Edna Lewis, Ena Lewis, Gladis Hutchins, Helen Lewis and Maude Green. The interest was so great that after the meeting was dismissed, a group of about twenty stayed for one hour in earnest discussion of what we could do to spread the knowledge of Christ in Nebraska and elsewhere. It was already dark when farmers, who had come to attend Junior Endeavor meeting, started back to their farms and chores.

The Pastor's Surprise.

"The pastor hurried home to find that his family had surprised him by having company to supper, Mrs. Mary Badger and the family of our cousin, Dr. Burdick, as soon as supper was over and the candles (birthday) blown out, the Doctor and I had to hurry back to the church, for a special meeting had been called to consider what we could do to help toward paying the debt of the Tract Society. Brother Burdick, who is the son of Eld. George W. Burdick, of Welton, Iowa, is church clerk. Many friends at Milton, Chicago, Little Genesee and elsewhere will remember him. The moderator is Mr. E. J. Babcock, a son of Rev. Oscar Babcock. He is a lawyer and will be remembered at Alfred and elsewhere. At this meeting a committee was appointed, consisting of Raymond Bee, Herbert Green, John Goodrich and Ray Thorngate.

After this meeting the pastor goes home again and is surprised to find the place occupied by a crowd of Berean people, who had not informed him that it was their teacher's birthday. The speech that Ross Davis made when he gave to the pastor a bouquet of flowers and a nicely bound and illustrated copy of the 'Deserted Village' was very short, but very much to the point. I don't know why Mrs. Dr. Hemphill (Cora Hurley) came with these boys. She said they belonged to her class in Junior. I do know that she kept the pastor's wife so busy talking or listening that she forgot to pass the cake till after the boys had gone. The pastor fell asleep that Sabbath night saying over this passage of Scripture: 'In it thou shalt not do any work.'

Others Calling Also.

"Sunday forenoon was spent in the pastor's study with Mr. C. J. Rood in making out from the church books, an alphabetically arranged, vest-pocket directory of the congregation. This will be when completed, will have about five hundred names, including of course the non-resident members. This was the second half-day thus spent, and the work is about completed. The pastor is making good headway in mastering the names and faces of his new congregation.

"After this work was done we went for a short drive with Roy Lewis, after a span of ponies that a man from Ord wanted to sell.

"At noon the pastor's family all went to dine at the home of Elder Oscar Babcock. Elder Babcock was by a chance of good fortune, the first Seventh-Day Baptist that I saw when I came to North Loup, and it is a matter of curious interest, as Professor Whitford would say, that we two should meet again in the home of Rev. A. H. Lewis (of his son-in-law, J. E. Kimball), and that our first meal by invitation here was in the home of Mrs. Lewis' sister, Mrs. Babcock. She reminds us of Mrs. Lewis in making these observations. We do not count the home of Merton and Bertha Burdick, where we were welcomed from the train, dusty, tired and car-sick. The skating was good on the creek Sunday afternoon, and I can think of no good excuse for my mentioning that fact unless it be that when the pastor went home, and sat down with his Bible to prepare for an evening service, he was glad the girls were having such a good time down on the ice below, and the spacious meadow.

In Myra Valley.

"As evening drew on, the telephone began to ring with preparation for the Young People's Endeavor meeting at the Baker schoolhouse. This is in Myra Valley, about five miles and four miles west of this village. Those who went over from here were Mr. and Mrs. Claud Hill, Mildred Green, Luther Rood, Mamie Van Zant, Chloe Green, Marcia Rood, Maude Davis, Ena Bashaw, Fern and Hazel Grandall, Myra Thorngate, Lora Black, Charles Rood, Ezra Bennett, Walter Rood, James Johnson, Archie Moulton, Orson Davis and the pastor. If there are names omitted, it is because I have forgotten to put them down. This is because I did not know this company. They were about sixty in attendance, including the families of Charles White and Herbert Thorngate. It was a good meeting. Walter Rood led the prayer service and in giving each of the testimony meeting at the close, Claud Hill led the singing. The organ was carried along with us from North Loup and the books used were Pentecostal Hymns No. 3. Mrs. Hill played the organ. There was a solo by Myra Thorngate and a duet by Mr. Hill and Maude Davis. The pastor went on this trip with Mr. Hill. The stars have not shone so bright since I was a boy. It was late when we got home. The pastor's wife said she had actually written three letters.

*"Do you ever think about Plain*field? Yes, every chance we get.

"I wish I could remember who made the promise to write to the Recorder. It might not now be safe for people generally to know."

Troublesome Comma.

A comma, like many other things out of place, can cause a lot of trouble, says the London Chronicle. Not many years ago a distinguished graduate of Oxford decided to enter the Nonconformist ministry, and to wear no clerical collar. He made an announcement this intention in a manifesto containing the words: "I shall wear no clothes to distinguish me from my fellow Christians." That delightful comma made him the laughing stock of the university and the joy of the picture shops, whose windows were flooded with illustrations of the Rev. X. Y. Z. distinguishing himself from his fellow Christians.

Not a Plain Cook.

Mistress—See here, Jane, I can't have you entertaining company in my kitchen all the time.

May Have Succeeded at Home.

A physician went rabbit shooting and returned, tired out and empty handed, telling his wife he hadn't killed a thing. Thereupon she remarked, "I told you so. If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business, you might have been more successful."

DR. PROBASCO.

The death of Dr. John B. Probasco is a distinct loss to this community inasmuch as for many years he gave of his valuable time and services for the good of the community. As the head of the Board of Education his efforts were always directed for the betterment of conditions and he was ever faithful to the trust reposed in him. Conscientious to a fault he sacrificed his own interests whenever necessary for the municipality which had most fittingly honored him as its director in educational work and his removal to his heavenly rest will be keenly felt not only by those with whom he was associated in civic work but by the community at large.

And yet Haurand was deserving of better treatment at the hands of the men who legislate for a model municipality.

AMUSEMENTS.

Variety and general excellence is the keynote of the program arranged for Proctor's Newark theatre during this week. Principal among the attractions will be the initial appearance here of Ida Davis and Company in a miniature triller entitled "A Race for a Wife," in which two large touring cars are seen to dash across the stage at full speed. Special panoramic effects being used making this act without doubt one of the most pretentious of stage pictures ever attempted in the varieties. Wm. Rock and Maude Fulton will appear for the first time in vaudeville in a silvel singing and dancing turn with elaborate scenic chahges. Mr. Rock who identified with Richard Carle and the Shuberts for several seasons as was Miss Fulton, both having created roles in "The Orchid," Pyanski's "Behind the Counter" and "The Girl." Lind, the mysterious, will reappear and create a favere among the feminine population because of the magnificence of his frocks and gowns. That globe trotting due John W. Ogden and Mindell Kingston are also booked and will no doubt add to their popularity. Callahan and St. George, newcomers here, will give a lively conversational turn bristing with original humor. Lavina, Swanson, Boyle and Brook offer the acrobatic end of the program in an agreeable manner, interspersing clever gymnastics with clever comedy. Rafins' Monkeys are a clever aggregation of simians, who have been taught to perform many comical stunts, one of the most laughable acts in vaudeville. The Alabane Four are a quartette of dusky hued performers who sing and dance in a manner which the Sons of Ham alone can boast of. New animated pictures will complete the bill.

BOROUGH HIGH TROUNCED BY THE CITY HIGH BOYS.

Clinching their lead in the interscholastic basketball league, the Plainfield High School team won from the North Plainfield High School team by a score of 39-22 in a one-sided game played at the Y. M. C. A. Friday afternoon. The city school boys have now won three games and lost one, the borough athletes have won two and lost two and Leal's have won one and lost three. There is still one more round of league play for the local basketball title, and the city team can do no worse than tie for first place. The next game with the North Plainfielders, their most formidable opponents in the league, comes March 10.

Friday's game was easy for the Plainfield five, who had the score 14-2 in their favor at the end of the first half. In the second half, they played almost listlessly at times, but made 22 points while their opponents were shooting nine baskets. Caldwell, end, borough athletic field five, was the star in scoring, finding the iron ring nine times. The boroughites scored principally by individual work, showing inferior team play. The summaries:

P. H. S.—Snyder and Mortimer, forwards; Caldwell, centre; Doane and Parsons, guards. N. P. H. S.—Conroy and F. McClintock, forwards; Overton; centre, B. McClintock and Steiner, guards.

Field goals: Caldwell, 9; Doane, 4; Conroy, 4; Snyder, 3; Mortimer, 2; F. McClintock, 2; B. McClintock, 2; Overton, 2. Goals from fouls: Doane, 3; Conroy, 2. Referee, Listman; scorer, Morris; timer, Prior. 20 minute halves.

Holiday Shoot by Independents.

Dr. B. F. Lewis and Judge George A. Strong did the best work in the holiday shooting for the season's trophy at the Independent Gun Club rifle range Saturday. Other competitors were W. J. Stewart and M. D. Ditts. There was also shot-gun shooting.

Tea For Mrs. William Pelletier.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Francis Gregory Moore, of 911 West Seventh street, for a tea to be given at her home, Monday afternoon, March 2, from 3 to 6 o'clock for Mrs. William Pelletier.

TOWN PARKS.

All too many of our smaller towns possess what they are pleased to call "the square." They have acquired either by purchase of gift,a city block of land for park purposes. Sometime in the past, in a time of gross ignorance, a so-called pavilion was built in the center, a fence built, posts or furnstiles placed in the center of each corner. Diagonal paths of gravel run across the plot, a few feeble eucalyptuses grow along the border and we have "the city park." It seems never to have occurred to anyone that such a "proposed so"—is the poorest, most conventional, most inartistic and least economical of any disposition that could be made of the land, says the Los Angeles Times.

The fault of the whole matter lies with those who thought to make a park in a few days or a week. The trustees spend all the funds at their disposal at a single spurt to turn out what they believe it a finished product fresh from the handbox, and, as a rule, nothing further is done for several years. Every park worthy of notice has gone through a period of development and upon a sensible, well outlined plan. If a pavilion is present it does not occupy the center as though it were always to be the chief attraction, but is at one side, sheltered by trees and rendered as obtrusive as possible. Natural grades and vegetation should be preserved so far as practicable, the latter in all cases to a full size. Pathways should be nearly direct, yet have slight natural curves set off by shrubbery. Seats should be provided, not in a pavilion, but under shade trees.

The "square" should not be considered as a common to be cut up as a place for recreation and rest. Do not have the effect one of conventionality, smacking of the market place and the public drinking fountain, but have a quiet, restful wilderness, far as possible, with town life all about. If you have money to spend for flowers, don't use it to put in a giant and costly bed of plants to spell "Podunk," but have them naturally disposed where they may be enjoyed and not subject for wonder and amazement. Moreover, if the traveler is in any doubt as to where he is, doubtless he would ask if interested. Certainly the average town square will in nowise prove attractive.

INDIA'S HORRORS TOLD

Rev. Minor Wilbur, of Trenton, Gave Graphic Description to First Baptists.

IN AN ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

Priests Shockingly Immoral and Degrading Worse—Women An Abused Lot In That Land.

"Inglorious and Glorious India" was vividly pictured and described in an illustrated lecture given at the First Baptist church, last night, by Rev. Minor Wilbur, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Trenton. The service was held under the auspices of the Young People's Association and was largely attended. Mr. Wilbur is a warm personal friend of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, having been a member of the latter's church at Charleston, S. C., many years ago.

The many fine views displayed by Mr. Wilbur were taken by himself on his trip around the world. They described the beauties of the many large temples in India, erected at fabulous cost and pictured the primitive method of travel. The speaker explained the great difference in the character of the people living in the lowlands and the highlands. Those of the lowlands being indolent and lazy, while those of the highlands are bright and vivacious.

During his remarks Dr. Wilbur gave an impressive description of the life and customs of child marriages. He declared that the degradation of the women of India begins at birth. After her marriage she completely loses her identity, being bound to her husband and subject to his every will and whim. If he goes on a journey she is compelled to live in solitary confinement until his return. In referring to the social vices of India he said that they are ever increasing. A widow loses everything upon the death of her husband but only permitted to eat once in twenty-four hours. If she should marry again all of her property would be confiscated.

An interesting part of the talk was in regard to the intelligence of the elephants in the performance of hard labor in India. Mr. Wilbur said that they displayed almost human intelligence in the handling of heavy logs.

Pictures showing the beautiful parts of India and the great engineering skill in the building of railroads were much enjoyed. The speaker also dwelt at some length on the religious life in India, explaining the many queer customs and errors in the religious beliefs of the natives. In this respect Mr. Wilbur said that morality and religion do not go hand in hand. One form of worship described was that of the monkey, the cow and the goat, all of which be sacred. He referred to the morality of the priests as shocking beyond description.

The speaker gave a brief account of the work of the Baptist societies in India by the missionaries, especially of the Baptist seminaries and mission stations, and described the delight of the natives upon the receipt of a box or barrel from American churches. While the pictures showing the borders of the country impressed all, Mr. Wilbur presented the more hopeful side which afforded much encouragement to those interested in mission work in that country.

FEINBERG TO BE HEAD OF THIS ORGANIZATION.

An organization to be known as "Union Lodge, No. 210, Ancient and Accepted, Scottish Rite, Free Masons," will be formed here by Henry Bean, of New York, on Thursday night. In a letter for publication Mr. Bean says that "two score of leading business men have made application for membership" and that "those who join now secure the advantages offered by dispensation, paying only the lodge dues of $6 yearly, and saving the usual initiation fee." Members of the Masonic order say they have no knowledge of this order.

Mr. Munhall to Speak Here.

Dr. L. W. Munhall, of Philadelphia, known as the greatest of living evangelists, will be the speaker at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. next Sunday afternoon. Dr. Munhall has made 160,000 converts in his thirty-five years of evangelistic work, and is a powerful speaker. Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotus Glee Club, will sing at the meeting and Martin A. Korff will have charge of the instrumental music.

Plans for Masquerade.

Plans are well under way for the masquerade ball to be given by the Gesang and Turn Vereins in Saengerbund Hall next Monday night. Delegations from the Orion Society, of Newark, and the Quadrach Singing Society, of Newark, will be present. The committee in charge of the affair includes Louis Ortlieb, chairman; Otto Keller, John Schrupp, Charles Meyer, Jr., and Frank Siedler.

GRADS FOR SCHOLARSHIP

P. H. S. Alumni Association May Aid Deserving Pulils in Obtaining High Education.

ALL OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

President Titsworth Makes Encouraging Report—Membership 168 and Funds $770.67.

Stimulating the interest in the Plainfield High School Alumni Association by planning for the enlargement of the association and outlining a scheme for scholarship aid for high school graduates. President A. L. Titsworth made the formal report of the year for the school alumni at the annual meeting of the association held in the High school auditorium Saturday night. Officers for the coming year were elected and a committee of the alumni chosen to promote the interests of the organization. At the conclusion of the meeting, dancing was enjoyed until midnight. The affair proved a social success as well as a means of bringing together about 150 of the school alumni.

In an informal speech before the alumni, A. L. Titsworth, president of the association, who was re-elected for the year, spoke of the work accomplished since the meeting a year ago. He emphasized the point that the association should not exist merely for selfish social interests and suggested a plan of scholarship aid. In this connection, he said:

"To be true to the principles of our high school training, we should look beyond ourselves and become absorbed in an effort to do for others. With this end in view, your committee has aimed to give us this definite purpose (scholarship aid) to which our funds may be devoted. We are thus desirous of increasing our alumni fund to a point where the income from it will be ample enough to be an incentive to some worthy young man or woman as a means for securing a course of study in one of our higher educational institutions.

"The records of our secretary show that there are 681 living graduates of the Plainfield High School, of whom 268 are members of our association. Our fund amounts to $770.67. I would make an appeal for an increase in membership. With this unselfish aim in view, let us express our gratitude to our earliest Alma Mater, the Plainfield High School, to the extent at least of joining the association and thereby increasing our fund for scholarship aid.

The treasurer's report, read by Franklin S. Smith, who was re-elected to the office, showed that the balance on hand is $770.67. The receipts, with $702.92 as a balance at the beginning of the year, amounted to $953.80, while the expenses reached $141.13.

Aside from the re-elections of president and secretary-treasurer, A. McClain Parker was re-elected vice-president. The general committee has been enlarged to include S. S. Burr, '70; W. M. Stillman, '72; Miss A. W. Marsh, '73; Miss Josie M. Utter, '74; W. D. Murray, '75; W. M. McGee, '76; T. Rushmore, '77; Mrs. John Ulrich, '78; Mrs. C. F. French, '79; R. Henry Bepew, '80; Mrs. B. H. Hatch, '81; G. M. Kirkner, '82; Mrs. L. L. Bass, '83; Miss S. L. Bass, '84; Mrs. I. M. Wyckoff, '85; Miss F. R. Petrie, '86; E. T. Perine, '88; Miss L. D. Wenzel, '89; W. W. Coriell, 90; Mrs. P. S. Suffern, '91; Mrs. S. D. Williams, '92; Mrs. G. McNeil Force, '93; C. M. Hall, '94; Morse, '95; Dr. F. W. Cornwall, '96; Miss J. Egan, '97; H. W. Brower, '98; Miss Helen Lovell, '99; Mrs. William Buckalew, '00; Miss E. L. Titsworth, '01; C. B. LaRue, '02; W. B. Mills, '03; Miss M. J. Spicer, '04; T. P. Gavett, '05; Miss Antoinette Aalholm, '06, and Miss Florence Prior, '07.

There were eighteen dances on the card, and the music was furnished by Miss Mabel Maxson, pianist; Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson, violinist, and Dr. Leon Prochnow, violinist. Supper was served at tables in the school gymnasium, and was in charge of B. W. Evans, as caterer. There were about 100 couples on the floor. The general committee in charge of the affair consisted of Charles B. Morse, chairman; Mrs. E. H. Patterson, Mrs. C. F. French and Dr. Norman H. Probasco.

Hotel Keeper Fined $250.

William Rapp, the Lincoln hotel keeper who was convicted of selling liquor on Sundays, was fined $250 before Judge Boorasem at New Brunswick, Friday, and fined $250. Rapp's counsel, Peter F. Daly, made a strong plea for clemency based on the defendant's army record and the court stated that this had been taken into consideration. Judge Boorasem stated afterward that in the future it would be his policy to impose prison sentences for violations of the excise law.

No Vulgarity.

"You inherited quite a nice little fortune," said the lawyer.

"Yes," replied the fortunate youth. "I suppose you will play a lot of your debts now?"

"I had thought of it, but I concluded to make no change in my manner of living. I don't want to be accused of vulgar display."

ON "THE OPEN CHURCH"

Rev. Abel C. McCrea Depicts the Religious Organization of Future Times.

DOCTRINES NOW TOO NARROW.

The Ideal Brotherly Love That Will Draw Men to Christ—Many Shortcomings of the Church of Today.

The Church of the future as he would like to see it and for good matter as multitudes of others would too, furnished the theme of Rev. A. C. McCrea's sermon at the First M. E. church last night. "The Open Church" was the topic and Mr. McCrea had this to say about it:

"It is not my purpose tonight to speak of any church in particular, nor to criticise any organization existing in this city. I am merely going to set forth some characteristics of church government which, if true to act, I would incorporate for the formation of what, to my mind, would be the open church. There are some features of the government of my own church which are not, to my mind, ideal, and which should be modified to secure the best religious interests of the community. My ideal of religion is a church with the doors very wide open—open to all mankind.

"And this is the spirit of my text, taken from Revelations, 21: 25: 'And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day, for there shall be no night.' This means that the church is always open, and is symbolic of my ideal of the open church. The text depicts the New Jerusalem—the Bride and chosen Church of Jesus Christ. The open gate is a characteristic of the New Jerusalem and, I believe, should by typical of the Open Church here on earth.

"The open church should be a church of the most reasonable rule or rules. Some church rules, enacted even in recent times, seem to react as bars to keep the people out. They are in the way of a free admission to the communion service, as some people interpret them, and I often have to explain away these rules by a liberal interpretation of their principles, to get people to feel free to come and partake of the Holy Supper.

"Especially would I speak of Rule 248 of the church discipline in this connection. I don't believe that many in this congregation know what this rule is. In fact, if I were to take a vote of this congregation, I could easily prove this, for I don't believe that many members even have a copy of the church discipline. This rule is one of those that can't be left interpreted by our church, but I would not insist on its enforcement for I believe it is an unreasonable rule. The open Church would not have such a rule. The first part of this rule 248 provides that no church members shall use liquor immoderately, or work for the cause of license, is, I believe, all right. But there is a list of seasures quoted in it, which are forbidden to members of the church. These include dancing and card playing. No such provisions as that would characterize the discipline of the Open Church. John Wesley modified this rule, but it is a barrier to communicants, who even today interpret it literally.

"If we are to have the Open Church let us have reasonable rules. Every church has its rules, and they may be necessary, but when a man has the courage of his own convictions and the influence of the spirit of Christ the Master, there is no need of petty regulations to guide him. What we want is to infuse the spirit of self government into the heart of man and let him form his own rules.

"The second characteristic of the Open Church, as I speak to it, is one that deals with the doctrine and teachings. These ought to be preeminently scriptural, rather than philosophical, as they seem to be in the present day. The age is the creed has passed. The Christian of today want statements of the truth of Christ, not statements of the church councils. There is a growing tendency by the average man to conform to the statements of the Bible, and the Open Church is the one that lays emphasis on the statements of the Bible.

"I have always felt that the formality of the constant repetition of the creed is almost as good as time thrown away. A question whether many people think of what they are saying when they repeat the creed, constant repitition doesn't mean very much. We have grown away from it. The Christian today woes not want to know what the author of the Creed meant, he wants to know what God means.

"The third characteristic of the Open Church has to do with worship. The Open Church will have a worship that is a simple, scriptural devotional service. I believe that extreme complicity ought to be the principal characteristic of the Open Church as it is the characteristic of the teaching of St. Paul in the early church. St. Paul was the church, when he talked to the people, and he taught the scripture of Jesus Christ. Our ritual is too complicated, and loses much by the elaborate form.

"We now have the institutional church in some of our cities. This is new, and has done marvelous works, but is it not to my mind, the Open Church, and I should deplore anything like it in this city. It has its place in the work of peculiar localities, such as the lower East Side of New York, but is not the church for the frontier or for China.

"The Open Church is the church that will reach all, the small church that holds forth the plain teachings of God's word and presents opportunity for spiritual worship. This is my ideal of the Open Church, and such a church would be better than the magnificent cathedral with all its ritual and pomp. All who believe in the Open Church believe in the open Bible and in missions. But the missionary cannot carry with him any ritual. All he can take in the journeys among the heathen is the Bible. The Open Church that is going to reach all people must be ready to adopt the simple form of service, such as a Christian man can conduct in his home. Many of our churches have produced little else and are as the ideal is sometimes lost in the mass of ritual. This true worship cannot come in the cathedral, but must be the simple form of worship.

"The last characteristic of the Open Church I shall mention is a membership that gives and is in general fraternity, and this is the best of all, I think. When a man comes into the church, there should be a general manifestation of fraternal spirit. That is not the magnificent building, which is nothing that would prevent the redemption of this world for Jesus Christ in the world today if every one who had the spirit of God would turn and open his heart to his brother. If this were done, you couldn't build churches big enough. In this sort of Christianity would be the true Open Church, which would be just as much open as the gates of the celestial city, the New Jerusalem. These, I take it, are at least four characteristics of what we call the Open Church."

TOWN PUBLICITY BUREAU.

Persistent Bugling Calls Attention to Local Opportunities.

The town publicity bureau is a development of recent years. There are many cities and a considerable number of smaller towns throughout the United States new which maintain regular bureaus for the purpose of making the outside world acquainted with the place concerned. Each of these is Atlantic City, N. J. Secretary G. S. Lenhart of the Atlantic City publicity bureau has issued his second annual report. It contains facts and figures which prove conclusively that it pays to push a town.

Last year more than 3,000 persons called at the bureau headquarters to get information. Eighty-five State and national conventions were held in Atlantic City through the efforts of the publicity bureau. More than thirty-one public events were pulled off by the bureau's co-operation, each attracting thousands of people to the town.

Atlantic City of course is a seashore resort and consequently a particularly favorable locality for town booming which the average town lacks, but almost any wide awake town may attract attention to itself and incidentally help itself to the good things of this world by blowing its own bugle systematically and persistently. It is always wise to employ the right kind of bugler, one who knows his business.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A cup of strong coffee will remove the odor of onions from the breath.

Bathing in salt water tones up the skin and gives it a fresh, wholesome color.

For corns take equal parts of lard and quinine and mix thoroughly. Apply at night.

Hot water is better than cold for bruises. It relieves pain quickly and will prevent discoloration.

Stewed rhubarb has a well known medicinal value besides being a complexion beautifier. It is said to be valuable for rheumatic troubles.

Eggs are considered one of the best remedies for dysentery. Beaten up slightly and swallowed they tend to lessen the inflammation of stomach and intestines.

In even severe attacks of colic a teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a cupful of cold water has been known to give immediate relief. The same dose will revive a person who has been stunned by a heavy fall if he can be forced to swallow.

A teaspoonful of ground mustard in a cupful of warm water is a prompt and reliable emetic and should never be taken in cases of poisoning or cramps from overeating. Powdered resin is the best thing to stop bleeding from cuts.

Never Took the Hint.

Jackson—Well, what did your wife say to you when you got home so late last night? You know you're always scolded. Fairleigh—My wife's a jewel. She didn't scold a bit. In fact, she didn't even ask me where I had been or what had delayed me; but, late as it was, she sat down at the piano and began to play and sing. I tell you she's one in ten thousand. Jackson—What did she sing? Fairleigh—"Tell Me the Old, Old Story."

FUN LEADS TO SHOOTING STATION AGENT PLACED ON R.R.'S RETIRED LIST

VICTIM IS IN THE HOSPITAL.

Clarence Drake, Who Held the Weapon, Released in $500 Bail—Says It Was Accidental.

Drake summoned the ambulance after the shooting and then surrendered to the police. He was detained at headquarters and this morning Judge William N. Tallman held him in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The magistrate secured Mulford's statement at the hospital last night and the stories from both sides concur in the assertion that the affair was accidental. The version of the shooting given by the police is to the effect that Mulford entered the station and began sky-larking. He was told to desist by Drake but continued his capers and pretended to pour oil on a pile of Sunday newspapers as if he was going to burn them. The two then scuffled about and Mulford eventually reached down in a desk drawer where he knew Drake kept a revolver. This led to more running and jumping as the weapon was flourished and in a clinch it passed into Drake's hands.

Mulford ran out of the front door as the young agent announced in a bantering way that he would shoot unless the fooling was stopped and after going a short distance looked around. He saw Drake standing in the doorway pointing the weapon at him and then ran again. The next instant a report rang out. He felt a sting in the right side and dropping to the ground yelled that he had been shot.

Drake thought he was fooling and only laughed but Mulford repeated that the bullet had struck him and his frightened appearance bore out the assertion. Dropping the pistol, Drake assisted him to the station and sent a hurry call for the ambulance. He said afterward that he had fired the pistol purely in fun and that he had no idea the bullet would strike Mulford.

Drake is the son of Charles F. Drake, of West Third street, who has been employed for many years at the Commercial Mills. He is one of the youngest station agents employed by the company and only a short time ago was a messenger at the North Avenue station.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The monthly musical service was held in the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster. The quartet choir, Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jassamine Burd, contralto; F. C. Ingleheart, Jr., baritone, and E. D. Cutting, tenor, was assisted by Elmer P. Wheeler, flutist, and Miss Alice C. Miller, pianist. The service was attended by a large congregation and the following program was greatly enjoyed:

Trio, "Largo," Handel, piano, organ flute; anthem, "Softly Now the Light," Niedlinger; soprano solo, "I Know that My Redeemer," from "Messiah;" flute solo, "Because," from Jocelyn, Godard; anthem, "Savior Like a Shepherd," Niedlinger; baritone solo, "Lord God of Abraham," from "Elijah;" soprano and contralto duet, "Calm as the Night," "Gatse; trio, "Cavatina," Raff, trio, piano and organ.

Funeral of Civil War Veteran.

A delegation of twenty members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., attended the funeral of William Ayers, the Civil War veteran who died Friday morning at Dunellen. The funeral service was at his late home on Main street, Dunellen and was conducted by Rev. E. C. Dutcher, pastor of the Dunellen Methodist church, who spoke feelingly of the life of service of Mr. Ayers. There were many floral tributes, including a handsome piece from the POST. The pall-bearers were: William Ayers, Fred Wenzel, J. W. Fink, H. C. Smith, William Hand and F. Pennington. The interment was at Hillside cemetery.

An Old-Fashioned Social.

The Men's Club and the Young Men's Club of Hope chapel joined forces Friday night and conducted an old-fashioned Hope social. The program included vocal solos by the Misses Edna and Eunice Eckert, Harold Browning and Harold Farrow; addresses by E. W. Travell and G. Herbert Condict and piano and vocal selections by Mrs. L. R. Howard. A basketball game was afterward given in the gym.

MISS HULL'S ROMANCE

Plainfield Woman to Wed Gen. William Booth's Aid in the Salvation Army.

SHE RANKS AS A MAJOR.

Ceremony to Take Place in London —Bride-elect Once Active in First Baptist Church Here.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Anne Vanderpoel Hull, formerly of North Plainfield, and Commissioner Randolph Sturgess, one of the highest ranking officers in the Salvation Army. Miss Hull is the daughter of the late John Hull, who resided on Grove street, in the borough. The family were active members in the First Baptist church.

Miss Hull, who now holds the title of Major in the Salvation Army, joined the army twelve years ago, while a resident of this city. Soon afterward she entered the army training school in New York, and she showed such marked ability in that line of work that she has been kept in the training school ever since.

Three years ago, when she was a captain, Miss Hull was sent to London to take charge of the school there, and while in that work she met Commissioner Sturgess, who had charge of all the social work of the army in Great Britain. He is fifty years old and has been an army officer for twenty years. He was a railroad official before entering the army. The marriage will take place in London tomorrow.

There is only one grade, that of chief of staff, between Commissioner Sturgess and General Booth, the commander in chief. He has recently been private secretary to the chief of staff, who is General Booth's son Bramwell.

"DUTCH" IDES' SLAYER RETAINS A LAWYER

Patrolman John F. Weber, of Newark, who shot and killed Frank Ides, alias "Dutch" Ides, a notorious criminal, early Saturday morning at Frelinghuysen avenue and Fenwick street, in that city, has retained former Senator Michael T. Harrett as his counsel. The policeman has been on suspension since the shooting, though he has not been detained at the station house. He has remained at his home.

Little blame is now attached to Weber for the shooting. That the killing was an accident there seems to be little doubt. The finding of a revolver three feet from the place where the dead man was picked up indicate that if he had had a chance Ides would have used it on the officer.

While trying to evade arrest, Frank Ides, alias "Jesse James," an escaped convict, for whom a reward of $250 was offered by the Rahway Reformatory authorities, was shot and killed in Newark by Patrolman John H. Weber early Sunday. The scene of the shooting was just north of the Elizabeth city line, in Frelinghuysen avenue.

"COUNTESS" DE ANDERSON NOW ADMITS THAT SHE SWINDLED.

Mrs. Mary De Anderson, who has been in the Essex county jail with her two daughters since January 16, charged with swindling Astley tradesmen, pleaded non vult to two charges of obtaining goods under false pretenses and one allegation of larceny in the quarter sessions court at Newark Friday. The woman was remanded to jail for sentence March 2.

It is set forth in the false pretense charges that November 16 the woman got $15 worth of meat from Frederick Seidter, of Nutley, and that November 23 she obtained $5 worth of groceries from Charles R. Bedell, of 472 Franklin avenue. The larceny allegation is to the effect that on October 23 she stole kindling wood valued at $50 belonging to Mrs. Olive N. Elliott, from whom Mrs. De Anderson rented the house she occupied in Nutley.

Mrs. De Anderson was taken from the jail to the court house about 10 a. m. She remained seated until after 12 o'clock awaiting the arrival of her counsel, Jarvis N. Atkinson, of Jersey City, before entering her plea of non vult. Excepting a few minutes while she was conversing with her counsel Mrs. De Anderson kept her face veiled.

The woman's two daughters, Elizabeth, 19 years old, and Florence, 18 years old, who were arrested with her and locked up as witnesses, will probably be released in a few days. The three were taken into custody by sheriff's constable at the Elliott house on the complaint of Nutley tradesmen.

Mrs. De Anderson has had various cognomens. Since her arrest she has declared her real name is Mary Wheeling, the one she went by while living in Nutley. She is best known as "Mrs. Mary McCarton" and has had a remarkable career. According to the authorities she has piled up many debts in various cities of the country.

Ralph Martin Surprised.

Twenty-five of his young friends surprised Ralph Martin, son of Horace J. Martin, Sr., at his home on Duer street Saturday night. The affair was planned by the Misses Edna Oliver and Edith Richards. The evening was passed with games and later refreshments were served.

Secret of Failure.

The secret of most men's failure is mental dissipation, wandering energies, squandering energies upon a distracting variety of objects instead of condensing them into one.—London Chat.

RECTOR WARNER DESCRIBES JUDGE BEN LINDSAY'S WORK.

In an informal address before the members of the Holy Cross Club at their meeting Saturday night, Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, spoke of some personal impressions of Judge Ben Lindsay, who is to lecture here in the spring. The meeting was held in the parish house and there were about a hundred people present.

Mr. Warner dwelt especially upon the personality of the "Kid's Judge" as shown in his boyish face, kindly, quizzical eyes and democratic spirit in dealing with boys. He spoke of what the Judge has done in the West toward preventing crime among the called "incorrigible" boys. He holds the parents in many cases responsible for the moral downfall of the "kids," and has secured legislation which will make fathers and mothers liable. Through his work as Judge, he has secured better accommodations for the lads in the formation of a society with a scope that of the Gerry Society of New York. He has a system of school and business probation, and co-operates with teachers and employers.

The Judge emphasizes the sense of honor and loyalty to one another among the boys brought before him, and characterizes these as the two most prominent traits in a boy's character. The aversion to "squealing" or telling on a fellow participated in the petty crimes on which boys are brought before him shows the boys' loyalty between themselves.

At the conclusion of Mr. Warner's remarks, an informal dance was held in the parish house, and later refreshments were served. The affair was in charge of the entertainment committee of the club, of which Will Little is chairman.

UNITED STATES' POSSESSION IN THE TURKISH EMPIRE.

Located in the heart of the Turkish Empire, where it is surrounded by all the mystery and obscurity of the Orient, is a piece of American territory, although this fact is not generally known to Americans. This to this spot of ground is held by the United States Government and it is just as much a part of the United States' possessions as if it were located in the heart of the city of Plainfield.

This is but one of the interesting points to be described by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in his lecture from "The Equator to the Artic Circle," at Warren chapel Thursday night, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. Mr. Ackerman has several fine pictures of Oriental life, among them being a photograph of the Sultan on his way to church. This important occasion which requires the services of about 10,000 troops is very interestingly described by Mr. Ackerman.

ACTING-PASTOR JOHNSON ON CIVIC RIGHTEOUSNESS.

In observing of the 176th anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, a strong patriotic sermon was delivered at Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning by Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson. The learned divine took for his theme "Civic Righteousness," the text being "Righteousness Exalteth a Nation; but Sin is a Reproach to any People," Prov. 14-23.

Dr. Johnson also addressed the Sunday-school in the afternoon, when he again referred to Washington and Lincoln. He impressed upon the members of the school the importance of giving their hearts to Christ and uniting with the church. He spoke more especially to those who might be seriously considering the step and who are wavering. The earnest words of the doctor held the close attention of everyone throughout.

MRS. F. DE LACEY HYDE GIVES A DINNER PARTY.

A charming dinner was given by Mrs. Francis DeLacey Hyde, of Mountain avenue, Saturday night, in honor of Miss Marie Reese, of Baltimore, N. C., and Augustus D. Shepard, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, of "The Gables," whose engagement was recently announced, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Livingston Hyde, who recently returned from their wedding trip.

Covers were laid for twelve, including chiefly the immediate members of the family. The occasion was made appropriate to the day through elaborate decoration of the national colors. Appropriate favors were also given the guests.

Miss Reese and Mr. Shepard have been spending several days at The Gables, which has afforded the opportunity of meeting many of Mr. Shepard's friends here.

Insurance Man Transferred.

S. J. Robinson, who has been the local superintendent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, has been transferred to Quincy, Mass., where he will hold a similar position with the company. His place here has been taken by H. A. McClintock, formerly superintendent of the company's office at Waterbury, Conn.

Granted a Pension.

Henry L. Southard, of this city, has been notified that he has been granted a pension of $12 a month for honorable service in the Civil War. He also receives back pension amounting to $128.

NEW BRUNSWICK THEATRE MANAGER MAKES A BIG KICK.

Samuel C. Miller, manager of the New Brunswick opera house, is one of the theatrical men lobbying at Trenton against the bill now pending which is intended to keep children away from the theatres. He declares that if the bill becomes a law the theatre managers of the State will live up to the letter of the law and will prohibit everyone under 16 years of age from their playhouses, whether accompanied by parents or not.

He says that it is not fair to make managers vouch for the parentage of children. Under the proposed law, he says, a man might meet a boy on the street, offer to take him to the theatre and then the boy's parents could cause the arrest of the manager for violating the law. The only safe way would be to prohibit all children, and he feels that if that is done the law would become so unpopular that it would be repealed.

WILSON MEMORIAL NOW EIGHTEEN YEARS OLD

In celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of its dedication, the members of the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel had special programs at the sessions Sunday afternoon and Sundty night. The attendances were very large, the occasion serving to bring back many of those who had been identified with the congregation in former years.

In the afternoon, Superintendent E. S. Ackor was in charge and gave an address in which he spoke of the future possibilities of the chapel and its encouraging work and asked the help of those present to bring it about. William Henry Rogers spoke of the early history of the Sunday-school which, he stated, was started fifty years ago in the old Washington-ville school house. He told of the many efficient superintendents who had devoted their best energies to making it a success and an influence in the community and how in course of time the school house was outgrown. The work then had assumed such proportions that it needed much larger quarters and the beautiful chapel now standing became the Sunday-school's home through the generosity of Colonel John F. Wilson. It bears the name of his wife who in life was a worker in the Master's cause.

George W. Winans spoke of the pleasant memories that remained of the work in the old school-house and how it led up to the work in the beautiful memorial chapel; beautiful not only in architecture but because many had received the light of Gospel within its walls. A class of girls from the Sunday-school sang two hymns and prayer was offered by chapel membership.

In the evening former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough gave an address on the "American Flag: its Founder, George Washington, and defender, Abraham Lincoln." Musical selections were given by George and Alfred Sperling and at the close the congregation united in singing "America."

The chapel desk was draped with the Stars and Stripes while a bank of potted plants in full bloom below it added further charm to the attractive interior of the building.

VOICE FOR LOGAL OPTION

Swedish Evangelical Pilgrim Pastor Tells of the Evils of the Liquor Traffic.

DEMAND FOR LEGISLATION.

Says It Is a Christian Duty to Prevent Men From Becoming Drunkards—Stirring Address on Intemperance.

Rev. Theodore Englund, pastor of the Swedish Evangelical Pilgrim church, last night, gave a talk on local option. He took a firm stand against the liquor traffic and said incidently:

"I have been asked to present the very important subject of temperance reform and what is being done and ought to be done in regard to it in our State. I do not hesitate to say, though some people may think contrarly, that the minister is best qualified to speak upon this subject. There is no doubt but that he sees it in the right and the people ought to take his advice for their own good.

"In the first place I venture to say that the intemperance or drink evil is a great and awful foe to humanity, a merciless monster who crushes many a strong and good man and woman to ruin and drags the weak and innocent with him. This awful foe is among us and we have to bid him to come and be with us, and we have not driven him out from our communities. We are still offering some of our best gifts to him and get shame and curse in return.

"It is an outrage that we as citizens and voters should not have a right to say whether we want such places. But they are thrust upon us with or against our will. It shall not be so if we use aright the power vested in us as a self-governing people. Therefore do I say let us wake up to our duty and do all in our power to make good for the time we have neglected it. Let us do it in the right way through legislation and we shall surely be victorious.

"I hear some people say that the rum traffic must be stopped because people want it and will have it whether there is law against it or not. This is altogether false, for people do not want that which is bad and harmful for them, and if some are weak enough and wicked enough to want it they shall not have it with the consent of the law. If there are some old drunkards, who have perhaps been born drunkards and lived as drunkards and are bound to die as such, it is awfully sad and cannot be helped. But we can help that others are drawn in to the same curse from time to time. I am convinced that it would be far better for people if there were no intoxicating drinks and no one would want any.

"Let the working people wake up and see that their worst foe is the saloon. This can be proved by facts and figures. They do not need strong drink and therefore we want to take it out of their way when they do not understand to do it themselves. I hope the working people will be better paid but I do hope that the saloon shall not rob them of what they do get in the first place.

"Why should we pay out so much money for such stuff which does us no good but much evil? The great talk which we hear to the effect that the poor people need the beer is a false one and is for the liquor dealers interests. Let the poor people and others keep their money with which they buy beer and drink water and they will be better off. As a food beer is not worth one cent a glass and still people are willing to pay five. This is waisting money and they cannot afford that. Beer is no good to them except to keep them poor. Let us bear this in mind and work accordingly for the uplift and betterment of the poor by protecting them from this fiend, the drink evil, first and not allow them to be robbed first and then help them a bit afterwards.

"Let us all join in a demand for reform along these lines and pray that we may have a local option law in this State. Let us do it for the sake of humanity in God's name."

Wire Stringing in Streets.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has handed down a decision which will stop telephone, lighting and other public utility corporations from mutilating street trees by cutting out the tops, says the Los Angeles Times. Streets are not laid out or contemplated from a consideration of these companies, nor should such corporations be given any hearing where their interests conflict with those of the masses. Wires of all kinds should be strung only under three conditions —viz., in alleys or on rear property lines; fifty feet above the street, later to be put under ground, or placed in subterranean conduits at the outset. Eventually all companies must bow to these or similar restrictions.

Attraction for Usher's Benefit.

"Busy Izzy's Doodle," with George Sidney playing lead, has been secured as the annual benefit performance for the ushers of the New Plainfield theatre. The date set is Friday night, April 3. The attraction is a musical comedy and is said to be an exceptionally strong road company.

To Give "The Holy City."

The joint choirs of the Westfield Presbyterian church and the First M. E. church will render Gaul's oratorio, "The Holy City," at the local church next Sunday evening, under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, choirmaster of the First M. E. church. In the afternoon, the oratorio will be given at the Westfield church. The soloists will be Miss Bertha Van N. Willis, soprano; Miss Suzanne Zimmerman, contralto; H. Rayland Loder, baritone, and J. Edmund Skiff, tenor. Miss Lillian Baillie will be at the organ, and Mrs. Harry Taylor will furnish a piano obligato.

Robbery at Avon Park.

During their absence at church Saturday morning, the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Randolph, at Central and Maple avenues, Avon Park, was entered by burglars. Several dollars in money, one gold watch and two silver watches were taken. The robbery was discovered until Mr. and Mrs. Randolph returned from church. The found the front door wide open and an investigation showed that the thieves had effected an entrance through a window. It is believed that that work was that of persons well acquainted with the habits of the family.

Marion Blair Injured.

Marion Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Blair, of Duer street, received a painful cut over the eye on Tuesday night, the result of mischievous play on the part of some boys who were throwing snowballs. One of them made of ice was hurled at the young girl and in striking her face inflicted a cut over the eye. For a time she suffered greatly from the injury, which called for the prompt application of home remedies. Fortunately, the eye was not injured.

NO MORE STORM SEWERS

Councilmanic Street Committee Not Willing to Expend Money for Purpose Now.

BECAUSE OF OTHER EXPENSES.

Many Big Improvements Along Other Lines Will Take All the Funds That Can Be Spared for Some Time.

The question of building storm sewers in the city was again discussed at a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee Thursday, but with no definite result. Mr. Tyler urged that such a sewer be built in Plainfield ave. this year, but the majority of the members expressed the opinion that when the city decides to expend money for storm sewers, it should plan on installing a general system, one that will take care of the whole town.

The idea of installing a sewer in Plainfield avenue and another one in the East End of the city was considered to be altogether too expensive, and the chances are that no work of this character will be undertaken this year, at least.

Many other improvements are planned for this year which will entail considerable expense. It is proposed to erect a new building for the police department, which together with the purchase of a site will aggregate a cost of at least $30,000. Then possibly additional fire protection may be given the East End of the city which, according to the present idea will include the erection of a fire house to be equipped with an engine and other necessary fire-fighting equipment. There is also a scheme in the air to build a new school house in West End in the vicinity of West Front street and Clinton avenue at a cost of approximately $50,000.

If these improvements go through it will be about all that the Common Council will care to undertake, it is said, and the expenditure of any great sum for storm sewers is not likely to be received with favor by the present Council.

When the adjourned meeting of the city fathers is held Monday night plans for the new police headquarters drawn by Tracy & Swartout will be submitted for approval. They have passed inspection by the police board and that body is so well pleased with the arrangements that it feels warranted in asking the Common Council to pass on them.

DUNELLEN PUPILS RECEIVE PRIZE MEDALS

A feature of the Washington's Birthday exercises at the Whittier School, Dunellen, Friday, was the presentation of "Liberty Bell medals" to seven of the pupils of the grammar grades for excellence of work in the recent school examinations and for deportment for the past half year. The medals were offered by Morris Selz, a Chicago shoe manufacturer and philanthropist. Those who received the medals were Miss Jessie Stites, eighth grade; Lloyd Smith, seventh grade; Miss Florence Gray, sixth grade; Miss Dorothy Shaefer, fifth grade; Grandin Neighbor, fourth grade; Miss Helen Messeroll, third grade; Miss Sarah Watson, second grade.

President A. F. Todd, of the Dunellen Board of Education, presented the medals, after a short address commending the winners for conscientious work. Rev. George W. Gardner, pastor of the First Baptist church, of New Market, made the address of the day, and singing by the pupils was a feature of the holiday program.

Mr. Selz, who offered the medals, gives them as a stimulus for proficiency and excellence in deportment to many schools all over the country. Superintendent Messerell, whose daughter, Miss Helen Messerell, is one of the winners of a medal, accepted the Chicago man's philanthropic offer, and a number of the medals were sent on. It is probable now that the award of these medals will become a permanent institution in the Dunellen schools, for Mr. Selz has arranged to make similar awards at the conclusion of the school term in June. The "Liberty Bell medals" he designed by Mr. Selz himself, and he has built a special factory in the West for their manufacture and offers them to public schools at large.

The Difference.

"When a man's engaged to a girl," said Miss Singleton, "his idea of good hours is to stay from 8 o'clock until any time after midnight."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Bridey, "and even after marriage the hours are the same. The only difference is that one case they are hours 'with her' and in the other 'away from her.'"—Philadelphia Press.

MT. OLIVE PASTOR IS GIVEN A SURPRISE

A surprise donation party was tendered to Rev. M. A. Alexander, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, at his home, 218 Liberty street, Thursday. The affair was the largest and most successful one given during the present pastorate. About seventy-five members of the church and congregation attended. The company met at the home of A. S. Venable on West Third street and from there proceeded to the parsonage, carrying with them $20 worth of groceries and a purse of $22.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. A. S. Venable, Mrs. Albert Atkins, Mrs. William Burton, and Mrs. Archchie Jones. The purse was presented to Mr. Alexander by Mrs. A. S. Venable, while the groceries were given to Mrs. Alexander by Mrs. William Burton. The serving of refreshments was in charge of Mrs. Albert Atkins.

The evening was spent with vocal and instrumental music furnished by Miss Viola Jones. The address by the pastor was in appreciation of the donation on the part of his people and was encouraging. Mrs. Alexander also added a few words of thanks.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Venable, Mr. and Mrs. William Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. DeHart, Mrs. William Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. William Jetter, Mr. and Mrs. Benn, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Webly, Mrs. H. ROSELLE DEFEATS ELIZABETH BOWLERS

The final match in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament was rolled Thursday between Roselle Casino and the Elizabeth Club, the former taking two of the three games. As a result the Park Club was the championship. Mr. S. Largin of two games. This makes two legs that the Parks have won on the trophy offered by the Elizabeth Journal and another one will given them permanent possession of the cup.

A large delegation of members from the Park Club witnessed last night's match and joined in the cheering for Roselle. If the county seat boys had taken the series it would have tied them with the Parks for the trophy. The local team was especially strong this season under the leadership of Captain F. O. Ball and the scores have been above the average. The team was composed of F. O. Ball, Ray Lyman, Edwin Daniel, Monroe Long and Charles Barlow.

The officers of the league will set a time for a meeting soon, when the scores for the season will be computed and the various prizes awarded. The first prize, a silver trophy, presented by the Elizabeth Journal, is to be held by the winner each season until won three times, when it shall become the permanent property of the winning club. In addition team prizes are offered, the first being valued at $20 and the second at $10. The individual prizes include first prize, highest average, $15; second highest average, $10; third highest average, $5, and high score prize valued at $5. To qualify for average prizes twenty-four games must be rolled, three of which must be the last three games of the schedule. It is possible that when the prizes are awarded the Parks will entertain the clubs in the league, according to the custom.

The Useful Sewing Apron.

The woman who does her own sewing will find that if she will make a sewing apron with a pocket across the bottom about ten inches deep, and wear it when using the sewing machine she will be saved much time. She may let all the small clippings fall into the pocket and thus keep the floor clean.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Mary E. Vander Veer, daughter of Mrs. A. A. Vander Veer, of Somerville, and Paul Beden, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Beldsen, of Arlington, has been announced. Mr. Belden is editor of Fur News, New York.

Putnam & DeGraw's dry goods store is the ideal place to shop. The women find this true when they want dressmakers' materials and novelties. The men's furnishing goods department is very attractive.

PRESENTMENT MADE AGAINST PENN'A R. R

Accusing the Pennsylvania Railroad Company of negligence and "unlawful disregard of the rights of the public" for not maintaining proper means of protection at the grade crossing at Dark Lane, Linden, the Union County Grand Jury at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon brought into court at Elizabeth a presentment censuring the railroad and recommending drastic remedial measures.

The presentment was received by Judge Edward S. Atwater from the hands of J. Edward Rowe, foreman of the grand jury. It is consequent upon numerous complaints on account of the accident which befell a funeral coach at the Dark Lane crossing on Sunday, January 5. One man, John Bumstead, of Newark, the driver, was killed when the coach was struck by a train, and four of the six people within the coach were injured.

Protests were filed by the Funeral Directors' Association of Union and Essex Counties and by the Union County Board of Freeholders, and the State Railroad Commission and the grand jury were appealed to for action. As the result a guard was placed by the Pennsylvania Railroad at the crossing, which the grand jury said in its presentment was an action absolutely insufficient, owing to the fact that the guard is a foreigner and not an intelligent man.

MRS. SARAH E. BAGLIN'S ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

After welcoming a party of twenty young people to their home in Grandview avenue, last night, Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, announced the engagement of their eldest daughter, Miss Sarah E. Baglin, to Frederick U. Wagner, of Rahway. The wedding will take place in April.

The couple received the congratulations and best wishes of the company, after which a program of vocal and instrumental music, including solos and duets, as well as recitations were enjoyed. A feature was the rendition of the bethrothal march by Charles Lindsay. Supper was served at the conclusion of the program.

COMEDY A FEATURE OF GRACE M. E. BAZAAR

A comedy playlet, entitled "The Wrong Package," was successfully rendered by four young women of Grace M. E. church Thursday in the lecture room of the church on the occasion of the opening of the two days' fair and bazaar being given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. Those who took part were the Misses Marion Mager, Eda Doughty, Edna Stout and Stella Kline. In connection with the entertainment program, Miss Stella Kline played a selection on the piano.

The lecture room of the church presents a gay appearance, bright with the vari-colored decoration of the booths erected there and presided over by the women of the church.

Those in charge of the various booths are: Mrs. George Nelson, groceries; Miss Della Voehl, tea and coffee; Mrs. Evans, fancy articles; Miss Emma Smalley, lemonade; Mrs. Stephen Beaching, five and ten cent booth; Mrs. A. B. C. Bodine, cake; Mrs. Charles Force, candy, and Miss Stella Vermeule, ice cream. The fair will be concluded tonight, when an entire change of program will be rendered at the entertainment at 8 o'clock.

For the Bread.

Use a large stone jug for holding bread during the summer and you will have no dry, musty bread. Even sliced pieces will be fresh when kept in this manner. The jar should be thoroughly scalded once a week with soda water and dried in the sun. It is much better than keeping bread or cakes in tin vessels.

Jumping at a Conclusion.

"I have just swallowed a couple of—what are these things that work while you sleep?"

"Gas meters! Great Scott, you've never swallowed a couple of those!"

He Was Dull.

"I am weary of being a bachelor girl."

"Well?"

COMPLETE SUMMARY OF BOWLING TOURNEY RESULTS

Below is a complete summary of the team work and individual rolling of the participants in the five-man bowling tourney completed at Johnny Campbell's alleys Thursday. The table is the official report of V. W. Nash, Jr., who acted as secretary for the tourney officers. The Washington team shows up with the best average while Chauncey F. Stout proved to be the best shooter of the forty-five men competing.

FINAL GAMES ROLLED IN BOWLING TOURNEY

With a bunch of good scores piled up on either side, the Wellington and Rhoderick Dhu teams completed the five-man tourney schedule at Campbell's alleys Thursday, by rolling the final series of games. The Wellingtons took two out of three, losing the last try by nine pins. Had the Rhoderricks taken three straight it would have placed them in the tie for fourth place, held by the Brian Borus and the Bismarcks.

Last night's series proved a good finish to the most successful tourney that has yet been held on local alleys. All the team scores were over 800 with one exception and that fell but six short. Double centuries were fairly plentiful, Pope getting one, Gilmore two and Meyer one. Captain Blatz's best mark was a 248 by Harry VanEmburgh couldn't land anything better than 172. Montross and Ortleb were out of the game and their averages less ten were used.

The tourney closes with the Grants in first place, prize $40; Washingtons second, prize $30; Napoleons third, prize $20; Brian Borus and Bismarcks tied for fourth, prize $10. This title will be rolled off next week. Chauncey Stout wins the first average prize, $7. His figures for twenty-four games are 186.9. V. W. Nash, Jr., with an average of 182.4 has second money, $5, and Chief Kiely with 181.20 gets third money, $3.

INCREASING POPULATION

How to Create a Real Estate Boom and Make It Pay.

The writer not long ago visited a pretty little town lying in a delightful valley, with an abundance of very attractive home sites on the hillsides unoccupied. This particular town is less than fifty miles from one of the biggest cities in the United States.

"Why don't you get control of this hillside property," the writer asked of a man who had a real estate sign over his office door, "and place it on the market—offer it as building sites for summer homes?"

"Why," replied the citizen, "I did have hold of this property a few years ago and had that very idea in view, but couldn't sell a lot."

"How did you advertise it?"

"Oh, I don't believe in advertising," replied that real estate man. "It never does any good."

"How do you know? You haven't tried it evidently. You didn't advertise those lots, and you didn't sell any lots. Now, if you had advertised them and done it in the right way, by using newspaper space, and by keeping on hand for instant use a neat descriptive booklet, which you could get printed right here in town, I'll venture to say that you would have sold some lots—perhaps all of them."

Then the very next day the writer happened to find somewhere the following "guideposts" to good real estate advertising written by a Los Angeles man who has made a fortune by getting hold of property adjoining the town and disposing of it in lots for home building while at the same time he has greatly increased the population of his city:

"Advertise from the start. Besides making your property known it will help to create your own market."

"Keep your promises."

"Represent things exactly as they are. This begets confidence and the confidence of your customers is one of the best assets you can have."

"Advertise judiciously."

"Write good advertisements. If you cannot write them yourself get somebody who can. Advertising is too expensive to waste good money on a poor job."

"When you get to this point advertise and advertise and then advertise again. Don't cut the printing bill. There is gold in every line of good advertising."

"Never stop hustling. Advertising makes your property known to the best possible advantage. It is up to you to do the rest."

A Different Thing.

"Then Mr. Roxley didn't really give according to his means?" said the minister's wife.

"No," replied the minister, "merely according to his meanness."—Catholic Standard and Times.

QUIET EVENING AT HOME.

Man Relates Some Surprises His Family Prepared for Him.

"You don't know what trouble it is when you're just merely married," snapped the head of an East End family, as he sat in his office looking over a bunch of sewer rental bills.

"No sir," he declared with the air of a man who knows just a thing or two of what he's talking about, "a married man isn't really in trouble until he has a big family party gown.

"Here's a bunch of little footnotes about the folks at home the mail carrier just handed to me. And when I get home I'll probably run into something else to make me sweat.

"Night before last when I got home I found my two oldest girls were putting over some sort of a social affair, and I didn't take kindly to cheap skate sort of an affair, either. Before I got to our bedroom two of the younger girls called me in to see the presents they had bought that afternoon to take to some birthday party they were invited to the next afternoon. A minute later I called them in to see a new dress that our oldest daughter had bought that day. It wasn't much of a garment, either. Just a little measly $64 outfit at that. While we were looking at that my youngest girl—she just turned eight years—came bursting in and wanted some money to run up to the corner after some ice cream. She wasn't to go on the party down below and wanted some entertainment.

"'Well,' my wife remarked about that time, 'you'd better hurry and get into your dress suit. You know we are going out this evening.'

"'No,' I says, 'I guess I'd better sneak back to the office and get to work again.'

"Now, jolly evening of it, wasn't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TWO STRANGE TREES.

The Majava Yucca a Vegetable Freak —The Creeping Oak of Montagu.

California has one tree which is the personification of mystery. Found nowhere else in the world, it and a mysterious origin and thrives in a region of mystery.

The Mojava yucca is a vegetable freak which has developed into a species. It has the characteristics of several plants, to which no resemblance can be traced.

It is an endogen, yet its bark shows concentric rings such as characterize the exogenous stems. It lives and thrives in great numbers in a region barely devoid of vegetation, in a land of heat and thirst and barrenness.

Another tree in California which has a peculiar personality is the creeping oak of Monterey.

Nowhere in the vegetable kingdom can be found as true a representative of monopoly. The tree is of nearly growth, its limbs, like those of the sycamore, bending and twisting in all directions.

Wherever a branch touches the earth it takes root and becomes as it were, another trunk, though still a branch of the main stem, drawing nourishment both from the parent stem and from the new source. In this manner the tree is spread out. It has taken possession of five acres of ground, and it is still advancing.—P. E. Magazine.

She Meant a Mantle.

Thomas A. Edison was discussing at Atlantic City the various devices for increasing the brilliance and diminishing the cost of a gas jet.

"Many of these devices have for base a mantle," he said. "You know what a mantle looks like? Then you'll appreciate a remark I overheard in a hardware dealer's.

"A young woman entered the shop and said:

"'Have you got those things for improving a gas light?'

"'Yes, madam,' said the dealer. 'Here is a complete set, fittings, chimney and mantle, all for——'

"'Oh, I don't want the set,' said the young woman. 'I've got the set part and the chimney, but the little white shirt is busted. It's only one of them I want.'"

Smoking Soldiers.

The experience of Lord Wolseley of the British army has been such that he has always made it a rule to allow, whenever possible, the soldiers under his command one pound of tobacco a month, which he considers a fair allowance, and with the use of which he finds the soldier does his best work. In Italy the military authorities recognize tobacco as one of the comforts essential to troops, and cigars are served out to them with their daily rations.—Washington Herald.

Tool of Many Uses.

During the present army maneuvers the French troops are using for the first time an instrument which for variety of adaptation probably approaches to a record. It is a kind of concave lance shaft, or gouge, about 4 inches broad at the base and with a handle about 12 inches long.

This implement is a shovel, a pointed bar, a trenching pick, a wire cutter, a wood chopper and can be used for bread and meat.—London Globe.

She Smacked of Books.

"They tell me you kissed Miss Sonnet, the poetess, on yesterday's automobile excursion."

"Yes; that is true."

"Indeed! And how did you find her?"

"Miss Sonnet has a marked literary taste."

REAL CAUSE OF THE SMASHUP.

Railroad Sign to Blame for Accident It Was Intended to Avert.

The old darky was suing the railroad company for damages. The news contended that, not being warned by whistle or engine bell, he had started to drive his rig across the company's track when a shunted box car of said company crashed into his outfit, scaring the death of the horse, loss of the wagon and minor injuries to himself. After the prosecution had closed its side of the case, the company's lawyer called the old darky to the stand and went at him. "Mr. Lambert," he began, "your rig was struck by the box car in full daylight, was it not?"

"I fink dar was some clouds ovahead, suh," answered the cavilling witness.

"Never mind the clouds! And only a few days before this accident the railroad company had put a new sign at that crossing?" "Dar was a sign dayya-as, suh!" "And didn't that sign say 'Stop! Look! Listen!' "Now, dar am de who' accusation up heah, jedge!" declared the darky, in exclamation. "If dat stop sign hadn't caught dis chile's eye jes' s Ah was squar' on dat track, dar wouldn't a been no smashup!"—Bohemian.

POWER OF THE ROTHSCHILDS.

Accumulated Wealth Soon to Make Influence of House Enormous.

It has been calculated that at the present rate of accumulation the Rothschilds will own by the middle of the present century some 40,000,000,000 sterling, or nearly enough to buy off the national debt three times over, says a writer in the Grand Magazine, of London, England. The imagination is staggered and fails to realize the power which is represented by such figures. It could silence, or it could stop, a war; it could delay the industrial development of a country for a generation; or it could, on the other hand, enable a country which it favored to beat all its industrial rivals. A power like this must have its finger on all the arteries through which flows the life-blood of commerce, the ebb and flow of which it can regulate or controlled.

For Happiness in Marriage.

I have spoken of the only true and right motive for marriage. The motive my opinion that marriage should not be too eagerly sought by either sex, but rather waited for until the certainty has come that one loves worthily and well. I mean, that for a man to marry, for himself, could think, that it is time he should marry, and, for that reason, to look about for a wife—instead of being aware that he loves and therefore desires to marry the one beloved woman—is, to my thinking, as unwise and in almost as poor taste as for a girl to discover that it is time she were settled in life and, in consequence, set about trying to attract a husband. In neither case is happiness in marriage likely to be the result of such a quest.—Louise Chandler Moulton.

Out of the Schoolroom.

A schoolboy was asked to give some information in regard to the Cary sisters, the once famous New England poets, and he said of them: "The Cary sisters were two poets who lived in Massachusetts most of the time. They went to New York where they made many fast friends. Their fastest friend was John G. Whittier." At the time of the Longfellow centennial, when the school children were writing so much about him, one boy wrote: "Longfellow's poems were mostly of his own composure, but he wrote 'Tails of a Wayside Inn' where others did the talking. He was the poet lorryett of our talking. He was the poet lorryett of our country and was a crackerjack when it came to real poetry."—Lippincott's.

Spectacles for Cows.

A Russian firm which manufactures optical goods has just completed an order for 40,000 pairs of glasses to be worn by cows. These spectacles are necessary because the steppes, or great Russian prairies, are covered with snow for six months in the year, but during part of the time delicate fresh grass tips protrude from the white and dazzling mantle. The cows then are turned out to feed on the new grass, but their eyes are to be protected from the dazzle of sunshine on the snow it gives them snow blindness. Hundreds have died from this cause; but a rude, cheap kind of spectacles, made of leather and smoked glass, was invented, and since it has been used with great success.

What's Geography Good For!

This is from the philosophy of Miss Louisa Schmitt, who berated a teacher for not promoting her daughter because the latter was deficient in geography. "Teacher, you don't know it all, I guess," said the irate Schmitt. "I want to tell you that my daughter gets through school so she gets a man. Never mind about the geography; just promote her without it. Why, my other daughter, she didn't know geography and she got a man. And you know all about geography and you ain't got any man at all. What is this geography good for? See that my daughter gets through school."

Serious, Indeed.

"Lady," said the tattered tramp at the gate, "can't yer spare me a dime on a very urgent collection?" "What do you call an urgent collection?" asked the busy housewife. "Why, fer see, I have just been fined $29.240.300 for ridin' on an oil car an' I've only got two days to get it together."

March 1: "Persistence in prayer." "Ask, and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Luke xi. 5-13; Matt. xi. 28; Luke xviii, 1-8; 1 Kings xviii, 41-46.

It is quite common to find the basis of all religion in the feeling of dependence. Then, of course, prayer is a recognition of need and a petition for things necessary or at least for things desired.

The texts for study this week seem to place emphasis on this feature of prayer and of religion. There is much of truth in this view even if it is not the whole of the truth. We are dependent, more so than is ordinarily heard. It is worth while to occasionally pause and give a little time to sober thinking as to our indebtedness to others and our absolute dependence on God. If needs but the slightest accident or change in circumstance to plunge the most favored from prosperity into the utmost distress and need. It is rarely our own skill that gives us the advantages we enjoy. No one of us has a right to do with neglecting the home, community, nation or conditions into which we were born, yet all these have had a more potent influence on our destiny and disposition than most of us have realized. When the multitude and distress that mass of our need of help presses on us. Then it is that we are led to cry to God for help.

It was fortunate thing for most folks that troubles do come to them. If they did not it is doubtful if the conscious need of the presence of God would ever be very vivid with them. We ought to know Him as present with us at all times, and if we forget or neglect to seek Him in our days of busy enjoyment it is dangerous. It is well for us that a halt in the busy whirl should be at times called and we brought to our senses by calamity. Such calamities are the richest blessings possible if they bring us to God.

But there is another side to prayer which is deeper and richer than this, which is born out of our distresses. Religion is more truly founded on reverence than upon our consciousness of dependence. As truly as the emotion of beauty and sublimity with the sentiment of awe is awakened in us by flowers and landscape and objects in the natural world, so when we come to know the good, the true, the moral-ly-excellent and right we feel the emotion of the morally beautiful and the morally sublime with the corresponding sentiment of moral awe and reverence. Adoration springs up within us as spontaneously when we come to know God as the righteous and just One as instinctively as when we perceive a beautiful face or an exquisite work of art.

Reverence leads to interchange of soul with God. This is a higher level of prayer than that which asks for things to satisfy bodily needs. Adoration and communion is the highest reach of personality. We come to know God, are united with Him. We think His thoughts and feel the thrill of His joy and share His love and holiness. We sit with him in heavenly places. In a very true sense we see God. Is it any wonder that some have in these hours of vision and soul rapture been unable to tell whether they were in the body or out of it. Then experience is neither fancy nor fanaticism, but the soberest of earthly fact. It is the most real of all experiences that ever come to the soul.

This is the meaning of the opening sentence of the Lord's Prayer. "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name," is adoration.

He who lives the life of faith lives in the atmosphere of adoring love and continual open heartedness. He does receive things in answer to the sense of continual teasing God to give. Rather he would we view persistence in prayer as the normal soul breathing of vital spiritual air, the realization of the abiding presence of the Holy One.

A Songful Life.

Let no one think of happiness as nothing more than a desirable quality, a mere ornamental grace which is winsome, *but is not an essential ele*ment in a Christian life, something which one may have or may not have, as it chances. Happiness is a d ... quite as much a duty as truthfulness, honesty or good temper. There are many Scripture words which exhort us to rejoice. Jesus was a rejoicing man. Although a "man of sorrows," the deep undertone of His life, never once failing, was gladness. Joy is set down as one of the fruits of the spirit. A fruit which should be found on every branch of the great vine. St. Paul exhorted his friends to "rejoice in the Lord. There are almost constant incitements to gladness. We are to live a songful life. There are in the scriptures many more calls to gladness than to prayer.—Forward.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 1, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart.—III. How God leads men.—Ps. xxiii.

Under the general topic, "Songs of the Heart," we have already studied as special subjects (1) "What is true blessedness?" (2) "How God speaks to men." We now come to the third in the series, "How God leads men." The Scripture selected to illustrate God's leading of men is the Twenty-third Psalm. This is one of the shepherd psalms of David. It is undoubtedly one of the most familiar of all the psalms of David, being the first that is usually taught to the youngest child in the home or in the Sabbath school. It is also one of the most comforting psalms. It is not only recited by almost infant voices who do not understand its deep significance, but it is remembered and repeated by the aged saints of God when in declining years they enter "the valley of the shadow of death." Many dying saints of God have pillowed their heads upon these sacred words and in peace have fallen asleep in death. If David had done nothing else than leave the world this brief poetic gem, his life would have been well worth living.

The Twenty-third Psalm emphasizes the fact that God does lead us, and this of itself is no small fact. The pathway of life often seems to us perplexing and so uncertain and its end so shrouded in mystery that we might well at times give up in despair did we not remember that the eternal God leads us. He who is able to make the crooked path straight, to unravel the most perplexing problems of life, to bring light out of darkness and joy out of sorrow, is our guide and our leader. Well, therefore, may we place our hands in His and follow His leading, daily praying unto Him:

Lead, Kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom;
Lead Thou me on.
The night is dark, and I am far from home;
Lead Thou me on.
Keep Thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene—one step enough for me.

But, assured that the Lord does lead us, we may ask, How does He lead us? 1. God leads us in the temporal affairs of life. He leads us as a shepherd leads his sheep, and the object of the shepherd's leading was to procure food and drink for his flock. The oriental shepherd had no abiding place for his flocks. He moved them from place to place that he might find green pastures and still waters for them. Thus God, our great shepherd, leads us. "The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures. He leadeth me beside the still waters." The shepherd provided abundantly for his sheep. So does God for us if we will but trust Him and follow Him. We shall not want. Our lives shall be spread and sufficiently supplied with good things. To many life is but a battle for bread. It is a struggle for physical existence. But these things to those who follow God in leadership need cause no worry or overanxiety. "The Lord will provide." He always has, and He always will. Only trust Him, and all worry over present or future provision for temporal wants may be abandoned.

2. God leads in the spiritual affairs of our lives. "He restoreth my soul. He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake." Every soul is dead in sin. God in Christ restores our spiritual lives. After restoration He perfects them. We no longer walk in the paths of sin, but He leads us in the paths of righteousness and of peace. And when the soul faces its greatest crisis—dissolution from the body—we may still lean upon Him. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." And even beyond death God still keeps us. "I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." How comprehensive the leadership of God in life, in death, in eternity! Why should we fear? Why should we worry? Why should we be overanxious? "Commit thy way unto the Lord, trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass."

in the work than Rev. R. G. Bannen, D. D., of Williamsport, Pa., who is now serving for his first term.

Dr. Bannen was one of the state's delegates to the Seattle convention, and under his leadership the Keystone State was well at the front in all the activities of that great gathering.

MEN AND EVENTS.

"England's greatest bore," Algernon Ashton, will quit writing for newspapers, having become weary of being made the butt of paragraphers.

Bewitching dimple that graced the left cheek of Mrs. W. B. Irons, of New York, was knocked out in a collision on the street railway and she wants the company to pay her $5,000 for her loss.

Nonsectarian religious club has been organized in Chicago with attractive features to offset the Sunday theatres, music halls and saloons in the downtown district as places of Sunday evening resort.

Ice cream is a luxury is the claim advanced by the national ice cream manufacturers before the national pure food conference in Chicago and not a food substitute, and that the 14 per cent. butter fat urged under the law was too high.

"Flunking" by boys in the psychology class of Prof. William Vaugh of the University of Chicago is laid by them to the big headgear of the girls cutting off their gaze on the professor. They have petitioned the professor to forbid the girls wearing picture hats in the classroom.

Automatic model has been designed by Elura Todd, of New York, which she claims will comply with all the requirements of the signal corps of the army, which recently advertised for bids for the building of such a machine. She estimates that her machine will easily carry two men at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

NATURE'S EGG FORCE.

Exercise on the scratching floor brings eggs.

Straw litter two feet deep for adult fowls, less for young stock, makes a good playground. If moved too easily, run in a few cornstalks and place them around the water vessel to keep away the straw.

Now open the windows; throw in the grain; see the fun. It beats bargain counter cackle, gridiron scrapping or Wall street scrambles and cakewalk stunts. It warms up the Biddies and gives them good digestion in the winter and saves the flock from cholera epidemics in the rainy season of warmer climates. Scratch that down.

They Did.

Maximilian Foster, whose short stories are familiar to readers of Everybody's, happened to notice the little sign above our desk that reads:

DO IT NOW!

"Do you find that that works well?" he asked us.

"It's very effective," we told him.

"That isn't what I asked you," said Mr. Foster. "I heard of a case just the other day that will show you the difference.

"The head of a large business house bought a number of those 'Do it now' signs and hung them up around his offices. They were effective beyond expectations, and yet it can hardly be said that they worked very well. When, after the first few days of those signs, the business man counted up the results, he found that the cashier had skipped out with $20,000, the head bookkeeper had eloped with the stenographer, three clerks had asked for a raise in salary, and the office boy had lit out for the West to become a highwayman."—Everybody's Magazine.

The First Steamboat.

The first successful steamboat was built by a man who kept his eyes on Rumsey and Fitch and Symington, and made the best of what he saw, says a writer in St. Nicholas. As all the world knows, this was Robert Fulton. In August of 1807, Fulton's steamboat, the Clermont, made a trip on the Hudson river from New York to Albany, a distance of 150 miles, in thirty-two hours, and returning in thirty-hours. Fulton advertised for passengers and his boat was soon crowded. "The Clermont," says an English writer, "was the steamboat that commenced and continued to run for practical purposes, and for the remuneration of her owners." Here was the boat that was wanted—one that was financially profitable.

For Freckles.

The little sun kisses are not easily bleached, yet they can be greatly reduced in color it persistently given a treatment for bleaching them. A good remedy for freckles on the arms and hands is made of: Cocoa butter, 4 scruples; sweet almond oil, 4 scruples; oxide of zinc, 2 drachms; borax of roses, ½ grains; essence of bergamot, 8 drops. This will keep the arms in splendid condition and prevent more freckles from coming.

Now for a remedy to cure them on the face: Elderflower water, 4 ounces; eau de cologne, 1 ounce; cucumber juice, 2 ounces. Take care there are no pimples or bad scratches on the face when this lotion is applied.

Keep On.

The First Cyclist (much upset by a motor car)—Well, if the punishment fits the crime, wonder what bounders like that'll come to when they die?

At the Play.

"Talk about realism!" exclaimed Mr. Housekeep.

"Well?"

"That housemaid making dabs at the furniture and never hitting it looks awful natural to me."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WHEN SOUSA LEADS.

Greeting the Demands of the Average American Taste.

It will please the millions to whom he has given pleasure, directly or indirectly, to learn that John Philip Sousa is recovering from his recent severe illness.

In all our history, strange to say, music-loving people as we are, and generous patrons of music though we be, only two bandmasters have attained to national distinction and popularity in this country. One of them, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, was Patrick Gilmore, the other is John Philip Sousa; and it is worthy of attention that both won not only their national distinction and popularity, but whatever international celebrity they might claim, mainly by striking the patriotic note and sounding deep and well.

Just as the strains of Gilmore's Band gave a firmer tread to the American citizen in times of war, so have the strains of Sousa's Band given to the American citizen a deeper sense of pride of country in times of peace. No American who has listened to "The Stars and Stripes Forever," whether performed by the matchless band and under the matchless leadership of its composer or upon a street organ, but has felt the impulse to cheer for the flag and for everything that this emblem of our national liberty stands for.

John Philip Sousa is not only the greatest bandmaster but the greatest march composer of his day. He does not know, and probably that he is the greatest musician, but it does follow that he is one who has come nearer than any other living composer to meeting the demands of the average American taste and satisfying the longings of the average American heart.

Light and airy, perhaps, is "El Capitan," or the "High School Cadets," or "King Cotton," or "Manhattan Beach," or "Semper Fidelis" but they will not be forever associated in our minds with the "Liberty Bell," with the "Washington Post," and with "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and, furthermore, they cannot be separated in Chicago memories from glorious summer days on the Court of Honor, or glorious summer afternoons by the murmuring sea, or glorious evenings on the mountains, or nights, though wintry without, more glorious still by the firesides, when the piano has run through them all once more, and caused us to think pleasantly again of John Philip Sousa, and to recall him as he looked, say, in the balcony days of '93, when the plaza was filled with people from every clime under the sun, and all were charmed to see him lead the band.

Chilly London.

"Everything that's thought to be warm in England is warm," says Samuel G. Blythe, in "An American in London," in Everybody's Magazine, "and everything that should be warm is cold. The houses are catacombs, always excepting those few in London that have central heat steam heat, which is, of course, due to the advance of American civilization. Englishmen say they do not feel the cold. Everybody else feels it, for it is the meanest cold in the world. I have pondered over this and to the conclusion that the reason the English do not feel the cold is that they are desensitized, sort of refrigerator-beefed, so to speak.

"This is not the main point. The reason that Englishmen go around to cold, damp rooms, trying to make themselves believe a few hunks of conael coal in a grate furnish all the heat required by the most delicate, is that somebody, in ancient days, who could be no more than a child himself by, did the next best thing and declared he didn't feel the cold and didn't need a fire anyhow. Other Englishmen heard of it, and this idea has been a fetish ever since."

A Short Cut to Boston.

William Barclay Parsons, chief engineer of the Boston, New York and Cape Cod Canal Company, says the waterway will be ready to traffic in 1910, or before. Thus comes the end of a struggle stending through three centuries, the success of a plan three times defeated by war, and once by the assassination of a President of the United States.

While marine interests of New York, New England, and elsewhere watch the development of the project with keen interest, Cape Cod is fairly shaken to its centre by the promised culmination of the task first suggested in 1630. Sandwich, the northern terminus of the canal, may be said to have been born and brought up with the canal plan. Its founders, who organized the village in 1639, were among the first in their day to look upon the canal with favor. As for the Cape that lies away from the canal, westward, the mention of the idea to almost anyone reveals a disapproval that dates from the seventeenth century.—Appleton's Magazine.

That most useful article of a woman's wardrobe, the hairpin, has been acquiring new elegance. Instead of the ordinary shell or amber two-pronged pin, which long ago supplanted the ancient wire device in well-coiffed heads, the newer hairpin is a trifle so ornamental that it would be a shame not to make it conspicuous among the loose waves and braids of the hair. It is of shell or amber, too, but the head is of gold, set with jewels; and very lovely it looks when used to fasten the loose braids or to fasten the pompadour to the knot of hair.

WOMEN OF GREATER AND LESSER DEGREE.

More than 250 women are employed in the United States postoffice as rural letter carriers and nearly 1,000 act as substitutes.

Turkish women do not come into control of their private fortunes until after marriage. They can then dispose of one-third of it without the husband's consent.

All classes have succumbed to the diabolo craze. The children of the Prince and Princess of Wales are not, says rumor, the only members of the English royal family who indulge in the game, and other celebrities are likewise among its votaries.

The German Empress during a visit not long since to a pottery, noticing a fine model of a dog's head, was informed that it was the work of a little son of one of the foremen. Soon afterward her majesty sent for the boy, and, proving that he should be properly trained, has sent him to an art school at her own expense.

Miss Anna E. Hall, who made an *excellent record as a teacher and gen*eral worker in the Methodist Episcopal Mission at Krootown, Monrovia, Africa, has been elected by the native church in which she works delegate to the lay electoral conference, to convene in the Cape Psalms, Liberia, next February. She is the first lay delegate ever chosen by any Methodist church in Africa.

A good word for sororites at college was spoken by Mrs. Myra B. Jordan, of the University of Michigan, at a recent conference of women deans of colleges and State universities. Mrs. Jordan said: "Nearly a dozen States were represented. Mrs. Jordan said: "Rooming houses are a poor substitute for home life. Of course there is a great deal said against the sororites and much that is justified. However under control and in the jurisdiction of the college deans, they offer the best solution of one of the most difficult problems presented in our work."

A Competent Witness.

A friend of the family had been summoned to testify, much against his will, as to certain domestic disturbances in a Chicago household.

"You saw these blows administered," asked counsel.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you see the beginning of the quarrel between this man and his wife?"

"Did."

"When was it?"

"MEASURES" WHICH THE COOK WILL ADOPT.

One cup of sugar will sweeten one quart of any mixture to be served chilled or frozen.

One teaspoon of extract will flavor one quart of custard or pudding.

One tablespoonful of extract will flavor one quart of mixture to be frozen.

One level teaspoon of salt will season one quart of soup, sauce or vegetables.

The ordinary French dressing (three tablespoons oil, one and one-half tablespoons vinegar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth level teaspoon pepped), will moisten one pint of salad.

One tablespoon of water or milk should be allowed for each egg in an omelet.

Allow four eggs to each quart of milk in making cup custards.

Allow from four to six eggs to each quart of milk in making a custard to be turned from the mold.

Rice will absorb three times its measure of water and a large quantity of milk or stock.

One ounce of butter and one-half ounce of flour are used to thicken one cup of liquid in making a sauce.

Allow two level teaspoons of baking powder to each cup of flour when no eggs are used.—Exchange.

JERSEY GIRLS AT SMITH.

Students from This State Figure Prominently in Class and Social Life of Down East College.

New Jersey girls are taking active parts in leading class and social events at Smith College of late. Miss Mabelle Senior Mitchell, of Montclair, has been appointed a member of the junior class for rally day, and the Current Events Club has elected Caroline D. Park, '10, of Englewood, to membership. Edith L. Jarvis, of Plainfield, is one of the committee for the annual junior frolic and Louise Henderson, '09, of Paterson, has been elected to membership in the Italian Club. Katherine Hinman, '08, of Summit, has been elected president of the Phi Kappa Psi.

What the Beauty Specialists Do.

They will bleach the finger nails with peroxide of hydrogen and use finely powdered pumice stone to clean the nails underneath and along the sides. They use the little sandpaper boards for shaping the nails, and soak one hand in warm water while working upon the other.

If your face is sensitive, the beauty specialist makes a note of this, uses little friction, only tepid water and mostly grease and not alkali for removing the dirt. A soft soothing cream is rubbed into the face and neck and removed with a soft towel, and it is wonderful how much dirt this will remove. Then the face is washed with tepid water in which there is a little alcohol, the face then dried and cold cream applied the second time. This is gently worked into the face, and is more of a food than a cleanser like the first which was applied. Then the face is covered with a soft towel and left on all night, leaving the face clean, white and free from red blotches produced by irritating face massage. If the face can be more vigorously treated, strong soap is first used, then some soothing lotion and powder. All skins are not alike and must be treated in various ways.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Stephenson, of Wisconsin, is the richest United States Senator; Brown, of Nebraska, the poorest; Bankhead and Johnston, of Alabama, the only Civil War Veterans; Guggenheim is the seventh Hebrew to attain the Senate; Owen, of Oklahoma, and Curtis, of Kansas, are the Indians of the Senate; Curtis and Smith, of Michigan, began as newsboys; Taylor, of Tennessee, is considered the humorist, and Payater, of Kentucky, is considered the handsomest of the members in that body.

Representative Joseph Warren Kesfer, of Ohio, and "Uncle Joe" Cannon are the "old boys" of the House, and they are alike in that their ages does not show itself excepting in their looks. Both are as spry as youngsters. Seventy-two years ago Representative Keifer was born on a farm in Clark county, O., and he has seen an eventful life.

Why One Man Ceased Trying to Be Funny With Waiters.

"I've never tried to be funny with a waiter," the traveler was saying, "since the time when I had a little experience with one in California. It was several years ago, and I was rather fresh. I stepped into a restaurant one morning and ordered an omelet.

"'What kind?' asked the waiter.

"'What are there more kinds than one?' I said.

"'Why, yes, sir,' he answered me; 'there are several.'

"'Well, bring me an ostrich egg omelet.'

"'All right, sir,' he said, 'but you'll have to wait quite a while. It takes a long time to make an ostrich egg omelet.'

"I told him I had plenty of time. He went away and was gone fully an hour. Then he came back with a big covered dish.

"'There you are, sir,' he said, placing it before me and uncovering it.

"Well, the omelet, all right, and big enough for half a dozen men. Whether there was an ostrich farm in the neighborhood and he got a real ostrich egg or whether he made it from a couple of dozen of hens' eggs I don't know, but I distinctly remember that it cost me $2—and I learned a valuable lesson."—Youth's Companion.

The Only Perfect Couple.

She was a widow and her second venture was a widower, relates Lippincott's Magazine. He was a gentle soul and hadn't much to say in response when his wife had a great deal to remark him of, especially when she compared him with her former, but when he did speak it counted. One night he went to sleep while she was telling him the old, old story. She followed him shortly. Along in the middle of the night she was awakened by the opening of a door.

"John," she said, "are you awake?"

"Yes Susan," he replied softly.

"What's the matter?"

"Oh nothing, Susan; I was just thinking if your first had married my first they'd have been the only perfect couple on earth."

Then he went to sleep again—while she was talking.

Parties and Pumps.

The late Francis Murphy, well known as a temperance advocate, had many a lively adventure in the course of his very useful life, says Harper's Weekly.

He once told of a case in which a man got a little the better of him in an argument.

The man was a clubman, a generous liver, famous for his wine cellar, and Mr. Murphy read him a strong lecture on the drink evil.

But the bon vivant only smiled, shook his head and said:

"Well, Mr. Murphy, I have seen many a pleasant party around a table, but I have never seen one around a pump."

A Little Philosophy.

Love should light the fires on the family altar.

All that is needed to take a man down is a stenographer.

It is a poor disease that doesn't justify a big doctor's bill.

Many a man who strives to keep the peace has to run to save the pieces.

Men who first do wrong and then kill themselves should reverse the process.

DR. PROBASCO STRICKEN

Attacked by Heart Failure, Expired at His Home Tuesday Morning.

END WAS NOT EXPECTED.

One of the City's Most Prominent Physicians—President of School Board for Fourteen Years.

Stricken by a severe attack of heart failure from which he had suffered at intervals for several years, Dr. John B. Probasco, one of the city's best known residents and a leading physician, died at his home on East Front street Tuesday morning. He had attended to his customary duties all day yesterday and was first affected as he was preparing to retire at 10:30 last night. His son,

Dr. J. B. Probasco.

Dr. Norman Probasco, administered a hyperdemic and temporary relief was afforded but shortly after midnight his condition again became alarming and further measures were adopted. To all appearances he rested easily but he passed away quietly just before 3 o'clock.

Dr. John B. Probasco was born in Greenwich, Cumberland county, this State, in 1842, his parents being John S. and Mary Bacon Probasco. After completing his scholastic course he entered Bucknell University at Lewisburg, Pa., and would have graduated in '64, but during the senior year the entire class enlisted in the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry. Dr. Probasco served in the War of the Rebellion for a year and a half, during which time a majority of his classmates fell in battle. In 1866 he entered the medical college of the University of Pennsylvania and received a degree in surgery in 1867.

For one year following his graduation he served on the staff of the City Hospital, Philadelphia, and then came to Plainfield, first associating with John Craig. He remained with him two years at the end of which he opened an office for himself at 175 East Front street, the house in which he died. When Muhlenberg Hospital was first projected he was one of the most enthusiastic promoters and served as surgeon on the first medical staff. He always retained some office at the institution and at the time of his death was consulting surgeon.

While Dr. Probasco's profession was one that made great demands upon his time, it did not deter him from taking an active interest in civic affairs and in 1889 he accepted a nomination for membership in the Board of Education. He was duly elected and from then on school matters in Plainfield became a factor in his life and the city has never had a more enthusiastic educational worker than he proved himself. When the late George H. Babcock died in 1894 he was elected president of the board to fill the unexpired term and remained as the head until the present time. He seldom missed a meeting, came early and remained late and at regular intervals made a personal investigation of the schools and the plan of work in classes. He served on two committees, teachers and textbooks and buildings, regarded as the most important of all. He was particular about curriculums and the present courses embody many of his ideas.

As a member of the First Baptist church, Dr. Probasco became identified with local religious affairs and aided in building up the congregation. He had been a deacon for many years. He was also a member of the Plainfield Medical Society, the Plainfield Clinic, the Union County Medical Society, the State Medical Society, Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., the college fraternity Phi Kappa Psi and several other fraternal organizations. He attended a reunion of his college class at the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia, last week.

Dr. Probasco was twice married. His first wife was Miss Maria Boice, of this city, whom she wedded in 1872. She died on September 25, 1896, leaving three sons of whom two are now living, Dr. Norman H. Probasco and Dr. Walter Probasco, the latter of Chicago. In 1898 Dr. Probasco married Miss Gertrude K. Edmans, of Plainfield, who survives him.

TO RAISE FIREMEN'S PAY

Common Council Passes to Third Reading Proposed Ordinance for Salaries.

INTRODUCED BY MR. HIBBARD.

The Increase Will Date Back to January 1—Councilman Tyler Votes in the Negative.

The amendment to the ordinance granting the members of the fire department an increase in salary was offered by Councilman Hibbard, chairman of the fire committee, Monday, and after being considered in recess, was finally adopted on two readings and ordered advertised. This ordinance was previously introduced, but because the percentage of duty required of the call-men did not meet with the approval of certain members it had been referred back to the committee for further amendment.

After the first reading last night, Mr. Tyler explained that he knew little about the ordinance and asked for a recess to consider it further. His request was granted and when the city fathers reconvened the measure was sent back to the committee for the purpose of striking out the clause which compelled the call men to buy their own uniforms. This does not mean that the city will purchase them, only that the members believed that a nominal salary of $55 a year the call-men should not be obliged to pay for uniforms.

The raise in salaries will mean an increase of about $1,100 to the fire department. Chief Doane will receive $1,100 a year, while First Assistant Chief Andrew Jennings is raised from $1,000 to $1,080 and the veterinary surgeon from $150 to $165. The engineer receives $32.50 a year as at present and the captain is increased from $924 to $1,020. The drivers, tillermen and other regular firemen are divided into five classes, similar to the police department, as follows:

Class A, five years and over, $840 to $940; Class B, four years and over, $792 to $900; Class C, three years and over, $726 to $840; Class D, two years and over, $660 to $780; Class E, one year, $720. The call-men are to receive $55 a year and in return are to perform at least ninety per cent. of duty, instead of seventy-five per cent. as required before. The ordinance will come up for final adoption at the regular March meeting. The increase in salaries date from January 1 last. Mr. Tyler voted in the negative on the second reading of the ordinance, being absent from the room during the first reading.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' DANCE A GREAT SUCCESS.

The second reception and dance of the season held under the auspices of Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers' Association, at the Casino, Friday night, was a great success, more than two hundred guests being present from Somerville, Bound Brook, Elizabeth, Westfield, New York and this city. The floor in the large auditorium was tazed to its capacity to accommodate those wishing to dance. An orchestra of fifteen musicians from Elizabeth and New York, under the deadership of Charles Suhr, rendered a program of exceptional merit.

A feature of the affair was the singing by John Salkeld, of New York, a brother of Mrs. Frank W. Weed, of this city. He has a baritone voice of fine quality and strength and he favored the guests with two selections and as many encores which were well received. During the intermission a buffet lunch was served after which the dancing was continued until an early hour in the morning.

The committee in charge and to whom the credit for the successful affair is due was composed of Frank W. Weed, chairman; James C. Field, Herbert J. Percy, Alfred I. Laing, Richard D. Williams, Aaron D. Thompson, Jr., Walter Hockridge, Albert Organ, R. L. Day, Charles A. Sturtevant, D. B. Collins and H. F. Warner.

Entertained at Poverty Social.

The Brightside Circle of The King's Daughters and about sixty of their friends were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Barnes, on Mountain avenue, Friday night, at a poverty social. A costume ball was had and about $15 was realized by the circle. The first part of the evening was devoted to judging costumes and imposing fines and during the latter part a sextette of young people from Mt. Pleasant gave as amusing dialogue in costume, entitled "Miss Dexter's Personal." The parts were taken by Miss Hooper, Miss Hooper, Monroe Terry, Roy Tappen, Luther Banks and Howard Melick. Miss Frecht, of Brooklyn, sang several solos very acceptably.

Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Noe, of Union street, Friday night, in honor of their birthdays. There were about twenty-five guests present. The evening was spent in playing games and listening to phonograph selections. At a late hour refreshments were served.

BLAMES WATER COMPANY

Committee Finds that Loss at Letcher Fire was Due to Frozen Hydrants.

FIREMEN NOT RESPONSIBLE.

Councilmen Declare Chief and Members Did Their Best— Report Goes to the Mayor.

The anticipated report of the Councilmanic fire and building committee regarding the failure of the fire department to adequately cope with the fire which destroyed R. J. Letcher's residence on Belvidere avenue, on the night of February 2, was presented at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday, by Councilman Hibbard, chairman of the committee. It was signed by Chairman Hibbard, C. C. Randolph, Robert E. Hall and H. B. Suydam. Mr. Buxton, the other member, declined to affix his signature to the statement. The report follows:

"This report is in reference to the communication from the Mayor dated February 3, 1908, in regard to the failure of certain fire hydrants to deliver water promptly at the fire the day before in the residence of Mr. Letcher on Belvidere avenue, Netherwood. The communication was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

"The committee investigated the matter on the evening of February 7 and received information from many persons, including private citizens, members of the fire department and representatives of the water company. The statements made agreed with each other in every essential particular.

"It was established beyond a doubt that two and probably three hydrants near the fire were frozen so that water could not be drawn from them, and in consequence thereof the firemen were greatly hindered in their efforts to extinguish the fire. The progress of the fire had been checked by the use of chemical extinguishers, but this ought to be taught to no control, when it was found that water could not be obtained from any of the three nearest hydrants. Two of these hydrants were thawed out later on and used, but only after considerable delay. The chief and members of the fire department, assisted by the North Plainfield Fire Department, worked hard and faithfully to extinguish the fire and no blame attaches to any of them for the result.

"The weather was cold for several days previous to that of the fire, the ground having stated to be frozen fourteen or fifteen inches deep.

"The contract between the water company and the city contains the following, namely:

"The company shall at all times keep and maintain the said water works and all the machinery, appurtenances and apparatus connected therewith in first-class serviceable condition and ready for instant use,"

"In view of these facts we recommend that the company be advised of the committee's conclusion and be notified that the company must take more efficient means to ensure a serviceable condition of the hydrants in freezing weather and be requested to advise the Common Council as to what it will do to prevent similar trouble in the future."

A copy of the above report was ordered sent to Mayor Fisk; also to the Plainfield-Union Water Supply Company.

Window Cleaning in College Course.

Dirty windows are a bane to the flat dweller, for her maid absolutely refuses to wash them, and of course the janitor is away on maid days. In such circumstances it is a lemon-like smile that will crease the features of the New York housekeeper when she hears of a new move in King's College, London. A course in domestic theory has been established there, and much time will be given to the ethics of scrubbing. Surely scrubbing should include windows. The first course will begin in next October. "Students who have been graduated in science should be able to condense this special course into one year," says the head master. "As far as I am aware, nothing of this new course of study has been attempted in Europe."

Back in Harness.

"Farmer Orator" James E. Martine, who was out for the first today after two weeks sickness with the grip, will speak at Jersey City Saturday night at the banquet of the Twelfth Ward Club.

Friday evening, March 5, he will be one of the speakers at the celebration of the sixtieth birthday of "Bob" Davis, at Jersey City. On St. Patrick's Day, he will make an address before the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, of Hudson county, at their banquet in Jersey City.

Fisher Charged With Manslaughter.

Jacob Fisher, of Dunellen, foreman of the Central Bridge gang at work over VanBuren street, Newark, when a beam fell and killed Caroline Vesnleova, seven years old, was arraigned before Judge Howell in the Third Precinct Police Court, Saturday, on a charge of manslaughter. He was afterward turned over to the prosecutor. Nathan Hill and William Lant, also of Dunellen, who were at work on the job, were held as witnesses.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE DESTROYS BARRY'S BARN

Fire, supposed to be of incendiary origin, destroyed the barn at the home of John Barry on Greenbrook road, Tuesday morning. Though the fire bell did not ring the alarm, the indicator at headquarters registered the box, No. 136, and the department made a quick run, but could not save the burning building. The loss will reach $1,200 and it is reported that there is no insurance. In the barn was a lot of hay, two wagons and some furniture, part of which was saved.

The flames were discovered by David Allen, a neighbor of Barry's, who saw the glare at about 3 o'clock in the morning. He ran to box 156 and turned in the alarm. Barry did not know of the fire until the alarm was given. The origin of the blaze is unknown, and as the building was all ablaze when the alarm was sounded, there is no clue as to how it started. There are suspicions of an incendiary origin.

When the firemen arrived, the building was a mass of flames and a line of hose was stretched with which the fire was quickly extinguished. The fire had too much headway to save the barn.

MUNICIPALITY TO ACCEPT NUMEROUS THOROUGHFARES

With a view to accepting, opening and establishing grades on a number of city streets so that in the future when it is desired to macadamize them no time may be lost in putting through ordinances, Councilman Gloak, chairman of the street committee, presented necessary ordinances at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council. He also offered the necessary maps, charts, etc., covering this work. Monday night, March 9, was the date fixed when the Common Council will grant a public hearing on the ordinances, which it is proposed to adopt at that time.

The streets to be opened and accepted include the following:

Compton avenue, DeKalb avenue, Prescott place, Pond place, Darrow avenue, Essex street, Madison avenue from West Ninth street to Randolph road; Arlington avenue, Union street from Ninth street to Randolph road, South Second street from Clinton to Rock avenue, West Third street to city line, West Eighth street to city line, Monroe avenue and Ravine road. In addition to the above-named streets the grade is to be established on the following thoroughfares: East Seventh street, Leland avenue, Clinton avenue, Jackson avenue, Johnston avenue, Netherwood avenue, Stebbins place, Randolph road, North avenue and Ravine road.

Organ Recital at Bethel Chapel.

An organ recital was given at Bethel chapel Friday night by William H. Dunn, assisted by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, assisted by Miss Edith M. Hyde, soprano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey W. Hyde; Walter Sampson, flutist, and William Wheeler, tenor, of New York. Mr. Dunn presided and accompanied the soloists. The organ, a new one, has just been installed. It is a Mason & Hamlin make and one of the largest reed instruments made. Mr. Dunn showed his versatility by rendering a variety of selections on the organ, bringing out by a well selected program the beauty of the instrument. Miss Hyde was well received, her voice possessing unusual sweetness. Mr. Wheeler has an unusual tenor voice and sang well, while Mr. Sampson rendered several solos to the delight of all. The recital was under the direction of A. W. Duxbury, superintendent of the chapel.

LIBRARY TAX QUESTION HAURAND "TURNED DOWN"

COMMUNICATION TRANSMITTED.

Amboy's Resolution Sent to Public Library Directors—Other Routine Matters of Council.

The Common Council, at its adjourned meeting Monday, was advised, through a communication, of a recent action taken by the Common Council of Perth Amboy, in recommending a modification of a law giving the governing bodies of cities the right to appropriate such amounts as they deem best for the maintenance of public libraries.

It is the belief of the Perth Amboy city fathers that the present law giving libraries one-third of a mill on every dollar received in taxes is excessive, hence the adoption of a resolution favoring a change in the statute. The co-operation of Plainfield, which is affected by the law, is asked in support of the proposed change. At the request of Councilman Tyler, the city clerk was instructed to send a copy of the resolution to the directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room. The Council took no action on the communication at the time, but probably will at the regular March meeting.

Communications were received from the Public Service Corporation informing the Council that a light reported out at Sycamore and Sixth streets and another one in the East End reported by Daniel Dugan, through Councilman Robert E. Hall had been attended to promptly.

The bond of Deputy Tax Collector John H. Cose was received and instructions were given to have the same recorded. Mr. Cose began his work this morning of making collections of delinquent personal, poll and dog tax.

F. J. Harris and others petitioned for an electric light to be located on West Seventh street, west of Monroe avenue. The matter was referred to the light committee.

The lease for the Boys' Club property on Sycamore street, which is to be used as temporary quarters for the police department, was presented and referred to the police committee. The lease calls for a rental of $40 a month and the property is to be leased from month to month until the new headquarters' building is ready for occupancy.

Several deeds of sale of property made by former Tax Collector J. W. Murray, Jr., were presented and they will be recorded in the office of the county register.

Concerning a petition previously received from F. J. Harris, in which he seeks to redeem certain property on West Fourth street, Councilman Gloak offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing that if he shall pay to the city treasurer the sum of $305.28 by Friday, February 28, the deeds for this property shall be delivered to him.

Another resolution offered by Mr. Hibbard and adopted, provided for an appropriation of $50 to engage extra help for the tax collector in getting out bills, etc., for the collection of delinquent taxes.

As to the petition of L. E. Hart and Lucy Woolley to have an unknown and unnamed street, extending from Elmwood place to Plainfield avenue, which has never been opened, vacated, Councilman Gloak offered an ordinance, which was adopted on first and second readings, providing that the request be granted. A public hearing will be granted at a meeting to be held March 16, before final action is taken.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Councilman Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, which was adopted, the committee was authorized to purchase 1,000 feet of new hose at a price not to exceed ninety cents per foot.

Log Cabin Gun Club Defeated.

The Log Cabin Gun Club was defeated in a team match with the Cranford Gun Club on the grounds of the former, Saturday afternoon, the final score being 317 to 303. At the end of the third inning the Plainfield team was one bird ahead, but at the conclusion the match Cranford was fourteen birds to the good. Each team was composed of ten men. In the morning the Log Cabin Gun Club had its regular match for the monthly trophy.

Arlurights Defeat the Stars.

The Armright bowlers, of this city, met the Elizabeth Stars on Johnny Campbell's alleys Friday night, and defeated them three straight games. The first game was taken by the Plainfielders by only one pin, the second by twenty-nine and the third by seventy-three. The Armright team is made up of Campbell, Skelly, Kiely, Radin and Britton.

Extra Pay for Musical Sailors.

In future an allowance of 3 shillings a week will be paid in British ships in which a chaplain is allowed and in certain other vessels to any properly qualified member of the ship's company who plays the harmonium or any other suitable instrument and conducts the choir during divine service.

LIQUOR QUESTION HAURAND "TURNED DOWN"

Westcott Gets Liquor License in His Stead, But Number is Not Increased.

HALL TAKES FIRM STAND.

New Member Tries to Take Advantage of Situation in Effort to Have Number Reduced But Fails.

Twelve applicants, the regular number, were granted licenses to sell liquor at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday, and among those receiving favorable consideration was Ellsworth C. Westcott, a new applicant, for a license at 915 East Front street, where Henry Haurand is now conducting a saloon, while Mr. Haurand, who applies for a saloon license in his recently purchased property at 120 East Front street, where police headquarters is located, was refused, every one of the ten members present voting in the negative. President Tolles was the only Councilman absent.

The result seemed to occasion no surprise for the action of the Council was anticipated. The vote on Mr. Haurand's application was cast by Councilmen Robert E. Hall, W. S. Tyler, H. D. Hibbard and F. E. Mygatt voted in the negative, while Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph and Suydam voted in the affirmative.

There was the usual large delegation, including Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. A. C. McCrea and Rev. L. R. Howard, representing the Plainfield Ministers' Association. Henry Haurand, as well as his many friends and those of Mr. Westcott were out in full force to watch the proceedings. The fact that the ministers' association petitioned especially that the number of licensed places be not increased, that being the strong objection point, and the request was heeded, left the representatives of the association without any argument. In consequence they took no part in the discussion, but they remained throughout this portion of the proceedings.

Opposition to the granting of licenses to Michael Watson and John and Frank Clark was raised by Councilman Tyler, who took his usual stand that it was not right to continue to license drinking places in the residential section of the city. He believed it to be an excellent opportunity to maintain the dignity of the city by rejecting these applications, but he and Mr. Hall were the only members to vote against them.

Councilman Hall, who stated that it afforded a good opportunity to reduce the number of drinking places. He called attention to the fact that the saloon which is now conducted at 915 East Front street is located in a thickly populated shopping district, where many women and children are constantly passing and he for one favored the rejection of the application. His argument brought three members to their feet in support of it, but not a sufficient number to win out.

An unusual thing was witnessed in the disposition of these licenses. Mr. Haurand presented two petitions signed by nearly two hundred men, including a number of residents on the East and West Front street, stating that they had been patrons of his saloon for several years and they spoke of Mr. Haurand as a man of unusually high and good character. They urged that he be granted a license. The petitions had no effect in the result.

As a means of remonstrating against the granting of liquor licenses, Ira L. LaRue presented a pathetic poem, picturing the degradation resulting from such action, which together with the other remonstrances were referred to the license committee and later filed.

With the exception of those applications against which opposition was raised as noted, all of the other licenses were granted by the unanimous vote of the Council. Those who received licenses are as follows:

W. J. Poulson, Hotel Kensington; Henry Windham, Hotel Walsert; Jerome Leary, Hotel Iroquois; Jacob Blimm, Christian Glockler, Michael F. Watson, John and Frank Clark, John Rafferty, Alexander Fraser, Ellsworth C. Westcott, saloons; Frank Linke and Eastern Bottling Company, wholesale bottling goods.

The applications were all reported upon by Councilman H. B. Suydam, chairman of the license committee, and before this was done, a resolution offered by Councilman Hall was set forth that the committee had duly considered all applications and had refused to recommend any increase in the number of licensed places. The usual opportunity was given any one present to speak for or against any applicant, but no one outside of the members of the Council had anything to say.

Cast for School Play.

Miss Louise Nichol, Miss Ethel Skillman and Miss Clara will compose the cast of "Petticoat Persuasion" to be given by the Junior class of the Plainfield High School Saturday, March 14. The play will be given as a curtain-raiser to "Miss Civilization," the class play, in which Miss Lillian Cronkite is to play the leading role.

Local Street Planting.

Since the Hollywood (Cal.) city council recognized the advisability and even necessity of street planting by offering financial aid various organizations in and of the municipality have taken hold of the work in a most thorough and systematic manner, says the Los Angeles Times. The South Hollywood Improvement club, composed of residents about the center formed by Western avenue and Fifth, the diagonal street line, have a very progressive and aggressive membership, and that section is to be at once planted in a uniform manner with suitable street trees. In a few years one will be able to travel from Los Angeles to the sea via Hollywood on Colegrove along avenues shaded and ornamented with uniform rows of trees will planted and cared for by organizations formed for this special purpose.

Had Luxurious Tastes.

Outside of his own country Dom Carlos was regarded as an admirable monarch. He was a good sportsman and a man of considerable culture, while together with the other reminiscences were referred to the license committee and later filed.

Arrangements Complete.

The arrangements for the annual banquet of the Plainfield Board of Trade, to be held at the Park Hotel, Friday night, March 13, are complete. Tickets are $1.50 each and may be obtained from any member of the committee in charge, which is composed of Frank Hubbard, chairman; Frank Hall, Jr., Frank Hall, Sr., Frank Hubbard, Jr., Frank Hubbard, Sr., Frank Hubbard, Jr., Frank Hubbard, Sr., Frank Hubbard, Jr., Frank Hubbard

PARK CLUB THEATRICALS

Young Society Folk Present "The Elopement of Ellen" in the Borough.

FOR SILVER CROSS CIRCLE.

Barry Quail Makes a Big Hit—All in Cast Do Well in Their Respective Parts.

"The Elopement of Ellen," a three act play given at the Park Club last night under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, was one of the best amateur productions presented at that popular social centre. The effort would have been creditable to those of more experience. There was an abundance of mirth-provoking incidents that kept the audience guessing and provided no end of fun for the large audience.

The time was 1907 and the place, Pleasant Hill, a suburb of New York city. The scene of act one was the morning room at Mrs. Ford's home at 8 a. m., that of act two, a corner of Mrs. Ford's garden at 5 a. m., the next day, and that of the third act the same corner in the evening of the same day. The cast of characters were as follows:

"Richard Ford," a devoted young husband, Herbert Rogers; "Molly," his wife, Miss Elizabeth McGee; "Bob Shepard," Molly's brother, Vaughn McGee; "Max TenEyck," a chum of Roberts', Willard Wadsworth; "Dorothy March," engaged to Max, Miss Verna McCutcheon; "June Haverhill," Wellesley '08, who is doing some special investigation of economic courses during the summer, Miss Katharine McCutcheon; "John Hume," rector of St. Agnes', Harry Quail.

Every one in the cast took his or her part in a faultless manner, the work of Mr. Quail being particularly clever. He has appeared in amateur performances at the Park Club and at the Park Club, and his impersonation of a clergyman, last night, left nothing to be desired in the true interpretation of the part. His actions, perhaps more than words, won the greatest applause.

Miss Katharine McCutcheon, who for a bit of a lark, took the position of housemaid at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ford, acted her part beyond criticism, while Miss Elizabeth McGee, as "Mrs. Ford," was perfectly at home and much of the success of the play was due to her efforts, as well as those of Miss Verna McCutcheon, who was supposed to be engaged to "Max TenEyck." By the terms of a will left by an aunt they were to each receive $25,000 upon their marriage, but there was a whole lot of misunderstanding before they agreed to the proposition, and it was only then effected when it was learned that "John Hume" was in love with Dorothy.

Vaughn McGee, as Molly's brother, impersonated his part in that happy, care-free manner which won lots of applause, while Willard Wadsworth, who was the subject of perplexing questions and misunderstandings, was very good. Herbert Rogers, as the devoted husband, was seen at his best. He assumed the trying duties of the household in a perfectly natural manner. There were several curtain calls throughout the play, and the participants were generously remembered with flowers.

A feature that added greatly to the success of the entertainment was the playing by Barlow's Orchestra, comprising Arthur Wilde, piano; William Barlow, Monroe Long and "Ted" Gavett, mandolins, and Charles Eoff, violin. The orchestra rendered a program of popular selections between the acts and afterward played for dancing.

Heptasophs' Installation.

A large gathering of the members of Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order Heptasophs, went to Westfield, last night, to witness a joint installation of the officers of the local and Westfield conclaves. The installation ceremonies were performed by District Deputy Supreme Archon Joseph K. Beans and staff from Trenton, assisted by Supreme Committeeman J. V. E. Vanderhoef, of this city. At the close of the meeting, a banquet was tendered the visiting members. Addresses were made by J. V. E. Vanderhoef, V. W. Nash, Sr., H. G. Ubler, and others from this city, and an enjoyable time was had by all.

Westfielder in the Toils.

John O'Rourke, of Westfield, mistook the Watchung avenue pavement for his bed, last night, and was making preparations to retire when Patrolman Kelley gathered him in. He was arraigned in the city court this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge but got off on suspended sentence by promising to hike back to Westfield and remain there.

AIM FOR HIGHER LICENSE

Another One of Governor Fort's Excise Measures Introduced in State Senate.

ASSEMBLYMAN MOXON TALKS.

Union County Member Says Arguments by Local Optionists Will be Seriously Considered.

It fixes the minimum license fee at $200 in municipalities with less than 3,00 inhabitants, $250 in towns of between 3,000 and 10,000, $400 (except in first class cities) where the population exceeds 10,000, and not less than $600 in first class cities. It also fixes the closing hours of all licensed places at midnight every night except Sunday, when they shall be closed from midnight on Saturday until 6 o'clock Monday morning. It also limits the number of licensed places to one for every 300 inhabitants.

In spite of the fact of various rumors as to the rough treatment in store for the Local Option bill, it is said that the House committee of the Legislature will not turn in a hasty report in the measure which took the form of people to the capital Monday, and regardless to the ultimate action on the bill, no room will be left for a contention that it was not properly considered by the committee.

The court stenographer, on duty during the hearing at Trenton, Monday, secured every address in its entirety and no point for or against the measure will escape the House committee when the testimony is taken up in detail during the coming week. It is admitted that much time was consumed Monday with speeches that led the committee far afield, but with a view to settling the agitation on a basis of absolute equality the committee is determined to take every statement made by the speakers into consideration in arriving at their final decision.

Assemblyman Moxon admits rumors to the effect that the bill was to be reported out and forced unceremoniously Monday night are greatly exaggerated. He spent yesterday morning had come to his ears, but he classed them with other reports that have been circulated ever since the present agitation reached serious proportions and asserted that they had no foundation.

"Such a demonstration as was made in Trenton Monday deserves the most careful consideration," said Assemblyman Moxon, "and the local option bill is going to receive the attention due it.

"It is impossible to discuss the present standing of the local option bill with any degress of accuracy," said Mr. Moxon, "and it is certain that statements made so far as to the probable disposal of the measure are not in any sense official. The mass of testimony taken at the hearing in the Assembly chamber Monday is now in the hands of the stenographer and it will hardly be possible to have it in condition for the committee before tomorrow at the earliest. The view developed by the addresses delivered Monday, the committee cannot be expected to give the matter proper consideration inside of a week. There are no indications that a report can be returned before next Monday. Whatever decision is arrived at will be the outcome of careful and non-partisan consideration of the data presented Monday, and this bill will be erated as any other measure that goes to a committee."

A Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Elva Lippincott, of Somerset street, last night, by a number of her friends in honor of her twelfth birthday. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Barry, Misses Nellie and Stella Vermeule and the Misses Florence Carver, Grace Williams, Carrie Williams, Edith Schenck, Iola Schenck, Ethel Van Camp, Mabel Van Camp, Alfretta Bird, Geraldine Bird, Edna Bedding, Marion Bird, Alma Carver, Nellie Barry, Myra Lippincott, Edith Lippincott. The evening was pleasantly spent by listening to selections on the phonograph and playing games. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

President Tolles Improving.

President R. I. Tolles, of the Common Council, who has been detained at home the result of an injury to his knee, is improving slowly. He is still unable to leave the house and during his detention Councilman Herbert Buxton has been acting president of the Council.

Miss DeMeza, Thank You.

Lawyer and Mrs. William G. DeMeza are the parents of a baby daughter who arrived at their home in the Jackson building, yesterday.

SENTENCE DAY IN COURT

Wagner Given Ten Days in Jail and Fined $50 for Assaulting Garretson.

TYNDALL GETS THE SAME.

Mild Punishments All Around Meted Out to Those Who Resort to the Plea of "Non Volt."

James H. Wagner, who pleaded non volt to a charge of assault and battery preferred by J. F. Garretson, baggagemaster at the North Avenue station, was sentenced in the Union County Court, this morning to pay a fine of $50 and serve ten days in the county jail. His counsel, W. G. DeMeza, made a strong plea in his behalf.

Vannie Tyndall, of Goodwin's Crossing, who was indicted on a charge of shooting a colored man, who was trespassing on his farm, was fined $50 and given ten days in the county jail.

Robert Decaro, convicted of snatching a pocketbook from a woman at Roselle Park, was sentenced to four months in the county jail. Judge Atwater afterwards said that he might decide to send Decaro to the Rahway Reformatory. While the lad was being led back to his cell he was heard to threaten the constable and remark that he would get even when he was released. Delaro is also accused of trying to incite a riot in the jail to secure the freedom of the prisoners.

Walter Dill, of Elizabeth, who entered a plea of non volt to a charge of selling liquor without a license in Linden township, was fined $100, and Joseph Vatalli, also of Elizabeth, convicted of a similar charge, was fined $50.

LIBRARY DIRECTORS ASK $7,500 APPROPRIATION

Councilman Herbert Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, met with the Board of Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room last night, when the question of the coming year's appropriation was discussed. A resolution was finally adopted requesting the Common Council to appropriate $7,500 to cover the expenses of the library for 1908-1909. This is the same amount given last year.

The library committee reported that negotiations had been concluded granting the privileges of the library to the teachers and pupils of the North Plainfield Public Schools upon payment of $140 a year by the Borough Board of Education. On motion Miss Bowman, acting librarian, was authorized to attend the New Jersey Library Commission at its session to be held at Atlantic City, March 13-14.

PROMINENT BROKERS FOR PETIT JURY DUTY

Representative residents of Plainfield are still being called upon to perform jury duty in the Union County Court, it being the avowed intention of Sheriff Lawrence to select the best men possible for this work. From a list of 120 names presented to the court this week, ten Plainfielders were drawn, all of them representing a higher type of citizenship.

Among those chosen from here were John B. Dumont and George A. Chapman, the former for many years a member of the Common Council, and both of them prominent brokers in New York. They have for a long time been actively identified with the best interests of the city. The other Plainfielders called include C. Wesley Holland, Jr., E. H. Curtis, George W. Van Boskerck, George S. King, Juan A. Babcock, Clifford A. Braider, Charles F. Drake and Harvey R. Linbarger. They will be required to serve for two weeks beginning the latter part of this week.

Arranging Ushers' Benefit.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual benefit per*formance for the ushers* at the New Plainfield theatre. It will take place on Friday, April 3, with "Busy Izzy's Boodle" as the attraction, a musical comedy that has been meeting with great success all season. The ushers who will participate are William Hoffman, chief; Nelson Petty, Elmer Hoffman, Hugh Gray and Arthur Robinson.

Will Save Lad's Eye Sight.

The condition of seven-year-old Walter Morris, of Regent street, who was shot by his brother, Russell Morris, in play Sunday afternoon, shows consistent improvement.

MANY HAD THE MEASLES

Sixty-six Cases are Reported During February to the Board of Health.

ONLY 4 MARRIAGES PERFORMED

Eight New Cases of Tuberculosis Reported and Four Deaths from That Disease—As to Milk Analysis.

Reports presented at the March meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, show the sanitary condition of the city to be excellent. There are a number of cases of measles. The following statistics were reported:

Scarlet fever, 4; diphtheria, 4; tuberculosis, 8; measles, 66; chickenpox, 4; a total of 86. There were four deaths from tuberculosis, one from diphtheria, and one from typhoid fever.

The usual work on milk analysis was followed during the past month, samples of all the milk sold in the city being tested. The following is the average: Fats, 3.94 per cent; solids, 12.98; solids not fat, 9.04; lactometer, 112; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 1,674.

These permits were granted: To sell milk, Louis Dajohn; to carry on business of scavenger, New Jersey Central Land Improvement Company; to collect garbage, Peter Robinson, John Ryan, John Giles and Sylvester Cuff. The plumbing bid of Samuel Allock was ordered filed. The following returns were made to the office during February: Marriages, 4; births, 33; deaths, 32; a total of 69.

STATION AGENT HAYNES SUCCEEDED BY KEOLER

Peter Keoler, of Bound Brook, has been named as the successor to Joseph C. Haynes, who on April 1 will retire as the Plainfield agent for the New Jersey Central after a continuous service of nearly fifty-three years, nearly half of which has been spent here as agent. Mr. Keoler has been the company's agent at Bound Brook for seventeen years and is thoroughly experienced and considered competent to look after the company's interests in this city.

The appointment of Mr. Keoler as local agent will necessitate his removal to this city, and he will probably occupy the quarters at the North Avenue station, where Mr. Haynes has lived since the erection of the building. Mr. and Mrs. Haynes will continue to make Plainfield their home after April 1.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE M'ALL AUXILLIARY

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the McAll Auxiliary held this morning at the Public Library. The receipts for the past year amounted to $1,107.45. Another announcement was that a special gift of $500 had been received from Mrs. Lawrence Myers. The gift is in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the association by Dr. McAll.

Reports showing the condition and progress of the work at Limoges France, where the Plainfield branch is supporting a station and mission, were received and were a source of pleasure to the members, who will strive to do even greater things in that field during the coming year.

These officers were chosen for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead; honorary vice-president, Mrs. Lawrence Myers; acting vice-president, Mrs. Augustus V. Heely; secretary, Mrs. H. E. Maright; treasurer, Mrs. John Gray Foster. Vice-presidents from the different churches were chosen as follows: First Baptist, Miss Ida Yerkes; Grace Episcopal, Mrs. F. O. Herring; Park Avenue Baptist, Mrs. Walter H. Freeman; Seventh-day Baptist, Mrs. I. N. Van Sickel; Congregational, Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth; Trinity Reformed, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck; First Presbyterian, Miss Addie Diedrich; Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Mrs. J. S. Zelie.

Funeral of Miss Wormser.

The funeral of Miss Barbara Wormser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Florlette Wormser, of Watchung, was held in St. Joseph's church, this morning, Rev. Father Miller officiating. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, four cousins of the deceased acting as pall bearers. Miss Wormser was twenty-three years old and died Sunday from epileptic convulsions from which she had been a sufferer for many years.

BURGLARS MAKE HAULS

Two Homes Entered in Netherwood Section and Considerable Booty Obtained.

MUCH SILVERWARE IS TAKEN.

Burglars invaded the quiet precincts of the Netherwood section at an early hour this morning, and entered two homes, those of William G. Cooke at 724 Berkeley avenue and Harry P. Henriques at 1117 East Seventh street. The visits in both places were hurried as no attempt was made to go beyond the first floor. According to the police, the articles taken were mostly silverware, overcoats and other clothing, the total value of which has not been estimated. It is said that considerable silver was taken at both places.

The burglaries were discovered at 7 o'clock this morning and Roundsman Higgins was detailed to both cases as soon as they were reported. He learned that entrance to each home was effected through a window that had been left open. The Cooke family retired at 11 o'clock and Mr. and Mrs. Henriques were up until midnight. The visitors were not heard at either place and the first indication of anything wrong came with the discovery that the silverware was missing.

Patrolman Florence McCarthy has been doing night duty in citizens clothes for some time in the section under Chief Kiely's orders. Patrolman McGinley is also on the beat as the regular patrolman.

NEWCORN GETS BIRTHDAY CUP FROM GET-TOGETHERS

In honor of his fortieth birthday anniversary, District Court Judge William Newcorn was given a surprise by his friends in the "Get-together Club," an organization of local Republican organization workers, last night. Incidently he was presented with a handsome silver loving cup, which stands a foot in heighth above its ornate base.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., inveigled the Judge to his home, while the forty odd members of the club gathered at his home on West Front street. Mayor Fisk was invited also to be present and he made the presentation which was responded to by the judge. Vocal and instrumental music were features of the occasion.

JIGS AND REELS TO PREVAIL AT A.O.H. DANCE

In making arrangements for its thirty-fourth annual St. Patrick's dance, Division No. 1, A. O. H., has decided to conduct the affair this year on different lines than heretofore. It will be held in T. A. B. hall on Monday night, March 16, and will be an Irish dance in practically every respect. While the waltz and two-step will have an occasional place on the program, the majority of the numbers will be jigs, reels and madrigals of the style that prevail in the Emerald isle. It will be the first time an affair of this kind has been conducted in Plainfield and the di*vision looks for an enjoyable occa*sion as well as complete success in other ways.

To further enhance the scheme, Professor F. X. Hofmeister, the celebrated Irish bagpipe player and his Erin orchestra will provide the music. The pipes and flutes will predominate. The committee arranging the dance consists of John Leahy, John F. Casey, Thomas Flynn, Cornelius Thompson, John Phelan, Patrick Connolly and J. J. Gallagher.

Funeral of Patrick McNamara.

The funeral of Patrick McNamara, whose death occurred Sunday at his home on Central avenue, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. It was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. A solemn requiem mass was said by Rev. Father Gleynon, of Newark, with Father Delehanty as deacon and Father Scholsa sub-deacon. There were numerous floral tributes. The pall bearers were Edward Connors, John Walsh, John Day, Philip Glennon, Patrick Mottley and Patrick Lynch, all old friends of the deceased.

SUNDAY'S RESTRICTIONS

Seventh-day Baptists Memorial to Congress Opposes Sunday Legislation.

REV. DR. A. H. LEWIS ACTIVE.

A memorial opposing Sunday legislation for the District of Columbia was presented in Congress yesterday through the efforts of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, who as the chosen representative of the Seventh-day Baptist Church in this country went to Washington for the purpose. After the memorial had been read at the request of United States Senator John Kean, Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia affairs, assured Dr. Lewis that it would be given careful consideration. The New Hampshire member added that the matter was of such importance that a public hearing will be granted on the question by the Senate committee.

"The Seventh-day Baptists of the United States, for and in behalf of whom this memorial is laid before you, beg leave to call attention to their record as advocates and defenders of constitutional, civil and religious liberty ever since their organization in Newport, R. I., in 1671 A. D. That record includes colonial governments, the Continental Congress, where they were represented by Honorable Samuel Ward, the ser*vices of German Seventh-day Bap*tists of Ephrata, Pa., and other points of interest. Having such an history and inheritance, we respectfully and confidently ask and petition that you will not enact any of the following bills, now in the hands of the Committees on the District of Columbia, namely:

"S. 1519. A bill to prevent Sunday banking in postoffices in the *handling of money orders and regis*tered letters.

"H. R. 4897. A bill to further protect the first day of the week as a day of rest in the District of Columbia.

"H. R. 4929. A bill prohibiting labor on buildings, etc., in the District of Columbia, on the Sabbath day.

"H. R. 13471. A bill prohibiting work in the District of Columbia on the first day of the week, commonly called 'Sunday.'

"S. 3940. A bill requiring certain places of business in the District of Columbia to be closed on Sunday.

"Article 1 of the Constitution of the United States declares that 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.' That Sunday legislation is forbidden under this act is shown by the records of Congress from 1800 to 1830. The question came to the front under an act of April 30, 1810, establishing the Postal Department and requiring the opening of postoffices, and the transmission of mail, on every day in the week.

"Reports, discussions and petitions concerning Sunday mails crowd the annals of Congress from 1811 to 1830. Mr. Rhea, chairman of the committee on postoffices, reported adversely concerning efforts to secure a change in the law requiring Sunday opening, on January 3, 1812, June 15, 1812, and January 20, 1815. Postmaster-general Granger made adverse report January 16, 1815, saying:

"'The usage of transporting the mails on the Sabbath is coeval with the Constitution of the United States.'

"January 27, 1815, Mr. Daggett made an adverse report, that was considered by the House in committee of the whole, February 10, 1815, and after various efforts at amendment, was passed, as follows:

"'Resolved, That, at this time, it is inexpedient to interfere and pass any laws on the subject-matter of the several petitions praying the prohibition of the transportation and opening of the mail on the Sabbath.'

"Actions and transactions intrinsically right, which promote prosperity, good order and righteousness cannot be changed into crimes at a given moment,—by the clock,—and purged from criminality 'by act of Parliament' twenty-four hours later.

"If there be need of protecting employed persons from abuse, or overwork, that need will be met in full by some law like the following:

"'Be it enacted, That every employed person shall be entitled to one day of rest, each week. The claiming of this right shall not prejudice, injure, nor interfere with any engagement, position, employment or remuneration as between employed persons and those by whom they are employed.'

FOR A POSTOFFICE BLDG.

Senator Kean Introduces Bill in Congress for $100,000 Structure for Plainfield.

APPROPRIATION INADEQUATE.

Treasury Department Gets Figures on Prices of Properties—Sum Asked for Will Be Increased.

United States Senator John Kean has introduced in the Senate a bill providing for a Government building in Plainfield for the use of the postoffice, the measure as proposed being on similar lines to the one introduced by the Senator two years ago. At that time it "died" in committee, however, this bill was read twice and referred to the committee on public grounds and buildings.

As drafted the bill calls for an $100,000 appropriation, but it is said on reliable authority that the real purpose is to ask for an additional sum provided the original measure is sanctioned by the Treasury Department and passed by Congress. It is conceded that this sum will not be sufficient both for the purchase of the land and the erection of the building.

It was learned today that acting on orders from the Treasury Department at Washington, Postmaster Elias Bird has obtained estimates on desirable properties in the business section. The statement is made by a local real estate man that it would hardly be possible to obtain the tract which would answer the purposes for less than $40,000.

The bill introduced by Senator Kean yesterday follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury be and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by *purchase, condemnation, or other*wise, a site and cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States postoffice and other governmental offices in the city of Plainfield and State of New Jersey, the cost of said site and building, including heating apparatus, and approaches not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars.

"Provided, for the sale of land suitable for said site shall be invited by public advertisement in one or more of the newspapers of the city of largest circulation for at least twenty days to the date specified in said advertisement for the opening of said proposals.

"Proposals made in response to said advertisement shall be addressed and mailed to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall then cause the said proposed sites, and such others as he may think proper to designate, to be examined in person by an agent of the Treasury Department, who shall make a written report to said Secretary of the results of said reasons therefor, which shall be accompanied by the original proposals and all maps, plats, and statements which shall have come into his possession relating to said proposed sites.

"If, upon consideration of said report and accompanying papers, the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem further investigation necessary, he may appoint a commission of not more than three persons, who shall be an officer of the Treasury Department, which commission shall also examine the said proposed sites, and such others as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate, and grant such hearings in relation thereto as they shall deem necessary; and said commission shall within thirty days after such examination make to the Secretary of the Treasury written report of their conclusion in the premises, accompanied by all statements, maps, plats, or documents taken by or submitted to them, in like manner as hereinbefore provided in regard to the proceedings of said agent of the Treasury Department; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon finally determine the location of the building to be erected.

"The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the same shall not exceed six dollars per day and actual traveling expenses: Provided, however, That the member of said commission appointed from the Treasury Department shall be paid only his actual traveling expenses.

"The building shall be unexposed to danger from fire by an open space of at least forty feet on each side, including streets and alleys."

WHY BOARD FAVORS PROPOSED PRIMARY BUILDING

Official Explanation of the Why and Wherefore as to the Selection of Location and Designs for Proposed School Structure at Darrow Ave. to Cost $109,000.

WILL ACCOMODATE 500

So much misunderstanding has arisen over the plans of the Board of Education for the relief of inadequate school accommodations, and particularly concerning its purpose to erect a suitable school building at a desirable location in the West End with the consent of the Board of Estimate and the Common Council, that authorative statement of the facts will be appreciated by many taxpayers who have obtained little reliable information on the subject. With this end in view, officials in educational work in this city have generously consented to outline the whole scheme. Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools, at the request of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, makes an official statement as to the necessity for the proposed primary school building at Darrow avenue and Essex street. Charles W. Abbott, a prominent member of the Board of Education, explains what pains were taken to get suitable designs for the needed building and why he and his colleagues sanction the plans and estimates agreed upon.

Accepted Plans for New P rimary School Building.

The Location.

(By Dr. Henry M. Maxson.)

"To locate a school building, decide how large it shall be, and say how much it will cost is very easy—if one is a private citizen responsible to no one for what he says. It is a very different matter when one is a member of the Board of Education. Then his oath of office compels him to locate the building where it will really best serve the interests of the children, and to include the accommodations that are necessary. His duty to the citizens requires him to include such features and select such a design as will add to the dignity and attractiveness of the city. When he has done this, the bid of the contractor decides how much it will cost. All this requires a careful, thorough study not only of a certain locality but the whole city.

"The Board of Education have been studying the question of a new school building for several years. Two years ago the members were of the opinion that two new buildings should be erected, one at Darrow avenue and another in the West End north of the railroad, and it was only the question of cost that caused them to ask for one building instead of two. In deciding to erect one building now, it was with the intention of building another on the North Side as soon as this was done.

"Examination of the school registers showed that there were then about 70 children north of the railroad attending the Irving School. There are also ten living on the extreme edge of the city, who are attending the Dunellen schools. (The census recently taken by Mr. Kriney shows about the same situation. He found 105 between the ages of 5 and 12, but he included all who attend private and parochial schools and also some of the older children who attend the grammar school on Madison avenue.) South of the track were found about 40 children who could be transferred to a new school north of the track, although the walk would be only a little shorter than to the Irving. This would make a school of three or four classes, but to provide for the future the building should contain six rooms and the plan should be such that it can later be enlarged to include 12 rooms and an auditorium and so plan to serve all that part of town for years to come.

"Those not familiar with the conditions have proposed making the Darrow avenue building smaller and using the money to build two buildings now, but if $110,000 would build twelve school rooms, in one building, it would not be enough if they were separated and eight rooms built at Darrow avenue and four rooms built north of the railroad. It would require much more money to carry out that plan and when the two buildings are done, they would be filled as soon as ready and one or both would need enlarging immediately.

"There are now seven classes in the Washington school (two on half time) and one in the Whittier building that belongs to the Washington. In the Irving, there are five classes that have no class room. This makes thirteen classes to be provided for in the Darrow avenue school. If the proposed building were cut down to eight rooms, it would barely accommodate the Washington classes and Structure Described.

The building has six class rooms, a principal's office, and a teachers' wardrobe on the first flor; and six class rooms and a recitation room on the second floor with store rooms for school supplies.

Enclosed between the two wings is an assembly room of about the size of that in the Irving School, but it is entered from the halls of the first story. Its seating capacity is increased by a gallery entered from the second floor halls.

The main toilets are in the basement, but there are also toilets on the second floor so that pupils on that floor will be saved going up and down two flights of stairs. The basement will also provide a good room for manual training.

The stairs are five feet wide, of iron frame and slate treads all enclosed in brick walls on three sides, so that they are absolutely fireproof. They are broken by a broad landing half way in each flight, as required by State law.

The front of the building has a little resemblance to the High School, the plans being made by the same architect, but the construction will be cheaper in every way, brick being substituted for the terra cotta and for all stone except the water table.

The ends of the wings are blank, the windows being omitted because it is the generally accepted opinion that school rooms should have light on only one side, and all the class rooms in the buildings are constructed on that plan. The assembly room will seat about 600, and since it is on the ground floor, it will be of great value to that end of the city as a place for general meetings of various kinds.

The building is to be of water struck brick, the cornices and ornamental work being of sheet iron.

The whole structure is to be fireproof, the floors and partitions all being of cement or porous tile.

The Designs.

(By Charles F. Abbott.)

"When the High School was under consideration, a large number of architects decided to make plans, and it seemed wise to the Board of Education to secure some expert architects to aid them in handling the matter. In searching for such a man, the Board sought the advice of Walter Cook, one of the leading architects of New York, with a national reputation who has acted as a judge in determining a number of the largest competitions in the country, including the plans for West Point, and the University of California. Mr. Cook gave us the names of a number of men that he deemed suitable for the work, but we were so impressed with his personality that with much difficulty we asked the question whether he could himself be induced to undertake the work. To our great satisfaction, Mr. Cook consented to act himself, and for the very small consideration of $250. Mr. Cook made the arrangements for the competition and aided the Board in selecting fifteen from the long list of architects to prepare plans. To secure competitions of high character, it was arranged that the maker of the plans chosen as the best should be declared architect of the building, while for the second and third best, prizes of $400 and $300 should be given. When the plans were submitted, Mr. Cook studied them carefully and then discussed them with the Board. Supt. Maxson also made a study of the plans separately from Mr. Cook, but when he and Mr. Cook compared notes, it was found that both were agreed on the same set of plans as the best of those presented. The Board then adopted this set of plans as those to be used for the new building. All were handed in without names, the names of the authors being in sealed envelopes, all of which were locked up in the safe as soon as received. After the plans had been adopted by the Board, the envelopes were opened and the maker was found to be Herbert D. Hale, of Boston, a man unknown to any of the Board or to the superintendent.

"When the question of a school at Darrow avenue came up, the former scheme was so satisfactory that the Board decided to use it again, and Mr. Cook very kindly consented to act as advising architect in this case also. As the building is less important than the High school, it was decided to have only four competitors, two from Plainfield and two from outside, and it was arranged that after the Board had chosen one set of plans as the best, the three unsuccessful competitors should be given $200 each to pay for their expenses in making plans. The same method of studying the plans and making a choice that was followed with the High school was followed this time, and Mr. Cook and Supt. Maxson each making a separate study of the plans chose the same set as most desirable for our needs. After the Board had voted to adopt these plans, the envelopes were opened and the architects were found to be Hale and Rogers.

"Their work on the High school was highly satisfactory, and we may confidently expect that it will be the same on the Darrow avenue school.

"When Mr. Cook was preparing

COUNSELLOR BLATZ JOINS RANKS OF BENEDICTS

Miss Jeanette Claire Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Summers, of Orchard place, became the wife of Francis J. Blatz, of Somerset street, at a quiet wedding Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's church by Father B. M. Bogan, rector of the church. The couple were attended by Dr. A. H. Dundon as best man and Miss M. E. Brady as bridesmaid, and the only other members of the wedding party were Hillaire Blatz, brother of the groom, and his wife.

The bride wore a tan traveling dress and a brown hat, and Miss Brady was also in traveling costume. Immediately after the ceremony, the wedding party departed in a shower of rice and confetti for the North Avenue station, where they took an evening train for New York city. An informal dinner party was held at the Cafe Martin, after which the bride and groom left for a honeymoon in the South. They will spend a month touring the Southern States, going first to Washington, D. C.

At the conclusion of their wedding trip they will take up their residence in the Jackson building. Mr. Blatz is one of Union county's prominent lawyers. He is counsel for the North Plainfield Board of Health and a number of corporations. He has a host of friends throughout the county.

Just Like a Man.

Mr. Kadley—How mannish she is, Miss Bright—Isn't she, though?

Mr. Kadley—And the funny part of it is she thinks people admire her for being so. She doesn't seem to see that people are merely laughing at her.

Miss Bright—Yes, she's mannish even to that extent—Philadelphia Press.

CLOAK TO GET POSITION

First Ward Councilman Slated to Succeed Hetfield, Jr. on County Election Board.

BACKED BY LOCAL POLITICIANS.

Plainfield Delegation Solid for Him and No Opposition is Expected from Rest of County—Pays $350.

William L. Gloak, of this city, will succeed Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., as a member of the Union County Board of Registry and Elections when the latter takes John K. Hoalish's place as assistant prosecutor of the pleas, according to the organization men who appear to handle Union county's political destiny. Reliable information has it that Mr. Gloak, a First ward member of the Plainfield Common Council, has practically got the appointment clinched. He is well qualified for the place and is strongly supported by all the local leaders.

lection of the county board member and it is claimed by them that he will receive no opposition from Alabeta or other quarters of the county. The position pays approximately $350 a year although there are but few days to be put in by the incumbent.

Mr. Hetfield will become assistant prosecutor when Governor Fort's appointee, Director Cecil Badger C. A. Swift, takes the place of Prosecutor N. C. J. Engelken on March 11. Before that time, Mr. Hetfield is expected to resign as a member of the county election board and Mr. Gloak's appointment will follow at that time.

YOUNGER SET'S DANCE A BRILLIANT FUNCTION

The second annual bachelor dance of the younger set held at the Casino last night was a great success. It was a brilliant social function in every respect. More than 125 guests were present, including a number from out-of-town. The large auditorium, which was used for dancing, was tastefully decorated with a profusion of greens and smilax, which together with the shaded lights, made a pretty picture.

An attractive feature was the music. Brooks & Denton's banjo orchestra of six pieces furnished the music for the evening, while Austin's Orchestra rendered the waltz numbers. By this arrangement the dancing was continuous from about 9 o'clock in the evening until 2:30 o'clock this morning, with the exception of the intermission at midnight, when supper was served.

The patronesses for the affair included Mrs. H. E. Butler, Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, Mrs. Daniel Runkle, Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, Mrs. Clifford W. McGee and Mrs. Wm. Richter. The committee in charge comprised C. Ames Brooks, Willard Wadsworth, Harvey Fisk, Lewis Williams, Jr., Roy Cox and J. Hartley Mellick, the last named being treasurer.

COLLEGE MEN'S SMOKER AT CASINO, MARCH 13

At the urgent request of the college men of Plainfield, it has been decided to hold another college smoker at the Casino on Friday night, March 13, and Owen H. Fleming, of Park avenue, who has been the moving spirit in previous affairs of this kind, has again consented to act as chairman of the committee. Efforts will be made to obtain prominent speakers and there will be plenty of good music, with an abundance of things to eat, drink and smoke, as heretofore.

Lewis A. Williams, of East Ninth street, who is secretary of the Plainfield Yale Club, is assisting Mr. Fleming in the preliminary arrangements. Later the complete committee will be announced. It is proposed to carry the smoker out along the same lines as in the past and this will insure a good time for those who attend. All replies should be sent to Mr. Fleming or Mr. Williams.

HONOR MAJOR EDWARDS

THE TESTIMONIAL NETS $600.

Success with a large S was spelled at the New Plainfield theatre, Wednesday, when the testimonial to Major M. Edwards was given in the form of a performance of "The Heir to the Hoorah." Practically every seat in the play house was occupied when the curtain rose on the first act and standees filled every available inch before 9 o'clock there were many standees. The attraction verified all the good things that had been said in advance about it and laughter was on tap all through the evening.

When all expenses are paid it is probable that the testimonial will yield about $600, all of which will be turned over to the genial major with the best wishes of the committee and everyone of his friends. A telegram was received from him, last night, in which he conveyed his best wishes to the audience and the hope that the production would prove entirely satisfactory. The message was delivered from the stage by Manager Counihan.

Plainfielders are familiar with "The Heir to the Hoorah" and its virile story, but it is the kind that always bears repeating. The cast was an excellent one, headed by Frank Monroe and Miss Helene Lackaye, and the standard that gave the play its great reputation was maintained. The screamingly funny Banquet scene, in which the hero's "wild-and-woolly" friends have a terrific time getting into evening clothes and then forget to remove their guns and spurs, had the audience convulsed. A better attraction for the testimonial could hardly have been secured.

The local Elks and Masons were the prime movers in managing the affair and they were ably assisted by Manager Counihan and Treasurer Cunningham of the theatre. Mayor Fisk, George A. Beaton, W. C. Kinney, Harry L. Hall and Frederick W. Cutler.

SENATOR ACKERMAN'S PICTURES OF FOREIGN TRIP

Exhibiting more than a hundred beautiful stereopticon slides, from photographs taken on recent trips abroad, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman gave an interesting lecture at Warren chapel Thursday under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. The views shown were in many instances colored and were appreciative admiration, especially those from photographs taken by the Senator in Japan, "the country of the cherry blossoms." Perhaps the picture which proved of the greatest interest was one taken by the Senator in "the land of the mid-night sun," during his trip through the far North. This photograph was taken at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Photographs of scenes in Mexico, the Western Valley, China, India and Japan were also shown as well as some excellent pictures taken by the Senator on board the Lusitania, on which he was a passenger on the maiden voyage. Photographs of the big ship, taken by Rolland D. Rice upon her arrival in port, were also shown on the screen. In the course of his remarks upon Japan the Senator showed views of the floral beauties of the country and a series of Japanese signs in English, so ludicrously worded as to prove that "a little learning is a dangerous thing" in the idiomatic language of this country.

The lecture was well attended and $17 was netted for the work of the church Christian Endeavor Society.

Course in Cooking.

The Y. W. C. A. will open a Lenten course in cooking, comprising six lessons, which will include hot bread and bread mixtures. The class will meet Tuesday mornings from 10 to 11:30. Registration is necessary by March 2.

Miss Mabel Houston, of New York city, has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. H. Mumby, of Cameron avenue.

BURY BELOVED PHYSICIAN

Great Concourse of Friends at the Obsequies of Dr. J. S. Probasco.

NUMBER OF SOCIETIES ATTEND.

Medical Men, Educational Board, Teachers, Hospital Directors and Church People Prominent at Services.

Prominent business and professional men, life-long friends, teachers and school children attended the funeral service of Dr. John Spack Probasco at the First Baptist church, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It was an impressive evidence of the high regard in which the well-known physician was held by people in all walks of life. In the large assemblage were a great many to whom Dr. Probasco had been a physician, while not a few had been helped and assisted by his counsel and in a more substantial way.

His years of service as a member of the Board of Education and at its president, brought together his colleagues in the Board, as well as every teacher in the public schools of the city. One entire side of the edifice was reserved and occupied by members of the Board and the teachers, while a space in the center was occupied by the Plainfield Medical Society and the Plainfield Clinic including practically every physician of the city and borough, while there were present representatives of the Union County Medical Society and the State Medical Society, as well as the Masonic and other organizations with which the physician was identified.

The large display of floral tributes was beautifully impressive. They occupied every available space in front of and about the pulpit platform and included massive set pieces, wreaths, pillows and smaller bunches of cut flowers. The tributes were contributed by all of the societies of which Dr. Probasco was a member, the societies of the First Baptist church, as well as the board of deacons, of which he was the senior member, while the public school teachers and children offered loving tributes throught beautiful flowers.

The services were in charge of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Anthony Evans, pastor of the West Presbyterian church, New York, a close and personal friend of the family. Beautiful passages of Scripture reflecting the exemplary life of the physician as he was known by many, were read by his pastor, concluding with the reading of the poem, "May He Rest." Dr. Evans followed with an earnest, fervent prayer during which he took occasion to refer to the faithful

KELLY GETS 60 DAYS ON WIFE'S COMPLAINT

Though he pleaded "not guilty" before Borough Recorder Dolliver at his hearing at the North Plainfield police court, Nicholas Kelly, formerly a member of the Plainfield police force, was committed to the Somerville county jail for sixty days. He was taken to Somerville Saturday by Chief Weiss, of the North Plainfield police. Kelly, who was arrested Thursday night in an attempt to break into his wife's lodging on Pearl street, was confronted by three charges at his hearing,—brutality, as his wife, resisting arrest, and drunk and disorderly conduct. The judge gave him twenty days or $20 on each charge and he took the time.

The most important witness at the hearing last night was his wife, whose face is still bruised as the result of an attack upon her by her husband on Grant avenue Wednesday night. She testified that he had threatened her and came to her Pearl street lodging in an intoxicated condition. He went to the back door where he broke the knob off in his drunken frenzy to get at his wife. Failing to gain entrance by the door, he went to the window of the room occupied by his wife and would be prevented from climbing into the house by the Misses Lane, Mrs. Kelly's landladies, who beat him off with poker and broom.

Chief Weiss was summoned and Kelly and he had a lively scrap before the officer could put the "bracelets" on him. Mark Lee, of Hosmony street, a passer-by at the time, was one of the witnesses at last night. Kelly was warned to keep out of the borough at his last arrest several months ago.

Capital "R" for Glen Ridge Now.

The borough of Glen Ridge is feeling capital, thank you, because the postal authorities at Washington have decided that hereafter the initial section of its name shall be starting with a big "R." Heretofore it has been officially spelled "Glenridge" and the people didn't like to have their ridge in small caps. The new postmaster of the town, William B. Poes appealed to have the capital "R" officially recognized at the capital. The good fortune of the Glen Ridge people is now expected to inspire the residents of Bloomfield to spell the hinder part of that town with a capital "F."

GIVES RELATIVES MILLION

Mrs. Weightman Walker, Heir to $60,000,000, Shares with Kins on Eve of Wedding.

MRS. A. H. WEIGHTMAN ONE.

Husband of a Plainfielder Is Among Beneficiaries of a $600,000 Trust Fund Wealthy Bride Creates.

Mrs. Anne M. Weightman Walker, daughter of the late William Weightman, the multi-millionaire chemist of Philadelphia, and one of the richest women in that city, was married in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, Wednesday morning to Frederic Courtland Penfield, diplomat, yachtsman and clubman.

The ceremony was attended by Aubrey H. Weightman, Mrs. Walker's nephew; her niece, Mrs. Richard Wain Meirs, and Mr. Meirs, all of Philadelphia.

Five hours later it was announced that, just before the wedding, Mrs. Walker had given away $1,000,000. One of her beneficiaries is Aubrey H. Weightman, whose wedding to Miss Fanny Cox took place four years ago at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Howland Cox, in West Seventy street, this city.

Sole heir to the $60,000,000 left by her father, whose only surviving child she is, Mrs. Walker, according to a statement issued through her counsel, ex-Attorney General Hampton L. Carson, in disposing of this sum, gives $200,000 to seven institutions. But of the $800,000 remaining, $600,000 is set aside as a trust fund for her nephew and five nieces and $200,000 as a similar fund for her four great-nephews and great-nieces.

Of these beneficiaries, all save one in the first group are Philadelphians. They are:

Mrs. Anne W. Weightman Meirs, niece, wife of Richard Wain Meirs, 424 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Louisa S. Weightman Strawbridge, niece, wife of John Strawbridge, 647 Westview avenue, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Martha Rogers Weightman, niece, sister of the above and resident at the same address.

The great-nephews and great-nieces, for whom the trust fund of $200,000 is created, are William Weightman Ferris and his sisters, Marie L. and Emma G., the last three being the children of the late Mary Weightman Ferris, wife of William Ferris, of Wilmington, Del.

By this provision Mrs. Penfield, as she will be, gives the income of a large amount of money to the children of her brother, whose widow, the present Mrs. Jones Wister, endeavored, three years ago, in the interest of those children, to break the will of her former father-in-law, under which the Mrs. Walker inherited the Weightman fortune.

That suit, with eminent lawyers representing both sides, attracted much attention at its beginning, and even more at its end, for the proceedings were scarcely begun in court than they were suddenly discontinued by the sensational production of a bit of paper, covered with the late William Weightman's handwriting.

It was never even offered in evidence, and its mere presentation was the reason for their abandonment of the case. Concerning the contents of the paper, all persons interested have since kept scrupulous silence.

Preservation of Aged Trees.

At a recent meeting in Massachusetts one of the speakers was Christopher Clark, for a quarter of a century tree warden of Northampton. Mr. Clark has lived there for eighty-one years. He told the audience how much the people prized the aged trees planted by the first settlers. He stated that over twenty barrels of cement had been used to stop the decay and fill the cavities of a single large tree. Will other towns please sit up and take notice? In years to come they should have streets lined with giant trees, each one valued at at least $1,000. Future residents will then gladly spend a hundred or two dollars to arrest decay in one. Better plant your street in full this season.

Another Fable.

"It doesn't look as if I could get through there," he remarked.

"Oh come take a nip," said the sympathetic elephant. "Perhaps that will give you courage."

"Perhaps it will. I do need an eye-opener, don't I."—Chicago News.

The Real Need.

"They say that laziness is caused by a germ. What a fine thing it would be if we could find something to kill the thing."

"Oh, no. I know something finer than that. Think how much nicer it would be if we could all find some way to gratify it."—The Hebrew Standard.

VIL SERVICE HISTORY

NEW JERSEY EFFECTS 1,600.

A comprehensive review of civil vice legislation in this country s given Wednesday by State Sena- Ernest R. Ackerman, of this nty, in the course of a speech in e Upper House at Trenton before e passage of his model civil ser- ice bill for New Jersey.

Civil service regulations were dopted by the United States Govern- ent in 1883. Both houses of Con- ress were Republican at the time e bill was introduced by Senator endelton, a Democrat of Ohio, and e measure passed each house by a ge majority, receiving the approv- l of President Arthur.

At present there are 196,918 po- tions in the competitive classified il service and of these 23,820 are cated in Washington and 173,098 throughout the country. The annual mpensation of these employes ag- egates between $175,000,000 and 80,000,000.

New York in 1883 incorporated e merit and fitness standard in its ate Constitution applying to all il divisions, including cities and llages, and a section of the bill der consideration follows very osely the provision of the New rk Constitution.

"These States have a population of bout 20,000,000 or one fifth of the opulation of the country.

"The civil service laws have work- satisfactorily to such an extent hat no effort has been made to re- eal them. They have been economi- al in operation and a striking illus- ration of this may be found in the dministration of the Chicago Water epartment. Local civil service was pplied to Chicago in 1892. The to- l pay roll for that year were $2,- 60,000, expenses $295,000, or 16½ er cent. At present the receipts re $4,000,000, expenses $260,000, 6½ per cent. with the result of a aving of 4 per cent.

"There are 1,600 positions in the ew Jersey State service which will e effected by this bill. The total penses of the commission must not xceed $30,000 annually or between and 2 per cent. of the gross salary . As the commission must audit pay rolls of the offices that the mmission may soon be self-sup- andpoint of efficiency and economy. Governor Hughes, of New York, a recent speech at Buffalo said in eferring to the civil service provi- on in the New York Constitution hat he regarded it as the most im- ortant article as well as second only to the 'Bill of Rights' in afe-guarding the interests of the eople.

"In conclusion, and while paying ribute to the honor and ability of hose at present in the State's ser- ice, I think it proper to say that veryone who helps in the effort to arry the colors of civil service re- orm further up the breastworks of he entrenched feudal or so-called poils system, will have performed a ervice not surpassed in excellence by any other act during his legisla- ive career.

"Let the note sound clear and har- onious that New Jersey ranks among the leaders in the fight for ne principle that stands for fair- ess and that he be rewarded and that merit and fitness are to be the stand- rds for all time in the public ser- ice to the great advantage of the ax-payers and citizens of New Jer- ey. I predict that ere long every tate in the Union will be under the ivisions of civil service will adopt he merit system."

"Camp Fair" at Mt. Zion Church.

The army workers of the Mt. Zion M. E. church will hold a "Camp air," in the church, beginning Tues- ay night, March 17, and closing Fri- ay night, March 20. A program ill be presented each night in the pper room of the church from 8:30 o 9:30, after which there will be a ale of goods in the Sunday-school ooms. The workers have been di- ided into four companies, known as o.'s A, B, C and D, with Captains ev. E. B. Maynard, John Jones, A. . White, and Oliver Lloyd in charge. ev. J. T. Diggs, the pastor, will ave general supervision of the fair.

Mayor Townsend After Trolley People

The settling of the trolley tracks n Somerset street midway between he bridge and Pearl street, has aused great quantities of standing water to collect between the rails, hrowing showers of spray when the rolley passes. Mayor Samuel Town- end will take up the matter with he P. S. C. with a view of requesting hem to install a catch basin at the oint, between the rails.

CLERKS HAD MERRY TIME AT TRUELL HALL DANCE

Under the auspices of the clerks of "The White Store" a successful reception and cotillion was held at Truell Hall, Thursday. While the af- fair was arranged by the employes of the establishment they were privi- leged to invite their friends and a company of about seventy-five enjoy- ed the dance. Miss Elizabeth O'Keeffe, Miss Minnie Hossinger and Miss May Hughes comprised the com- mittee and every detail was carried out in a successful manner.

The cotillion was led by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Courain and they intro- duced many novel and pleasing fig- urea, some of them new to most of the guests. Favors were distributed, consisting of hats, flags, Japanese umbrellas, fans and squeezers and these provided lots of fun for the young people. Music was furnished by Paroubek.

During the intermission between 11 and 12 o'clock refreshments were served in the large dining-room un- der the direction of Mrs. J. R. Truell.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Varley, the Misses May Hughes, Minnie Hossinger, Elizabeth O'Keeffe, A. Keely, Elizabeth Gut- nee, Etta Titus, E. Lawrence, E. Clark, R. Neylon, A. DENIES SHOWING $400 ROLL TO MRS. VOORHEES

Robert Markley, of Summit and formerly of Plainfield, was not much concerned over the story told about him by Mrs. Marie Voorhees, who is in the Somerville county jail with Noble Gilbert, both of whom are fac- ing similar charges. As already told, Mrs. Voorhees started a story which set forth that Gilbert had confessed to her the murder of Mrs. Morris Markley, which occurred December 13, 1905, when the slain woman was robbed of valuable diamonds and con- siderable money. Mrs. Voorhees has since admitted that her story of the confession was false and was uttered to make Carrie Wright, of Asbury Park, discard Gilbert, whom she (the Voorhees woman) wanted for her- self.

Gilbert, in denying any connection with the Naftal murder, explained that Mrs. Voorhees had told him that Markley after the Naftal murder had given her a diamond ring and had displayed a roll of bills amounting to $400. Gilbert repre- sented Mrs. Voorhees as saying that she returned the ring and other pres- ents to Markley and that later, re- penting of her action, wrote to his mother in Summit and received a reply signed "Abbot," setting forth that Markley wanted nothing more to do with her and had gone to Bal- timore.

When Markley read Mrs. Voorhees' references to himself he admitted the truth of all of them, except that re- lating to the $400 display. That, he said, was emphatically not true, be- cause the most money he ever had at the Monmouth with Mrs. Voor- hees was $12, as nearly as he could remember. Markley said that while working as a salesman for a New York firm he became acquainted with the woman in Asbury Park and had called on her until she told him that she was married, but was not living with her husband, who was then residing in Asbury Park.

Markley admitted having written her the letter signed Abbot. Markley has lived at Summit about three years and was married one year.

He is a brother to Physical Direc- tor Frank Markley, of the Summit Y. M. C. A., who until recently re- sided in Plainfield.

G. O. P. PLANS BANQUET

Governor Fort, U. S. Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler to Speak April 23.

PEAST TO BE AT ELIZABETH.

State Senator Ackerman and His Colleagues from Union in the Assembly Also to Talk.

Letters received by the committee in charge of the dollar dinner sched- uled for April 23, under the auspices of the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth, contain acceptances from Governor Fort as speaker and United States Senator John Kean as toastmaster. The latter was prac- tically certain since the conception of the plan, but it was impossible to set the date for the affair until Gov- ernor Fort had been heard from. The Governor has sent word that he will be glad to accept the invitation for April 23.

The program of speakers so far prepared includes, besides Senator Kean and Governor Fort, President Hillery of the Senate, former Gover- nor Foster M. Voorhees, Representa- tives Charles N. Fowler, William P. Martin, leader of the House; Frank B. Jess, Speaker of the House; John I. Blair Reilly, of Warren county, Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris county; Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and As- semblymen M. Moxon, Pierce and Kir- stein, of Union county.

WESTFIELD MAN NAMED FOR HIGH POSITION

An honor was conferred upon a Westfield man this week, when John D. Gluck, of South avenue, was ap- pointed treasurer of the National Commercial and Industrial League of Chicago and New York. Mr. Gluck is vice-president and general manag- er of the Pacific Coal and Trans- portation Company of New York.

The National Commercial and In- dustrial League has a membership of more than 200,000 commercial bodies and business men and took a conspicuous part in the first nomi- nation and election of President Mc- Kinley and in the campaigns of 1900 and 1904. The league recently is- sued an address through its presi- dent, George J. Corey, and other of- ficers, strongly endorsing Secretary Taft and pledging the cooperation of the league for his nomination and election as the successor of President Roosevelt.

The new league will take a hand in the coming campaign on new lines and with a new organization composed of men uncontrolled by old leaders. The far-reaching character of the coming campaign necessitates an early start upon the part of the league, which intends to educate the rank and file. Reform in corporate control and the revision of the tariff along Republi- can lines are issues that vitally af- fect the whole people, and the league considers it proper and legitimate business for the commercial travelers to inaugurate the campaign of edu- cation.

Mr. Gluck is to speak in several of the cities from Chicago to New York, taking in Philadelphia, Camden, Trenton, Newark, Plainfield, Eliza- beth and other cities in the State.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL PRAYER-MEETING HELD

A largely-attended interdenomina- tional prayer meeting was held in Vincent chapel, Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church. An invitation was ex- tended to the women's missionary so- cieties of all the Protestant churches of the city and borough and there were representatives present from the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, First Presbyterian, Trinity Reform- ed, Park Avenue Baptist, First Bap- tist, Grace M. E., Monroe Avenue M. E. and Congregational churches.

As president of the Women's Aux- iliary of the First M. E. church, Mrs. Noah W. Pike was the leader of the meeting and directed the program. A number of the women present took part in the service, commenting on selected Scriptures, texts and reading items concerning home mis- sion work in the interest of which the service was held.

An additional feature was the sing- ing by a quartet composed of Miss Jessie Haynes, alto; Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, soprano; George Smith, tenor, and B. F. Tallamy, bass. They opened the service with the singing of "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and later two other numbers were given in a pleasing manner. The meeting proved to be a helpful and inspiring one, arousing deeper thought and interest in the cause of home missions which it is believed will result in greater efforts in the future.

PASTORS' ORGANIZATION

Rev. J. A. Chamblliss Chosen President of the Plainfield Ministers' Association.

HOLD FIVE MEETINGS A YEAR.

Grace Church Parish House to Be the Meeting Place—Committees Are Appointed.

Plainfield pastors, both active and retired, met Thursday afternoon in the parish house of Grace Episcopal church for the purpose of effecting a reorganization of the Plainfield Min- isters' Association. The body has been allowed to become inactive be- cause there was no president and at the present time the active members of the association met, elected officers, adopted a constitution and by-laws and transacted other business.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblliss, of the First Baptist church, was chosen president; Rev. Dr. J. B. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, vice president, and Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, secretary and treasurer. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, Rev. Dr. Zelie and Rev. E. E. Roberson were named a committee on program and enter- tainment for the coming year.

Rev. Dr. Zelie, Rev. Dr. Chamblliss, Rev. L. R. Howard and Rev. Mr. Mc- Crea were appointed a committee on constitution and by-laws and the re- port presented was adopted. State meetings of the association will be held on the second Thursday in Feb- ruary, April, June, October, Decem- ber, while provisions were made for special meetings at the call of the president.

Upon the invitation of Mr. Steven- son it was decided to hold the meet- ings in the parish house of Grace church, unless the association is in- vited to meet elsewhere at any time. After the meeting yesterday refresh- ments were served at the direction of Mr. Stevenson and a social hour enjoyed.

The ministers present yesterday were Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblliss, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. C. H. Schnee- gas, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, Rev. Dr. George W. Olney, Rev. Edward Love, Rev. A. E. Finn, Rev. E. E. Roberson, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and Rev. A. C. Mc- Crea. Several other divines who re- ceived invitations to attend the meet- ing were prevented from doing so for various reasons, but they signified their intention to identify themselves with the association.

HUNDREDS AT FUNERAL OF DR. J. B. PROBASCO

Attended by hundreds of promi- nent business and professional men, friends from every walk of life and many of the pupils of Dr. Probasco as public school teachers who have re- alized what he did for the cause of education, the funeral of Dr. John Buck Probasco was held in the First Baptist church Friday afternoon. The services were the most impressive that has attended a similar service in this city in years and included delegations from nearly a dozen organizations to which he belonged. The schools of the city closed at noon in order that the teachers and pupils might do honor to the memory of the departed presi- dent of the Board of Education and practically every local physician was in attendance.

The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. John A. Chamblliss, pastor of the church and co-worker with Dr. Pro- basco, who has held the office of dea- con in the congregation for many years. The clergymen paid a de- serving tribute to the man who had been a friend to all men and who in the rush and hurry of every day life had not neglected to show considera- tion for others. Howard Case pre- sided at the organ and during the service several selections were ren- dered by a quartet. The floral tri- butes numbered over a score of set pieces, among them being one from the school children.

GEO. CUBBERLEY SURPRISED BY FRIENDS ON BIRTHDAY.

George J. Cubberley, whose birth- day came Thursday, was surprised at his home on Pearl street last night when a party of friends "dropped in" on him with presents and felicitations of the occasion. The affair was ar- ranged by Mr. Cubberley's brother, Walter Cubberley, and proved a com- plete surprise. The evening was passed with games and music and later refreshments were served.

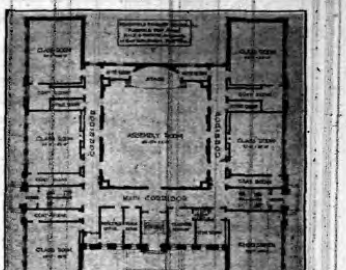
NEED FOR THE PROPOSED PRIMARY SCHOOL BUILDING



Floor Plan of Accepted New School.

whole district covered by the Irving and Washington schools, and it would cost twice as much to build the four omitted three years hence as it will to build them now.

"To provide room for growth in the future, if twelve rooms are built at Dar- row avenue now, and six rooms north of the railroad, either now or next year, when the classes have been re- adjusted, there will be only one or two spare rooms in each of the new buildings and in the Irving, to pro- vide for the growth in the whole western half of the city. This is lit- tle enough when one considers that in all the schools of the city there is only one vacant room and the city will soon face the question of addi- tional room for the Bryant school and the High school.

"Some critics have expressed as- tonishment that a primary building should cost nearly as much as the high school, but it should not be forgotten that we got the High school at a remarkably low cost. Many ar- chitects and school men who have inspected the building have express- ed surprise that we got so much at so small a cost. In addition to this, it is necessary to add 25 per cent to cover increased cost of labor and material now and to make the new building of fireproof construction. Also, the High school seats only 350 pupils, while the Darrow avenue seats over 500. When the High school bids came in, it was found necessary to cut off four class rooms from the proposed plan, in order not to go to the Council for more money. Those rooms could then have been built for ten thousand dollars. They will have to be built very soon, since every class room is now full, but it will cost two or three times ten thou- sand to put them in. Omitting the rooms from the High school was a very expensive policy and in the end it will be very expensive to cut down the size of the Darrow avenue school.

"Those who compare the cost of the proposed building with that of our older buildings should know that the State law now prescribes rules for heating, ventilating, lighting, size of rooms, stairs, ceilings, etc., that add much to the cost of a school. For instance, the heating and ventila- tion in the new building will cost $13,000 in the Irving school it cost less than $4,000. These requirements are all desirable, since they all add to the healthfulness or safety of the school, but they make larger appro- priations necessary for building. Yet, when we consider that a school build- ing will stand fifty years or more, a credit or a discredit to the city, ac- cording to its building, and that it will be used by thousands of chil- dren, there are very few of us that will not say the appropriation should be large enough to make the building ample and complete, with an exterior that, while not ornate, shall be some- thing to be proud of. In twenty years, Plainfield has built only two school buildings. It has now reached the point where more extensive mea- sures must be adopted to give relief and provide for natural growth.

"It is the judgment of the Board, after a long and careful study of the conditions, that if the money can be provided, two buildings instead of one should be erected, but if only one can now be provided, it will be most economical and will best meet present needs to erect a twelve room building at Darrow avenue."

matters for the competition, the Board asked him to estimate the cost of the building. He estimated the number of cubic feet that the build- ing would contain, then found how much one cubic foot it cost to build the High school and by multiplying them found what the new building would have cost four or five years ago. To this he added 25 per cent. to cover increase in cost of labor and material and the extra expense for fire proof construction. This showed the cost of the building as about $90,000, which is the sum asked for by the Board. But the accepted plans figure out about 10 per cent. more cubic feet than was assumed by Mr. Cook as the probable size of the building, so that using the same fig- ures of cost per cubic foot which he used, the building should really cost about $100,000, which is the amount we should have asked for if we could have known beforehand the exact size of the building.

"As a matter of fact, when the bids for the building were opened, it was found that combining the bids of the lowest bidders on each of the con- tracts, the building would cost about $104,000 or with the regular archi- tects fee for plans and supervision of construction, a total of $109,000.

"It seems impossible to reduce the size of the rooms, since they are now regulation size, and the halls are in some cases narrower than those in the Irving school, while the number of rooms cannot be reduced without making the building too small to meet present needs. Board has hopes, however, by omitting most of the terra cotta, substituting brick for stone below the water-table, and otherwise cheapening the construc- tion, they may bring the cost down to $100,000.

"From the first inception of the plans, the Board has given much con- sideration to the question of lower- ing the cost by using some of the new forms of cement construction. We have consulted various people and have had engineers before the Board to discuss the matter. We also asked various companies who do that work to bid on the building, but were not able to secure a definite, complete bid from any of them. I understand that Mayor Abbott, in his desire to serve the city fully, has submitted the plans to a cement construction company, and after studying them, they assured him that the cost could not be materially low- ered by that method of construction in a building of that character.

"The Board has, therefore, felt un- willing to do any experimenting in that line and has been compelled to adhere to brick, the form that has stood the test of years.

"We wish to put up the building at the lowest possible cost, but we are building for fifty or seventy-five years and we cannot afford to skimp the building in any way that will di- minish its usefulness or its health- fulness. It should be simple in con- struction but it must be complete and up-to-date in its features and equipment. A school building is al- ways a conspicuous building in a city, and the public spirit, enlightened and civic spirit is shown by the character of these buildings; we cannot, there- fore, afford to build so cheaply that the school will be a bad advertise- ment of the city to those that see it. Keeping these points in mind, the Board will again go over the plans and strive to reduce the cost all it can wisely."

WON'T AID AMBOY SCHEME

City Fathers Decline to Co-operate in Plan to Have Library Tax Law Changed.

ROUTINE WORK OF COUNCIL.

Title of Lighting and Trees Committee Changed—Firemen Fund Trustees Reappointed.

The annual tax budget and several other matters of importance not being ready for presentation at the March meeting of the Common Council, Monday, the session was occupied chiefly in the transaction of business of minor consequence, including a number of petitions.

The communication received from the clerk of the Perth Amboy Council a week ago, asking the co-operation of the Plainfield Council in obtaining an amendment to the law which provides for appropriations to be made public libraries by taxation, was reported back by Chairman Tyler, of the public affairs committee, with a motion that the city clerk be instructed to notify the clerk of Perth Amboy that the communication had been duly considered, but that no action is deemed wise at this time. His motion was carried.

Schenck & McAfee, contractors, petitioned for the privilege of making alterations in the rear of the building occupied by T. B. Kolb, at 112 West Front street, the plans calling for the enclosure of a porch, the same to be covered with corrugated iron. The petition was referred to the fire and building committee.

A communication was received from Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, recommending that C. C. Graves and E. J. McCann be reappointed trustees of the fire department pension fund, their terms having expired. The recommendation was adopted on a motion by Councilman Hibbard, Mr. Graves being appointed for four years and Mr. McCann for three.

Rev. E. R. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church and others, requested that a flag walk be laid on Monroe avenue, between Fourth and Seventh street, and the matter was referred to the streets and sewers committee. A petition from the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company for permission to erect an awning in front of its premises at 620 North avenue, was referred to the fire and building committee. The company said that the improvement had the approval of Building Inspector T. O. Doane.

Mayor Fisk re-appointed Joseph H. Cooney as special policeman for one year and the appointment was confirmed.

Several resolutions were offered by Councilman Hibbard and adopted. One provided for the borrowing of $6,000 on account of sanitary sewer improvements, and another authorized the appropriation of an additional $368 for the extra work in auditing the accounts of the city, which was done by E. L. Suffern & Co. This makes the total cost $868, last year's Council having appropriated $500 for the work.

Another resolution by Mr. Hibbard authorized the city clerk to transfer $1,500 from the general fund to the fire fund, and still another one awarded the contract for furnishing the necessary supplies for the Board of Assessors to the Monarch Printing Company for $112.50, that bid being the lowest.

Rule five, of the rules of order was amended to read "Lighting committee," instead of "lights and trees committee." This change was suggested earlier in the year in view of the fact that the city now has a shade tree commission which looks after the trees. The motion to amend was offered by Councilman Suydam and adopted, after an unsuccessful attempt of Councilman Hibbard to change the rule in another way which was not believed to be legal.

Several petitions requesting that streets be macadamized were reported back by Chairman Gloak, of the street committee, with instructions to the city clerk to advise the petitioners that an ordinance is being prepared to cover the streets named.

The February report of Overseer-of-the-Poor A. D. Ayres was presented and read and ordered filed. It showed orders in favor of relief of $532.38, which included salaries, supplies, etc.

At the suggestion of Mayor Fisk, Councilman Tyler offered a resolution instructing the city clerk to secure from the secretary of state a certified copy of the act validitating sewer bond issues. The resolution was adopted.

In reference to the action taken earlier in the evening in amending the rules or order, Mr. Tyler said that several changes would appear to be necessary as, in his opinion, there are many defects. The one he called especial attention to was No. 29, which provides that "any member voting with the majority may move to reconsider." He objected to this on the ground that those voting in the minority should be given this privilege. This, he said, was only one of several defects. His motion that the public affairs committee be authorized to make such changes as is deemed necessary and that the members of the Council make such suggestions as may occur to them, was adopted. A report will be presented at a future meeting for action.

The attention of the street lighting committee was called by Mr. Mygatt to a light at West Seventh street and Spooner avenue, which he said was so completely covered by a red shade, indicating the location of a fire alarm box, that it failed to give the proper light. The matter will be attended to by Mr. Montgomery.

The ordinance which provides for the closing of Hill street, was called up by Mr. Gloak and passed on its third and final reading, Mr. Hibbard alone voting in the negative. Mr. Gloak moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday night, March 16.

PUBLIC SCALES COMING

City Fathers Consider Mr. Tyler's Suggestion to Put Them at Police Station.

MAYOR FAVORS THE PLAN.

Promise Made That Police Board Will Act Favorably On a Third Ward Member's Proposition.

In the absence of more important business, which it was expected would be considered at the March meeting of the Common Council Monday, Councilman Tyler, chairman of the public affairs committee, made a suggestion which afterwards was put in the form of a motion and adopted, that public scales be established on the premises where it is proposed to erect a new police headquarters' building at East Fourth and Sumner avenues. He said that the question had been discussed more or less during the past two years and he believed that when the new police structure is erected it would be wise to put public scales there.

The motion offered by Mr. Tyler provided that the matter be referred to the Police Board and that the members, under the advice of the corporation counsel, prepare the proper ordinance for presentation to the Common Council for action. All the members but Mr. Montgomery voted in favor of the motion.

Speaking of the question of a public scales after the meeting, Mayor Fisk, who favors it, said that the streets and sewers committee, on petition from the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company for permission to erect an awning in front of its premises at 620 North avenue, was referred to the fire and building committee. The company said that the improvement had the approval of Building Inspector T. O. Doane.

IN FELLING CITY TREES FOUND AN ODD TRUNK

The Shade Tree Commission began operations in the city park Tuesday morning by removing some of the overcrowded and defective trees. To perform this work the commission has engaged a number of linemen who were recently employed by the Public Service Corporation, but who are now employed by the city at this work. They are thoroughly experienced and the commission feels fortunate in being able to obtain their services at day wages. R. P. Gay, the forester, employed by the commission, is in personal charge.

A peculiar and somewhat remarkable condition of a tree was discovered yesterday. The tree, which stood on College place, near the city park, was about three feet thick. After it was cut down an examination showed it to be a beautiful carved piece of wood, the work of black ants. They had completely riddled and hollowed the trunk and in the opinion of Mr. Gay it was as fine a specimen of their work as he has seen. In speaking of the matter, Mr. Gay said that it would have been only a question of a short time when the tree would have blown over, as the life and substance of it were practically gone.

After the trees in the city park are cared for the commission will carry out its plans of thinning trees in the streets of the city as rapidly as consistently. Survey of the city shows that there are many trees that should be removed to improve shade tree conditions.

Authorities Don't Want Julia.

In reply to Mayor Townsend's inquiry as to why Julia Saecracher, committed to the Somerville jail for a fifty day sentence, was released five days before the expiration of her term of imprisonment, County Sheriff Frank Ross wrote to the Mayor saying that the time was taken off on account of good behavior. This is a prison rule, the Sheriff replied in his letter that the prison authorities were no more anxious to have Julia "in their midst" than the the North Plainfield police. Julia has not been arrested since last Thursday, having controlled her liquor appetite since her release from the county jail.

School Superintendents of Nation Say Increase in Salary is Now Necessary.

AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

Supt. H. M. Maxson Reports On Sessions to Board of Education—More Personal Instruction Urged.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield Public Schools, who was at the annual conference of school superintendents held at Washington, D. C., last week, made his report on the conference proceedings at the meeting of the city Board of Education at the Plainfield High School Monday. Mr. Maxson was summoned home from the conference by the news of Dr. Probasco, president of the Board. His report follows in full:

"In accordance with the desire of the Board, I had the pleasure of attending the annual meeting of the National Superintendents' Association in Washington, last week.

"The meeting was the largest in the history of the association, about two thousand educators being in attendance; it was also one of the most profitable meetings. Among the most important topics discussed were Industrial Education, The Nurture and Protection of the Physical Well-being of Public School Pupils, The Supply and Training of Teachers, The School as an Instrument of Character Building, The Saving of Time and Energy in the School Work.

"In discussing the matter of saving in school work, some of the important thoughts were that since children are so unequal in their powers and capacities more thought should be given to adapting the course of study to the individual child and that special attention should be given both to the slow child and to the bright child. Also that the school should do more to increase the child's capacity in his life work and to increase his earning power.

"While we should never lose sight of the fact that the real aim of the school is the formation of character and enlarged power to live aright, there is a strong feeling among educators that the school can do more than it has done to increase the child's industrial capacity and adaptiveness.

"Another thought was that pupils should be promoted as fast as their advancement will justify, simply at the end of the year. This has long been the custom with us, though from the nature of the case most pupils are promoted at regular intervals.

It was also thought that time would be saved by removing defective or obnormal children from the regular classes and teaching them in special classes. Every school has several children that cannot do the regular work of the class. In some cases they are markedly defective, in other cases they simply vary from the regular type of children and do not fit into the school routine. A few cities are already collecting such children into separate classes and putting them in charge of teachers specially trained for such work. This makes the school very much more profitable for such children. It also makes the work of the regular teacher much more effective by relieving her of the extra time and thought that such cases always require when in the regular class.

"Medical inspection, such as we have had for ten years, received general approbation; but in few careful investigations has it been found to meet special needs such as is given in our schools by Miss Jackson, the Supervisor of Physical Training.

"It was maintained that as the schools employ an architect as a specialist in constructing a building, so they should employ a physician as a medical expert not simply to guard against contagious disease but to study school conditions and their effect upon the child to the end that measures may be taken to preserve his health and increase his physical vigor as he advances through the grades. I expect considerable profit in the schools in the next decade from the movement in this line in our larger cities, which will develop facts and principles that we may apply in the smaller cities.

"Discussion of the topic 'How to Improve the Teaching' brought out the fact that there is a quite universal scarcity of teachers and that it is increasing. One of the man causes seems to be the great enlargement of the field of labor for women and the fact that in so many cases the ease of preparation and the salaries are more favorable than in the work of teaching.

"There was general agreement that the first step toward improvement was raising the salaries and improving the conditions of work. This movement toward increase has taken quite a start in New Jersey, and the provision for pensions under the two laws passed within a few years also adds somewhat to the attractiveness of work in the state.

"Another inducement used in Boston and some other cities is what is called the sabbatical year. A teacher who has been in the service 7 years may be given a year's absence to travel or study and receive half salary during the absence. In such a case the teacher is under contract to stay with the city for three years after her return or refund one-third of the money paid her for each year short of the three, that she does not serve. This plan has been found profitable to the city by reason of the increased health and the added brightness and power which comes to the teacher from the change. It is also of benefit by reason of the number of teachers who are studying and getting ready in anticipation of their year of absence, for some years before they go.

"It has been found to cost the city comparatively little since the teacher who goes in one why has received a minimum salary and her place is taken by one who is paid the minimum. The difference between the two which is saved yearly equals the half salary paid the absent teacher.

"My pleasure in the meeting was shadowed by my great personal loss in the death of the President of the Board, and my attendance somewhat shortened as a result.

"Thanking the Board of the opportunity and the profit I received,

"Respectfully submitted,

"H. M. MAXSON."

MEETINGS ONCE EVERY MONTH.

Enthusiasm Marks Meeting At Which Plans Are Made for Regular Monthly Meetings.

Merchants of the city met at the store of F. A. Duttenhofer on East Front street, Monday, and formed a permanent organization by electing these officers: President, A. E. Force; first vice president, F. Schuldeirie; second vice president, F. A. Duttenhofer; secretary, Walter F. Greenwood; treasurer, John S. Johnston. By-laws were adopted and a committee of which Herman Schwed is chairman, was appointed to solicit new members. Jacob Pass is the chairman of the committee on rooms. The organization will be known as The Merchants' Association, of Plainfield, and meetings will be held the third Monday of each month.

Little outside of effecting an organization was accomplished, although there was some discussion regarding the advisability of adopting some method of protection against debtors. The matter will be taken up more fully at another meeting, together with other important questions. There was a large attendance of merchants at the first meeting and all were enthusiastic over the outlok. It is believed that the co-operation as outlined will bring about a far better condition in matters of trade.

AGED MAN HAS HAD BUT TWENTY BIRTHDAYS

George H. Spicer, of Ashaway, R. I., brother of J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, and well-known among the old residents of the city of Plainfield and New Market, celebrated his twentieth birthday anniversary on Saturday, although he is eighty-four years old. The fact that he was born in leap year was responsible for this unusual circumstance.

Mr. Spicer received many kind remembrances of the day, among them being a large pail of fruit and candy from the What Next Club, of Norwich, Conn. In the evening it seemed as though the whole town of Ashaway had turned out to honor its esteemed citizen. During the early part of the evening the young folks gathered and later the older residents began to call.

The table in the dining room was decorated with carnations and in the center was a large birthday cake lighted with twenty candles. The dates, 1824-1908, were inscribed on the cake. The whole affair was a surprise to Mr. Spicer, but he entered into the festivities with good spirit. Mr. Spicer is a son of Joseph Spicer and Cotent Potter, being born in Hopkinton, R. I., February 29, 1824. For the fact that he was born on this date he has had but twenty birthday anniversaries, one each four years with the exception of 1900, when he skipped eight years from 1896 to 1904. He has two children living, Elizabeth Spicer, of Ashaway, and Mrs. Fred Crowell, of Norwich. His many friends hope that they will be able to help him on the four years hence in celebrating his twenty-first birthday.

Mrs. Mildred McCorkle to Wed.

A wedding of considerable interest will be celebrated at Westfield on Saturday, when Mrs. Mildred McCorkle, of that place, and Frank R. Steven, son of John R. Steven, of Monroe place, Brooklyn, will be married. The bride is a grandson of James S. Connell, of Pierrepont street, Brooklyn. Mrs. McCorkle is the widow of Lieutenant Henry L. McCorkle, who was killed in the Spanish War, and a daughter of Major H. P. Ritzins, U. S. "retired," now living in Tennessee.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Books That Are Being Talked About —All of These Are In the Public Library.

Chittenden, Russell H.—The Nutrition of Man.

"It is probable that no book published will stir up as great an amount of beneficial criticism, discussion, and controversy as the volume in which Russell H. Chittenden sums up the results of the many extremely important dietary experiments he has been engaged upon for the last six years."

Colophoun, A. R.—Whirlpool of Europe.

"In his 'Whirlpool of Europe' may be studied the eddying currents of five or six different races, religions, and national ambitions. Every phase of European civilization, every question, racial, religious, political, that has agitated Europe in the last two centuries may be studied here."—Literary Digest.

Finot, M.—Race prejudice.

"M. Finot's volume, while it does not escape the exaggeration natural to an enthusiastic disciple, contains much matter that is of interest to students of international relations and racial history."—Nation.

Huntington, Ellsworth.—Pulse of Asia.

"Mr. Huntington gathers up the various hypotheses relating to geography, archeology, folk-lore and history and combines them into a consistent theory of history. The book is the outcome of personal adventure from which an analytical mind has deduced material which is a worthy contribution to science."

James, William.—Pragmatism.

"Professor James' volume is interesting and stimulating throughout, and it is needless to add that it contains a deal of practical wisdom and much useful advice which all philosophers would do well to heed. And it seems to me to be much stronger in what it affirms than in what it denies."—Charles W. Bakewell.—Philosophical Review.

Johnson, Willis Fletcher.—Four centuries of the Panama Canal.

"This is the most thorough and comprehensive work that has yet appeared on the Panama Canal. The discussion of the engineering side of the question is very inadequate. For a week of such detail, covering a new field, it is—except when the author gets enthusiastic and eloquent—remarkably free from errors."—Nation.

Metchinkoff, Elie.— Nature of Man.

"The scientific importance of this work is so great that it is spoken of in England as the most valuable production since Garwin's Origin of Species."

Metchinkoff, Elie.— Prolongation of life.

"A great deal of attention is given in this book to the subject of old age. The author suggests means of prolonging it, and finally, in contemplating natural death, with serenity. Some of the essays concern themselves with psychological matters, with optimism and pessimism, and in general with questions of science and morals."

Kellogg, V. L.—Darwinism today.

"The value of Professor Kellogg's book to the working student of organic evolution cannot be overestimated. It is a book that the student must have at hand at all times, and it takes the place of a whole library. No other writer has attempted to gather together the scattered literature of this vast subject and none has subjected this literature to such a critical, trenchant and uniformly kindly criticism."—David Starr Jordan.—Dial.

This book furnishes in convenient form practical information regarding digestion and nutrition, and on practically every subject connected with hygiene in a way that the layman can understand."

"A curious study in race psychology is afforded by this 'soldier's story of Port Arthur.' The book furnishes a striking picture of what war actually is, even under its most humane aspects. And at a time when the eyes of the whole world are on Japan, it is worth while to be told so authoritatively just what manner of fighting man the Japanese soldier is."—Ward Clark.—Bookman.

Salisbury, Rollin D.—Physiography.

"Professor Salisbury's book meets a real want and the character of its compilation, based as it is, on many years of experience in teaching, gives the book a completeness far beyond any other physiography published up to date."—Science.

Thomson, W. H.—Brain and personality; or the physical relations of the brain to the mind.

Trevelyan, Sir George Otto.—American Revolution. v. 3.

"The founded and highly sustained style of the earlier volumes, which some have likened to that of Trevelyan's uncle, Lord Macauley, is maintained, and there is just enough of the British point of view to give new zest to a subject so frequently treated by our own writers."—Lit. D.

Victoria, Alexandria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland.—Letters, 1837-1861.

"Those who only know Queen Victoria's gifts as a writer through her 'Highland Journals' will be astonished when they read these volumes. To say that the book is of absorbing interest does it scant justice, for it is one of the great books of the century."—Jeannette L. Gilder.—Review of rev.

Weale, B. L. P.—Truce in the East.

"This book is not convincing. It is too confident in statement, too dramatic in expression, and knows more of the future of half of Asia than it is possible for any one even to guess at—above all, any European. Mr. Weale is always lucid, and even when we are least convinced by his conclusions, we feel that they have been honestly formed upon a fairly wide basis of knowledge, experience, and thought."—Athenaeum.

Wendell, Barrett.—France of today.

"I greatly admire the book; it is full of excellent things; the author combines acument with sympathy. He knows how to praise and he knows also how to blame, a much rarer art."—J. A. J. Jusserand.—N. Y. Times.

Wiley, Harvey Washington.—Foods and their adulteration.

"This is the most authoritative and comprehensive book that has appeared on this important subject, and there is no other man in America who is better fitted to handle it from both the scientific and the legislative sides than the author," who is the Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, U. S. Department of Agriculture."

CRUSHED STONE BIDS TO BE RECEIVED MCH. 26

Bids for furnishing the city with crushed stone, culverts and cross-walks during the coming year will be received by the street committee on Thursday night, March 26. A resolution authorizing the committee to advertise for bids was offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman, and adopted. Separate bids will be received for different size crushed stone, to be known as sizes A, B and C, and the provisions specify that the person getting the contract must weigh each load on scales designated by City Engineer Gavett and a way-bill must accompany every load. The crushed stone, as well as the stone for culverts must be in accordance with previous specifications as to quality and thickness. No Erie or similar stone will be accepted.

The contract for furnishing the crushed stone last year was given to the Watchung Stone Company, of which Warren H. Travell is the manager, and it is believed that the competition this year will be lively. Previous to last year the contract was held by Smalley Brothers and they are likely to be important factors in the bid for the work this year.

TURN VEREIN HOLDS ANNUAL MASQUE BALL

The Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein conducted its nineteenth annual masquerade ball at Saengerbund Hall, Monday, the affair being more successful in many ways than the eighteen preceding. The attendance numbered 500 or more and until well after midnight the dancing floor was crowded to its capacity.

According to the custom at the ball, a grand march was held at 9 o'clock and all those in costume took part. The long line of men and women in grotesque or fancy garb was led by Charles F. Meyer, Jr., and a dozen intricate figures were evolved. Parpubek's orchestra furnished the music and the program prepared by the leader proved highly satisfactory. The dancing continued until daybreak this morning.

The costumes were more numerous than in several years previous and comprised all the familiar burlesques and many new ones. Happy Hooligans, Hall Room boys, sailors, soldiers, dudes and clowns were prevalent with the men and dairymaids, fairy queens, dancing girls and sweet sixteens were favorites with the women.

The affair was in charge of a committee from the Turn Verein composed of John Wirth, chairman; G. O. Keller, secretary and treasurer; Charles F. Meyer, Jr., John Schroop, August Wolf, Lawrence Fahn, Anton Seidler and John Retzer.

VICE PRESIDENT LOVELL NOW ACTS AS CHAIRMAN

Leander N. Lovell, vice president of the Plainfield Board of Education, was in the chair at the regular monthly meeting of the Board at the Plainfield High School Monday. No motion of a successor to the late Dr. Probasco, president of the board, was made at the meeting, and Mr. Lovell will be in the chair as vice president. Dr. Probasco's successor is to be elected.

Aside from the payment of about $1,000 worth of bills, the business of last night's meeting consisted mainly in receiving financial reports for the past month. The tax collector's report showed receipts to the total $1,636.44 of school moneys that have been collected during February. This amount includes $24.68 in interest. County Superintendent of Schools J. Savitz, of Westfield, reported $3,605.45 as the city schools' share of the ten per cent. reserved fund of the State tax for 1907-1908. The cash accounts of the custodian of schools and board of education were read, showing a balance of $51,510.12 for February. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson reported 4957 from thitoge for the second quarter of the school year.

F. B. Clark, clerk of the board was instructed to write a letter of thanks to Professor M. P. E. Grossmann for the course of lectures on education given this winter before the school teachers. Resolutions of thanks were framed to be forwarded to J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, for the bronze bust of George Washington presented by him to the High School, as a gift from his father, Dr. Abraham Coles.

The bids for the school supplies will be opened at once and the supply contracts awarded at the April meeting.

Offering for Foreign Missions.

The annual offering for foreign missions will be received at the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday, at which time it is hoped that in the congregational offering was $2,389.74, and it is sincerely hoped that this year's contribution will equal that and exceed it if possible. The prayer-meeting at the church tomorrow night will be devoted to the missionary interests of the church.

TWO HURT IN SMASH-UP

Gordan McKenzie's Collarbone Broken and Arthur Jones Badly Bruised.

BIG HITS DELIVERY WAGON.

Both Victims Taken to Hospital Where Jones Lay Unconscious for Several Hours—Hail from New York.

Gordon McKenzie and Arthur Jones, both of New York, the latter employed by the Walton Ambulance Company of that city, were taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday night suffering from injuries sustained in a collision on East Front street, near Elm place. McKenzie sustained a fracture of the collarbone, while Jones received contused wounds and bruises as well as an injury to his right arm. He was unconscious for several hours.

Jones had been sent to Plainfield by his employers to get a team of horses which were being boarded on a nearby farm, and he asked his friend, McKenzie to accompany him. The two men left New York about 1 o'clock in the afternoon with a single horse and one-seated runabout, arriving here about 7 o'clock. While driving through East Front street, near Elm place, they approached one of S. Scheurer & Co.'s delivery wagons in charge of Charles Moscow, who turned to the right side of the road intending to stop at I. L. McVoy's residence. Jones was driving a spirited animal and in his efforts to turn the for the grocery wagon the horse began to prance and plunge. Before Jones could reach the opposite side of the road his rig struck the rear of the grocery wagon with such force as to throw the occupants out on their heads.

The men lay in the roadway helpless while assistance was summoned from police headquarters. Detective-Sergeant John Flynn responded and found Jones in an unconscious condition, while his companion suffering from broken bones was unable to move. The injured men were taken at once to the hospital, where they were attended by Dr. Albert Pitts.

An examination showed that McKenzie's collarbone was broken, while Jones suffered from contused wounds and bruises. The latter recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital Monday and he returned to his home in New York. McKenzie will be detained here for two or three weeks.

Lester R. Walton, of the Walton Ambulance Company, came to Plainfield yesterday in search of Mc-Jones and the Plainfield Cab Company. When he reached town he learned of the accident and at once took charge of the rig, making arrangements to get the company's team.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT DIES OF ADVANCED AGE.

Following a weakness of long duration, brought on by his advanced age, Patrick McNamara, one of the city's oldest citizens, died early Sunday morning at his home on Central avenue. His condition had been serious for the past week and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. McNamara came to Plainfield from Ireland in 1865 and had lived here ever since, most of the time on South Second street near Plainfield avenue. He formerly was employ of the New Jersey Central when a young man and remained with it in various capacities until a few years ago. He is survived by a wife, one daughter, Miss Catherine McNamara, and six sons. They are Michael McNamara, living on Elizabeth street; William, Patrick, Daniel, David and Thomas, all residing at home. He also leaves a brother, Michael McNamera, of Hastings-on-the-Hudson. Mr. McNamara had a wide acquaintance in the city and borough, especially in the West End, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Accept Pastor's Resignation.

The resignation of Rev. T. Moore-Smith was reluctantly accepted at the business meeting of the church held yesterday at the conclusion of the morning service. This is in accordance with the request of the pastor, who refused to reconsider his determination to withdraw after he learned that none of his people thought he devoted too much time to his prize winning dogs. Members of the congregation deeply regret the action taken by their pastor. Rev. Moore-Smith has not yet announced his plans for the future. His resignation will go into effect April 1.

Successful Leap-Year Dance.

Under the auspices of the young people of St. Stephen's church a leap-year dance was given at Crupell Hall, Saturday night, for the benefit of the parish. The affair was arranged by Mrs. R. H. McCready and Miss Catherine Knox. It was attended by about thirty people and excellent music was furnished by Charles Suhr's orchestra.

A Double Team.

"You can as soon cross the ocean on a chart as save the world by a breed.

DERBY HAT SAVES HIM FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Hervey K. Doane, son of Fire Chief T. O. Doane, who was severely injured in the Pennsylvania tube under the East River Wednesday afternoon, when a seven pound bolt dropped from the roof of the tube, striking him a heavy blow on the head, was able to resume his work today. The derby hat Doane wore was the means of preventing him from more serious injury, but a deep gash was cut in his head, which it required several stitches to close.

The young man is employed as inspector of work by the railroad, and the accident happened as he was inspecting Tube C, near the Long Island shore. Doane generally wears a soft hat while at his work, but Wednesday went into the tube with a derby. As he was passing through the tunnel, the heavy bolt slipped from a workman's hand and crashed through his hat, knocking him down. The young man has not been home since the accident, but has been confined to his boarding house in Long Island City.

COUPLE SEPARATED; WIFE VERSUS BULLDOG

Following a conference with Judge Runyon in the city court Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Murphy, of West Sixth street, decided that they could no longer live together and "agreed to disagree." The magistrate used every effort to effect a reconciliation but to no purpose. Mrs. Murphy maintained that her husband failed to provide proper support for herself and children and that he remained away from home for weeks at a time.

Judge Runyon suggested at one stage of the argument that Murphy did not bring money home because he had been out of work.

"That's true at times, Your Honor," the wife answered, "but even when he does get it none comes to us. Why, only a short time ago he worked two weeks for the first in a long while and instead of giving the earnings to his family he bought a bulldog with them. I think you'll agree with me that his wife and children are of more importance than a bulldog."

The separation was finally agreed upon and though for a time both held out for the children, Mrs. Murphy in the end consented to part with them. There are five girls and a boy. The mother was in tears when she agreed to part with them but declared to the court that it was preferrable to trying to keep up the household.

MINISTER TELLS WHAT THE ANGELS LOOK LIKE

"What Do Angels Look Like?" was the question discussed by Rev. E. E. Roberson at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church Sunday. It being one of those taken from "Pandora's Box." His disputed the idea some people have that angels are women and that they are provided with wings, and in substantiation of his claim cited Scripture which says spirits and therefore can go anywhere without the aid of wings.

"If all angels are women I feel sorry for the men," said Mr. Roberson, "for they will have no part in the glories of the hereafter. I presume the main one of the reasons why angels are always pictured as being women is that they are more beautiful than the men. The Scriptures teach that angels do not look like their pictures and I have every reason to believe that men as well as women become angels."

The chief purpose of Mr. Roberson's treatise of this subject was to disprove the impression that angels look like the pictures so often shown of these celestial bodies. Following the introductory talk Mr. Roberson delivered his regular sermon on the subject, "The Simplicity of the True Knight," in which his chief thought was that simplicity is the character of true greatness. The service was attended by a large congregation.

Mrs. Charles N. Thorpe to Speak.

The annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held at the church on Monday, March 9, and Mrs. Charles Newbold Thorpe, of Philadelphia, formerly president of the New Jersey Conference of that city, and president of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, will make an address. Mrs. Thorpe has just returned from an extended visit to mission stations in China, Japan, Korea and India and she will tell of her personal impressions of what she saw and heard in the Far East.

WHY CLERGY ORGANIZE EVERYTHING ALL WRONG

Closer Bond of Union for Civic Advancement is an Object of Ministers' Association.

ARE TO HOLD ANNUAL DINNER.

Christian, Unitarian and Jew Alike Welcome to Membership—Five Stated Meetings Each Year.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association has decided not to confine its membership along the narrow lines of Protestant Christianity but to represent the fellowship of Jew, Gentile, Christian and Unitarian alike. The major features of the organization will be its efforts in civic matters, when it is probable that the pastor of the First Baptist church, who has been elected president, but there will also be a social end for it is planned not only to hold a dinner annually but to have five stated meetings at Grace Episcopal church parish house, when it is probable addresses will be made by distinguished divines from other cities.

"It is our purpose," said Rev. Dr. Chambliss today in discussing the plans, "to give our undivided support of the City Council and other municipal authorities in their efforts to maintain the very highest standard of government. It is only fair to say that we have every confidence in the Mayor and the Common Council and we feel that we can be of material aid in many instances. Whenever we believe the circumstances warrant it, the Ministers' Association will take a stand on current matters that affect the morality and good government. It is our idea also to strengthen the bond of union among the clergy no matter what their theological views happen to be for ous is not a theological organization. The Unitarian, the Jew and in fact all will be welcome to membership."

"BLIND LUKE'S" DEATH CLOSELY FOLLOWS WIFE'S

John Lucdeux, for many years a familiar character in the West End and known in all parts of the city as "Blind Luke," died at his home on Division, died yesterday morning at the Industrial Home. He had been quite weak for a long time and contracted pneumonia, the illness proving fatal inside of a few days.

Friday night, in his eightieth year and came to Plainfield shortly after the close of the Civil War. He had been a wealthy business man in the south but lost everything through the struggle between the North and South. His misfortune so disheartened him that he never fully recovered and with his wife, known as "Mary Luke," eked out an existence until nine years ago, when they entered the Home. The couple were devoted to each other and when the wife died last fall, "Luke" became utterly disconsolate and declared there wasn't any use in his trying to live any longer.

"Luke" was said to have come from France and as far as known he had no relatives.

"FIFTY-SEVEN VARIETIES" IN COLLEGE MEN HERE.

Plans are now underway for the annual university smoker for Plainfield college men, alumni and undergraduates, to be held at the Casino, Friday night, March 13. There are five hundred college men in Plainfield representing fifty-seven colleges. This year the committee expects to give a more elaborate entertainment than before and hopes to have about 400 present. The attempt to bring the local college men together was made two years ago and last year about three hundred men gathered to enjoy the occasion. The number is materially increased this year by reason of another year's graduation from the several colleges.

A program of special features, more varied than that of last year, will be presented. Because of the great number, it is necessary for those who expect to attend the smoker to respond to the invitations at once so that proper preparations can be made for all. Owen H. Fleming and Lewis A. Williams, Jr., have been trying to reach all with the formal invitations, but should anyone be accidentally left out it will be because he has not tried to get his address. Any college man who does not get an invitation is urged to send his name to either Mr. Fleming or Mr. Williams.

Considerable enthusiasm has been aroused among the local college men over the annual smoker, which is unique in that it brings men of all colleges together and they are earnestly requested to attend and "whoop it up" once more for his alma mater.

So Says Socialist Haranguer Who Plays Preachers, Newspapers and Politicians.

THAT BAD, BAD CAPITALIST.

Lively Scene at Sunday Mass Meeting When Paterson "Orator" Takes Fling at Socialist Party.

Haranguing his audience for nearly three hours Sunday afternoon, Emil Frucht, a Socialist leader of Paterson, bitterly attacked the press, the pulpit and the politicians and urged his hearers to co-operate in a Socialistic reform to overthrow capital and give the workingman his rights. His proposition was the "program" of the Social Labor Party, that labor produces all wealth and is entitled to all its produces, and he urged his hearers to unite and take a stand that they might enjoy more of the benefits of their work, or as he expressed it, "live" rather than "exist."

The meeting was held in Pittis Hall and was attended by about fifty enthusiastic followers, who took every opportunity to interrupt the speaker with vociferous applause, whenever the words "capital," "trust," or "politician" were denounced. Everybody smoked, and the doors were kept shut. Near the end of his discourse, the speaker mentioned the Socialist party as inferior in comparison to the Socialist Labor party. He was instantly challenged by several men in the hall. The arguments waxed so heated on this point that the chairman of the meeting, Earnest Oakley, was forced to shout out "One at a time, gentlemen" in order to keep the noisy debate orderly.

Rants at Capital.

Emil Frucht was late getting to the meeting. He came up from Paterson by trolley instead of by train, and was four hours on the road. But if he was chilly and disheartened at his arrival at the hall, the sight of such a representation of "the people" cheered him, and he soon launched out into heated, applause-provoking attacks on capital as vigorous as if he had just stepped from the tonneau of a big automobile.

"Whosoever does not work, neither shall he eat," he said, sounding the keynote of his discourse, and his hearers quit smoking to stamp the floor and cheer lustily.

"Socialism," he continued, "is purely an economic question. It is a question of bread and butter, and social changes of the last hundred years, with the amassing of great capital for the oppression of the workingmen, has made it a vital question to the bread-winner of today. The workingmen of today live from hand to mouth, and a few capitalists have all there is worth living. They live, we exist.

"Our party demands that the workingmen, the real producers of wealth, shall get the sole benefit of the wealth they produce, that none of it shall go to one rich parasites who do nothing to merit the gains.

"The problem has been brewing since fendal times. Today it has reached a crisis. I am here to give you a message. Don't believe what I say, but think for yourselves. Buy our tracts, read them; subscribe to our newspaper and ponder over what you read there. Then act, and act as one man. Thousands of workingmen are out of work today, because the capitalists have decreed it. That means that there is lots of time to think on this question. The poor want the change to come, but they are handicapped in the effort to gain their object. They have not the means, as they capitalists have, to teach, to bribe, to confuse their opponents.

Newspapers Subsidized.

"The workingman of today is on the verge of starvation, and you know it. The press, the pulpit and the politicians are our bitterest enemies. Whether from a feeling of viciousness or policy, I shall not say. The newspapers, owned and controlled by capitalists, are dependent upon them for support, and do not dare to take our side. They could not make money if they did, for the capitalists would withdraw their advertisements.

"And the churches, too. Their doors are not open to the workingman. I believe that only the capitalist is welcome—the rich man who pays pew rent and goes to church in a white vest and silk hat, with his gold-headed cane. And the dominies do not preach about the workingmans. I tell you, if those ministers had to earn their bread as we do, they would preach a different kind of sermon.

"The politicians strive in every campaign to get office by keeping the working people confused and content. They are men of promises, but they keep us stirred. Reform will no do, we must have an entirely new system. We cannot gain what we want by voting for it. Agitate the matter and make it public by forming a new political party whose members shall not be after office, but whose polcim shall be to assist the working classes and make class improvement.

"The newspapers never take our part in this struggle. Indeed they make us miserable on the hot summer days, when I read time after time of some capitalist's family who have just left to have a good time at Atlantic City or Newport. These men use the money we earn for their vacations, while we swelter at the lathe and bench, making money for them.

"Don't believe, know. The only hope for us will come when the working people commence to think out the solution of this problem. Co-operation of unions can do great things. We shall overthrow the unproductive laborers and establish the rule of those who are really the producers, the working classes."

Speaker Puzzled.

After the discourse, there was a heated debate which started when one man wanted to know what assurance there was that would guarantee the representatives elected by the workingmen would act true to the cause. The speaker could not answer this, so he tried to sell the interrogater a tract on "The Roman Plebs," containing, he said, a history of the problem of the Gracchi, which would clearly explain the question.

Two more meetings are scheduled, one next Sunday night on the cause of the present crisis, illustrated by moving pictures, and another the following Sunday afternoon, when the topic will be "The Way Out."

Y.M.C.A. JUNIORS WON LONG OVERTIME GAME

It took nine minutes overtime play to decide the basketball game between the Y. M. C. A. Junior five and the Hope C. B. C., played at the association gymnasium Saturday afternoon. When the whistle blew at the end of the second half, the score was 10-10, but a basket and a foul by Hochberger, while a long time consumed, decided the game for the Y. M. C. A. boys.

Kenney, for the Hope five, scored eight of the ten points for his team, making four baskets. Hochberger led in the scoring for the Y. M. C. A., caging the ball three times from the floor. At the end of the first half, the score was 6-4 in favor of the Hope five. The lineups and summaries follow, tens:

Y. M. C. A.; Manley and Campbell, forwards; Hochberger, centre; Van Tine and Shaffer, guards. Hope C. B. C.: Firstbrook and Kenney, forwards; Muir, centre; Gage and Hoffman, guards.

Field goals: Kenney, 4; Hochberger, 3; Manley, 2; Campbell, Firstbrook and Scherer, each; Hochberger, Referee, G. L. Litzman. Twenty minutes halves and nine minutes overtime.

JUST JUMP THE ROPE FOR BEAUTY CULTURE.

To Retain Sylphlike Form Women Adopt New Fad.

If you would retain a sylphlike form, or attain one, in case the accumulation of adipose tissue has distorted your former slenderness into unsightly lines, jump the rope.

This is what certain Washington women are spending their spare time in doing nowadays. When you see a woman who once tipped the scales at 200 and now balances them at 135 you may be sure that she has been following the latest form of beauty culture.

From Paris comes the beauty culturist who introduced this simple method of flesh reduction, and though she pretends that some mysterious medicinal virtues emanate from the handles of her skipping ropes, yet those who have tried the system with ordinary skipping ropes report remarkable results from the sport.

As a matter of fact, this reformer herself might recommend almost anything in the line of physical exercise for flesh reduction and her adherents would follow it, even to standing on their heads, if that would do any good, for she has a sylphlike form herself. Encased in sheathlike corsets over which hang exceedingly princess gown of white broadcloth, she presents a picture of grace that any woman would do much to acquire.—Washington Post.

N. P. H. S. GIRLS LOSE TO WESTFIELD H. S. FIVE.

The girls' five of the North Plainfield High School lost a close basketball game to the Westfield High School girls at the Westfield Casino Saturday afternoon by a score of 10-8. The girls were much hampered by the slippery floor, but the game was fast and clean contested throughout. The teams played the college game, using no territory lines.

At the end of the first half, the score was 8-4 in favor of Westfield, but the local five finished the last half by close guarding and good shooting in the second half. The scoring was done by Miss Anna Daly and Miss Marjorie Cooley, the former making five baskets and the latter one. Two points were added from the foul line.

The borough five lined up as follows; The Misses Marjorie Cooley and Anna Daly, forwards; Miss Margery Hart, centre; Miss Helen George and Miss Ida Englehard, guards. Referee, Miss Margaret Mosher; umpire, Roy Springster; fifteen minute halves.

An Evening at Cards.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Lotcher gave a card party at Trusell Hall, Saturday night which was attended by a large number of their friends. Prizes were presented to the winners. Following the play dinner was served.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY FIRST DANCE OF A SERIES.

The first of a series of invitation dances arranged by Arthur H. Calder and E. S. Brown was given in the Camera Club rooms in the Babcock building last night. It was enjoyed by 100 young people from this city, Westfield, Dunellen and other places. Music was furnished by Squier's orchestra. The dance program included several of the Paul Jones two-steps that are becoming very popular and were greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served at the midnight intermission.

During the evening, several vocal selections were rendered by John Salkeld, of Bayonne, a brother of Mrs. Frank W. Weed, of the borough. He possesses a voice of exceptional power and expression and the numbers he gave were heartily encored.

NEGRO LYNCHED, BUT STILL LIVES

STRUNG UP AND VOLLEY FIRED AT HIM, HE IS LEFT FOR DEAD BY MOB.

IS CUT DOWN BY SHERIFF

Law May Do Better Job—Shooting of White Man Likely to End in Murder, Then Trial and Execution.

Dothan, Ala.—Grover Franklin, the negro who was hanged to a tree by a mob of 200 masked men the other Sunday night, is now in the hands of the legal authorities, alive, and will probably survive to be hanged again, this time by the law. The circumstances concerning this case of attempted lynching are unusual. Franklin was seized on Saturday night at about eight o'clock by the mob. The night before he had been caught robbing a cash drawer of the mill of a cotton oil company where he was employed. On being found he shot and seriously wounded the secretary-treasurer of the company. The negro then fled.

He was shortly afterward pursued by Sheriff Butler and a force of deputies. The man was finally captured by them and taken to jail.

The remainder of Saturday night and all of Sunday until evening he passed behind the bars. In the meantime word of his attack had run through the community. The victim is a man of wide popularity, with many friends, and it was determined by some of these that the negro was not to be allowed to remain alive until the law could try to hang him, in the event of death, which is considered likely to occur.

Three or four of the official's closest friends, accordingly, began the formation of a mob of determined men who could be depended upon to wrest Franklin from the grasp of the sheriff. Two hundred men, heavily armed and masked with black face cloths, were finally assembled. They rode to the jail and demanded the prisoner. In the face of such a force the sheriff was powerless and the negro was seized by the mob.

He was dragged to the northern part of the town, shrieking for mercy all the while. Here he was given two minutes to make his peace with God, and then he was swung up to the limb of a large tree. In the meantime Sheriff Butler had gathered a force of his deputies, re-enforced by a few law-abiding citizens, and this body was in hot pursuit. The members of the mob, therefore, hurriedly remounted their horses, fired a volley of shots at the negro—riddling him, as they believed—and dashed away.

On the arrival of the sheriff the negro was cut down. It was found that he was still alive. He was at once removed to a hospital, where it is declared that he has a good chance for recovery. Faulk's condition is very serious. If he dies and the negro recovers, Franklin will, in all probability, once more undergo the experience of being hanged.

It was found that only one of the many bullets fired at the negro had taken effect, and the wound was not serious. The lynchers, in their haste, had failed to string him up high enough, and he was enabled to touch the ground with his toes.

Girl Leads Thief Gang.

Los Angeles, Cal.—When Mary Stuart, a dainty young Los Angeles girl, was held in Santa Ana under $3,000 bail on a burglary charge the extraordinary story of the strangest woman criminal the city has ever known came out.

It developed that she is the head of a band of male crooks who have operated everywhere from here to San Diego, and is herself an adept at men's make-up.

Two men of the gang were captured after robbing a Chinese store in Anaheim, in company with the girl, and they also were bound over under heavy bail.

Bathing costumes this year follow, in a general way, as heretofore, the styles set by mermaids and the fishes.

For evening wear at smart functions a favorite appanage among some of the ultra-fashionable is a good deal of nerve.

Hosiery is still worn rather full, especially by those inclined to be plump, and sometimes it is also worn threadbare.

The hose supporter has so universally superseded the elastic band that there is nothing left of the old-fashioned garter but the "Honi soit" maxim.

A variety of pleasing tastes dictate the wearing of milady's coiffure, but the practice of wearing it on her escort's shoulder is frowned upon by dames de confiance.

The vogue of the "jumper" as a garment for that part of the human anatomy which does not jump would seem to logically call for the use of gaiters as corset-covers.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Which does a woman prefer? Allmony or insurance?

No man can be contented who has too much time to think of the things that don't suit him.

An Atchison man is so cross and stingy with his wife that when she tries to get him to give her a dollar she calls it "working the growler."

When everything else fails to furbish talk the neighbors can always think of some mother too indulgent, and some stepmother too impatient.

When a man marries a woman for her money the people applaud when she ties it so tight he can't touch it, and then can't reconcile such sense with the folly she showed in marrying him.

If a girl is young and pretty enough people will overlook her affectations and frills; the plain-looking girl must have common sense and a cool head, even when the family horse is running away.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

KILLS BUCK DEER; SAVES MAN'S LIFE

WEALTHY INDIANA FARMER HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

HUNTER FIRES JUST IN TIME

Pet Animal Becomes Vicious and Charges Owner—Neighbor Comes Upon Scene Not a Moment Too Soon.

Logansport, Ind.—A big buck deer, the first killed in Cass county in 30 years, was shot on the farm of Wilson Searight, three miles west of this city, the other afternoon by George Webster, a Logansport hunter. The deer was one kept in captivity by Searight and but for Webster's unerring aim it might have killed or, at least, seriously injured the owner. Webster, with gun under arm, opportunely arrived just as the buck had Searight penned in a corner. The animal was about to charge when the farmer yelled to Webster to fire. Webster did as ordered and the buck keeled over in death at Searight's feet.

Searight, who is one of the wealthiest farmers in Cass county, has three bucks and a doe, flocks, pheasants and other wild animals and birds on his farm. He is an enthusiastic nimrod, journeying into the north woods every year to hunt deer, moose and bear. The deer held in captivity are trophies of various hunting trips. They and other animals are permitted to roam at large over Searight's broad fields and woods and signs are posted everywhere warning hunters to keep off.

One of the bucks recently became vicious. Previously all went gentle and Searight could approach them at will. But this one buck in particular developed an ugly streak. At first it simply fled when the owner approached, but a few days ago it started new tactics and charged at Searight whenever he tried to approach.

The other afternoon the farmer started to cross a small inclosure in which the deer were gathered. He paid no attention to the animals, but was bent on getting to another part of his farm. The beat of hoofs and the sound of a defiant snort behind caused him to turn. Approaching with blazing eyes and lowered head was the buck which had developed the bad streak. Searight tried to scare the animal off by waving his arms and throwing small missiles, but the buck stood its ground, and then began another advance.

Searight now became thoroughly frightened, and he turned and fled. The deer followed, snorting savagely. The farmer made for a nearby fence corner with the buck close at his heels. Nearer it came. It approached, and Searight, breathless and almost exhausted, fell into the corner. The buck was so close he feared to climb over and he raised the fatal blow.

When Searight fell the deer halted, and gazed threateningly at the cowering man. There was a baleful gleam in its eyes; it pawed the earth savagely and seemed only waiting an opportune time to charge and toss Searight into the air on its broad antlers. At this moment George Webster, who had been hunting in an adjoining woods, and was on his return to Logansport, came along on the opposite side of the fence. He took in the situation at a glance. The buck's threatening attitude caused him to raise his gun to his shoulder. Searight yelled for him to fire. But Webster simply stood. Seemingly he was affected with "buck fever," so common to hunters who see their first deer. Searight yelled again and, combined with the animal's preparations to charge, it brought Webster out of the spell. He raised the buck, let the leap high into the air, fell at Searight's feet and keeled over dead. Webster had fired none too soon.

John Rehwald, a Logansport butcher, was summoned and the animal was dressed. Searight intends to give a venison supper to his friends to celebrate his narrow escape. Webster will be the guest of honor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 8, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The wise use of time.—Eph. v. 15-21.

The expression "redeeming the time" used by the apostle in the paragraph before us is a peculiar one, and the authorized version scarcely expresses its true meaning. In the original it means "buying up for yourselves the opportunity." The idea intended to be conveyed is "that of a merchant who, knowing the value of an article and the good use to which he can put it, buys it up." But the element of time is, however, involved in the buying up or taking advantage of good opportunities. Success or failure depends much on timeliness in seizing the opportunity to do good or to achieve a great purpose that God has offered to us. "There is a tide in the affairs of men," but we must take it at the flood if we are to win the victory it affords. Otherwise defeat and failure are the result. In a general way the wise use of time is the use of it in such a way as to make the best use of every opportunity that is afforded to us. Time is but another name for opportunity.

The wise use of time is only possible when we realize the importance of time. Throughout the ages the teachers of men have emphasized the vital importance of using time well. It is one of the most valuable assets that God has given to man; but, like every other gift of God, its value will depend upon the use we make of it. We have all the time that any one else in the world has, all the time that there is, but he is indeed a wise man who uses it all to the best advantage. But all should strive to be wise in this respect. No one should allow a mortgage to be placed upon his opportunities." Time waits for no man. In the strict sense, it can never be redeemed. The man who procrastinates, the man who wastes time, loses that which can never be recalled. The second just passed is "numbered among the dead" in the past and can never return. A man struck may cry, "Millions for an inch of time!" but the only answer is the passing of more time while he vainly cries for it. What we do we must do quickly and promptly, else it never can be done at the moment allotted to it.

The wise use of time is imperative, because it so swiftly and silently passes from us. The Romans had an adage, "Tempus fugit" ("Time flies"), and for the man who uses his time properly it does fly. If time hangs heavy on our hands, if to us it seems to have no wings, we may rest assured that we are not using it well. How silently also does time fly! No bugle call announces its arrival and departure, and half the time we must say, "With what a gentle foot doth silent Time steal on his everlasting journey!"

How important, then, the proper and best use of every moment of our time. How true it is that the so-called "odd moments" may become a mighty factor in our lives. Some men have accomplished more in their odd moments than others in the time they devote to the regular pursuits of life. William Carey, the consecrated cobbler, spent his spare moments in drawing on the wall of his shop a map of the world showing in blackness the unsaved parts of the world. How well he cobbled shoes the world little remembered and little cared, but so long as time shall last the product of his odd moments and its subsequent tremendous results will be held in grateful remembrance.

The example of Christ should inspire us to the wise use of time.

With untiring energy ambitious,
Mark how the Saviour valued time.
The work of centuries appears
Crowded into the few short years.

Richard Baxter's words concerning the way to spend time are worthy of our most serious attention: "Spend your time in nothing which you know must be repented of. Spend it in nothing which you could not ask God's blessing of. Spend it in nothing which you could not review with a quiet conscience on your dying bed. Spend it in nothing which you might not safely and properly be doing if death should surprise you in the act."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. lxxxix, 47; xc, 12; Prov. vi, 6-11; Eccl. iii, 1-8; ix. 10; xii, 1; John ix. 4; Rom. xiii, 11-14; II Pet. iii, 7-12; Rev. x, 5, 6.

In the Heart of London.

That well known Endeavorer, Stanley P. Edwards, describes in the Christian Endeavor Times a monthly Christian Endeavor prayer meeting held right in the heart of London at 50 Old Bailey by Christian Endeavorers who are in business in the city. "They meet," he says, "for prayer and fellowship, and many striking testimonies have been given of the helpfulness of these opportunities for meeting one another not only at the meetings, but in the business world just beyond."

He tells us that the Endeavorers forming this interesting group were brought together by the wearing of the badge and also by the little bit of advertisement of their membership in Christian Endeavor societies the gathering would never have been formed.

A Double Acrostic.

We find in the Irish Endeavorer the following interesting unfolding of the meaning of the Christian Endeavor badge written by a Dublin Endeavorer:

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR BADGE

Should be Backed up with Calvary Experience.
(Gal. vi, 15.)
A Standard by a Crisp Enthusiasm. (Col. iii, 23.)
Dominated by Christlike Endurance. (Heb. xii, 3.)
Girdled with Constant Enterprise. (2 Cor. ix, 27.)
Proving Christian Fellowship. (Phil. i, 5.)

FORWARD LEAGUE.

March 8: "Mercy for the merciful." "Forgive us our sins, for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Luke xi. 4; xvii, 1-10; Ps. xxvi.

Forgive us our sins, for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us.—Luke xi, 4.

This is the rather startling way in which the American revised version translates this passage. Whatever mannor of translation is employed, this sentence in the Lord's Prayer is a crucial one. It is a decisive test of our intention. It is a determining factor in our destiny.

Though justice be thy plea, consider this—
That in the course of justice none of us
Should see salvation; we do pray for mercy,
And that same prayer doth teach us all
The deeds of mercy.

In the Old Testament Jehovah is ever represented as God of justice, righteousness, and also God of mercy. No one feature is more prominent in the law as given in Deuteronomy than the insistence on the deeds of mercy. One of the most glaring evils in ancient Israel which brought forth the denunciations of the great ethical prophets was this lack of mercy in the dealings of the rich with their poor neighbors.

Perhaps no other characteristic of ancient nations was more prominent than their cruelty. In war no mercy was shown the conquered, in worship the offering of human sacrifice stained every land.

The distinguishing feature of the religion of Jehovah was this ethical quality of mercy. It was a difficult task to get them to understand the meaning of justice. It was a longer and harder lesson to train them to deeds of mercy. It seemed to contradict all ideas of strength and to savor of weakness only.

Even to-day at the present time it seems impossible to hold society together if the milder virtues are allowed to control. How often in business are we told that each must look out for himself! The revelations of recent months have shown that in the highest business circles in this the most advanced of nations the men who have been honored and trusted have in many instances been utterly devoid of any consideration for the rights of others. Justice has had no place in their schemes of personal profit, and it rarely seems not to have been known to them.

The loss of confidence which led to the recent financial disturbance is directly due to disregard of the most fundamental principles of moral life. If we will not learn in one way we shall be obliged to learn in another that business and society in all their interests are founded on justice, righteousness, and, above all, on mercy.

There is no safety, no stability, to human institutions save as the due observant of this bedrock requirement of consideration for others. The measure you use for others shall be used when you are to receive your pay.

This is not reward, but related to what one is inwardly. The amount of a man's wealth has absolutely nothing to do with the question of a man's deserts. Nor has the ability he possesses to accumulate wealth or direct enterprise anything to do with character. One may be highly talented and have immense wealth and still be villainously and mercilessly indifferent to the needs of his fellow men. God will not and men should not allow his wealth and talent to blind them to his real character and deserts.

In your own case keep ever in mind to cultivate sentiments of mercy, and in all your dealings with men let kindness rule. So shall you become like God in spirit, and the deformed blemishes of rightness and cleanness of soul, of peace and love, shall abide in and rule you. Then shall we assist God to realize our constant prayer, "Thy kingdom come."

Rainy Days.

Does it rain today? Is it dark and gloomy? That is all right. There must be some stormy days. Tomorrow the clouds will have a silvery lining or disappear entirely. Does the sun shine? Then enjoy it while you may. Tomorrow may be bright also. Are you well? Enjoy your health and use it to the best advantage. Are you ill? Then it is a day in which to be patient and endure cheerfully. Are you free from trouble? Then it is a thanksgiving day. Are you carrying heavy burdens for yourself or others? Then it is a day for rolling off your burdens at the foot of the cross.—Louise Heywood.

Words.

Words, merely words, yet how much they mean!
Spoken in lest and spoken in spleen,
Spoken in haste and spoken in woe,
Yet often more crushing than a blow.
Often uttered before we think!
Oh, what great mischief mere words can do!
Mischief that nothing can mend or still,
Once said, they must stand, be they good or ill.
So should have wished in deepest pain
That a hasty word were back again!
So many have lost a dear good friend
Saying more than they would not intend.
Many a heart that's bereft and alone,
Behind the briers that around it have grown,
Longs for one word often said in sorrow,
When the heart was warm and love held sway.
Longs for the words that it would not hear,
But now in the night of time grown dear!
Many a grave were long unbroken
But for some words unkindly spoken.
While many a sorrow we have saved
Vicious souls from the ill they craved.
And desperate ones from suicide—
Oh, the range of words is great and wide!
Words may be cheap, but kind ones are dear
To the heart devoid of other cheer.
Kind words will make a kindly heart.
If the latter at first do not impart
The words of cheer of its own accord,
Surely mere kindness we can afford!
—New York Observer.

A MAN BUILT OF SENTIMENT

"Oh, Joe," said Jeanette to her fiance, "what do you think I received by express today?"

"What?"

"Big storm? Shipwreck? Vessel sinking? All we are all lost?"

"More than that. I've had a lover I didn't know of. Read it." And she handed him a bit of paper on which were scrawled her full name and address and—

"In a few minutes this vessel will carry us all to a watery grave. I wish you to know that there has been one who has, unknown to you, loved you devotedly. But he will die as he has lived without revealing himself to you. Farewell."

"Well," said Joe after reading the message, "do you suppose it's genuine?"

"Something tells me it is."

"What?"

"I feel—I—somehow it seems to me that had this man wooed me we would have"—

"Would have"—

"What an noble, good man he must have been to love me at a distance?"

"Noble, good man, eh? To love you at a distance! Will you kindly explain?"

"Why, there must have been some reason why he couldn't declare himself. His great heart bore the load without permitting me to share it."

"Then why didn't he keep on bearing it without mixing you up in this way?"

"He knew a woman's nature. I wish you knew it as well. A woman receives her greatest compliment in the love of a good man."

"You mean a noble, good man. Don't leave out the noble."

"This man must have been a noble, good, self sacrificing man."

"Where does the self sacrifice come in?"

"Why if he had told me of his love I would have loved him. We couldn't marry and"—

"How do you know you couldn't?"

"Why, what other reason would there be for his not"—

"Lots of 'em. The chances are he was beneath you, probably some cab driver who once drove you somewhere or"—

"Joseph!"

"More likely a common sailor, with his arms and breast tattooed with anchors."

"At any rate, I'd have more sense than to keep my love a secret till a few minutes before I was to be launched for kingdom come."

"You haven't that nobility of soul to understand this man's nature. He would not speak till what he said would not make me suffer—till it would be only sweet for a woman to hear."

"Nobility of soul, eh? I haven't nobility of soul. And this man—how do you know he had a soul at all? How do you know he isn't a myth? Somebody may have been playing a joke on you."

"One who would play such a joke would have as little soul as the myth he created."

"It seems to me,he said presently, "that a rival has shown up—a bloodless, spiritual, heavenly, noble, good, unselfish"—

"Heroic."

"Heroic." Any more?"

"Why do you sneer at him?"

"I'm not sneering at him. He's simply a manufactured man, one who has been built up out of pure sentiment—sentimental arms, legs, head, hands."

"Who created him? Not I. I never heard of him till I received his only and last message."

"At any rate, he has replaced me. I'm going to say farewell. I'm going to give way to your ideal hero."

"You should strive to be like him."

"Like him! Do you suppose I'd wish to be like a man of tissue paper, with nothing inside of him but mist? He is not even gas. He's a vacuum."

"There's no substance in the angels."

"There are different kinds of angels."

"I do believe you hate him."

"I? Hate him! I'm perfectly indifferent to him, confound him!"

The girl burst into a merry laugh. She laughed for five minutes, holding her sides, then tried to say something but she was interrupted by another involuntary peal of laughter. Finally she controlled herself sufficiently to say:

"Joe, this is"—

"It's certainly no laughing matter."

"Yes, it's stupid."

"Stupid! It's well that a stupid man should give way to a little tin god."

"Joe, the next time you send me a message from the dead do have sense enough to write it on paper that I won't sprinkle on your own."

The expression of mingled fierceness and misery on Joe's face gradually faded away and gave place to one of shamefacedness and relief.

"Did you recognize the paper?" he asked.

"How could I help it since I've a ton of it upstairs?"

"And the writing?"

"Scarcely at all disguised. I knew it in a minute. How came you to do such a thing?"

"Well, Charlie Baker said that a girl would fall in love with a man made out of sentiment quicker than with one of flesh and blood. I thought I'd try it on you. I won't try it again. You pretty nearly scared me to death."

WHEN FASHION MEETS.

Gems of rare radiance adorn
A matron's loveliness,
The silkworm from its nest is torn
That she may have a dress.
Bold divers search the ocean blue
For pearls to grace her neck.
Admiring guests say "How-dy-do,"
and father writes a check.

The music sounds throughout the hall,
Where glad, bewitching girls
Bring treasures that make wealth seem small;
Bright eyes and golden curls.
The world its affluence here has cast,
In choicest gifts to deck
The scene of beauty unsurpassed,
And father writes a check.

He hears the music from afar;
Afar he scans the type
Of some dull book o'er his cigar—
Or maybe it's a pipe.
He's really not expected to Respond to pleasure's beck.
There's nothing much for him to do,
He simply writes a check.

WORTH KNOWING.

A school of languages for parrots has been established in Paris. The birds are taught to speak English, French, German and Italian.

Roumania is the most illiterate country in Europe. The last census shows that in a population of about 6,000,000 nearly 4,000,000 neither write nor read.

The decade ago, in the fiscal year, 1896-97, the country did a business with the Latin-American countries amounting to $834,000,000. In the fiscal year 1906-07 it has done a business with the Latin-American countries in excess of $600,000,000.

Prof. Frederick Bedell removes the color from colored liquids while wood charcoal has no effect has not been understood. A European chemist now finds that the action of the former is due to the presence of 5 to 7 per cent. of nitrogen.

Privets For Street Planting.

Out at Montebello, Cal., on at least two streets there is planted a species of ligustrum or privet of a decidedly upright habit that makes an ideal street tree. In addition to the general points of excellence common to our best street trees, this privet has the desirable qualification of being easily and safely moved when of a considerable size. It comes here in two to three inches in diameter of stem and a height of ten feet will not wilt, but readily take root and resume normal growth when moved with fifty pounds of soil. With a tree so easily handled we may have effective hedge alignment at the end of the first year after planting.

Constantinople Shoemakers.

In Constantinople the shoemakers are all poets. While a customer is having a heel repaired or a shoe relaced the attendant recites extemporized or memorized verses to him. As the language is Arabic or Turkish, the listener rarely knows whether he is hearing a good or bad verse. On the Muski, the Broadway of old Cairo, one can buy the red leather, sharp toed slippers, universally worn in a land where there is rarely any rain, for about 60 cents. They are not worth more, being very flimsy articles in construction. They are not representative of the expert English or American handmade shoe, which is a thing of beauty, of comfort and of enduring utility.—Argonaut.

Temperance.

A mollycoddle writer who is too cowardly to sign his name writes asking us if we are against "temperance."

We are not.

We believe in temperance in eating, in drinking, in sleeping, in resting, in working, in studying, in playing, in speaking and in everything else.

Excesses of every kind are harmful and to be condemned.

But they are not to be cured by legislation.

You can never control a person's habits or tastes by law.

The only way to improve individuals in any direction is by education.—Long Branch Record.

Parasol Conceits.

Parasols which are now being shown for Southern trips, are altogether lovely. Chiffon, gauze silk and linen are all represented and in the most fascinating developments. One of these parasols, the white linen sunshades show open embroideries in pale pastel colorings quite as often as the all-white needlework.

Dainty Bedroom Sets of Linen.

Daintiness is what suggests itself to one when the new bedroom linen sets are seen. The sheets and pillow cases are of fine double-width linen, finished with two-inch hems and rather compact bunches of small white embroidery designs. The dresser scarf and washstand cover and splasher are of exactly the same pattern. To embroidery work is machine-made, yet very dainty and not so expensive as the handmade. One very pretty set has a girl's room was made with pale blue embroidery designs on all of the pieces.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

All records for climbing Mont Blanc have been broken by M. Ballot, president of the French Alpine Club, who has ascended the famous mountain thirty-five times in twenty-six years.

J. G. Phelps Stokes and his wife, who was Miss Rose Pastor, have sailed for a three months' cruise in the Mediterranean. Before starting Mr. Stokes declared that he would vote for the Socialist candidate for President and that he was still an ardent Socialist.

Governor Swettenham, who was so prominent in the eye of the world at the time of the Kingston disaster, and who was later removed, is now running a stock farm in Jamaica.

The sister of the German Emperor, Princess Charles of Hesse, is the happy mother of six sons, including two sets of twins. All are clever, healthy boys and great favorites with their uncle, the Kaiser, who sometimes stays with his youngest and favorite sister and her husband at beautiful Friedrichshof.

George W. Johnson, an old-time oarsman, proposes to row from St. Augustine, Florida, to New York in a boat made from newspapers. His scheme is to construct a boat, which in reality will be a cruising shell, from a copy of every newspaper in the United States.

Clabber, cut clover or alfalfa and grit every day. Grain may be mixed and always should be fed in litter. Mash to be cleaned up in fifteen minutes, except at night, when hens should fill up.

Feed grain sparingly for breakfast, more at noon and all they want at night. Decide quantity by condition of hens and fullness of crop. Always keep them hungry in the daytime.

Mash formula: Three parts bran, two parts cornmeal, two parts wheat middlings, one part beef scrap. No scrap when feeding cut bone. Feed cut bone and cabbage sparingly at first, later all they want. For grain and mash hopper feeding use same proportions and grains as here shown.

Eating His Delight.

King Carlos was one of the most unique characters in the world. Never mind the revolution. Bring on the roasted pheasants and another effete monarch will be numbered. His type of character he was. He was said to be the greatest glutton in all Europe. He weighed 350 pounds, and he could eat, at one meal, three whole pheasants, a roast pig, several loaves of brown bread, and wash it all down with four quarts of wine. When he was younger and before he became king he would enter the bull ring as a toreador under an assumed name, and soon he gained the reputation of being one of the most reckless bull fighters of the continent.

There was no cowardice in his makeup. Once he risked his life by jumping into the sea to save a man from drowning. His bravery was displayed on another occasion when he fought and killed a mutinous road near Lisbon and came upon a highwayman robbing a peasant. Carlos dismounted, whipped the robber into submission, and led him off to prison.

His Feats of Strength.

King Carlos was a blond giant. He weighed about 250 pounds, but, despite his obesity, was very active. He was credited with being one of the best wing shots in Europe, and is said to have killed 1,000 pigeons without a miss.

He was very popular physically, and once, when his horse was running away with him, he felled it with a blow of his fist on the top of its head.

His great weight once broke the gangplank of a yacht as he was coming ashore. He went down and did not come up. Other members of the party dived, but could not find him. He had walked under the keel of the yacht and come up on the other side.

At a bull fight he caught a falling flagpole and saved the lives of several women, but went to the hospital for a week. He could bend coins in his powerful fingers and tear a pack of cards in two.

Things He Was Noted For.

He was a gaston and ate more than any man in his dominion.

He weighed 350 pounds.

He was champion swimmer.

He had a great personal courage.

He once risked his life to save a drowning man, and to rescue a peasant from a fiery wagon.

He was skilful and bold banderillero in the bull ring.

He was a good story-teller, a fine whip, a yachtsman, a painter of note and a sculptor, tennis player and musician.

He had translated Shakespeare into Portuguese.

He was the best pistol shot in Europe.

He spoke seven languages.

He pawned his crown, worth $6,000,000.

A Village's "Hourly Nurse."

Any scheme that tends to benefit the inhabitants of a town is worthy of consideration, such as the following:

The village of Leicester, Mass., established an hourly nurse in February, 1907. At a recent meeting of interested citizens the report of the work and the financial statement were so encouraging that the vote was unanimous to continue the services of the nurse another year, says the Boston Transcript. Her duties are to give skilled assistance to all classes of people in the village. In emergency she does night work, which otherwise is not expected. Massage, care of surgical cases, obstetrics, daily attention to the sick and feeble who do not require the constant care of a nurse, are the directions in which her work lies, it is said. Complicated cases she does not attend. The nurse goes from house to house, spending an hour or more with her patients, as the case needs, and each one pays from 10 to 50 cents an hour, according to ability, although the care is not denied to those unable to pay. A salary is assured the nurse, the money she recieves from patients going to swell the funds of the association.

Lincoln's Way.

Lincoln at the commencement of the war was much abused by one of his generals. He was even once insulted by this man. In his splendid way he met the insult and the incident imperturbably. But when the thing kept growing more and more flagrant his friends told him he was suffering more than was reasonable or right. But Lincoln only smiled his odd, sad, humorous smile.

"I'll hold his horse for him," he said, "if he will only bring us success."

Woman's Wit.

A man found that his wife had brought a few puffs of false hair. This displeased him. So one day he hid in the hall outside of her room, and just as the lady was adjusting the false puffs he darted in upon her.

"Mary," he said reproachfully, "why do you put the hair of another woman upon your head?"

"John," retorted Mary, with glance at her husband's shoes, "why do you put the skin of another calf upon your feet?"—Everybody's.

"An Even Exchange."

"Oh, Mr. Schmidt, our cashier has skipped with a hundred thousand marks!"

"Did my wife go with him?"

"No; your daughter."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

It begins to look as though the people of Newark would some time (far distant be the day!) have to erect a monument to another rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Rev. Father Whelan is measuring up to the high standard of citizenship set for him by Monsignor Doane. He is not only a man of high ideals, but of strong character. One who knows him well said yesterday: "He is as shrewd a politician as Jim Smith, and is going to be a power in this town"—a power fortunately, for the promotion of righteousness in Newark.—Newark Sunday Call.

THE KILLING OF "DUTCH" IDES.

There is every reason to believe Patrolman Weber's statement with reference to his part in the accident which resulted in the killing on Saturday last of the notorious criminal known as "Dutch" Ides. The officer was chasing a gang of suspected burglars, whom Ides was the leader. He had thrown one of his revolver in the air to induce them to stop, and was about to pull the trigger for a third warning shot when he slipped and fell. The shot was discharged, and the bullet went straight to the brain of the fleeing thief.

In incidents of this nature of those regrettable events likely to happen at any time in the life of a policeman, and yet there is justice enough in it to mitigate its worst features. Ides was a notoriously bad character. He was a menace to life and property in the law in a threefold way, in that he was carrying a deadly weapon, was a fugitive from justice and was, as it was learned later, planning a robbery.

Had he been brought to bay by the policeman in the chase it is not at all improbable that he would have first shot the officer and then himself, for his friends testify that he had contemplated suicide. Young man that he was he had spent a large proportion of his years in jail or in the reformatory and had been an escaped prisoner awaiting the law. While the manner of his death is to be regretted, the community has lost little or nothing through his accidental taking off. The police officer was endeavoring to do his duty, and was successful in all he attempted and intended to do. The accident was the result of Ides' lawlessness rather than of Weber's efforts to arrest him.—Newark News.

Ship Canals in Scotland.

An old plan for a ship canal across the narrowest part of Scotland has been revived and is being pushed by business interests of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Glasgow has one plan for cutting the canal at a cost of $40,000,000, and Edinburgh has another, which is estimated to call for an expenditure of $85,000,000. Originally it was suggested that the existing Fourth and Clyde barge canal should be enlarged and made into a tidal canal without locks, at a cost of $70,000,000. As yet the cost has barred progress, but the canal would be of great value to commerce, and it is expected to become a reality in time.

The Irishman's Record.

An Irishman was hurrying along past a building being built recently, when suddenly the falling body of a man struck him from above and knocked him to the sidewalk.

"What did ye do that for?" demanded the Irishman, rising painfully to his feet from the curbstone.

"You saved my life!" cried the other man in return, following the Irishman's example and scrambling to his feet. "I fell out of that second-story window up there, and you broke my fall."

"Begorra!" retorted the dazed Celt, "if I'd hope some day O'll fall down off so frum th' top of th' building an' break yure neck!"—Judge.

What Fashion Says as to Colors.

"In the choice of colors for the spring of 1908, fashion seems less capricious and more intelligent than for many a long time," says Grace Margaret Gould in her fashion talk, in the March number of the woman's Home Companion. "It was blue last fall, and it's blue again this spring—first, however, in many fascinating shades, such as canard blue, which is duck blue, a very lovely, delicate shade. Copenhagen blue continues in fashionable favor, and navy blue and royal blue for everyday wear. Indeed, navy blue is a good-style color. Next to the blues come the browns. A beaver shade of brown is very fashionable, and so are the tobacco and a citron shade. Chamois color will be used more than ever, and the bread and biscuit tints. Tan is a good color to choose for a gown from the fashion standpoint, and cream is also the mode. A number of shades of green will be worn, and a few grays on the mole order."

In the Present.

"And before I accept him," Miss Passay was saying, "I asked him if he would love me when I was old."

"The old fool!" exclaimed Miss Bright, "why if he proposed to you he had already proven that, hadn't he?"—Philadelphia Press.

QUEER ENDING TO A RACE

Dog Chased Cat Into a Sewer Pipe and Both Became Wedged Fast.

NEIGHBORHOOD ROUSED UP.

Flurried Woman Telephone Police and Patrol Driver O'Gorman Does a Rescue Act, Gaining a New Title.

Thornton avenue had an awful scare at about 6 p. m. Monday. Ordinarily Thornton avenue is a quiet, thoroughfare and the residents have to go elsewhere for their excitement except in rare instances. One of these rare cases was last night and this is how it happened:

A little dog whose name in all probability is Towser was wandering about the avenue and chanced upon a Tabby cat. Like the wicked bow-wow that he is he made a spring at the inoffensive feline and she streaked for home on a Twentieth Century Limited schedule. But though she only touched the high places in her race for life, Towser had proved to spare and gained rapidly on her.

Tabby realized that it would soon be all over with her nine lives if she didn't use cunning so as a last resort she decided to dash into an iron sewer pipe that lay in the gutter. No sooner thought than done and she was half way in before the conviction came to her that it was too narrow to get all the way through and—Horrors—Towser was right behind her. Tabby began to yeowl just as Towser found that the quarters were cramped for him and he started to back out but suffering Dachshunds—he couldn't move one way or the other. He must have thought his existence was going to end then and there and the agonized howls he left loose made the blood of Thornton avenue folks run cold.

The cries of Tabby and Towser roused up the entire block and when the cause of the trouble was learned efforts were made to get both animals out but without success. The racket inside the sewer pipe continued, and fearful that it was going to last until they became utterly exhausted, Mrs. Campbell, who lives directly opposite and thought the family might have to lay up all night, telephoned to the police.

The call for help was a new one on the cops. They made a hurried search of the "First Aid to the Injured" case but could locate nothing in it that would get a cat and dog out of a sewer pipe. They also perused the police manual and found that none of its 160 pages told how to do the trick. As a last resort, Patrol Driver O'Gorman was hustled to Thornton avenue with block and tackle and instructions to work out any scheme he thought best to end the trouble.

And maybe O'Gorman didn't have his hands full when he got down to business on the proposition. He was afraid to put his hands in the pipe through fear of getting bitten and the folks gathered around insisted that the rescue be effected strictly according to S. P. C. A. rules. The pipe was lifted up and jiggled but neither Tabby or Towser moved an inch while their cries double in volume. O'Gorman finally secured a pole and by fastening a board at the end shoved the dog along until he collided with the cat. He was too frightened to bite and then the pair were moved until they fell out at the opposite end, completely exhausted. Sympathetic women applied restoratives and in a short time Tabby and Towser were ready for another race but neither cared in particular about it.

O'Gorman went back to headquarters with a triumphant smile on his face and he is now listed on the membership roll as "Chief of the emergency squad."

King's Daughters' Tea.

The Daughters of the Cross have sent out invitations for a tea to be given on Friday, March 13, from 3 until 6 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Daniel W. Lowe, 305 McGeehen, 35 Myrtle avenue. Fancy and useful articles, cake and candy will be on sale. Twenty-five cents will be received at the door.

AMUSEMENTS.

Without question the most artistic and delightful production now running in New York theatres is "The Warrens of Virginia" at the Belasco theatre, declares the Record," of Meriden, Conn. As Gen. Warren, Frank Keenan has a part where he does even better work than in the role that he acted with such marked ability with Blanche Bates in "The Girl of the Golden West." And in Charlotte Walker, Mr. Belasco has another covery."

Mlle. Genee at the New York theatre in many respects is the most wonderful dancer the world has ever known. She is the only living representative of the classic ballet as it formerly existed, the ballet of the days of Taglioni, of Cavilazzi, of Grisi and the other famous artists who made the dance a vital and vivifying feature of the stage. She is the idol of Europe and now she has come to this country to make conquest of American hearts.

Victor Moore has really a sensational hit in "The Talk of New York" at the Knickerbocker theatre, and if a packed house is at every performance is any criterion of appreciation, the newly arisen star of George M. Cohan's latest musical comedy is certainly receiving a most emphatic public endorsement. Mr. Moore will undoubtedly remain at the Knickerbocker theatre for many weeks to come.

Opt of town theatregoers may see the greatest musical production in New York this season, "A Knight for a Day," at Wallack's theatre at half the regular box office prices if they patronize the special Wednesday Excursion Matinees. The management of the company has arranged for a special party rate railroad excursion ticket for the use of patrons of the special matinees. Particulars regarding prices and selection of seats, dates of the special matinees, railroad rates, time tables and any other desired information may be had by writing to W. M. Hale, "A Knight for a Day" Excursion Manager, Wallack's theatre, New York.

Proctor's Theatre, Newark, for week of March 2—It would be hard to select the headline feature so out of courtesy we mention England's representative, first comedian and mimic, Albert Chevalier. Since his phenomenal initial appearance in America about five weeks ago, he has met with unbounded success, his mimicry, jests and rapid changes bringing forth nothing but unstinted praise. Another sure fire hit will be Frank Westerman and Company's first appearance here in a wonderfully realistic sketch of frontier life entitled "In the Far West." Who is there that having once heard Walter S. Kelly in his inimitable way the colored man, but will gladly welcome him once more? The Spissell Brothers and Mack get all the fun there can be got out of the acrobatic end of the bill. Jack Wilson Company will offer a comedy in a blackface sing and dancing turn. Finlay and Burke, two comedians, will win favor with their Celtic witticisms. "The Village Choir," a quartette of trained voices, helped to make W. A., Brady's production of "Way Down East" a success it was. Adamini and Taylor, a duo of accomplished musicians, will lend variety to this great program and new animated pictures will bring it to a fitting close.

The New York Hippodrome is the only place in the world where one may see colossal spectacle, merry musical melange, novel circus and thrilling realism all in one evening or matinee entertainment. In the new spectacle, "The Battle of Port Arthur," the New York Hippodrome not only has the largest production ever made in the big playhouse, but has actually caught equal favor immediately and made it the talk of the town. Nothing so colossal, so realistic of the actualities of war has even been presented. A thousand people and one hundred horses appear in the two scenes, which occupy every inch of the immense stage and utilize every bit of the theatre's marvelous equipment for startling effects. In the great battle scene every branch of warfare is illustrated—infantry attacks and fort scaling under artillery fire, cavalry charges, machine gun operations, while from the great tank an auxiliary gunboat flashes its searchlight and throws bombs into the fort. The sensational finish is the capture of the fort and the retreat of the Russian cavalry, a score of horses plunging into the water.

Looking After Details.

It is in the mastery of some of the small details and accessories of dress that the home dressmaker may save her work from appearing to be, what it is, "home made."

If she learns to make belts and collars the way they are made on the high priced specialty, she can evolve clever and artistic little trimming devices, she is sure to be able to give her work a smart finished apparance such as that seen on the high priced fashionable gowns.

The Dental Habit.

"Well?"

"When the rector asks if you take this woman to be your wedded wife, please don't say there's no truth in the rumor."—Washington Herald.

"In view of the foregoing and of many similar reasons, your memorialists respectfully urge Congress not to adopt any of the Sunday-law bills now before your honorable body.

"In behalf of the Seventh-day Baptists of the United States, by the American Sabbath Tract Society.

Plainfield, New Jersey.

"Some of the facts referred to in opening of the foregoing memorial are these: Through the Hon. Samuel Ward and others, Seventh-day Baptists took a prominent part in the struggle by which the nation was brought into existence. Rhode Island, the first colony of Rhode Island, Mr. Ward was the first of the colonial governors who refused to enforce the Stamp Act of 1765. His published letters—Westerly, R. I., December 31, 1773, and Newport, R. I., May 17, 1774—led to the formation of the Continental Congress, that met at Philadelphia, September 5, 1774. Mr. Ward and Stephen Hopkins were the first two delegates to that Congress, elected by any colony. They were chosen June 15, 1774. Mr. Ward was a member of subsequent Congresses until his untimely death, March 26, 1776, because of which his name did not appear among the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was one of the most prominent and efficient men in the Congress. John Hancock called him to be presiding officer of Congress, sitting in 'Committee of the whole' May 26, 1775, in which committee all the important work of Congress was formulated. Mr. Ward occupied that place almost continually during the sessions of 1775 and 1776. In his official capacity, June 15, 1775, he reported the appointment of Col. George Washington, of Virginia, to be commander-in-chief of the Continental forces. The official correspondence with Washington and others are important documents touching the work of the Continental Congress. Mr. Ward's son, Samuel, was a captain in the 12th R. I. Regiment. General Washington, with Governor Ward, from Cambridge, Mass., in August, 1775, speaking highly of his son as a competent officer.

"The Assembly of Rhode Island led in the movement for a colonial navy. On the third of October, 1775, Mr. Ward presented the recommendations of the Rhode Island Assembly, and on December 11th of that year Congress acted upon those recommendations, and the first thirteen ships were ordered; these being the nucleus of the navy of the United States. Mr. Ward's last letter was dated at Philadelphia, March 6, 1776. It was a high type of Christian patriotism, and his relations with Benjamin Franklin are shown in the closing sentence: 'Dr. Franklin does me the favor to take charge of this letter.' March 15, he was compelled to leave his place while Congress was in session. Virulent small-pox developed, from which he died, March 26, 1776. The Continental Congress, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, the Mayor and Councilmen of the City of Philadelphia, attended the funeral, officially, and the members of Congress wore mourning crape for a month in memory of Mr. Ward. The published correspondence of John Adams describes Mr. Ward's funeral, and speaks in high terms of his ability and influence.

In Pennsylvania.

"The German Seventh-day Baptists of Pennsylvania were also prominent supporters of the colonial government, through their representative at Ephrata, Pa. After the battle of Brandywine, Sept. 11, 1777, the public building of the Seventh-day Baptists and their private homes were thrown open as hospitals, in which not less than five hundred sick and wounded were laid, became the scene of the Seventh-day Baptists during the dreary winter of 1777-1778. 'Typhus' became epidemic and many soldiers died, together with a number of Seventh-day Baptist women who acted as nurses. These soldiers were buried in the Seventh-day Baptist cemetery, where a fitting monument stands above their dust.

"When the Declaration of Independence was to be sent out, through which the infant Republic asked place among the nations of the world, Peter Miller, a Seventh-day Baptist scholar of Ephrata, translated that Declaration into various foreign languages, and copies of these were prepared in the printing office of the Seventh-day Baptists at Ephrata."

Truly Liberal.

"COUNTESS" D'ANDERSON GETS A 3-YEAR TERM

With a piercing shriek, supplemented by a sudden flop into a convenient chair, Mrs. Mary De Anderson, also known as Mary McCarton, who operated here as "Mrs. Colonel Wheeling," and as "The Countess," received the sentence of three years in State prison, which Judge Ten Eyck in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Newark imposed upon that matured swindler late yesterday afternoon. It took two stout constables to hold the fat "countess" in the chair when she had fainted away so dramatically and they held on to her and the chair until the arrival of the van that conveyed her to the county jail prior to her transport to Trenton, due in a few days.

"The information of the court is," said Judge Ten Eyck before the faint, "that for many years you have been deceiving people throughout this State and in others by getting goods under false pretenses. For this reason I think that a sentence of some severity ought to be imposed."

Mrs. De Anderson had apparently wept long and much before the judge got on the bench, and appeared to be ready for the flop at the first opportunity. She wore, besides her mourning air, the same ancient brown veil that has covered her venerable head since she first appeared exposed to the criminal limelight. Plush and faded silks made up the rest of her outfit.

The cause of the wilt of the nerve of the fat "countess" for whose money hundreds of creditors are vainly crying, was founded on three charges, two of false pretenses and one of larceny. Storekeepers in Nutley, where she last flourished, made the former, while Mrs. Elliott, in whose house she last lived a life of luxurious credit, made the complaint for stealing her kindling wood.

JOHN BAMBACH CHIEF OF DUNELLEN POLICE

John Bambach was elected chief marshal of the Dunellen police force at the Council meeting Monday. The appointment was suggested by Mayor Swackhamer and received the unanimous vote of the Council. Bambach is a brother to Harry Bambach, Democratic candidate for councilman at the last election. He and Councilman J. H. VanMiddlesworth each got 173 votes at the election, and the Mayor appointed VanMiddlesworth to decide the tie. Mohan ventured at the last Council meeting and Dunellen has been without a marshal since.

Recorder D. S. Campbell tendered his resignation at last night's meeting. He felt that he was not healthy enough for the labor voted by order to give him a two-thirds majority, when one of the councilmen was absent. He will doubtless be renamed for the office and legally elected at the next full meeting of the Council.

The borough budget amounting to $5,000 was passed last night. President Starker, of the Council, was absent.

SO-LONG!

I.

Scene 1—Downtown.

"Good morning, Ned!"

"How goes, it, Jo?"

They stand a moment in the street,
And hand in hand they blithely greet.

"How's trade today?"

"So-so, so-so."

"How's cotton?"

"Cotton's looking up.
Ned, don't forget that setter pup I
You promised me last week, you know."

"All right! send for him soon.
So-long!"

"So-long, old fellow!" And they go
This way and that into the throng.

II.

Scene 2—Ned's House.

"Come, dear, it's nearly twelve o'clock."

A sweet round face is at the door,
A languid footstep on the floor.
"You surely must have heard me knock—
You're really mean to tease me so.
Why, Ned! Poor fellow, he's asleep
I thought at tea I saw him nod."
A soft soft move the footsteps creep—
A touch—a cry—O pitying God!

III.

Scene 3—Jo's House.

Wife, where's the paper? Ah, I see.
Why don't you put it on my plate?
Do make my coffee, dear—I'm late.
Great heavens! What's this! It cannot be!
Found dead—last night at twelve o'clock!
Died in his chair—Lord! What a shock!
Why, only yesterday we met—
Ned Brown and I—His hand was strong,
His eye was clear, his voice—and yet—
Before we meet again—so long."

SHOT BROTHER AT PLAY

Seven Year Old Boy's Life Probably Saved by His Jumping Behind a Bed.

POLICE MAKE NO ARRESTS.

Victim May Lose Sight of Eye—Face Filled With Backshot—Children of William Morris.

While playing "Indian" in the garret at his home on Regent street Sunday afternoon, Walter Morris, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Morris, was shot in the head by his brother Russell, fourteen years old. The little fellow, seeing the shot-gun pointed at him, ducked behind the foot of a bed in the room where the two were playing, and this barrier was doubtless the means of saving his life. His face was filled with buckshot, and several sharp splinters of wood from the bed were embedded in his cheeks and forehead. Dr. M. B. Long was summoned and an examination showed that one of the splinters had penetrated the lad's left eye-ball, and is doubtful if his sight can be saved.

Russell, who, it is claimed, is atypical-minded, was not frightened at what he had done, but calmly told the whole story to a Daily Press reporter at his home this morning. When left alone with Walter Sunday after dinner, the shot-gun was empty, but in order to make the game more realistic, Russell got some shells from the pocket of his brother Arthur's hunting coat, which was hanging in the room, and loaded the gun. "I'm going to shoot," he deliberately announced that he was going to shoot his brother, and fired. His aim was good, and the heavy charge splintered the foot of the bed behind which seven-year-old Walter was hiding. "A shot-gun isn't much good for shooting," he said, in speaking about the matter, "but when I get big, I'm going to join the army."

Chief Marshal Weiss of the borough, was notified of the shooting, but no arrests have been made. Little Walter is one of the seven children under Dr. Long's care at his home. Dr. Long said today that it would be a day or two before he could find out if the lad's sight would be affected. The eyeball is cut through to the inner chamber.

"HOLY CITY" RENDERED BY COMBINED CHOIRS

The rendition of Gaul's "The Holy City" by the combined choirs of the First M. E. and Westfield Presbyterian churches, at the First M. E. church, Sunday, was considered one of the best efforts of these singers. The combined choirs were under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster, who also assisted by singing the solo parts for tenor. The musical attracted a congregation that taxed the seating capacity of the edifice, and it was thoroughly enjoyed.

The soloists were Miss Bertha van Nuis Wills, soprano; Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff, mezzo-soprano; Miss Suzanne Zimmerman, contralto; H. Raymond Loder, bass, and J. Edmund Skiff, tenor. Miss Millian Bailey, Westfield, was at the organ and Mrs. Harry Taylor at the piano.

The chorus was a particularly strong one and the parts assigned to it were rendered in perfect unison and with full volume of tone. Special praise is due the soloists for their work was delightful throughout. Miss Willis had but one distinct solo part, but in this she was heard in a manner that pleased her many friends. The singing by Mr. Loder, who is organist at the Church of the Holy Cross, was a revelation to the entire congregation. His true interpretation of the bass parts aroused sincere admiration for his fine voice. The work of Miss Zimmerman, Mrs. Skiff and Mr. Skiff fulfilled every expectation and largely assisted in the rendition of the oratorio.

Effective parts in the work were those from soprano, mezzo-soprano and contralto in part first and the one for treble and contralto voices and the one for tenor and bass voices in part second, while the accompaniment brought out the strongest that there is in the oratorio. In the afternoon the same work was sung in the Westfield Presbyterian church before a large congregation.

The Ugly Rhinoceros.

"What is the most dangerous of all the wild animals that I have encountered?" The rhinoceros," said one of the big game hunters of the world. "In equatorial Africa you will find the rhinoceros almost everywhere—in the high land and in the low land, in the open country and in the brush. You will find him when you least expect him, and most often when stalking through his lair, stupid, unconscious of his presence, you will dimly hear his 'chug-chug!' Then God help you if you are not provided with a rifle of large calibre and carrying steel bullets. Your only chance is to do a swift sidestep, and even then you have only those shots that will count—the brain, the neck and heart shot. When he is charging head-on it is impossible for you to reach either one."—Chicago Journal.

EVANGELIST MUNHALL SPEAKS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

L. W. Munhall, the Philadelphia evangelist talked at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon before an audience of nearly two hundred men who were deeply impressed by his powerful message. His text was taken from John 3, 20: "And ye will not come to me that ye may have life." For fifty minutes the evangelist continued his discourse, urging his hearers to turn to Christianity while there was yet time.

He spoke of the opportunity for salvation offered to all men through the church, and urged an immediate decision for the cause of Jesus Christ. He stated that the conditions of salvation were three: Repentance, conversion and faith. Repentance, the initiative step toward Christianity, was defined as the realization of man's helplessness without God's help. Conversion was stated to be the decisive step for the sinner, and faith, the helpfulness of true faith to the converted man was dwelt on at length.

Dr. J. A. Chambliss introduced the speaker, and in the course of the meeting prayer was offered by Rev. C. L. Godrich, Miss Ida Seaton, by request, for Charles T. Lewis, of the Lotus Glee Club, sang, and a delegation from the association orchestra under the direction of Martin A. Kent furnished instrumental music.

TWO CLUBS ARE TIED IN THE CENTRAL LEAGUE

The Cranford Casino Club three-man bowling team is tied with Elizabeth's Club for second place and second prize, valued at $10, in the Central Bowling League tournament for 1907-1908. The Park Club of Plainfield wins the handsome silver loving cup, the trophy of the league, for the second time, and captures first prize, valued at $20. L. Wheelwright, of Elizabeth Club, captured the high average prize, and Saphar, of Cranford Casino Club, the high score prize. Saphar rolled 157 in the final match of the season. As yet no date has been set for the roll-off between Elizabeth and Cranford, but it is expected it will be made upon the part of Cranford to get Elizabeth to roll three games at Elizabeth, and three at Cranford and, if the result should prove a tie, to decide by taking the total number of pins. The following are the records and averages of the bowlers at the close of the season follows:

To Make the Flowers Look Better.

At any of the florists one can purchase a little contrivance made of wire which, when fitted in a glass vase, is splendid for arranging the flowers. The wire loops are on long wires, bent in such a way that long stemmed flowers can be thrust through the small wire loops and will not droop. One could easily make them. The wire is strong and fine, the rings about two inches across and attached to wires of different length. They are all securely fastened on the end, which fits firmly in the glass vase.

SH! DON'T TELL ANYONE

Mrs. Webley, White, Married a Colored Man But Doesn't Want it Known.

WARNING TO NEWSPAPERMEN.

She Served Notice on Them in the City Court Monday That the Matter Already Had Too Much Publicity.

Mrs. Catherine Fields, an aged colored woman living in the West End, appeared in the city court, Monday, as complainant against Mrs. Samuel Webley, white, who she charged with holding a trunk belonging to her. There was a lengthy argument during which Mrs. Webley got "real fresh" with everybody concerned but eventually agreed to give back the trunk if Mrs. Fields would pay her $2 she owed for board. This was satisfactory to the complainant and the case was declared at an end.

As the principals and witnesses started away, Mrs. Webley shifted her position so that she could look at the newspapermen in court and exclaimed in shrill tones:

"I want to say right here that I don't want anything more said about me and this case in the papers. It was in before that I was white and that my husband is a colored man and that don't concern anybody. I want it understood right here that it ain't to be put in again."

Judge Runyon inquired if it wasn't true that she was the wife of a colored man and she replied that it was, starting off at the same time on another verval volley at the newspapermen to the effect that it shouldn't be made public.

"Get out," was the injunction from the bench.

But Mrs. Webley, white, was no wrapper up in telling the newspapermen how little they amounted to because they had dared to report that she was the wife of Sam Webley, colored, that she failed to heed the warning.

"Do you hear, get out," came the command a second time, but though she started to move away she kept on talking.

"If you don't get out of here," shouted the magistrate, "I'll have you put in a cell and you may not get out in quite awhile."

It was impossible to tell whether the warning would have had any effect on the talkative woman as the next instant a couple of husky police officers started toward her and she made a bee line for the front door. She was still talking when she closed it from the outside.

Mrs. Webley is a middle-aged German woman and lives with her husband on West Third street just above Plainfield avenue. The police say she is sensitive on the subject of her marriage and that is why she took umbrage at the papers when they mentioned the fact Monday morning. Accordingly, the gentle reader is requested to please not pass the word along, as it wasn't intended to give away Mrs. Webley's secret.

MRS. FRANCIS G. MOORE GIVES CHARMING TEA.

Mrs. Francis G. Moore gave a charming reception and tea at her home on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon, the affair being attended by about eighty friends. The decorations in the rooms of reception were pink; those in the dining room yellow daffodils, while those in the parlor were white.

Those who assisted Mrs. Moore in receiving were Mrs. William Pelletier, Mrs. David G. Weems, Mrs. Anderson C. Wilson and Mrs. G. W. Chandler. Those in charge of the dining room were Mrs. Harry Terry, Mrs. William Robenson, Miss Isogene Bass and Mrs. Louis Squiers and they were assisted by the Misses Finch, Bass, Morgan, Dorothy Fleming, Edith Little, daughters of this city, and Miss Jardine, of Rye, N. Y.

During the afternoon an attractive program of music was rendered by Charles Suhr's orchestra.

Large Accessions at Trinity.

The hearts of the officers and members of Trinity Reformed church were gladdened yesterday morning when fourteen persons were received into membership by Rev. Dr. P. J. Johnson, at the communion service. The number included five young men, two young women, two women and five girls, all on confession and all members of the Sunday-school, and three from other churches by letter. Each person joining by confession made a public profession of faith in a kneeling position, Dr. Johnson placing his hands upon his or her head and asking the Heavenly Father to bless and keep him or her as His child. Those joining by letter were warmly welcomed by Dr. Johnson in a few well chosen words.

Wheaton Club to Meet.

The annual business meeting of the New York Wheaton Club, of which there are several Plainfield members, will be held Saturday morning, March 7, at 11 o'clock, and after luncheon a "Home Talent" program will be presented by the younger members. Miss Ethel M. Miller, of Charles Suhr's orchestra, is secretary of the club.

TYLER AS A CITY FATHER

His Five Years Service in the Common Council Marked by Numerous Achievements.

SOME OF HIS WORK RECALLED.

Succeeded in Having Excise License Raised and Saloon Zone Established—Municipal Ownership Ideas.

Prompted by only the highest motives and with a desire to serve the city where he can accomplish the most good, William S. Tyler will soon retire from the Common Council, as stated in The Daily Press of yesterday, to become a member of the Board of Education, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. J. H. Probasco. Although the announcement yesterday occasioned considerable surprise, it was known to his intimate friends that the change was contemplated. ♪

Mr. Tyler is now serving his sixth year in the Common Council, having first been elected in 1903, and a fact that is perhaps is most gratifying to him is that only in one campaign has he had opposition to his candidacy. That was last fall, when Joseph M. Shellabarger was a candidate for the nomination. Those who remember the primary contest in the Third ward, know how hard the opposition fought to defeat the reformer. In that ward a nomination by the Republican party has always been equivalent to an election and with the one exception there never was any doubt about the success of Mr. Tyler's candidacy.

During the six years Mr. Tyler has been in the Council he has passed through many exciting periods in which he has been the central figure. He has had the unusual success of generally carrying his point, even when bitterly opposed by those who thought differently. This fact was demonstrated in his successful fight to establish the saloon zone, restricting the sale of liquor to the business part of the city. He had made an exhaustive study of the subject, especially in Minneapolis, where a similar ordinance has been in force for years. When Mr. Tyler introduced the measure in the Common Council, it was met with laughter and many believed it to be a good joke. This did not discourage him and after four years he saw the ordinance passed. Even those who are opposed to the Third warder in many ways, are said to agree today, that the restrictive measure is one of the best in the efforts to control the liquor business.

The next taken by Mr. Tyler in opposing the sale of liquor by John Goff on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, is considered one of his greatest achievements. As a result the leased liquor traffic has been kept out of that residential part of the city. He was the leader in a raid on Goff's place, the results of which are still fresh in the minds of a majority of the people in Plainfield.

Following the raid came the trial of Chief of Police Kiely on charges preferred by Mr. Tyler and other members of the Common Council, and which the accused was not convicted Mr. Tyler's friends believe that the trial brought about a better condition of things in the police department. Goff was subsequently fined $150 for repeatedly violating the excise law.

Among other important measures advocated by Mr. Tyler include the extension of the city water supply with a view to obtaining a municipal plant and the efforts to obtain a better electric light contract with the Public Service Corporation, both of which were started by Mr. Tyler and later taken up by other committees. Still another thing accomplished by Mr. Tyler was the raising of the liquor license fee from $700 to $1,000 in the face of strong opposition, backed by the New Jersey Retail Liquor Dealers' Association. The adoption of this ordinance has resulted in an increase in the fee in other parts of the State.

Mr. Tyler has also had decided views on many questions of public importance. He has opposed on the one hand the wage to firemen and policemen believing that they are well paid; he has always been opposed to the issue of bonds of a large denomination except in the erection of public schools and sewer improvements. He has been known to issue short time notes for small amounts for improvements so that they can easily and readily be retired.

The Third ward member has served nearly every committee in the Common Council and has been chairman of some of the most important ones. His faithfulness in attending sessions of the Common Council and looking out for the city's interests is a matter of record and his reliability without a single exception has expressed regret that he is to retire from the body.

Mr. Tyler's resignation as a Coun-

MRS. JOHN M. WHITON TELLS OF HER TRAVELS

The women of the Congregational church held a reception at the church yesterday afternoon, at which time Mrs. John M. Whiton, who recently returned from a trip abroad, gave an informal talk of much interest. She spoke more especially of the trip through the Mediterranean, and of her visit to Gibraltar, Spain, Greece and Constantinople. She also dis*tributed many beautiful photographs* taken on the journey, which gave an excellent idea of the places visited.

At the close of Mrs. Whiton's talk, Mr. Whiton happened to stop in at the meeting and he gave an interesting account of the Sultan going to prayers, accompanied by a thousand soldiers. He witnessed this sight and the description was all the more enjoyable.

During the first part of the program Mrs. Theodore Mantz, soprano, favored the audience with a solo. The church parlors were tastefully decorated for the occasion by a committee consisting Mrs. Curtis Bates, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, Miss McIntosh and Miss Bessie Millar. They also had charge of the refreshments which were served during the social half-hour following the reception.

ITALIAN MISSIONARY TO TELL OF HIS WORK

The bi-monthly congress of the local Christian Endeavor Union will be held tomorrow night at the First Presbyterian church. At 7:30 o'clock there will be a discussion of work by the prayer meeting committee, of which Charles Neagle is the chairman. All members of prayer meeting committees in the various societies, together with others who may be interested, are invited.

The regular session will begin at 8 o'clock, when the secretary will present several important communications and amendments to the constitution will be made. The nominating committee appointed at the last mass meeting will present its report. "Work Among the Italians" will be the subject of a talk to be given by Rev. Mr. Serafini, of Trenton, who will also present plans for carrying on a similar work in Plainfield.

It was expected that State President J. T. Sproull, of Arlington, would attend, but another engagement prevents his from doing so. He will be present at the meeting to be held here in May, when questions pertaining to holding the State Christian Endeavor Convention in Plainfield in 1909, will be discussed.

SALVATION ARMY NATIONAL STAFF BAND TO PLAY.

Captain and Mrs. Victor Jones, of Elizabeth, will conduct the meeting tomorrow night in the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street, at 8 o'clock.

Captain Lewis Larkin will be the leader next Saturday night, and Adjutant Walter Mabes will conduct the meetings next Sunday.

Captain Hopkins has arranged for the National Staff Band to visit the city and conduct musical evangelistic services on Saturday and Sunday, March 28 and 29.

Men's Club Entertainment.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Congregational church an excellent entertainment was given last night by George Duryea, humorist and story-teller. A musical program was expected, but the artists disappointed the club. After Mr. Duryea furnished an hour's entertainment, refreshments were served. The event decided to expend $20 for a stereopticon lantern for use in the church and one new member was elected.

Musical Entertainment at Trinity.

A musical and literary entertainment will be given at Trinity Reformed church, Monday night, March 23, by the quartet choir of the church, assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, elocutionist, of Brooklyn. The affair will be held in the lecture room under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church and a program of exceptional merit will be presented. An offering of twenty-five cents will be received at the door.

For Road Supervisor.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, introduced in the State Senate at Trenton yesterday a bill authorizing the State Roads Commission to expend $3,600 a year for the services of a supervisor to examine plans and specifications for roads.

To Modify Pure Food Law.

Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, introduced in the State Senate yesterday a bill amending the pure food law of 1907. The measure permits the sale and distribution of modified milk for the use of infants.

FIRE DRILLS GALORE NOW

Pupils Have Practise at the Morning Exercises in all Local Schools.

TWO DRILLS AT N. P. H. S.

Schools To Have Alarm Bells in All Assembly Rooms—Fire Escapes at P. H. S.

Aroused to the realization of a flaw in the fire drill system of the local schools by an unexpected fire drill during the morning singing exercise at the Plainfield High School yesterday morning, city and borough schools had fire drills during the morning exercises this morning. At the Plainfield High School, the alarm was again sounded this morning, and the pupils filed out quickly and without confusion. At the North Plainfield High School there was also a drill, and the pupils made their usual quick time to the exits, despite the fact that the alarm was sounded while the school was singing when the bell was sounded. All the teachers were in the assembly room, and County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs was leading the singing when the alarm sounded. The bell was perfectly audible above the music.

Not satisfied with emptying the building in the record time of fifty seconds for 750 pupils, using all the exits, Mr. Krebs had a second fire drill, he had given instructions to have the pupils follow their teachers, and this morning had the main entrance of the building locked, so that the pupils who generally leave by this door, had to go to the north door of the building.

This plan of cutting off one exit was not announced before hand, except in a general way to the rules made public at the school yesterday. When the boy monitors ran ahead of the classes to open the doors of the main entrance, Mr. Krebs told them to leave it shut and locked. The 1,180 pupils who generally leave by this entrance followed their teachers when they found the door locked, and there was not the slightest disorder. The building was emptied in two minutes and fifteen seconds.

Mr. Krebs announced today that an alarm gong connecting the two schools with the North Plainfield fire department will be immediately installed. This will summon the fire apparatus by the mere pressing of a button.

More Alarm Bells.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield schools, gave orders yesterday for fire alarm signal gongs to be installed in the assembly rooms of all the schools. This will be done at once. At the Plainfield High School five more alarm bells will be immediately installed, in addition to the four already situated in the buildings. The new bells will be situated in the gymnasium, the manual training room, the typewriting room, the janitor's office and the auditorium. It is reported that these bells are to have a different sound from the bells heretofore, which sound very much like the bells in use to indicate the change of recitation periods, and may be confused with them.

After having had the matter under consideration for the past two months the Plainfield Board of Education has finally decided to have fire escapes put at the blind exits of the High School auditorium, an iron platform, with steps leading to the ground, will be immediately installed.

The matter has been pending action by the board since the erection of the new building. At each side of the auditorium, near the stage, is a large door. These doors were designed for fire exits, but no means of descent to the ground was provided when the building was formally accepted by the Board of Education. From the door sill to the ground is a distance of about six feet. The matter of having a fire escape built at each of these exits has been persistently agitated by one of the High School teachers.

"Shower" for Miss Ernestine Smith.

In honor of Miss Ernestine C. Smith, of Madison avenue, a "shower party" was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Asa F. Randolph at her home on Park avenue. There were about thirty guests and each one brought a dainty gift for Miss Smith, accompanied with appropriate rhymes. During the afternoon refreshments were served *and Miss Smith in addi*tion to the gifts received the hearty congratulations of her friends.

Funeral of Mrs. James Breakey.

The funeral service of Mrs. James Breakey was held yesterday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Winans, on Somerset street. Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers, all nephews of Mrs. Breakey, were Isaac Winans, Silas Winans, Truman Bilyeu, Clarence Bilyeu, Walter Titus and Samuel Titus.

SHARPERS GOT HIS COIN

Two Suave Strangers Deposit a "Diamond" as Security for Loan of $25.

POLICE AFTERWARDS NOTIFIED.

Pretending to Be Friends of Former Hotel Proprietor, Pair of Bunco Men Work Their Game Here.

During one of the busy periods at a North avenue hotel early last night, a couple of genteel strangers entered the place and inquired of Proprietor W. J. Poulson if "Al" Staats, who formerly owned the hostelry, was about the premises. When told that he had sold out and gone to Florida, the two men seemed *greatly disappointed and held a con*ference between themselves in a corner. In a few moments they returned to the desk, one of them taking a diamond ring from his finger and putting it in an envelope. He asked Mr. Poulson if he would be kind enough to place the trinket in his safe until morning, remarking at the same time that the two were going out for a short walk but would return later to engage a room for the night.

The proprietor complied and was about to put the ring away when the same man grew confidential and asked, on the strength of his old-time friendship with "Al" Staats, if Mr. Poulson could let him have a $25 loan on it. Mr. Poulson could and he did. He is an old time hotel man and a former sheriff of Hunterdon county and argued with himself that he certainly knew a good stone when he saw it. He believed the one he held was worth at least twice the loan asked for.

The strangers failed to return after the hour they said they would and late last night Mr. Poulson concluded to have a second look at the ring. When he got it out where the rays of an electric light shone full upon it, he simply said "stung" and got in touch with the police.

Today all the cops in the city are looking for two friends of "Al" Staats. One of them, who handed up the ring, is described as being about five feet eleven inches in height, about fifty-five years old and smooth shaven. He wore a white vest and a brown derby. His companion appeared to be sixty years old, had mixed gray hair and a Van Dyke beard. He also wore a brown derby.

NEW PRIMARY BILL.

Limits State Supervision to First-Class Cities.

Senator Everett Colby yesterday introduced in the State Senate a bill that is a duplicate to the measure extending State supervision to primaries for delegates to State and Congressional conventions that, in turn select delegates to the national party conventions. The original bills are opposed by the party bosses.

The Colby bill would limit the State's supervision to first-class counties. It is the belief that such a plan would hold water, as it appears to those discussing it that the State should supervise some primaries and that others should be held simultaneously under partisan supervision.

Miss Force Entertained Her Class.

Miss Lillian A. Force, of Duer street, entertained her Sunday-school class from Trinity Reformed church, last night. There are ten members of the class and there was only one absent. The young women had a most delightful evening playing games and enjoying the social features. Refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Force and all remember the gathering proved a pleasant and profitable one.

Permanent Stage Lights.

A permanent system of electric lights for the stage of the Plainfield High School auditorium is to be installed immediately. Superintendent Maxson arranged for this innovation yesterday, because the temporary wiring for wing lights and overhead lights is not considered safe. The new wiring will be completed for use by Saturday night, when the junior class of the school is to give a play in the auditorium.

Made $350 For N. P. H. S. A. A.

The North Plainfield High School Athletic Association netted more than $50 last night as the result of a black-face entertainment by the Gold Metal minstrel troupe. The money will be used for the purchase of basket ball trade uniforms for the teams. Clarence Steiner was chairman of the school committee in charge of the entertainment.

M'CAULEY WAS SCRAPPY

CITY BLUECOAT GIVES HELP.

Roundsman Messler Finally Arrests Fighting Prisoner, Who Is Kept Overnight In City Jail.

Arrested through the combined efforts of city and borough police officers, James McCauley, who has a police court in North Plainfield as a hard drinker, was taken to the city lock-up by Patrolman Messler shortly before midnight yesterday and transferred to a borough cell this morning by Marshal Lemuel Pope. *McCauley escaped arrest by the bor*ough policeman by running across the Somerset street bridge and then engaging Pope in a rough and tumble fist fight just over the county line, Pope's whistle for help brought Messler, who locked McCauley up for the night.

When Pope came to the city court this morning to get his prisoner, he handcuffed his hands behind his back as soon as he was brought from the cell. Chief Kiely refused to allow him to lead the prisoner through the streets in this way and the officer had to return to North Plainfield police headquarters for the key to the nippers before he could take him to the borough jail.

Late pedestrians of Somerset street saw a fierce bare fist fight between the borough officer and the prisoner, who rolled together on the brick pavement just out of the borough limits. McCauley got in a fight with a man in front of a Somerset street saloon. Blows were exchanged and McCauley knocked the fellow down. Pope heard the rumpus and started in pursuit of his man. The race ended near the bridge, where the officer engaged with his man. The two rolled about on the ground. Pope striving to choke McCauley. The prisoner being punched and kicked the officer, and a by-stander finally got possession of Pope's whistle and blew for assistance. Messler came up, and as the borough marshal by that time had the handcuffs on his man, the arrest is easy.

McCauley is now in a borough cell, and will come up for a hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver at the session of court tonight.

ENTERTAINS PLAYMATES ON BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY.

In celebration of his tenth birthday, Clifford Feiring, son of William Feiring, entertained thirty of his playmates at his grandmother's home on Harrison avenue, yesterday afternoon. The children enjoyed music and games for several hours, a donkey party being one of the features. For this prizes were awarded. Willie Rilling getting first, Gussie Bremner second and Pauline Maury the booby. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The decorations in the dining room were pink and white and were very pretty. Master Feiring received many presents appropriate to the occasion.

"Western Cyclone" to Speak.

The members of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will hereafter hold its meetings Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, instead of 2 o'clock as before. Monday afternoon, Miss Lounsbery led the devotional service and Miss Nettie Beeching taught the lesson. The topic was "An Aid to Sympathy," taken from Miss Margaret Slattery's text book on "Talks with the Training Class." At the institute to be held on May 26, C. D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, known as "The Western Cyclone," will speak. He is the international Sunday-school secretary.

Home Department Conference.

There will be a conference of the Home Departments of the Plainfield, Westfield and Dunellen Sunday-schools in Trinity Reformed church, Wednesday afternoon, March 18, at 2:30 o'clock, at which time Mrs. Karnell, the county superintendent, is anxious to have a large number present. The home department visitors of Trinity Reformed church will assist at an informal reception to be held after the meeting.

Changes at the Hospital.

In the appointment of assistants to the medical staff at Muhlenberg Hospital by the Board of Governors, Dr. P. B. Cregar will take the position of assistant in the X-ray department, while Dr. Frederick J. Hughes, a new appointment, takes Dr. Cregar's place.

GRAND ARMY VETERANS ARE WELL ENTERTAINED

Winfield Scott Post, No. 75, G. A. R., gave an entertainment in G. A. R. headquarters, last night, which was largely attended by veterans from Elizabeth, Rahway and this city, together with members of the Women's Relief Corps and friends of the organizations. J. L. McVey was in charge of the program. The gathering was notable for the fact that there were three past department commanders present, W. C. Smith, of this city; John Atkinson, of Elizabeth, and James D. Atkeson, of Massachusetts. Each one made a short address, as did also Dr. John Youngclove, of Elizabeth, and Commander Harry Barnes, of the Rahway Post.

An interesting part of the program was the music furnished by Comrade Joseph Wright's phonograph, which was operated by Elston Leonard. The machine is an especially fine one and a large number of records were used. In addition H. Warren Rankin, of Sandford avenue, entertained the company with a clever performance of sleight-of-hand. After the entertainment about thirty lunchboxes were sold and a large sum realized as profit. W. C. Smith was the auctioneer. Those who purchased the boxes then enjoyed refreshments and a social time.

$100,000 WATERWAY IS FORT'S DEMAND

Governor Fort sent to the Legislature yesterday a special message transmitting the report of an investigation made by the State Board of Geological Survey respecting an inland waterway along the Atlantic coast between Barnegat bay and Cape May.

Governor Fort in his message favors the waterway and urges an appropriation of $100,000 at the present session to construct that part of the waterway which will lie between Barnegat bay and Great Egg, a distance of thirty-two miles.

He also urged the passage of Senator Hand's bill for the creation of a State Waterways Commission.

The commission's report estimates that the waterway for pleasure boats from Bay Head to Cape May, 100 feet wide and six feet deep, may be built for $278,000.

While the message was being received Speaker Jess was holding for delivery to Governor Fort the bill of Senator Hand for the Inland Waterways Commission. He immediately put the bill in the House, and it passed finally, only needing the signature of the Governor to be effective.

Funeral of Dennis Bermingham.

The funeral of Dennis Bermingham was held in St. Mary's church this morning, when a solemn requiem mass was said for the repose of his soul. It was said by Father Delehanty as celebrant, Father Dunphy, of Dunellen, as deacon and Father Sciolla as sub-deacon. The floral tributes were very numerous and included set wreaths from Court Plainfield, I. O. F., the Machinists' Union and the Pond Tool Beneficial Association. Delegations from each of these organizations attended the funeral. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: Cornelius McCarthy, Daniel McAfee, John Hines, Jeremiah Callahan, Frank McCabe and David Doyle.

P. S. C. to Install Catch Basins.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, in company with F. H. Gordon, road master of the P. S. C., made a tour of inspection of the borough trolley system this morning and as a result of requests by the Mayor, catch basins will be immediately installed between the trolley rails at Codington avenue and a point several hundred feet south of Pearl street. At these places, standing water gathers between the rails and as the roadway is muddy because the water on the tracks cannot be carried off by the borough storm sewers.

Ladies' Aid Society Elects.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church elected these officers at the annual meeting held in Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon: President, Mrs. L. M. Prime; first vice president, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller; second vice president, Mrs. Henry A. McGee; secretary, Mrs. Charles H. Lyman; treasurer, Mrs. Nelson F. Hull. The reports for the year showed the society to be in fine condition, financially and otherwise.

George L. Homan's Funeral.

The funeral of George L. Homan, who died suddenly Sunday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his father, J. P. Homan, of Putnam avenue. Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, officiated. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

DEAL IN LOCAL PERMITS

Prisoner Tells of New York Concern's Traffic in Peddlers Licenses for Plainfield.

BARGAIN PRICES PREVAIL.

According to Lipkitz, a Grant Street, New York, Firm Has a Variety for Sale at Twenty-five Cents a Day.

Through the arrest of Max Lipkitz, a young New Yorker who was caught by Patrolman Saffron yesterday as he was about to begin peddling gas mantles on Liberty street without a license, the local police learned today that a clever scheme of buying and selling Plainfield permits of this kind exists in the metropolis. The prisoner was arraigned in the city court this morning and in the course of a plea to be let go told Judge Runyon that if he wanted to be dishonest he could have secured a license issued under another name at a cost of seventy-five cents a week.

"Your Honor," said Lipkitz, "there is a wholesale supply house on Grant street, New York, known as Cooperberg's, where they have licenses to peddle in nearly every city and town in northern New Jersey. They are taken out by peddlers who afterward quit the territory and the house buys the permit, afterward renting it out until the time expires. When I started to sell mantles after being thrown out of my work as a printer I was offered licenses in Plainfield, Hackensack, Englewood and Montclair for twenty-five cents a day or seventy-five cents for each week. In this way, the wholesale house gets back what was paid for the license and the young peddlers just starting out are not compelled to invest from $10 to $15 for a permit in each place they visit."

Judge Runyon advised Chief Kiely that it would be policy for the police to look into the Cooperberg scheme and keep a watchout for the licenses about town in the possession of strangers. A large number have been taken in for this reason within the past two years and the number will probably be doubled. Judge Runyon also suggested that steps be taken to adopt some scheme whereby the man to whom the license is issued might be identified upon it, a matter that will be taken up in the near future. Lipkitz was let go on suspended sentence.

ACTOR AND PLAYWRIGHT COME NEAR TO BLOWS.

A dispute between author and star, at rehearsal, yesterday, regarding how the actor should read his lines, resulted almost in fisticuffs. The author who assumed the aggressive was Cecil B. deMille and the star in question was Cyril Scott. The playwright in the first heat snatched the manuscript from the prompter and started for the exit, but he was followed by one Samuel Clazett who, heidetatally is the manager of Scott and is making the production. William deMille, co-author with Cecil of the play, entered at this dramatic moment and tried to pacify his brother, but the argument between Scott and Cecil became so heated that the members of the company began to take sides with the result that everyone got mixed up in the dispute.

The part that the deMilles have written for Scott is that of a young Irish aristocrat who has crossed the Atlantic and entered the service of the Canadian Mounted Police. Cecil deMille was not satisfied with the way that Scott was dealing out the "brogue of the dialogue." The star claimed to know more about it than the author and said that he would throw up the part rather than make the young hero a conventional stage Irishman. Young deMille had saturated himself with the real dialect of the "auld sod" through association with recent arrivals from County Clare, and that Scott being an American-born actor, of necessity would require to acquire the proper accent. Mr. Clazett came to the rescue finally with the query, "Where are you been Cyril?" Why "in the heart of Ireland, of course. Not more than three miles from the spot where the hero of this play was born."

Young deMille stepped back and looked around in an abashed manner for a moment; then he stretched out his hand to Scott and said "I think I'll try and educate some of these "Canucks" in the play—I'm much nearer home in that." And the rehearsal proceeded. The show will be presented tomorrow night at the New Plainfield theatre.

Lipkitz Secures His Release.

Nelson LaBau, of Clinton avenue, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of false pretense and held in $500 bail, secured his release last night. The bail was furnished by William Hamilton, of South Plainfield.

ADVERTISING PLAINFIELD

The Board of Trade to Obtain More Publicity, Using Metropolitan Papers.

TO ENTERTAIN THE MINISTERS.

"Seeing Plainfield" Tour for M. E. Conference Members—Talk About Tunnel Facilities.

The Board of Trade at its meeting Thursday decided to spend $250 in advertising Plainfield and its advantages in the New York Sunday Herald and World and Brooklyn Eagle. A report on the matter was presented by E. F. Feickert, of the publicity committee. He said that the advertisement now appearing in The Suburbanite had been printed in pamphlet form and was ready for distribution. The committee had 10,000 copies printed and believed that a wide circulation of them would be of great benefit to the city.

The question of advertising in the New York subway was referred to but Mr. Feickert said that this sort of publicity would cost $200 a month and he did not believe that the board cared to spend that amount of money.

There was an animated discussion regarding the probability of Plainfielders being able to reach New York through a subway under the Hudson river, and it was decided that Mr. Herr should confer with Mayor C. J. Flik, whose firm financed the McAdoo tunnel, with a view to ascertaining whether the New Jersey Central is to have the advantage of the underground route. Mr. Herr spoke at some length on the subject and said that as far as he was concerned personally he would not want to remain in Plainfield if the quicker method of transportation was not to be given to residents of the city.

In speaking of the matter, Dr. A. F. VanHorn said that he had talked with persons high in authority and was given assurances that the New Jersey Central would have the use of an underground route to New York.

Announcement was made by President H. W. Marshall that the Newark Conference of the Methodist church is to meet April 5-7, and that Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, who is preparing a souvenir book of Plainfield for the occasion, desired that the board take a page advertisement in this book to set forth the advantages of the city. The scheme was thought to be a good one and $10 was appropriated for the purpose.

It was also suggested by Mr. Marshall that a committee of five be appointed by the board of assisting in entertaining the ministers while in the city. "Seeing Plainfield" by automobiles was mentioned as an excellent plan and Mr. Marshall said that no doubt a number of autoists would be glad to volunteer for the several afternoons during the week. A. E. Force was appointed chairman of the committee, and other members asked to serve are J. V. E. Vanderhoef and E. C. Deal. The other two members will be appointed later.

The disgraceful condition of sidewalks in the business part of the city was again referred to, this time by A. E. Force and he believed that active steps should be taken to have walks and curbing put to grade. The attention of City Engineer Gavett will be called to the matter. In this connection Gustave Meissner, of Watchung avenue, spoke of the narrow sidewalks in the north part of the city and suggested that the board might do a good work by advocating improvements along this line.

NORTH PLAINFIELD COUNCIL WILL PUBLISH ORDINANCES.

A revised set of borough ordinances, together with the rules of order and conducting of Council metings, adopted at the North Plainfield Council meeting last night, will shortly be published in pamphlet form. This is in accordance with a motion by Councilman Woolston made at last night's meeting. In speaking of the advisability of the matter, Mayor Townsend strongly endorsed the idea, stating that there had been no revised set of the borough ordinances published since 1897, while many chages have been made within that time.

The rules for conducting Council meetings were adopted with corrections at the meeting last night. They were drawn up by Councilman Nichols.

"Checkers" Ross Coming Again.

Thomas W. Ross, the former star of "Checkers," will appear in the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday night in his new play, "The Travelling Salesman." It was written by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," and is being produced by Henry B. Harris. The performances will be in the nature of a benefit for John A. Lawrence, advertising manager at the playhouse.

The Net Proceeds $140.

The net proceeds of the amateur theatricals given at the Park Club, Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, will be about $140. The money will be in support of the city nurse and other work of charity undertaken by the circle.

FLAMES DAMAGE HOUSE

Lighted Candle Supposed to be Responsible for Fire at A. B. Steven's Residence.

LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT $3,000.

Thought That Candle in Hands of Mrs. Steven Came in Contact With Clothing in the Garret.

Damage to the extent of $3,000 was occasioned through fire at the home of A. R. Steven, of West Eighth street, near Grant avenue, Thursday afternoon. The flames originated in the upper part of the house and were confined to three rooms, the large loss resulting from water pouring down on elaborated walls and hard wood floors. The department worked an hour before the blaze was finally put out.

The fire was discovered by neighbors who saw flames bursting through the roof. A still alarm was turned in and while the apparatus was on the way box 79, at Grant avenue and Eighth street, was pulled. At the first investigation the cause of the blaze seemed to be a mystery but Mrs. Steven afterward recalled that early in the afternoon she had gone to the attic to get something and used a lighted candle in her search. It is thought an article of clothing hanging on a nail became ignited from it as she brushed by.

The house was only recently built by Manning & McIntyre and Mr. Stephen purchased it from them two months ago. The furniture in the rooms to which the flames were confined was removed before it suffered any damage. The water poured in caused the walls and floors to bulge and it will prove costly to have repairs made. The loss is covered by insurance.

FARM HAND GETS WAGES

Hired Man Successful in Suit Brought Against Somerville Society Woman.

MUCH BITTER LITIGATION.

Mrs. Evelyn W. Murray Must Pay John Millett $80—Cases In Somerset County Court.

Mrs. Evelyn Wentworth Murray, who owns a country estate near Raritan and has long been prominent in S. P. C. A. work and society circles in Somerville, was one of the leading figures in the Somerset county courts at Somerville Friday, appearing in the defendant's role in a suit brought against her by John Millett for wages alleged to be due. She brought him out from New York to work on her place in December, 1906, and agreed to pay him $30 a month, with $10 extra from April 1, if he made the garden. Mrs. Murray asserted that Millet was not entitled to the extra pay because he did not do the work. He brought suit for $160. She had offered to settle for $85, but he would not take less than the case was tried in Justice Kiechen's court a verdict for the full amount was awarded the plaintiff. The case was appealed. Yesterday Judge Schenck gave the plaintiff judgment for $80. Miss Mary M. Bowne represented Mrs. Murray and Beekman & Vosseller were counsel for Millett.

In the Orphans' Court yesterday the exceptions to the accounts in the estates of Andrew Pricke, of Somerville, and Henry Hellick, of Warren Township, were heard. In the Hellick case decision was reserved and the Pricke case was laid over until Tuesday, March 17.

Judge Schenck announced that he would not hold court on Friday, the 13th, but would on Tuesday, the 17th, instead. New petit jurors for the April term of courts will be drawn.

FOR ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Borough Fathers Approve Petition to Freeholders Made by Taxpayers.

ASK RETURN FOR TAXES.

Former Mayor Smalley Explains How Borough Pays More to County and Gets Little or Nothing in Return.

Aiming to secure a practical benefit from all the money paid by North Plainfield to the county tax, the North Plainfield Council Friday night endorsed petitions to the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, urging the extension of Watchung avenue and the macadamizing of a mile stretch of Greenbrook road at the county's expense. Former Mayor N. B. Smalley presented the petition for the macadamizing of Greenbrook road, and urged the borough fathers to sanction the petition, "so that we may get some benefit from the money we pay over to the county for road improvements, instead of providing good roads in other townships and boroughs."

"It is only fair that such a request from the borough government be granted," said Mr. Smalley, "for we send money to the county seat for county road improvements for others, as it now stands, and have as yet derived no benefits whatever. I attended the December meeting of the Council, it was decided to open up Watchung avenue, but the borough has no funds for doing the work at present. On motion of Councilman McGee, the resolution to petition the County Board of Freeholders to make the extension a county road, to be built at the expense of the county, was unanimously passed. The benefits of the borough were discussed and the measure was supported because it will furnish another means of entering North Plainfield, relieving the traffic on Somerset street.

Mr. Smalley's petition to the Council requested a resolution endorsing the petition from Greenbrook road property owners, requesting the Freeholders to build a macadam road, seventy feet wide, from Rockview avenue to the borough limits,—a distance of about a mile. The petition was unanimously approved. In the course of his remarks on the matter, Mr. Smalley said:

"With the possible exception of Warren Township, the borough of North Plainfield has asked for the least money for road improvements. The local government spends a good deal of money on roads, and gives money to the county for other people's roads. By endorsing this petition, we are only asking for what is due us. Such petitions ought to come up every year, if we expect to have anything to show for the tax money we send to the county seat."

PEDDIE GRADUATES BANQUET AND REUNION

The annual reunion and banquet of Peddie Institute Alumni Association was held Friday at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York, and was attended by more than sixty members. These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Stephen B. Gilbuly, '82, Rutherford; first vice-president, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, '89, Plainfield; second vice-president, Mrs. J. G. Schenck, '84, Newark; secretary-treasurer, T. Elliot Weston, '02, New York.

The Plainfielders attending were Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan and Miss Margaret Cramer, their guest. Dr. G. W. Endicott, a member, was expected to make an address, but was detained. A programme rendered music throughout the banquet and afterward a quartet from Peddie Institute sang popular selections in which the guests joined. Dr. Buchanan was one of the speakers.

Plans were discussed for reaching more of the graduates so that a larger attendance may be secured in the future. Mr. Gilbuly announced that after this year Peddie Institute is to be a school for young men only and while it was a source of regret that the young women will hereafter be denied the privileges of the institution, he impressed upon those present that the graduates would always be welcomed at the annual banquet.

Sunday-School Teachers' Institute.

The Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union has received an invitation to attend an institute at 2:30 p. m. in First Reformed church, New Brunswick, by the Union of that place, on Monday afternoon. Miss Rose Scott, of Newark, and Miss C. L. Ewalt, of New York, will conduct primary and junior sessions and in the evening Rev. Milton S. Littlefield, of Bound Brook, will deliver an address on "The Little Foxes that Spoil the Vines."

MAYOR'S PAY $2,500, COUNCILMEN $500 PER

Such Will Be the Salaries for Plainfield's Fathers if Legislature Passes Pending Bills.

APPLY TO SECOND CLASS CITIES.

Councilmanic Pay Bill Gets Through House After Colgate Takes a Fall Out of Moxon.

Assemblyman W. E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy, has introduced a bill in the Legislature which authorizes governing bodies of second class cities to fix by ordinance the salary of the Mayor, not to exceed $2,500.

The bill, it is understood, is designed with an eye to Perth Amboy and East Orange, Plainfield and North Brunswick would also be affected.

One of the House bills to pass on this week was No. 62, introduced by Austin Colgate, of Essex, allowing councilmen in cities of the second class, which includes Plainfield, to get as high as $500 a year salary. There was some little opposition to this measure, Messrs. Morris, of Sussex, and Kenny, of Hudson, coming out openly as opposed to it, the latter on the ground that councilmen should be too patriotic to serve for pay. Mr. Colgate, however, defended his measure facetiously enough to secure its passage 41 to 13.

In voicing his opposition Mr. Morris declared that the bill was wrong from his viewpoint in that it took away one of the powers of the people of the municipality affected. He argued that if any such salaries were to be fixed as mentioned in the bill it should be the duty, as well as the right, of the town's people to fix them, and not the Legislature.

Mr. Colgate retorted that the town's people, as Mr. Morris put it, could assert that right without any trouble.

Mr. Kenny argued that any man who sought the office of alderman for $10 a week would prove to be a second-class alderman, and that better men would be secured for no pay. He declared he was never sorry for the work he had put in his town without pay, and referred to Assemblyman Martin, Republican leader of the House, as "a bright example of the type of man who would never have served as alderman for $10 a week, but gladly gave his services for nothing."

Mr. Martin arose, bowed pleasantly, and said the argument was unanswerable.

Mr. Colgate in reply said he had listened to Mr. Kenny's talk and was pleased to say it had quite converted him, and made him more in favor of the bill than ever before. He said, he said, the "gentlemen in question" get $2 for every night they serve. It would be a perfectly simple proposition, he said, for them to sit six nights a week and thus draw $12 instead of $10. He moved to declare it, it was as much in fear that this might result as anything else, he said with a laugh, that Orange was so interested in the bill. However, he declared there is nothing iniquitous about the bill. Orange, he said, would have been satisfied to have made the rate $300, but found East Orange's councilmen were getting $500, so made a strike for the same amount.

Mr. Kenny interrupted to say he hoped the "gallant colonel from Essex will withdraw the bill and stop the graft in Orange," and Mr. Moxon, of Union, took a hand to say that as there had been much talk of patriotic zeal and an eagerness to work for nothing, he would suggest that Mr. Kenny donate his $50 salary as Assemblyman back to the State.

Mr. Kenny retorted that any time Mr. Moxon came to him and told him he (Moxon) needed the $500, he would gladly turn it over to him. This prompted Mr. Moxon to declare "I need it now," which brought about a laugh and incidentally stopped the discussion on the bill.

February Weather Changeable.

Weather Prophet John Neagle has compiled the statistics of the weather in February, which are as follows: Maximum temperature, 58, 15th; minimum temperature, 3, below zero, 5th; mean temperature, 26.9; normal temperature, 28.5; mean maximum, 35.7; mean minimum, 18.2; mean daily range, 17.5; greatest daily range, 36; total precipitation, 5.75 inches; greatest amount in twenty-four hours, 1.64; number of precipitation, 4.04 inches; total snowfall, 17.0 inches; normal snowfall, 11.4 inches; number of rainy days, 9; number of days clear, 10; partly cloudy, 10; cloudy, 9. AGAINST TAX RATE LAW

KILLS BOROUGH IMPROVEMENTS

New Law, If Enforced, Necessitates Great Increase of Property Valuations and State and County Tax Money.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting of the North Plainfield Common Council Friday night requesting State Senator A. B. Dyelinguysen and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley to urge the repeal of the law limiting the tax rate to $2, or else to secure modifications that will permit the people of North Plainfield to raise and spend such money for local purposes as may seem necessary. This law, just recently passed, bears heavily on the borough, compelling either a lowering of the tax rate, or an increase in the assessed valuations. Mayor Townsend spoke at length on the detrimental effect of the statute, and after a general discussion, the resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Council.

The resolutions, as endorsed by the Mayor and Council, follow:

"Whereas, A movement has been started looking to the repeal of a law passed in 1906 entitled 'An Act for the reduction and limitation of the taxes to be assessed into several taxing districts of the State,' which law when carried into effect will work a great injustice to the borough of North Plainfield by so curtailing the amount to be raised for strictly local purposes that the borough running expenses of the borough cannot be met, or needed improvements in the way of sewers, etc., undertaken, the alternative being to make a heavy increase in assessed valuations, the effect of which would be not only to increase borough taxes, but to largely add to our burden of county and State school taxes; therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Mayor and Council of the borough of North Plainfield that the Senator and member of Assembly from this county be requested to urge the repeal of this law, or else such modifications that will permit the people of the borough to raise and spend such amounts for strictly local purposes as to them seem necessary."

Councilman C. L. Nichols, of the law, ordinance and taxation committee, introduced the resolutions with an appeal for the Council to urge the Senator and Assemblyman to work against the measure. In speaking of the matter in the discussion which followed, Mayor Townsend said:

"About a week ago, I was at a meeting of mayors held at Trenton, where the matter was thoroughly discussed. It is decidedly an injustice to boroughs and townships. At that meeting, it was decided to take the matter up and secure the repeal of the law, or at least its modification so that it will not effect the amount of money raised in a county.

"The law as it now stands bears heavily on North Plainfield. It compels us to lower our tax rate, or increase our property valuation in order to secure borough improvements, to raise money for roads, or for the installation of a new system. To increase our property valuations would mean to increase the amount of the tax we pay to the county, also to increase the State school tax, for these two vary directly with the valuations.

"The law as it now stands is a law of equalizing the ratables all over the State. In some parts of Somerset county the rates are considerably below 1.75, and in one instance as low as 1.30. Such borough will not be effected by the change, they are already below the limit. What we want here in North Plainfield is the right to buy out money for our own roads and sewers without being compelled to increase the amount we send to the State. Anything our legislators can do in this matter, will mean relief from a very erroneous law.

"The matter is already being taken up by the committee selected at the Trenton meeting, and I am to hear what they do. I believe the law will effect North Plainfield more strictly than any borough in the State. It will mean that our valuation of $85,000 must be increased to about $250,000 if we plan borough improvements. This would mean a big increase in the money we turn over for special school tax, borough tax and taxes for all county purposes, and would make our sewer scheme even a more remote possibility."

Somerville Hotel Sold.

The County Hotel, Somerville's oldest hostelry, was sold yesterday to Jacob Bailey, of Netcong, Morris county, who will take possession on Monday, March 16. George Schenck and wife, who have conducted the business for many years, have purchased the residence of former Judge Williamson in Somerville and will move there. Mr. Schenck will continue in charge of the livery connected with the hotel.

DEMOCRATS PRAISE DAVIS

Jas. E. Martine Among Those Who Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary of Leader.

PLAINFIELDER LAUDS BRYAN.

Grover Cleveland and James Smith, Jr., Send Telegrams of Regret —Some Big Politicians Are Present.

Congressman James A. Hamill was the speaker of the evening at the banquet tendered to Robert Davis, at Mercy Thursday at the Columbia Club in that city by the Hudson County Democratic Committee. Today Mr. Davis is sixty years old, and the banquet was in celebration of this event. Tickets were limited to the members of the committee and a few local and out-of-town Democrats. Covers were laid for 250 guests.

Mr. Davis, with Toastmaster Michael J. Fagen and the speakers, occupied seats on the stage. The speakers included State Committeeman Robert S. Hudspeth, Congressman Hamill, Assemblyman Joseph Tumulty, James E. Martine and Joseph M. Norman.

Congressman Hamill told of Mr. Davis' career in politics and his success as Democratic leader of Hudson county. Mr. Davis responded in appropriate address.

Mayor Whitpen, who was scheduled for a speech, occupied a seat in the stage close to Mr. Davis. At the conclusion of his remarks Mayor Whitpen arose and in behalf of the guests presented him with a handsome basket of flowers that had been among the the floral offerings of the guest of honor. The incident elicited applause.

Assemblyman Tumulty told of some interesting events in Mr. Davis' career, and touched briefly on the present political situation.

Mr. Martine discussed politics, State and national, and incidentally put in a good word for his friend, Colonel William J. Bryan. He also lauded Davis.

State Committee Chairman Hudspeth, who had attended the Krueger dinner at Newark, was warmly greeted when he arose to speak. He told of his friendship for Mr. Davis, who, he had known nearly all his life, and described him as an ideal political leader. Mr. Hudspeth said the Democratic party was in splendid condition, and that the utmost harmony prevailed in the ranks.

William J. Bryan, Grover Cleveland and former Senator James Smith, Jr., who were among the invited guests, sent letters or telegrams regretting inability to be present. Among the out-of-town guests were Senators Fuller and Gebhardt, John Dullard, General Dennis Collins and Sheriff Foley, of New York. In the course of his remarks Mr. Davis defended Hudson county Democracy and refuted the charge that Hudson was not loyal to Frank S. Katzenbach in the last campaign.

SCHOOL BOARDS MEET AT SOMERVILLE SATURDAY

A meeting of the Somerset County School Board Association will be held in the High school in Somerville, Saturday, March 14, at 11 a. m., the morning session County Superintendent M. Brewster Willis, of Middlesex, will make the address. Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman William W. Smalley are expected to be present at the afternoon session.

On account of the importance of various school bills now in the Legislature all members are urged to attend to discuss these matters with the legislators. Prosecutor John C. Reger, of Somerville, is president of the association, and J. Bradford Opie, of Neshanic Station, secretary.

Shriners to Give Vaudeville.

The Plainfield members of Salaam Temple, Ancient Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, are planning to give an amateur vaudeville entertainment at the New Plainfield theatre in the near future. The performance was given by the Shriners recently at a "ladies' night" affair and was so successful that efforts will be made to repeat it in this city.

AIM TO ROB THE SCHOOLS

Superintendent Krebs Voices Opinion of Educators in Denouncing the Scheme.

IS UP TO THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Now In Law-mill, If Passed, Will Work Serious Hardship—Mr. Ackerman's Stand.

Plans afoot In the Legislature to rob the public school system of its means of support meet with the severest condemnation on the part of educators throughout the State. The sentiments are voiced by Dr. H. C. Krebs, supervising principal of the North Plainfield public schools and superintendent of schools for Somerset county.

"When the last Legislature passed the Perkins act taxing the railroads to the extent of several millions of dollars," said Dr. Krebs, "it was openly stated and constantly kept before the people that the moneys thus received by the State were to be devoted to the public schools of the State of New Jersey.

"Among a people so devoted to the welfare of their children as are the people of this State this proposed action met with great popular approval. The moral backing that the last Legislature received was of material influence in securing the payment of these moneys from the railroads. Plans were at once laid by the educational authorities of the State to make great improvements in school work by securing better teachers and better equipment, and by raising the salaries of teachers so that they might be based on a living wage.

"Now, however, a bill has been introduced into the Legislature provided for the reduction of the State school tax from 2 ¾ to 1 mill, which would mean that the schools of New Jersey will receive about one million dollars less State school money than before. Another bill has been introduced to lower the State school tax to 2 mills but to deduct therefrom the entire railroad tax. This would still further reduce the State school moneys.

"It seems inconceivable that after the Legislature taxed the railroads for the avowed purpose of benefitting the public schools, and after plans have been made all over the State to devote the moneys to the best welfare of the children, that the present Legislature should take this money away from the schools, leaving them with a million dollars less than they had before the railroad tax was levied; and yet this is exactly what the effect will be if the bills now before the Legislature become laws.

"All the boards of education in the State have planned to reduce the local tax. The people of the State have expected reduction. Directors say they find that through new laws the State school tax will be so reduced that the local tax must be raised much higher than ever before, there will be tremendous objection. Indeed it is likely that some districts that have been raising say, ten thousand dollars locally, and have been expecting this year to raise only about six thousand dollars, will absolutely refuse to vote fourteen thousand dollars and the consequence will be that the schools will suffer fearfully.

"It would seem to be the duty of all persons interested in the public schools to appeal to their representatives in the Legislature to keep the railroad tax intact for the benefit of the children of the State and that there should be no reduction in the State tax whatever. Surely it is at least reasonable that a period of several years should elapse before any steps are taken to change the Perkins law from its original purpose."

Park Avenue Baptist Annual.

The annual business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held on Wednesday night, March 25, for the purpose of electing three deacons, each for the term of two years to succeed Theodore I. Runyon, David M. Runyon and a vacancy, and for the election of a church clerk for the term of one year to succeed Harry C. Runyon and for the election of a treasurer of benevolent funds for the term of one year, to succeed E. Frank Vall, all of whose terms of office will expire at that time. Reports for the past year will also be presented.

DR. LONG'S "NATURE FAKES" NOT IN SAME CLASS WITH THIS!

A hen's egg three and a half inches long by two and a half inches wide, within which was found a perfectly formed yolk and white surrounding another egg of ordinary dimensions enclosed in a regulation egg-shell, is not "nature fake," according to William L. Smalley, Jr., who on Friday morning, he says, in the nest of a Plymouth Rock hen on his farm on Greenbrook road, and now it was a soft-shelled egg, laid by the same fowl. The find was made by Mr. Smalley's son, Ralph Smalley.

The big egg and the soft shell egg were laid within half an hour, giving the hen a laying record of three eggs in thirty minutes. Measurements of the big egg, which was encased in a shell of slightly more than ordinary thickness, showed its circumference to be nine inches from end to end and seven and a half inches around its greatest lateral part.

Mr. Smalley himself broke open the egg, which was formally inspected by a committee of neighbors, and found in it a second egg, of ordinary size, with the customary hard shell. Between the outer and inner shells of this double egg, were the completely developed parts, white and yolk. The albumenous, or white part of the outer egg was especially copious. Both outer and inner egg were found to be fresh.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 15, 1908.

REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Proverbs xi, 17-18.

Money may be generally defined as a governmentally stamped coin used as a medium of exchange. As a matter of convenience certificates are often issued instead of coin, which is held in reserve. Nothing looks more innocent than cold gold and silver, and yet what a history is associated with the money of the world, where its selfish accumulation becomes a ruling passion and in its name men will sacrifice honor and everything most dear to them in life. If all the money in the world's history could tell its story, what tragedies would be revealed, what horrors would be unfolded!

But money, while a power for evil, may be used as a power for good. The money is the same. The results depend upon the different ways in which it is used. The same money may build a cathedral or a saloon, a hospital or a house of prostitution, an education for an institution or a gambling den, where the souls of men are debauched and ruined. All depends upon the wise use or the unwise use. It may be a root of all evil" or an inspiration to all good, according to how we use it.

The wise use of money is therefore of the greatest importance. Nor does it depend upon the amount of money that is used. It is just as wrong to use $1 unwisely as $1,000,000, though of course with the latter the greater harm can be done. But the young man who spends his dollar in rum, in cigarettes and other sinful practices does it as unwisely as well as the man who squanders a million in riotous living. The miser who selfishly hordes up a few hundred or thousand dollars, the limit of his opportunities, is just as sinful in his use of his money as the man who has larger opportunities, besides his millions and delights to hear the rattling of the gold or to count his stocks and bonds. Let us not limit money sins to the rich. Thoughtless money sins to the rich. Thoughtless money sins to the poor. Let us not limit money sins to the rich. Thoughtless money sins to the poor. Let us not limit money sins to the rich. Thoughtless money sins to the poor. Let us not limit

A COLLEGE HEAD'S RAVINGS.

It is a serious mistake for any dignified church organization to take notice of a self-advertising rattle-brained individual no matter what station in life he may occupy and this applies no more to a stump speaker who has an axe to grind than to a college president who may feel himself called upon to earn the donations which a John D. Rockefeller or an H. H. Rogers may bestow upon his institution. It is unfortunate, therefore, that charges have been brought before a church conference against Rev. Dr. James R. Day, whose claim to fame is that he is chancellor of Syracuse University. The complaint grows out of the doctor's wild flights of oratory against the President of the United States, but as these insults have been merely viewed as ludicrous ravings, no good can come from bringing such a man to account.

Of the many, many flagrant and inexcusable outrages of this man, here is an example:

"Of the President's message, it I am entirely honest and frank, I am compelled to say that much of it reads like the ravings of a disordered mind, and that other portions, in which appeal is made to class prejudice and excitement, is large with the suggestion of the adroit and cunning, the shrewd but reckless demagogue."

This probably is a still worse specimen of his harangues:

"There are two general forms of anarchism. The late practices of our President are of the more dangerous of these forms."

Surely when the head of an university places himself on the same level as an Emma Goldman, no dignified body of churchmen should waste time with him.

SHAME ON HIM!

John L. Scudder, who occupies a sacred calling and has had one of those empty titles "Doctor" prefixed to his name, should hold his head in shame after addressing the chief magistrate of New Jersey in such language as this:

"If you vote with the rummies you are dead to us forever. You and others like you read the 'Sun' handwriting on the wall. Refuse us our right of home rule on the liquor question and we shall be sour and down on you forever.

"I have no ill feeling to you personally, but I hate the traffic. It is only right that you should know how our multitudes of church people feel in advance. Sincerely yours,

"JOHN L. SCUDDER.

"P. S.—Remember, I can reach hosts of young voters for you in our People's Palace."

Has not the Jersey City dominie furnished an answer to that favorite pulpit topic of notoriety-loving men of the cloth: "Why don't men go to church?"

THE PROPOSED POSTOFFICE.

United States Senator John Kean will certainly be doing his constituents here an excellent service if he succeeds in obtaining the passage of the postoffice building bill which he presented in Congress on Tuesday. Such a structure is sorely needed in Plainfield and in fact much more so than in hundreds of other cities of equal population. While it is conceded that it would not be possible to both purchase the land and erect the building for the appropriation requested, $100,000, the work of the senior Senator will be warmly appreciated if he gets that sum, for it is believed that it will not be so difficult to secure an additional appropriation once the original amount is granted. The Board of Trade as well as the Mayor and the Common Council should use their good offices by supporting Mr. Kean's project.

Official statistics show that during last year, Charlotte, N. C., physicians, wrote 39,645 prescriptions for whiskey. As North Carolina is a "strictly temperance" State, the friends of local option in New Jersey will kindly explain this fact away.

cilman will be presented this month and acted upon at the next meeting of the Common Council. As soon as his successor is chosen he will assume his new duties as a member of the Board of Education.

AMUSEMENTS.

Without doubt for variety and general excellence, the program that will be presented at Proctor's Newark theatre during the week beginning March 9, has seldom if ever been equaled. One of the features will be B. A. Rolfe's mammoth production by "The Colonial Septette," presenting musical oddity, depicting life in Virginia during the Revolutionary period. The action of the offering takes place at a country gentleman's estate, on Hallowe'en night. Edward Davis and company in an intense dramatic sketch in two scenes entitled "The Unmasking." Mr. Davis last appeared here in "All Rivers Meet at Sea." Willy Pantzer troupe of acrobats, in fact the feats accomplished by this peerless troupe, beggars discription. Smith and Campbell in a conversational turn that is a positive panacea for the blues. Wheeler Earl, Vera Curtis and company will be seen in a clever slang playlette from the pen of Porter Emerson Browne, called "Gammy Cass." Mr. and Mrs. Leon Varvara, "The Violyns," will appear in a potpourri of songs, dances and sayings. The Olympia quartette, memories of the golden minstrel days, in comedy and music. J. Warren Keane will offer something new in the way of feats and magic. New motion pictures.

The dramatic sensation of the current season is unquestionably the great Belasco new Pacific play of American life, which Wagenhals and Kemper present at the Astor theatre. No attraction in the past five years has received such universally commendable notices. Acton Davies, writing in the Evening Sun, declared it to be one of the big dramatic hits of the age and he lays particular stress upon the exceedingly capable organization which Wagenhals and Kemper have secured for this play. Louis De Foe, in the World, used the superlative line: "No one who sees 'Paid in Full' can escape its grip." Waler Eaton, writing in the Sun, confesses that American theatregoers as well as managers have a playwright of unquestioned power to reckon with in the personality of Mr. Walters and prophesy for his play one of the most lasting successes of a decade.

Charlotte Walker's exquisite work as Agatha Warren, and Frank Keenan's vigorous and many-sided interpretations of Gen. Buck Warren, in "The Warrens of Virginia," at the Belasco theatre, are jointly exercising a potent power upon the public which delights in a powerful domestic play against a background of fierce conflict, in a setting such as only Belasco can give it. This play of the Old Dominion has been one of the distinct successes of the season, and better now than ever 100 performances is still filling the Belasco theatre to the doors at every performance. The special Thursday matinees are proving very popular with the out-of-town patrons of the Forty-second street playhouse.

NEARLY A HERO SCORES AT THE CASINO THEATRE.

New York, March 7.—The oldtime atmosphere of the Casino is back again, and this time to stay, will Sam Bernard in "Nearly a Hero." Without a single exception, the New York critics acknowledged the wonderful power of Bernard's comedy interpretation of an exceptionally clever series of humorous comulications, and the result is that the historic playhouse is being crowded nightly, while both Thursday and Saturday matinees are playing to capacity Bernard's greatest success up to this time was "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" with which, under Frohman management, he became a household arably identified. But at least the critic declared that "Nearly A Hero" is greater than "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," and predicted a climax of triumph for this keenly acute liberator of comedy roles. Aside from the comedy lines and situations, and the numerous song hits, the piece is remakable for its artistic stage pictures and the gorgeous costuming. Nothing like the variety of costly gowns has been seen on Broadway in many a day. Among the principal members of the company supporting Mr. Bernard, are Misses Ethel Levey, Ada Lewis, Neva Aymar, Elizabeth Brice, Lucy Gurney and Messrs. Edgar Norton, Robert Paton Gibbs, Sam Edwards and Burrell Barbaretti.

Red and Yellow Sunsets.

The boys and girls have often heard perhaps that a red sunset is indicative of fine weather the next day, and that a yellow sunset is indicative of rain, but do they know the reason? When the vapor of the air is on the point of condensation, but is not actually condensed, the beams of light meet with little resistance, and the red rays are bent down to the eye, because they require the least refraction. On the contrary, when the vapor of the air is actually condensed into clouds there is more resistance to the beams of light, and therefore the yellow rays are bent down to the eye, because they are more refracted than are the red rays.—Chicago News.

Both of Them.

"Jimmie," said the merchant solemnly, at the eleventh hour, "we have forgotten to get a fresh supply of stamps."

And the office boy, in his excitement, responded with "Goodness, sir, so we have! If we ain't a couple of blunder-headed idiots!"—Tit-Bits.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER "MAKES GOOD" AS A MINER

Bringing with him an atmosphere of the towering Rockies and a veritable creation of the statement that Plainfield men are "always good" no matter where put, James Slorah, a former West Ender, has returned to the city after two years of activity on the Pacific coast. He was summoned from his manifold duties as the master mechanic of the Blue Ledge copper mine, on the border line between California and Oregon, because of the serious illness of his father, Robert Slorah, of McDowell street. The response was as rapid as horses, stage coaches and railroads would permit, but it required eight days for him to reach New York. Fortunately, the illness of the father assumed a favorable turn before he arrived in Plainfield and it was a happy household that greeted him instead of one of sorrow.

Mr. Slorah was brought up in the West End and was one of the promising young men who aided in the growth of Hope chapel. He learned the machinist trade at the Reed shop and branching out after his time had been completed, engaged in a number of enterprises, finally becoming travelling erector for a Jersey City engine manufacturing company. Through this position, he was sent to Oregon to instal the machinery of the Blue Ledge mine in the Siskiu mountain range, an enterprise backed by Eastern capital. At the completion of his task he was about to return to Jersey when it was made known to him that the Blue Ledge in the mountains who could properly care for the engines and he was prevailed upon to remain, a large salary being the inducement.

Though absolutely unfamiliar with mining, the young Plainfielder became instantly interested in the manner of extracting wealth from the bowels of the wonderful Rockies and was soon out of the "greenhorn" stage. He was advanced from one position to another until he finally became master mechanic and is now one of the most important individuals of the 100 men making up the "camp," as the mining settlement is called.

The Blue Ledge shaft is located high up in the mountains fifty miles from the Pacific coast. From some of the peaks reached after a hard climb it is possible on clear days to see the broad bosom of the Pacific. The nearest settlement of any size is Siskiuville, some ten miles to the west, while the nearest city is Medford, Oregon, forty miles distant. The latter place came into existence eighteen years ago but now has a population of 12,000 and is growing rapidly. In coming to Plainfield, Mr. Slorah was compelled to travel by horseback and stage coach the entire distance between the Blue Ledge mine and Medford, a journey requiring about thirty hours. At Medford a train can be taken to San Francisco direct.

The former Plainfielder speaks glowingly of the country in which he has cast his lot and asserts that it is just beginning to develop. He declares there are unequalled opportunities for young men within its confines, as not only abounds in mineral wealth, but offers exceptional advantages for farming and lumbering. Apples frequently grow to nineteen inches in circumference and the Siaku Valley pears are famed all along the coast. The ordinary miner receives $2.50 to $3.00 a day and pays from seventy-five cents to a dollar for board. Eight hour shifts prevail everywhere and the actual labor is very light because of modern machinery used.

Lumbering is also an important industry and scores of men from all parts of the country are hewing out substantial fortunes by marketing the white and red furs, sugar pines and hemlocks that cover the mountain slopes.

The climate is one of the features of the country and is greatly appreciated by Jerseyites. It never gets colder than twenty degrees and snow fell this winter for the first time in five years.

While the Blue Ledge camp has 100 men at present, it frequently numbers 200. Mr. Slorah devised a plan to heat every house in it by steam from the power plant and the same method supplies hot water to the families by a system of piping. When he first took hold of the position, his residence in the East caused him to feel the lack of telephones and he soon had the entire camp connected up on a circuit and a line stretched to Medford to facilitate the ordering of supplies. The merchants of Medford became interested in it and as a result they are now soliciting the camp's trade in view to installing an exchange in the city.

Mr. Slorah will remain in Plainfield for the next two weeks and will then start West in order to be at the Blue Ledge by April 1.

Y. M. C. A. Five Won.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball five won from the Twenty-sixth Ward Y. M. C. A. team at New York, Saturday night, by a score of 25-22. The game was marked throughout by close guarding and brilliant shooting. At the end of the first half, the local five were in the lead 14-10, and maintained a lead of a few points throughout the game. When the teams met earlier in the season, in this city, the Plainfield five won by a big margin.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

THE ACKERMAN BILL'S FATE.

Some remarks by Governor Fort reported in Friday's Tribune are to be earnestly commended to the consideration of political leaders in New Jersey, for application to a variety of matters. He was speaking of the selection of delegates to the Republican National Convention, and he said in effect that he believed that the time was past in that State when any little company or clique of men could get together and say who should not be delegates. In that he was doubtless right. The State convention, and no less an authority, will select the delegates-at-large. And it may be confidently added that it will not select them in the representative of the best Republican sentiment of the State.

The Governor's words have also, as we have suggested, a wider application—for example, to some pending measures before the Legislature. The trust laws, for instance, when any coterie of self-appointed bosses could get together and say what bills should and what should not be enacted. In particular, it is to be hoped for the sake of the State and of the people that such will be the unfavorable disposition can be made of the Civil Service bill which has already passed the Senate and is now before the Assembly. That the latter house should take sufficient time to consider the measure carefully goes without saying. If any suggest some desirable amendments, though the bill, as Senator Ackerman drafted it, seems to be about all that could be desired. But it should be understood plainly that the emasculation or killing of the bill would be simply deplorable for the State, but also politically disastrous to those who did the deed.

The bosses may, as reported, issue an edict that the bill must be killed. But bosses' edicts are not exactly what they were. The people of the State of New Jersey have not forgotten that the Republican party in its platform last year specifically and emphatically pledged itself to the enactment of such a measure and that Governor Fort both before and after his election and in his inaugural address spoke strongly in favor of it. That the Governor still favors it is of course not to be questioned. It remains for the House of Assembly to make good the pledge of the party platform on which members were elected. Indeed, both party platforms declared for a Civil Service law, so that Democrats as well as Republicans are pledged to the enactment of such a measure. We cannot believe that the Democratic Assemblyman will fail. But since there has been talk about its defeat having been ordered by the bosses, it is well to recall the declarations of last year's campaign, and to remember, too, how the voters of New Jersey, when not afraid, deal with political villians who have broken their pledges and have defeated and defied the popular will.—New York Tribune.

CRITICS ARE UNANIMOUS FOR THE WALTZ DREAM.

New York, March 7.—An extraordinary success has been recorded at the Broadway theatre. It is the first production in this country of a Viennese operatta called "A Waltz Dream." The newspaper critics, without a dissenting voice, extol the work in all of its details, and so their judgment had been tumultously voiced by the vast and cheering audience long before the curtain fell upon the final act, it is a safe forecast that the Broadway will need no change of attraction for the remainder of the season. And it was an extremely difficult result to achieve at this particular time. For several obvious reason, "A Waltz Dream" is the most masterly escape comparison with the reigning light opera success of the season, "The Merry Widow." The most talked of hit in the latter is the waltz song. When "The Merry Widow" is mentioned the mind instantly adverts to the waltz which is being hummed and whistled all over New York, and the very title of the new work suggests a challenge. Emphasizing this condition is the circumstance that both operas are Viennese. But "The Waltz Dream," however, has passed the ordeal with flying colors and the interesting race for supremacy has been won by it.

HOLY CROSS SECONDS WON FROM P. H. S. SCRUBS.

The second team of the Holy Cross Club defeated a picked team from the Plainfield High School at the Holy Cross parish house gymnasium Saturday afternoon by a score of 32-22. The game was well played and closely contested, though the church five kept a small lead most of the time. The lineups and summaries:

Holy Cross—Nash, centre; Coyle and Moran, forwards; Nash, centre; Sine and R. Vail, guards. P. H. S. Scrubs—Clark and Runyon, forwards; I. Vail, centre; Bristol and Berne, guards. Field goals: Coyle, 5; I. Vail, 5; Moran, 4; R. Vail, 4; Runyon, 4; Clark, Sclater, 2; Nash. Twenty minute halves.

Rodman—Marvin.

The marriage of Carr Selden Rodman, of New York, and Miss Nannie Von Nostrand Marvin will be solemnized at the home of the bride, 133 East Thirty-ninth street, New York, on March 16. Mr. Rodman is a nephew of Rev. R. M. Rodman of East Seventh street.

WOMEN RAISE $1,200 FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

Encouraging reports were presented, officers elected and an interesting address on foreign mission work given at the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Monday afternoon. Nearly one hundred members and friends of the society were present. The reports showed that the present membership is 225 and during the past year $1,200 had been raised chiefly to pay the salaries of teachers in the foreign mission stations in Brazil, Siam, India and China. A balance of $100 was voted to the general fund to be drawn upon as needed.

These officers were chosen for the year:

President, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller; first vice-president, Mrs. J. S. Zelie; second vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Hubbell; third vice-president, Mrs. John Gray Foster; secretary, Mrs. Orton G. Dale; treasurer, Mrs. William Hoyt; superintendent of collections, Miss Anna Sweney; secretary of literature, Mrs. Isaac Field; young people's secretary of literature, Miss Elsie Harmon.

After the business, Mrs. Charles Newbold Thorpe, who has just returned from a trip around the world where she visited the Presbyterian mission stations, gave a brief account of her journey. She is the president of the Philadelphia Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyrtian church, of which the Elizabeth Presbytery is a part. One of the most encouraging reports from the field. She said that many erroneous reports are often circulated about the foreign mission work, but from actual knowledge she declared that the Presbyterian church has cause to be proud of the fine work being accomplished in the efforts to lead the heathen to Christ. The address was full of interesting facts and the speaker was very enthusiastic in the presentation of them.

DANGER FOUND IN EAST ORANGE SCHOOLS.

As a result of the investigation into East Orange school conditions by an official of the Board of Education of that city, several recommendations for correction of existing evils will be made following the trip through the schools Saturday morning of Mayor William Cardwell; Vernon L. Davey, Superintendent of Schools and other city officials.

It has been pointed out that the main entrance of the city High School has a door opening inward. This entrance is principally for teachers and visitors, as there are four exits for the pupils, two at each end of the big building in Winans street. Mr. Davey declared that the State and city authorities had allowed the doors to remain in their present position after an investigation showing the entrance and the exit were not for the general use of pupils.

Approaches to the fire escapes in the rear of the structure also open inward and the escapes are only iron ladders. Mr. Davey declared that the fire escapes was badly considered, owing to the ample width and fireproof condition of the four main exits. The fire escapes are said to be almost useless for emergency, as only one pupil can pass at a time.

At the old Elmwood school there are wooden stairways and no fire escapes. It is expected that the officials will insist on improvements there. An assembly is on the third floor for the children of the first grade. The law requires fire escapes on all buildings more than two stories in height. The four exits are at widely separated points, and the officials say children could get to any of them easily, as it is improbable a fire would reach all the exits in the same time.

Berkshire Industrial Farm Work.

At a meeting of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church to be held in the church parlors on Monday night at 8 o'clock, the work of the Berkshire Industrial Farm is to be presented by two of the boys at that place. The farm is an institution established for the reclamation of wayward boys, and, in the opinion of those who have made a special study of the boy problem, is doing a remarkable work. The character of the work will be illustrated by stereopticon slides in color. The club extends an invitation to the men of other churches who may be interested to attend.

Corselet Skirt.

The skirts brought well above the waist line remind one a good deal of the corselet skirt that was done to death two or three years ago. It must be noted, however, that the new model will not show the seams of the old style corselet above the waist line and defining it, but the material falls perfectly straight without curve to below the line of the hips. This is a model that amateurs should hesitate to attempt and women not quite sure of their carriage should never by any chance adopt it.

Judge Newcorn Appointed Receiver.

Judge William Newcorn has been appointed receiver for Agpar Brothers, of Dunellen, against whom involuntary bankruptcy proceedings have been instituted. He has given a bond of $2,000. The bankruptcy petition is returnable March 9.

HEMORRHAGE CAUSES DEATH OF G. L. HOMAN

George L. Homan, son of former Councilman James P. Homan, died suddenly Sunday morning at his father's home on Putnam avenue. He was seized with a hemorrhage while in bed and passed away within an hour afterward. He had been ailing somewhat for the past year with a throat affection but had been attending to his usual duties until Saturday.

Mr. Homan was thirty years old and had lived in Plainfield practically all his life. He was associated with his father in the carriage manufacturing business on Somerset street and enjoyed a wide acquaintance in the city and borough. A wife, who was formerly Miss Maude McAfee, and a sister, Mrs. George Clark, survives him.

BISHOP O'CONNOR ON NEW MARRIAGE LAWS

To make clear to the Roman Catholics of the diocese of Newark the new requirements for legal marriage by members of that faith, Bishop John J. O'Connor, of the diocese, Monday sent to every pastor in his jurisdiction a formal letter detailing the new regulations which will be operative on and after Easter Sunday. The Bishop at the same time constituted every regularly appointed assistant priest in the several parishes a proper officiating priest for marriages within the several parishes, making it compulsory, however, for the assisting priests to obtain permission from the pastor or rector of a parish before officiating.

Bishop O'Connor announces that the Catholic church will not recognize any engagement of marriage which is not in writing, signed by the two parties and two witnesses as well. Oral announcements of engagements will not be considered. All marriages of Catholic to Catholic or Catholic to non-Catholic must be performed before a regularly constituted priest, the Bishop emphasized in his formal letter. Marriages performed by banker, alderman, magistrates, non-Catholic clergyman or civil authority, will be held invalid as well as unlawful. The wedding must be witnessed by two persons and priests are forbidden to marry, outside of their own parishes, even though the parties to the marriage are members of their parishes, without the formal consent of the priest in whose parish this wedding is performed. Any wedding performed without this permission having been obtained, according to the Bishop's orders, will be considered invalid.

It is also urged that parties to a married must plight their troth in the church for a honeymoon of at least a month's residence, prior to the ceremony. None of the former impediments to marriages is removed.

NEW BRUNSWICK GIRLS LOSE TO P.H.S. 32-2

Outclassed in every department of the game, the girls' basketball team of the New Brunswick High School could only score two points against the Plainfield High School girls in a one-sided basketball game at the High School gymnasium Saturday afternoon. The final score was 32-2. The visitors made their points from the foul line, Miss Carson and Miss Simms netting the ball in the second half, after both had been called by the Plainfielders.

The New Brunswick girls could not score in the first half, when the P. H. S. five rolled up twenty-seven points, the former getting seven baskets and a foul, and the latter nine baskets. A feature of the game was the excellent work of the local team's guards, Miss Crampton and Miss Andrews, keeping the ball well out of the vicinity of the visitors' basket during the entire game.

The New Brunswick girls made their two points in the second half, while Miss Fleming was making seven more baskets and a foul, and Miss Moodey scored a basket and a foul. The game was witnessed by a big delegation of high school pupils. The summaries:

P. H. S.—Miss Barbara Fleming and Miss Harriet Moodey, forwards; Miss Dorothy Merrill, centre; Miss Louise Andrews and Miss Esther Crampton, guards. N. B. H. S.—The Misses Carson and Simms, forwards; Miss Reynolds, centre; Miss Stout and Miss Hyer, guards. Field goals: Miss Fleming, 11; Miss Moodey, 2; goals from fouls, Miss Fleming, 2; Miss Moodey. Referee, Charles B. Morse. Fifteen minute halves.

FORT'S SUNDAY ADDRESS

Governor Declares Churches Should Vie with Saloons to Attract Young Men.

PRAISES CATHOLIC CHURCH.

He Urges Protestant Churches to Throw Open Their Doors Both Day and Night.

Governor Fort spoke at the twenty-seventh anniversary exercises of the Young Men's Christian Association in Newark Sunday afternoon, during which he urged that the Protestate churches throw open their doors every day and a reasonable part of the night to keep young men out of the saloons. He also held out the Catholic Church as the place where he had seen what he called Christianity in a true sense in the matter of how the worshippers mingled and prayed. The Executive urged the churches to follow in the footsteps of the Young Men's Christian Association bodies in affording attractions for the young and old, and sounded the warning that should the Church fail it would be because the Young Men's Christian Association had superseded it in reaching the hearts of the young men and drawing them closer to Christianity and salvation. The Governor was introduced by ex-Judge Elwood C. Harris, president of the association, who presided.

The Rev. Jonathan N. Meeker, presiding elder for the Newark district of the Methodist church, delivered the anniversary address and recalled the recent letter of the Rev. John L. Scudder, of Jersey City, threatening the Governor with political death if he failed to support local option. Dr. Meeker turned to the Governor and said:

"The ministry in general have no threats for you. They offer you sympathy, love and prayer. We will uphold you in everything you do that is right."

The Executive referred to the fourteen hundred saloons in Newark, and said that they were places to which the young men were invited, where the doors were thrown open wide and in many instances affording better accommodations than the homes. He declared that the time has come "all our churches except the Catholic Church keep their doors closed almost every day but Sunday, and I suggest that they should be thrown open every day and a reasonable part of the night, where young men could go and read and spend their time in better pursuit than in these fourteen hundred places to which I referred."

The Governor spoke of present civic righteousness as compared with former years, and said that it was gradually gaining strength."

"It is not always easy to do right," the Governor continued, "and the man who wants to do right may not be able to do so unless he has your support. Another thing, no man can do or accomplish much in life unless a man who will stand for what is right and achieve it without your help; Do not be too ready to criticise a man. I have criticised some men, and will continue to do so, but I have always given them a chance before doing so. The moral standard is much better in our State than it is at present, and there seems to be a general rising tide of religion and civic righteousness in this city."

Urging upon his hearers that they take an interest in their State the Governor appealed to them to stand for what is right in the good government. "Do not be fanatical and expect everything the first day of the Legislature," he said. "Don't be discouraged by defeat, but keep on at the work for what is right; be loyal at all times to your duty and persistent to the end and you will come out on top."

EAGLES ENTERTAIN THE VOGEL MINSTREL TROUPE.

Following the performance of Vogel's minstrels at the New Plainfield theatre, Saturday night, the members of the troupe were entertained by Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., for whose benefit the performance was given. The artists adjourned to the Eagles' club house on East Second street, where they were met by the members of the minstrel and house committees. Proprietor Vogel marshalled his men and they gave a lot of good music which the informal was greatly that pleased everyone. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The minstrel committee was composed of Horsce J. Adams, chairman; Sylvester Abieneste, Hugh Reilly, Michael J. Higgins and Edward J. McCarthy. The aerie will net a substantial sum as a result of the benefit.

Fire Visits Quick Lunch Room.

The Baltimore quick lunch room, located in James E. Martine's small structure on West Front street, caught fire from a gasolene stove shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night and started to burn up. The prompt arrival of the fire department in response to an alarm from box 12 saved it from destruction. The loss is placed at $100, nearly all of which is on the building. The business is conducted by Walter Hamilton, colored.

TEACHERS OPPOSE BILL

Somerset Pedagogues, by an Overwhelming Vote, Condemn Tenure of Office Measure.

DETRIMENTAL TO DISCIPLINE.

Also County Superintendent Krebs Explains Bill's Provisions Teachers Register Decided Protest.

Henry C. Krebs, superintendent of the North Plainfield schools, and county superintendent of Somerset, spoke on "The Tenure of Office for Teachers" at the meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association, held at Somerville, Saturday. The "tenure of office bill," introduced by Assemblyman Leavitt, provides that after successive appointments for three years, teachers hold their positions continuously, unless charges be brought against them in writing. These charges may be preferred by boards of school authorities, and any teacher against whom such charges are brought may retain counsel for defense.

The bill was framed some time ago, and was favored in resolutions passed at the State Teachers' Association in the recent convention. The matter was brought up the last day of the convention, and the measure was endorsed by the 125 teachers present. There are about 10,000 teachers in the State, and few of them are in favor of the bill. It is necessary for many of the teachers to leave the convention before the last day, and but a small percentage of them were present at the time the bill was endorsed.

Superintendent Krebs spoke at length on the unfairness of the bill before the Somerset county teachers. After his remarks, in which he claimed that the few teachers who had framed the bill's endorsement did not represent the sentiments of the State teachers by their action, he asked for a secret ballot of the seventy-five county teachers present. There was further discussion before the voting, and when the "straw ballot" was taken, it was found that only ten teachers present were in favor of the bill, sixty-five voting against it.

The bill passed the Senate last week and will be brought before the Assembly within a few days. The Somerset county teachers will petition Senator Stanley C. Smalley to use his influence to kill the bill when it comes up before the Assembly.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY GIVES MEASURING SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society a measuring social was given at the chapel Saturday night. Admission was charged according to the height of the person entering at the rate of two cents for each foot and a cent for each additional inch. The measuring made lots of fun.

An informal program was the social's feature and the principal contributors were Miss Marie Newman and Mrs. R. R. Howard, who rendered several vocal and instrumental selections. Miss Newman also recited and a phonograph was operated by Mr. Robert Hangiller.

The money secured in conclusion of the proceeds from the affair will be used for the rebinding of the chapel hymnals.

The committee in charge was made up of Mrs. L. R. Howard, chairman; Mrs. P. L. Weber, Mrs. Charles Bryant, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Fred J. Wharton, Mrs. Oscar Peterson, Mrs. Thomas Henry, Mrs. William Vogel, Mrs. James Herron, Mrs. Fannie Rushton and Mrs. Ter-

ACCUSED THE SHERIFF OF FATTENING FEES.

Allegations Is Made at Inquiry Into Jail Diet That Prisoners Are Underfed Unjustly.

Surprising revelations are being made as a consequence of the investigation of the Mercer County Freeholders into the recent riot and attempt at delivery in the Trenton jail. Sheriff Wilbur, who is serving his first year in office and who is to be the last Sheriff to operate under the fee system, is accused of inducing dietitians to fill the jail so his fees will be increased. He is allowed forty-five cents a day for each prisoner he feeds, and it is said it costs him seventy cents for each prisoner.

Charges are made that the Sheriff's deputies arrest many men simply seeking work to fill the jail.

Changes in Church Choir.

F. C. Seichart, Jr., who has been for a number of years a member of the quartet of the First Presbyterian church during the past two years, has resigned to take the position of conductor of the choir at the Hillside Presbyterian church, in Orange. Elmer D. Cutting, the tenor of the choir, has also resigned. Both Mr. Seichart and Mr. Cutting have many friends at the church who regret their retirement, recognizing their long and faithful services. J. H. Herder, of Somerville, will take Mr. Cutting's place next Sunday on trial, but arrangements for a baritone have not been

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WINFIELD S. DECKER

The funeral service of Winfield Scott Decker was held at the late home, 944 West Fourth street, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and neighbors, including many from the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, where the family has been active in all departments of work. Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the church, officiated. He read appropriate Scripture selections, after which he made a few remarks from the text, "Where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

The speaker referred to the Christian spirit exemplified by Mr. Decker through his long illness of intense suffering, of his patience in waiting for the end and his willingness to go to that better land. During the service a quintet comprising Mrs. Richard Gilbert, Miss James; William Berger, Harry Lude and John W. Daub sang a hymn, "Penitence," and Mrs. Gilbert sang "That Will Be Glory," to the piano. Miss Charlotte Aldrich was at the piano.

There was a large and beautiful display of floral tributes, including pillows, wreaths and many bunches of roses which were banked about the casket. This morning the body was taken to Mariners Harbor, where a service was held this afternoon in the Methodist church of which Mr. Decker was a life-long member and an active worker. The burial was at Springville, Staten Island.

TRINITY WORKERS RAISE $230 FOR MISSION WORK

Miss Mabel Wilson, president of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, has arranged the committees for the year, and the band has announced its annual disbursements for foreign and home missions. BAPTISM NOT ESSENTIAL SAYS BAPTIST MINISTER.

In discussing the question "Is It Necessary to Be Baptized to Be a Christian?" at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night, Rev. A. E. Finn made a lengthy presentation of the theme. In the first place the pastor declared in the negative in answering the question, holding that it is the duty of one to become a Christian, and having done so, it is then his duty to be baptized in obedience to God's command.

Mr. Finn dwelt especially on the point that baptism is an act of obedience to God and for a child of God not to be baptized after having experienced that change, he is doing something directly contrary to the divine injunction. He made a strong plea to the unconverted to accept Christ and then be baptized. He referred to the ordinance of baptism, its immersion according to the principles of the Baptist faith, as symbolical, the act of being buried with Christ in baptism, and he felt sure that when one became a Christian he would want to follow Christ and obey his commandments.

"Bob's" Dog Gets First Prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons are at Buffalo, where their $5,000 French poodle took first prize of $500 at the dog show being held there. One of the Buffalo newspapers published a fine picture of "Bob" and the poodle, in connection with his visit to that city.

DR. TOMLINSON'S LECTURE

MANY BATTLES IN THIS STATE.

Over One-quarter of the Engagements Took Place Here and Jersey Furnished Troops In Number.

"New Jersey in the Revolution" was the subject of a lecture of unusual interest given before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, Monday, by Rev. Dr. Everett Tomlinson, of Elizabeth. The divine has made a special study of the great part taken by New Jersey troops in the Revolutionary War and his writings for young people have attracted widespread attention.

He disputed the accuracy of statements published in general history giving the New England States much credit in the Revolution, contrasting their achievements with those of what he termed modest New Jersey. He declared that one-quarter of the war was fought in New Jersey and but very little of it in the New England States. The only trouble seemed to be that New Jersey had not been given due credit.

"Why, New Jersey gave more lives in the Revolution than all the New England States put together," said Dr. Tomlinson, "and the heroism of her troops is well known. There were countless deeds of valor on the part of men and women which have never been recorded in history. This I know from a personal investigation."

The speaker recalled the fact that during a large part of the war Gen. Washington maintained his headquarters in New Jersey, which he considered a most advantageous point to direct the fighting of the troops. He gave a vivid picture of Washington crossing the Delaware, an incident that is known to every student of history, and of the great suffering and bravery of the troops on their nine mile march through the State, when the weather was bitter cold and the snow was deep. In the conclusion of Dr. Tomlinson's lecture the audience arose and sang "America." The lecture room was appropriately decorated with American flags for the occasion and after the talk the members of the club enjoyed a social half-hour.

KIRMESS IS PLANNED AS HOSPITAL BENEFIT

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital finding itself in need of a considerable sum of money in order to close the fiscal year without a debt, has decided to hold a kirmess during the week beginning May 11, at the New Plainfield theatre. The affair will be under the personal direction of Miss E. S. Florance of Elizabeth, and it is her plan to use local talent.

The kirmess will be similar to one held some years ago in the old skating rink and will include a number of fancy dances with spectacular effects. Miss Florance has taken charge of several affairs of this kind and has had much success. It is expected that each society will lend its efforts toward making the coming event a success and many prominent men and women will be found taking part in the dances. A committee from the Board of Governors will have general supervision of the kirmess.

The committee appointed Monday night to plan the details for the kirmess is as flolows: Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Henry L. Hall, William C. Kinney, S. D. Lounsbery and Edward H. Taft. Miss Florance has been requested to meet the committee Thursday night at the home of Mayor Fisk, when there will be a general discussion of plans, after which a more extended announcement will be made.

Miss Rosabelle Phillips a Bride.

Miss Rosabelle Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, of West Fourth street, and David S. Jackson, of Richmond, Va., were quietly married Saturday night, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride. Rev. M. A. Alexander, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Phillips, and Carter Wicks was best man. The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine over white satin and carried white carnations and the gown of the bridesmaid was white silk. The bride was given in marriage by her father. A reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside in this city.

Somerville Election.

The annual meeting of the taxpayers of Somerville for the election of three members of the Board of Education will be held next Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock in the assembly room of the public school building. The terms of Jacob Nevius, Arthur P. Sutphen and Dr. A. L. Stillwell have expired. By reason of the uncertainty of the railroad tax the State Superintendent has advised the districts to defer the vote on the appropriations until a subsequent meeting.

FRIDAY.

It's heaps of fun to be a boy,
When Friday comes along;
That day a boy don't mind a bit,
No matter what goes wrong.

Sometimes on Friday we are good,
A reg'lar model class;
The teacher smiles at 3 and says,
"The first line rise and pass."

We get our hats, our books we strap;
And whistling a tune,
We hurry out. There's nothing like
A Friday afternoon.

You say it's odd that Friday should
A part so noted play?
Just ask a boy, he'll tell you why:
The next is Saturday.

When to Breed Ewes.

Ewes should never be bred under one year of age, and in buying a flock to begin with this is as good an age as any to get them. One may have trouble, however, in getting ewes of this age, as most men like to keep their young ewes and sell off their old ones. As with other classes of live stock, older sires and dams usually give stronger and better specimens of spring than do those bred for the first time, but the difference is not great. In fact, females thoroughly matured bred to good sires, give just as good results as their older mates. And this is as true with sheep as with other animals. Ewes from yearlings up to four years give the best results. When they get much over that it is a good plan to sell them and let the other fellow take the risk of having old, toothless ewes on his hands.—Farm Progress.

Feed for Young Pigs.

The younger an animal the more mineral matter it requires in its food, says Farm Progress. When very young pigs are growing they are producing bone very rapidly in proportion to size and consequently require more phosphate in their food, especially of lime in a soluble condition. Milk contains all the necessary substances for pigs, but after awhile they become of such size as to be unable to consume enough milk to supply them, as they must drink about eight times as much water in the milk as there are solids. To supply this deficiency cornmeal is added, but cornmeal is deficient in mineral matter. Bran, ground oats, chipstuff and finely ground clover hay (scalded) in addition to the milk and cornmeal will prove advantageous.

Seizing the Opportunity.

A little girl and her aunt went for a walk the other day, and as they walked, the aunt caught her skirt on the sharp edge of her shoe heel, and tore off several inches of lace.

"Will you tear it off for me, dear?" she asked. "I cannot mend it now."

The accommodating little girl dropped down and for several minutes there was a sound of tearing—really much more tearing than was necessary to remove a piece of lace several inches wide.

"Haven't you finished yet?" finally asked the aunt.

"Yes," said the little girl, rising wearily. "I was taking all this off. I wanted enough for my doll's skirt while I was about it, and the little bit you tore wasn't enough."—Illustrated Bits.

Reseeding Meadows.

Permanent meadows and pastures often are benefited by reseeding. Many worn pastures produce weeds because there is no grass plant to occupy the place. If there are any thin bare spots, it pays to sow a mixture of clover, timothy, redtop, etc. on the land in the early spring. A sharp harrow is used to cover. It is easier on the ground before and after the seeding does a lot of good. A light dressing of manure—a few loads per acre put on with a spreader—gives greater returns than when plowed down for corn. The usual practice of a heavy sod is a sure foundation of profit in farming, and we pay too little attention to securing it.—Alva Agee in National Stockman.

Card Party Etiquette.

From the moment of beginning the game each player should remember that it devolves upon her to pay strict attention to play her best, and under no circumstances to criticise. She is not likely to do the latter when not interested in the game, but when indifferent, the fact is all too apt to be patent in the carelessness of her own play. This is not only inconsiderate of her partner, but rude to both her and the hostess. Each guest knew before accepting that she had been invited for cards, and did she not care to play a refusal should have been sent. Once present, it is her duty, and the part of politeness, to feign attention and interest, even though she feel none.

A Tucked Sleeve.

One gets rather weary of the everlasting sleeve formed of big, careless tucks caught up one over the other from elbow to shoulder; but a newer idea is seen in the tucked sleeve that is treated perpendicularly, not horizontally!—and the tucks are just as big and careless and loose, and taper off right up into the neckband, the rest of the blouse—the bodice part of it—overhanging a corselet skirt or one of the prevailing summerbund belts.

Could's Hit Him.

Mother—"Why didn't you come tell me when that bad boy upset you in a snowbank, instead of throwing bricks at him?"

Archie—"Heh! What good would it do to tell you? You couldn't hit the broadside of a barn."

LITERARY

The March number of the Woman's Home Companion again captures public notice with its charming cover picture of a Japanese girl—one of the daintiest magazine covers that has appeared in years. This issue is the Spring Fashion Number, and for it Grace Margaret Gould, the fashion editor, has prepared many delightful pages, illustrating in detail the advance spring styles.

American mothers fail,—not all of them, but enough to cause alarm. This is the proposition which Mrs. Anna A. Rogers sets out to discuss in the March Atlantic. As in her trenchant divorce article, "The American Marriage Fail," published in the same magazine last September, Mrs. Rogers deals with her topic with ungloved hands. American children are experiments tried more or less frantically by ignorant and unprepared teachers is one of her spirited assertions.

The American Magazine is taking up the Presidential candidates in a big way. The other day Secretary Taft told his campaign managers to keep their hands off New York State. Rather than anger his enemies, and split the State, he chose to take his chances and let Governor Hughes go to the convention with New York's 72 votes. Of course Taft is still in the running, and William Allen White will soon present a character sketch of him in The American Magazine.

The principal contribution to the March number of Everybody's is an appreciation of Governor Hughes by Erman J. Ridgway. It is a sketch of the personal side of the Governor, told in direct, conversational language. No less timely, and of wider national importance, is the article by Lieut. Hugh Johnson, U. S. A., entitled "The Lamb Rampant," pointing out in powerful terms the stagnation of the American Army system.

Editors are at liberty to make use of the paragraphs in this broadside as they see fit. In case it is desired to reprint more of an article than is here given, permission should be obtained from the editors of the Atlantic, 4 Park street, Boston. The contents of each number of the magazine are copyrighted. Kenyon Cox, who writes on Augustus Saint-Gaudens in this issue of the Atlantic, is a New York art critic and a portrait painter of some note.

Timeliness characterizes the March Century. Mr. Andrew Carnegie goes back to the beginning of his experiences with railway rates and rebates in 1856, when he was secretary and telegraph operator under Thomas A. Scott, general superintendent of the Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania Railway, and his presentation of the whole conditions and events comes with unquestioned authority. The story is interestingly, even dramatically, told. How to be happy and prosperous on a "One-Acre Ranch"—prosperous in the sense of comfortable living and a growing bank account—the actual experience of one city man in the Northwest is told by W. H. Kirkbride.

The March number of Scribner's Magazine opens with a paper of adventure by Arthur Ruhl, who crossed the Andes in Winter, from the Chilean side to the Argentine foot-hills, about 150 miles. The Andes here rise to an appalling height, and Mr. Ruhl was assured that to make the trip in winter was one of extreme hazard. He took the journey lightly, and before his gay spirit the hazards dwindled to ordinary hardships with amusing incidents by the way, all of which he tells in the most graphic manner.

The March McClure's leads off with an article on Governor Hughes by Burton J. Hendrick. "People know little about Hughes," has been the univalsal complaint, and Mr. Hendrick's article is a most timely turning on of the light. Ellen Terry's monthly contribution is a chapter called "Memories of Booth and Sarah Bernhardt," in which many other famous ones figure besides the great American actor and the ethereal "Miss Sarah."

It is safe to say that a more striking story than "Simeon Tellow's Romance," which Janette Lee contributes to the March number of The Smart Set, has not appeared in any recent magazine. It grips the reader's attention from the very first sentence, and in quite a remarkable manner retains the interest to the very end. Especially notable is this novel in that it contains no love-story whatever, but the dramatic interest is so intense and the swing of the story so rapid that the reader is carried along breathlessly to the denouement.

When Rudolph was kidnaped by a tramp things did not "come out" as the tramp had expected. The story appears in The Red Book Magazine. Porter Emerson Browne wrote it and it is called "The Kidnaping of Rudolph Nothing."

In its first-of-the-year announcements, Lippincott's Magazine promised some big things for the coming twelvemonth, and no time is being lost in making good those promises. The March number contains an unusually fine novelette called "Lady Thoroughbred," by Kenkichi Yamamoto, Will Levington Comfort, who seems destined to become one of the few really great latter-day American authors.

BRILLIANTS.

It is an awkward thing to play with soule,
And matter enough to save one's own. —Browning.

One by one thy duties wait thee;
Let thy whole strength go to each
Lest no future dreams elate thee,
Learn thou first what these can teach.
—Adelaide A. Proctor.

Loveliest of lovely things are they,
On earth, that soonest pass away.
The rose that lives its little hour
Is prized beyond the sculptured flower.
Even love, long tried and cherished long,
Becomes more tender and more strong,
At thought of that insatiate grave
From which its yearnings cannot save —Bryant.

Lord who art merciful as well as just,
Incline thine ear to me, as child of dust;
Not what I would, O Lord! I offer thee,
Alas! but what I can.
Father almighty, who hast made me thus
And bade me look to heaven, for thou are there,
Accept my sacrifice and humble prayer;
Four things which are not in thy treasury
I lay before thee, Lord, with this petition—
My nothingness, my wants,
My sins and my contrition.
—From the Persian.

SPORTING NOTES.

Alfred Vanderbilt is selecting trotters for use on the Venture coach in England. He bought fifteen recently.

Jack Thoney, for whose release the Boston Americans have paid $8,500, was the leading slugger of the Eastern league.

Terry McGovern now claims the distinction of giving the name of "Tommy Burns" to our illustrious champion heavyweight.

The 697 active tracks in membership of the American Trotting Association held 719 meetings last year, offering $2,150,915 in purse money.

Richard Croker has nominated the three-year-old filly Rhodora, his entry for the classic races for three-year-olds in England, for the Ascot Gold cup, one of the great races of England for mature horses.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Harry B. Smith is writing a new show to be called "The Air King."

"The Whirling Hour" is to be produced in London, and "Arizona" in Berlin.

In Louis Mann's new play he will have a serious characte rjust touched with humor.

William Faversham is shortly to bring out "The World and His Wife," by Charles F. Nirdlinger.

An English production called "The Girls of Gottbenburg," is to be sent to this country in the spring.

An association of dramatic play agents has been formed which will control the rights of 500 plays.

Tim Murphy is said to be meeting with success in Frederick Paulding's comedy, "Two Men and a Girl."

THE ROYAL BOX.

The kaiserin does not wear birds, but most of her hats are trimmed with ostrich plumes.

Her majesty Queen Alexandra has lately conceived a great liking for fencing and is now taking lessons from one of the best known fencing masters in London.

Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, who by the death of King Oscar has become crown prince, is an ardent sportsman and loses no opportunity to further the interests of the ancient Norse athletic games.

The Grand Duchess Margherita of Italy has just sold all her horses and carriages and transformed her stables for use by motor cars only. This is the first royal household in Europe to make so sweeping a change.

ANIMAL TALES.

Harlan W. Kingsbury, of Sterling, Mass., saw a fox carry off his tomcat one night recently. He says that the cat put up a good fight, but that the fox was too much for it.

Willis Clark of Marion, O., offers to bet $100 that his Maltese cat can catch a rabbit in a straightaway run before he crosses a hundred acre field after the fox has a three minute start.

Judge Proctor, of Montgomery county, Mich., offers to trade his dog, which, he says, will dig bait for fishing, for the hen of Lawyer I. B. Miller, of Youngstown, O., which is said to be fond of chewing tobacco.

TO OBLIGE A LADY

By ARNIGER BARCLAY

(Copyright.)

Eileen Grant, "the beauty of the north," as the society papers called her, stood on the broad slope of the Hydro, while Lord St. Garth, a little way off in his auto, sat watching her as she read and reread the telegram she was holding.

He was not yet acquainted with the lady, but he looked forward to a promise made him by her friend, Mrs. Charteris, to present him that evening. In the meantime all he could do was to admire her and wonder on the frown on her distractingly pretty face.

"I won't!" exclaimed Eileen under her breath, crumpling up the telegram. "Yes, I will!" she amended with sudden inspiration as her eyes fell on the waiting car. "In a place like this he'll imagine I'm a friend of the people it belongs to. It's the only way of getting there and back by dinner time. Yes, I'll chance it!" she whispered desperately.

She gave a cautious glance over her shoulder. Mrs. Charteris was out of sight. Throwing discretion to the winds she walked quickly up to the car.

"How long will it take you to drive me to Ottersham?" she asked, getting in.

The barefaced appropriation of his car almost took St. Garth's breath away. For a moment he was speechless. Then the humor of the situation came home to him and restored his equanimity.

"It depends," he answered goodhumoredly. "If you'll chance being held up."

"Oh, I'll risk anything!" she interrupted. "Only get me there by lunch time!"

Her eagerness to be off was infectious. St. Garth felt it. Besides, he was ready enough for an adventure in such pleasant company. He forgot all about the man he was waiting for.

Eileen sank back with a sigh of relief. She credited herself with having bluffed the driver, and the consequences of her recklessness did not disturb her greatly. The man might get into trouble, but she promised herself to make that up to him with a generous tip. All she thought of now was to get home in time to put an end to a situation that had grown intolerable to her. She tossed out the crumpled telegram and read it once more. "Many coming to-night about announcement for Morning Post. Expect you to meet him," it ran.

"I won't! I won't! I won't!" she muttered through set teeth. "I won't be married to a man I detest just because he's rich! I'll do anything rather than. I'll say I'm married already! Or, at least, engaged! I'll—" She relapsed into troubled meditation.

St. Garth went fast. Abducting a pretty woman at her own request was a novelty that tickled his fancy. But while it amused, it puzzled him. What on earth, he asked himself, could have happened to this attractive girl to account for her outrageous act of piracy?

Her whole mind was concentrated on a means of escape from the prospect of a distasteful marriage.

"If only I could make them believe I'm already engaged!" she mused desperately. "But to whom?"

Her hand lay idly on the edge of the door. Abstractedly it slid into the pocket of the upholstery below. Quite unconsciously her fingers closed upon an envelope within it and drew it forth. It was addressed to the Viscount St. Garth. The words meant nothing to her—nothing but an unfamiliar name, for Mrs. Charteris had not yet mentioned it. Suddenly she caught her breath.

"Lord St. Garth?" she asked herself in an awed whisper. "Why not? Why not know! And it will give me time!"

Her pretty brows smoothed out. She restored the envelope to its pocket and turned her attention to the progress of the car.

"I want you to take me to the Grange," she commanded. "Do you know it?"

"By name," returned St. Garth. "It's the Grange place, isn't it? I'm always reading about the beautiful Miss Grant in the papers." Something impelled him to add: "Are you her lady's maid?"

Eileen flushed hotly, but maintained a dignified silence. How could he, with a voice and manner so much above his station, be guilty of such a mistake?

There was silence between them while the car passed through the lodge gates, swept up the drive and stopped at the entrance to the Grange. Eileen got out.

"You can take the car to the stables," she said with a touch of hauteur. "I shan't want you till four o'clock. See that they give you some lunch in the servants' hall."

The last words were in the nature of a snub for his presumption in confounding her with a lady's maid. She turned her back and entered the house.

"This beats 'everything!'" chuckled St. Garth as he drove off. "But I'll see it out for the fun of the thing."

His next half hour was full of new experiences. At the stables he underwent a reception that was so sociable as to be disconcerting; and when, in the servants' hall, under the scrutiny of several young women, his name was requested for the purpose of formal introduction, he very nearly gave himself away. Only just in time did he remember to call himself John Percival—his first two Christian names—and under this incognito he made the acquaintance of half a dozen new friends.

With the meal came the butler, now free from attendance on his betters. He wore an air of suppressed excitement, patent to everybody but St. Garth, who was too occupied with the novelty of his position to notice it.

"Any news, Mr. Lawrence?" inquired the cook curiously.

"You've exclaimed the butler winking at St. Garth. "I've the pleasure to inform you of a piece of family news as will gratify you one an all. It's the breakin' off of Miss Eileen's engagement to Mr. Manby—"

"No!" was the general ejaculation.

"You're certain sure?" queried the cook incredulously.

"Mrs. Wall, does anythin' ever escape me—inside the door or hout?" reproved the butler. "The engagement, I say, is broke off. And why? Because our young lady has bettered herself by accepting a more temptin' offer—" he bowed across the table to the guest—"from our friend's noble guv'nor, Lord St. Garth!"

John Percival, Viscount St. Garth, dropped his knife and fork into his plate with a startling crash!

Shortly after four St. Garth was on his way back to the Hydro with the incomprehensible young lady who had professed to be engaged to himself. He was dumbfounded. He had looked at her once or twice hoping to gather from her face some clue to her strange conduct, but all he read there was an irritating calmness of demeanor.

As Eileen, in a cloud of white lace and tulle, came downstairs the strains of the waltz told her that the dance had already commenced, and Mrs. Charteris, waiting for her in the hall, came forward with a little rush.

"Come along, Eileen, I want to introduce you to somebody," she said, and began plotting Eileen among the groups gathered round the ballroom doors. "Here he is!"

Eileen was inattentive. Reaction had followed her morning's escapade. She did not look up as the man indicated came towards them.

"Lord St. Garth, let me introduce you to Miss Grant," said Mrs. Charteris prattled on conventionally. Eileen did not hear a word. She was staring blankly into the face of the man whose car she had commandeered, and, dreadful thought, whose name she had appropriated as that of her affianced husband!

"We're engaged, are we not?" teased St. Garth, pausing long enough to complete Eileen's consternation. "For all your waltzes," he added.

Eileen knew that she was found out. She was being laughed at, and she dared not resent it. She allowed him to appropriate her programme, and remained impotent while he scribbled his name across the virgin surface.

"I thing I deserve the whole list," he declared as he led her among the dancers.

All through the waltz Eileen struggled to regain her composure, and at the first pause began an incoherent string of excuses and apologies. But St. Garth cut her short.

"Oh, I don't mind a bit," he interrupted, with a misunderstanding heart. "They did me jolly well in the servants' hall. What fun it will be when they see me next time!"

"Next time!" echoed Eileen in alarm.

"Next week, I mean," corrected St. Garth mischievously. "When you introduce me to your people."

Eileen gasped in mingled fear and stupefaction.

"Please, please take me out!" she implored.

St. Garth conducted her to a quiet corner of the hall. "Why did you do it?" he asked.

Then she poured out the agonized confession that could no longer be held back. She went into reasons; urged the temptation of a name on an envelope; she pleaded expediency; she expressed contrition; she was almost reduced to tears when her humiliating admissions came to an end. She looked imploringly at St. Garth hoping for forgiveness, but not daring to expect it.

"You're in a tight place," said he judicially.

Eileen nodded dolefully.

"What about me?" he went on. "I'm in a hole as well—compromised!"

Eileen looked penitent.

"And unless you promise to take my advice I can't get you—or myself—out of the mess."

"I'll promise—anything!" she faltered.

"Come on, then," said St. Garth rising. He led the way to the deserted writing room and opened a book of telegraph forms.

"Will you write it for me?" he asked.

Eileen sat down with a pencil in her trembling fingers.

"To Mrs. Grant, the Grange, Ottersham,'" dictated St. Garth.

Eileen caught her breath.

"Go on," he ordered, and she wrote the words.

"Percival and I motoring down to-morrow. Wedding arranged for next month!' Now sign it."

"O—h, I can't!" she cried weakly.

"You must. You can't get out of it," he protested. "You took my car, you've taken my name, and now, by George, you've got to take me all with it!"

Eileen wavered between inclination and pride.

"I think I'd better indorse this—first!" she murmured shyly, her face all rosy as she signed the telegram.

"Great Scott! Wish old Lawrence have a fit when he sees me!" laughed St. Garth as he kissed her.

BALL LEAGUE'S SCHEDULE

Inter-City Amateur Association Arranges List of Games for Season.

FOUR CLUBS IN COMBINATION.

Clinton Avenue, Jr. O. U. A. M., Scotch Plains and Local Y. M. C. A. to Play the Series.

Officials of the Inter-City Amateur baseball league have completed the schedule of games for the coming season and it was announced today. The league will be composed of four teams, Y. M. C. A., Clinton Avenue and Scotch Plains and the Juniors, the Scotch Plains. The Juniors will use the diamond at Scotch Plains, when the home team is away. This will give the Plains a game every Saturday, while the two teams here will assure the fans a contest every Saturday.

In making out the schedule several dates were left open for postponed games and contests with out-of-town teams. The Clinton Avenues and Y. M. C. A. organizations will use Crescent oval as their season and they are sure to furnish a good article of ball during the season. The Clinton Avenue Club will be the same as last year while the Y. M. C. A. promise to get together a strong combination. The schedule follows:

Saturday, May 16—Clinton Avenue vs. Y. M. C. A. at Crescent Oval; Juniors vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, May 23—Y. M. C. A. vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains; Juniors vs. Clinton Avenues, at Crescent Oval.

Decoration Day—Morning, Clinton Avenues vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains; Y. M. C. A. vs. Juniors, at Crescent Oval. Afternoon, Clinton Avenues vs. Y. M. C. A., at Crescent Oval; Juniors vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, June 6—Open.

Saturday, June 13—Clinton Avenues vs. Scotch Plains, at Crescent Oval; Y. M. C. A. vs. Juniors, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, June 20—Juniors vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, June 27—Y. M. C. A. vs. Clinton Avenues, at Crescent Oval.

Saturday, July 4—Morning, Clinton Avenues vs. Juniors, at Crescent Oval; Y. M. C. A. vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, July 11—Open.

Saturday, July 18—Clinton Avenues vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains; Y. M. C. A. vs. Juniors, at Crescent Oval.

Saturday, July 25—Open.

Saturday, August 1—Y. M. C. A. vs. Scotch Plains, at Crescent Oval; Clinton Avenues vs. Juniors, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, August 8—Juniors vs. Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains.

Saturday, August 15—Y. M. C. A. vs. Clinton Avenues, at Crescent Oval.

Saturday, September 5—Y. M. C. A. vs. Scotch Plains, at Crescent Oval; Clinton Avenues vs. Juniors, at Scotch Plains.

* Labor Day—Open.

CONFEDERATE FLAGS MAY BE GIVEN BACK.

If the Legislature passes the resolution which Senator Robbins has introduced providing for the return of all Confederate flags in possession of the State eight stands of colors will be affected.

They include a national flag, torn; a national flag captured by Company B, Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, and torn by the men in their anxiety to get portions of it; a Confederate flag captured by the Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at Manassas Junction, Va., March 11, 1862; made of a woman's silk shawl; a Confederate national jack, captured by the Seventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at battle of Chancellorsville, Va., May 3, 1863; Confederate flag, captured by Company F, Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at Manassas Junction, Va., March 11, 1862; two Confederate national flags, Confederate national flag, Second Regiment, North Carolina State troops, captured by the Seventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at Chancellorsville, Va., May 3, 1863; Confederate State flag, captured by Company F, Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at Manassas Junction, Va., March 11, 1862, by the Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers.

There are no Jersey flags held in any of the Southern States.

An All-Around Man.

William V. McManus, the new president of the Letter Carriers' Association of New York, had been discussing the ideal letter carrier.

"He is the well-rounded;

"Yes, the ideal letter carrier needs to be all-around, as many-sided, as diversified, as the man a Cincinnati schoolmate advertised for last month.

The advertisement ran:

THE COURT OF ERRORS AND APPEALS

The Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton Wednesday, after hearing arguments of counsel, announced its opinion that the will of William Lanehart, offered for probate by William H. Skillman, was a forgery. This brings to an end one of the most interesting cases ever before the Orphans' Court of Somerset county.

William Lanehart lived near Blawenburg, and William H. Skillman, who is a prominent fruit grower, was his neighbor. When Lanehart died there were two wills, one presented by Skillman making him a joint executor with Lanehart's niece, and leaving a large amount of the property to him. The other was known as the Race will.

The Skillman will was written on two sheets of paper not fastened together. The signature seemed to have been traced with a lead pencil and afterward written over with ink. Some of the leading handwriting experts of the country were called to pass upon the signature and declared it a forgery after comparing it with numerous signatures made by Lanehart.

Judge Louis H. Schenck rendered a decision declaring the Skillman will a forgery. This decision was appealed and was yesterday affirmed. The "Race" will will now probably be offered for probate and be admitted.

On the strength of Judge Schenck's decision Skillman was indicted for forgery. He was twice tried, one time the jury disagreeing and the second trial resulting in conviction. He was sentenced to a term in State prison by Judge Booraem, of New Brunswick, who sat in the case. This sentence was carried to the Supreme Court and is still pending. Skillman, who is quite feeble in health, is out on bail awaiting the result.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

Manager William Rafferty, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, has completed the nine's schedule for the season and announced the season's games today. The school nine will use Crescent Oval for their home games. Of the twenty games scheduled, fifteen are to be played on out-of-town diamonds, and these are return games with teams which will play on the local diamond.

The school boys will open their season Saturday, March 28, when the nine will meet the Cranford Bowser team at Crescent Oval. A game of especial interest in the schedule will be the so-called "Faculty Game," when the school senior nine will play a team composed of the high school instructors and members of the Board of Education. This will be played Friday afternoon, May 22. The complete schedule follows:

Saturday, March 28, Camp Bowser, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, April 4, DeWitt Clinton High School, of New York, at Crescent Oval; Friday, April 10, Newark Academy, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, April 11, Morris High School, of Morristown, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, April 18, Brooklyn Poly Prep, at Crescent Oval; Wednesday, April 22, Westfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Tuesday, April 28, Newark High School, at Newark.

Saturday, May 2, Adelphi Academy, of Brooklyn; Wednesday, May 6, Leal's School, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 9, Rutgers Prep School, at Crescent Oval; Wednesday, May 13, North Plainfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Friday, May 15, St. Benedict's Prep, of Newark, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 16, Hudson River Military Academy, at Crescent Oval; Wednesday, May 20, Leal's School, at Crescent Oval; Friday, May 22, Seniors vs. Faculty, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 23, Rutgers Prep School, at New Brunswick; Wednesday, May 27, North Plainfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Decoration Day, open.

Wednesday, June 3, Hudson River Military Academy, at Pluderse; Saturday, June 6, Westfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Monday, June 8, Pingry School, of Elizabeth, at Crescent Oval.

The chief address was made by Dr. Alvin Davison, professor of biology at Lafayette College, who had for his subject "The Keystone of An Education." County Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, opened a discussion on "Tenure of Office" and related subjects.

The address of Prof. Davison was particularly interesting to teachers in elementary schools, as he is an ardent nature lover and a true scientist.

Luncheon was served the schoolma'ams at noon and the special collection was not forgotten.

Sleeping is Silk.

Silk bedclothes are the latest fad. Sheets and pillow cases are made of the purest silk, and the pillowslips are gorgeously embroidered. Of course, only very rich people can afford to indulge in the luxury, for the sheets cost anywhere from $75 to $250 a pair, according to the amount of embroidery on them. The silk used, which has, of course, to be especially even to the required width, is generally surah or China, the former being the most expensive.

E. H. FURMAN A BENEDICT

Former Plainfielder Takes Miss Ruth Talbot, of Brookline, as His Bride.

WEDDING A SOCIETY EVENT.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Monroe Furman, Who Formerly Resided in Hillside Avenue, is the Groom.

Miss Ruth Talbot, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Newell Talbot, of Brookline, Mass., and Erwin Hanford Furman, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Monroe Furman, of Newton Centre, Mass., formerly of Hillside avenue, this city, were married Wednesday afternoon, February 26, at 4 o'clock at the Church of Our Savior, Brookline. The church was elaborately decorated with ascension lilies, white roses and palms being used in the chancel and large bunches of carnations and pinks were fastened to each pew with bows of pink gauze.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was richly gowned in a princes gown of white satin, the bodice of which was trimmed with rose point and she wore a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She wore a diamond necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids an dlilies-of-the-valley. The matron of honor, Mrs. Norman Boyd, of Philadelphia, wore white chiffon, trimmed with white satin and a pink hat.

The bridesmaids were Miss Boyd and Miss Cobb, of Brookline; Miss Glazier, of Hartford, Conn.; Miss Hill and Miss Harris, of Springfield, Mass.; Miss Stark, of Saginaw, Mich.; Miss Lowe, of Fitchburg, Mass., and Miss Gray, of Boston. They were all gowned alike in white chiffon, handpainted in pink roses and trimmed with folds of rose satin. Their hats were of pink chiffon. The matron of honor and bridesmands all carried baskets of Killarney roses.

The best man was Russell Bowie, of Richmond, Va., and the ushers were William Bird, of East Walpole, Mass., Russell Burdsall and Byram Whitney, of Brookline; Walter Sachs and William Wadsworth, of New York; Roy Smith Wallace, of Freeport, N. Y.; Kingman Robins, of Rochester, N. Y.; Dr. Fritz Talbot, Max Talbot and Stanley Talbot, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Talbot, mother of the bride, wore a gown of cream white satin chiffon with gold encrusted lace, and a black plumed hat. Her jewels were a collar of pearls and diamonds. Mrs. Furman, mother of the groom, wore a costume of pearl gray satin, embroidered in gray and gold. She wore a black tulle hat trimmed with a cluster of black feathers. Her ornaments were diamonds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 121 Sewall avenue, Brookline. The house was beautifully decorated. The reception hall, stairway and library were massed with pink and Fraser roses, and the drawing-room where the bridal party received was a perfect bower of bride roses and palms. The coach house was converted into a large banquet hall which made a background for the mass of green and garlands of pink roses entwined with electric lights. It was connected with the house by an enclosed passage, forming an avenue of bay trees and palms.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were sprays of sapphires, composed of diamonds and pearls. The groom's gifts to the ushers were saphire stick pins. The wedding gifts were many and handsome, being displayed in the billiard room. During the evening the couple left amid a shower of confetti and flowers for a Southern wedding trip.

DR. DAVISON TALKS TO COUNTY TEACHERS

Teachers from all over Somerset county gathered in Somerville today to attend the regular meeting of the Somerville High School. The session began at 10 o'clock this morning.

The chief address was made by Dr. Alvin Davison, professor of biology at Lafayette College, who had for his subject "The Keystone of An Education." County Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, opened a discussion on "Tenure of Office" and related subjects.

"DUTCH" IDES' CAREER

Story of the Young Desperado Recently Killed by a Policeman's Bullet.

A VICTIM OF TRASHY NOVELS.

Escaped from Reformatory Four Times and Frequently Eluded Police After He Had Been Surrounded.

If it were intended merely to record a career of crime it would be far better to let the memory of Frank Ides rest in peace. But without any intention of exalting such a character, it must be admitted that the young desperado who was shot dead three days ago by Policeman J. F. Weber, was one of the most remarkable men the police of New Jersey ever had to deal with. In the matter of criminal achievements, he rather compared to Jack Sheppard, the hero of song, novel and drama. But who in reality was never anything more than an ordinary pickpocket and whose only claim to fame was his remarkable escape from the Newgate jail. "Dutch" Ides, as he was generally known, was not a big man mentally, for if he had been he would have done some burglaries and highway robberies that would have astonished the country. Ides had both the daring and the ingenuity, but he was ignorant and narrow-minded. Yet at times he did petty crimes in a big way, and his methods would probably have been just as successful if they had been detected in an effort to steal thousands of dollars instead of a hundred or two.

Ides' life and, one might add, his death, is an example of what dime novels and other trashy reading of a criminal character will do. His desire to lead an evil life can be directly traced to the effect of such reading. After he had become a man, with a criminal record of ten years' standing, he was still an enthusiastic admirer of the heroes of the yellow journals and read with the greatest interest the exploits of "Braidwood Bill," the Boy Bandit," the escapades of the Dalton brothers and the hair-raising adventures of Jesse James. It is small wonder then that his criminal record reads like some of the "literature" from which he first derived a taste for crime.

Was Born in Hungary.

"Dutch" Ides was born about twenty-five years ago in Hungary and was brought to this country by his parents when a small child. The family settled in Elizabeth and, with the exception of Frank, every member of it has been honest and industrious. Frank developed into several questionable matters when a small boy, but with the luck that struck him most of the time in later life, he always managed to escape capture or punishment, even when the commission of the crime. He was sent to jail for the first time in 1899, when only 16 years old, on a minor charge. Some time later he robbed Morris Sternberg, a farmer, between Elizabeth and Linden, of a wagonload of cabbages and apples. When the farmer expostulated with him he drew a revolver and threatened to blow his head off. For this crime he was indicted and convicted for grand larceny, but sentence was suspended.

Ides broke into the station of the Central Railroad at Cranford on February 28, 1900, and stole some battery cells from the telegraph office. He was arrested and placed in the lockup in Scotch Plains, from which he made his first escape. A short time afterward he was arrested and committed to jail in Union county for gambling and disorderly conduct. Ides was well started on his criminal career at this time. He was subsequently captured and sent to jail for stealing wire, brass journals and other material from the Central Railroad. He was finally committed to the State Reformatory at Rahway for the first time on March 6, 1902.

Ides did little to attract attention during the first year of his stay. He was often surly, but his conduct was fairly good. He was employed in the kitchen detail in September, 1904. One day he noticed that he was being watched by one of the guards and he made up his mind to escape. Going to two other prisoners he told them of the opportunity and directed them to follow him. Ides was a born leader and the other prisoners were very fond of him. At the time they were able to make their way out of the kitchen and through some outbuildings in the rear of the reformatory to the open fields. They reached the woods in the vicinity before the escape became known and by nightfall were many miles from the scene.

Escaped from Jail Four Times.

After that "Dutch" Ides was recaptured three times, and he escaped soon afterward each time. His success in that respect was almost entirely due to his ability to take the guards unawares and because he laid his plans well and did not take his confederates into his confidence. Ides would look about him and decide upon an avenue for escape, and after fixing in his own mind the time and method he would wait until an opportunity presented itself. Sometimes half an hour and sometimes a few minutes before making his dash for liberty he would inform the men whom he had selected in his own mind as companions. In choosing his comrades Ides was always guided by two things. Whenever possible he sought men upon whom he could rely and over whom he had certain amount of influence as leader. Sometimes, however, he was compelled to *take with him one or several prison*ers who were in his immediate vicinity, either to prevent them from giving the alarm or using them to divert attention from himself. In the latter respect, however, it may be said that Ides was always fair to his followers and never took a mean advantage of them.

Ides' last three escapes were much more sensational than his first one. Although only five feet five inches in height and weighing 150 pounds, he was extraordinarily muscular and agile. The stockade that surrounds the reformatory is about twelve feet high and barbed wire is strung at the top, with the result that it is impossible for anybody to mount the fence from the inside. Dutch Ides had led companions over this stockade twice. The first time he was accompanied by several men who were with him on the ground after them. At the time of his first escape. After dashing across the yard they mounted one another's shoulders, and, disregarding the lacerations caused by the sharp barbs, gained the top of the wall, those first up pulling their companions on the ground after them. Guards are so stationed at the reformatory grounds that several of them cover each point of the stockade with their rifles at the same time. The mad dash for liberty was made so quickly and the wall scaling so well executed so nimbly that none of the prisoners was hit by the bullets which was sent after them.

This was the first time that so successful an escape over the wall had been made. Ides' success inspired many of the more daring of the other prisoners to follow his example. It was about that time that there were more attempts at running away than there ever had been at a similar period at the reformatory.

As an Organizer of Thugs.

*It was about this time in his ca*reer that Ides became known along the Central Railroad from Bayonne to Easton. He occasionally branched out in other directions, but not often. For a time he worked in the coal mines in Pennsylvania. Ides could organize a band of thugs more quickly than any other man of his class within the knowledge of the police of this State. Yeggmen and hoboes generally, young and old, seemed always glad to do his bidding. They would commit highway robbery, break into stores or hold up the proprietors and also steal large quantities of merchandise, from freight cars.

Ides had a number of haunts, including "fences" in several towns along the Central Railroad, a rendezvous in the Watchung Mountains and another in the mountains up near Hillsborough. It is thought that if these places could be searched much stolen property might be recovered. Ides had several narrow escapes from being captured before the police finally did get their clutches on him.

Thrilling Escape Under Fire.

When taken to the reformatory for the third time "Dutch" Ides declared he would not stay there long. The guards were very watchful at first, but Ides' behavior was excellent, and soon their vigilance was slightly relaxed. On November 14, 1905, while in a line of 100 men who were on their way to work at 6 o'clock in the morning under the supervision of three guards, Ides quickly told the man in front of him, James Giblin, that there was a good chance to escape. The two dashed from the line to the stockade. With the quickness of lightning about their heads, Ides mounted Giblin's shoulders and in another moment was on top of the fence. While they shot the guards shouted warnings to the escaping prisoners to turn back. Giblin lost nerve, for he hesitated as he stood on the top of the stockade. Ides, swearing at him in disgust, leaned over the top, and extending his hands downward, called upon Giblin to grasp them, so that he could be pulled up. Giblin had just made a jump and had clutched Ides' hands when a bullet struck the former in the shoulder, and he fell back. Shaking his first at the guards and shouting "Go to ——!" Ides jumped down on the outside of the stockade and made for the woods, which he gained, despite being shot by one of the guards as he made up his mind to escape. Going to two other prisoners he told them of the opportunity and directed them to follow him. Ides was a born leader and the other prisoners were very fond of him. At the time they were able to make their way out of the kitchen and through some outbuildings in the rear of the reformatory to the open fields. TYLER, ELECTED TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, WILL RESIGN FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL

Chosen as Dr. Probasco's Successor, for Educational Work, He Will Quit His Services as a City Father.

ANNOUNCEMENT A SURPRISE.

William S. Tyler, for five years the leader of the reform movement in the city government and the most aggressive member of the Common Council during the same period, has been elected a member of the Board of Education and will not serve out his third term as a city father. This announcement is made officially, F. B. Clark, secretary to the Board of Education, having given due notice to the honor bestowed on the progressive Third warder and Mr. Tyler himself having admitted to a representative of The Daily Press that he would quit the ordinance-making body to become a director of educational work.

The selection of Mr. Tyler to fill the vacancy on the Board of Education caused by the death of Dr. John B. Probasco, for fifteen years head of the Board, comes as a general surprise not only to the taxpayers but to the city officials. Mayor Charles J. Fisk, when told of the appointment this morning by a representative of this paper, declared that it was the first intimation he had had of the selection. He was not aware that the Board had considered any candidates. Some friends of the mayor, this afternoon, were somewhat indignant that he had not been officially notified that the Board had determined to take any early action to fill the vacancy, although they were not displeased that Mr. Tyler should be the fortunate man.

When The Daily Press representative asked Mr. Tyler this morning what plans he had made, the Third ward Councilman expressed some surprise that his selection had been announced. He stated that he knew several days ago that the Board had been considering his name, but that this intimation was the first news he had that the appointment had been announced by the Board.

"It would be very congenial work for me," said Mr. Tyler, "to assist in the work of the Board of Education. I have always been much interested in educational work and particularly in the Plainfield schools. At present I am serving my sixth year as a member of the Common Council and it had been my intention to quit at the end of my third term in that body. While a member of the Common Council is has always been my aim to do my full duty and I hope I fulfilled the trust reposed in me by the taxpayers."

"I think Governor Fort is right when he takes the position that no man should occupy two offices at the same time and it is my purpose to resign from the Common Council in order to assume my duties as a member of the Board of Education. I will not take the oath as a member of the Board until my resignation is accepted by my colleagues in the Council. The resignation will be sent to President Tolles at once and I expect that it will naturally be accepted at the next meeting of the city fathers."

When Mayor Fisk was apprised of the Board's action, he stated to The Daily Press representative that it would not be becoming in him to say anything until he had been officially notified. He did not know that the Board contemplated filling the vacancy at this time.

Mr. Tyler is responsible for much of the good city legislation during the last five years. He is largely responsible for the excellent excise ordinances of this city, which served as a pattern for the Bishops' law, now on New Jersey's statute books. The saloon zone ordinance is another of his many original ideas of municipal government. Mr. Tyler is a son of the late Col. Mason W. Tyler, one of the most prominent men in the community in his time.

New Hat Ribbons.

New hat ribbons show an immense white polka dot on deep colored backgrounds, such as dark red, navy blue, golden brown and green. Three yards will make a generous bow, with some to spare for draping the crown. The net bows, both plain and ring dotted, can be bought ready for add*ing to the hat all* wired, and will cost less than $3. These are very pretty and stylish and just the thing to take the place of the velvet bow on a silk hat.

On Terra Firma.

"What does become of all the pins?" cried Mrs. X, as she vainly sought for one on her dressing table. "I know, mamma," cried her little son, who had just begun to study Latin. "They fall to the earth and become terrapins."—Harper's Weekly.

DOBSON HAS A CONTRACT

East End Cop Must See That Seventeen Bad Boys Go to Sunday School.

ALL WERE IN CITY COURT.

Arrested for Trespassing and Damaging Property, Sentence Is Suspended On a Promise.

If you owned a grain mill or a cold storage building and a gang of boys broke in the place every Sunday to play crap and hide-and-seek and incidentally steal everything in sight and smash window panes as a side pastime, wouldn't it jar you? Sure it would and that's why Harry Dunham and Peter J. McDonough, who occupy the former Hygeia ice building on upper North avenue, got real mad and asked the police to round up the youngsters who have been making the place a rendezvous.

Patrolman George Dobson swooped down on the gang last Sunday afternoon and between those he caught running through the combined mill and ice house and the ones he recognized as they ran away, he had seventeen of them in the city court Tuesday. They ranged in ages from nine to seventeen years and the session was held up for half an hour while two cops busied themselves getting their pedigrees. The following were the names answered to:

Joseph Pratz, Mike Montaferro, Antone Margentino, Will McCarthy, Peter Colucci, Antone Santbarbory, Samuel Harper, Joseph Scottbar, John Margentino, Francis Kane and Louis Pratz, all white; Morris Somerset, Frank Peterson, Frank Somerset, George Martin, James Coleman and Walter Robbins, colored.

Mr. Dunham and Mr. McDonough informed the court that the damage they have suffered through the depredations of the boys aggregates a thousand dollars. The trouble had been going on for a long time, they said, and in addition to what had been stolen and broken they were always in fear that the building would be set on fire. On several occasions workmen found the butts of cigarettes in places were it would be very easy to start a blaze. Both complainants expressed a willingness to press no serious charges, demand pay for the damage occasioned if the depredations would stop and this was promised.

Several of the boys declared that an older fellow named Brown had been the one who was stealing eggs, grain, pigeons and other things from Mr. Dunham's place and the police will make an effort to get him. Before sentence was suspended every one of the seventeen gave Judge Runyon his solemn word that he would go to Sunday-school on Sunday in the future and Patrolman Dobson was delegated to see that they do it.

PRODUCE MAN CHARGED WITH FALSE PRETENSE

Accused of systemically robbing the firm through charges for goods not delivered, Nelson LaBau, aged twenty-seven years, was arrested in Neuman and Somers' store Tuesday morning. He was locked up at Police Headquarters on a specific complaint of false pretense and later was arraigned before Judge Runyon. He waived examination and was held in $500 bail.

According to the complainants, LaBau was formerly employed by the grocerymen but more recently has been conducting a general produce and dairy business. He made delivveries of eggs and other supplies at the store and would go to the cashier for his money. It was his custom to tell the amount due him and it would be paid without further investigation, the figures being entered up in the cash account. He fell into the habit, it is alleged, of calling for more than he was entitled to and it is estimated that the firm has been robbed in this way of $410. The egg bills became so large that the items were closely followed and the cause was discovered.

LaBau resides on Clinton avenue, just over the city line, in Piscataway township and has enjoyed a large trade among local merchants.

Agriculturists to Meet.

The regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture will be held in the court room in Somerville on Saturday afternoon, March 28, at 2 o'clock. At this session the members and friends will have the pleasure of hearing Frankiin Dye, secretary of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, who will open *riculture Principles in Farm Prac*tices," which will be followed with a general discussion. Abram A. Corteyou is president of the county board and Arthur F. Sutphen secretary.

P. H. S. FIRE DRILL TEST

Faulty Signal Conditions, Cause of Long Delay in Emptying Building.

QUICKER IN THE BOROUGH.

North Plainfield's Time Eighty Seconds; Plainfield's Trial Test Over Five Minutes, In Drills Today.

Failing to hear the school fire alarm gong, pupils of the Plainfield High School, assembled in the school auditorium for a singing lesson Tuesday, did not know the alarm had been sounded until Miss Katherine Ball, one of the teachers, went in to the auditorium and told Principal Travell that the fire gong was ringing. This was a minute and twenty seconds after the clanging of the bell began. *The building was not emp*tied of pupils until slightly more than five minutes had elapsed after the bell was rung.

The alarm was sounded by James D. MacNab, head of the school commercial department, at the suggestion of an outsider who happened to be in the building. The various classes of the building, numbering more than 250 pupils, together with Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Principal Ira W. Travell and Principal Lester Messerolf, of the Dunellen school, who was a guest, were having the regular Tuesday morning singing les*son in connection with the opening* exercises for the day. Charles L. Lewis, singing instructor of the Plainfield schools, was leading the pupils in the singing of "Christ Is Risen," one of the Easter carols.

The ringing of the alarm bell was a complete surprise to the entire school, faculty and pupils. As soon as the bell sounded, about a dozen pupils, who were not in the assembly hall at the time, filed quickly out. Someone fastened back the outside doors of the building, so that the other pupils could pass out. According to several of the pupils, the clanging of the bell could not be heard above the singing, and the first intimation they had that it was ringing was when Miss Ball came in and spoke to Mr. Travell. When the pupils passed out, there was a slight congestion at the two doors from the auditorium into the halls, but none of the pupils seemed in any haste to leave the building.

Dr. Maxson, in explaining conditions at the city schools, said:

"As soon as I saw the account of the Collingswood fire I began a systematic study of each school building in the city to discover what improvements in conditions of the buildings and in the fire drills could be made to give the fullest safeguard against panic in case of fire. I had already given orders for electricians to extend the gong in each building and make it as complete as pos*sible; and to carpenters to make any* changes that were necessary to make the exits from every building as easy as possible. The parents can feel assured that if anything can be discovered to make things as perfect as possible it will be done."

*Speaking to a Daily Press re*porter later, Principal Travell said: "The alarm was a complete surprise. I never knew that it was ringing until Miss Ball spoke to me on the platform. Yesterday I requested Mr. Maxson to have two more alarm bells put in the building. One of these will be in the typewriting room, where the noise of the typewriters prevents the pupils from hearing the gong in the front hall of the building, and the other is to be in the manual training room in the basement. I shall recommend to Mr. Maxson that an alarm bell also be installed in the auditorium. When the pupils are singing, it is impossible to hear the alarm bell from the hall. You come up to the school next week sometime, and we'll show you how we've corrected this fault pointed out in our fire drill system."

Borough's Good Record.

At the fire drill held at the Somerset street school, North Plainfield, at 11 o'clock Tuesday, the building was emptied in eighty seconds, though the pupils marched out according to a system tried for the first time by Supervising Principal Henry C. Krebs. In speaking of the drill to a Daily Press reporter, Mr. Krebs said: "I tried an innovation in the drill this morning. I am planning to have drills at which certain of the exits will be purposely cut off, so that the pupils will be less liable to panic if this should ever be the case. At the drill this morning, the teachers led the classes from the building. In case a door is found shut off, the pupils are to follow the teachers to another door. We can improve on the time, I think, for the pupils were all back at work within three minutes after the alarm sounded, and you see it took much time from work. "Hereafter I shall require silence on the part of the pupils as they pass out. Talking will lead to shouting, and that might cause panic in some cases. The pupils will all march out in step, as far as this is possible. E will mean quicker speed, and will be of benefit to them in marching down to the beat of a drum at fire drills, and I think this is an excellent plan.

"With a view to having the pupils pass in an orderly manner to another exit in case one of the doors is purposely locked before he drill, I have prepared specific directions for the different classes, directing each teacher what to do in leading her class out if she finds one door of the building locked, or the exit cut off."

LOVELL HEAD OF BOARD

He is Elected President of Plainfield's Public School Directing Body.

ABBOTT IS THE VICE PRESIDENT.

Resolution Condemning Scheme to Divert School Moneys Obtained by Statutes' Provision.

Leander N. Lovell was elected Monday by the Board of Education as president of that body to succeed the late Dr. John B. Probasco, who held that position for fifteen years Charles F. Abbott was chosen to take the place of Mr. Lovell as vice-president.

It was decided not to arrange the standing committees until William S. Tyler, the newly-elected member, takes his place on the board. This means that the announcement of committees will not be announced by President Lovell for at least a month.

The scheme on foot in the Legislature to divert school moneys obtained from the Perkins railroad tax and other sources, met with the disapproval of the educational directors who passed the following resolution unanimously:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Board that a reduction of the State school tax will be prejudicial to the cause of education in New Jersey; that the State school tax rate should stand as now and that the revenue from the taxation of the railroads should be paid into the school treasuries as provided when the law which produced such tax was passed; also

Resolved, That the clerk be directed to convey to the Senator and Assemblymen from this district this action of the Board, with a request that they use their influence against the passage of any bills intended to change the school tax or divert the railroad money.

MISS MATHEWSON TO WED DR. LUFBURROW

Announcement is made of the en*gagement of Miss Elizabeth C. Math*ewson, niece of Dr. Charles B. Mathewson, of Sandford avenue, and Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, of West Front street. The wedding will probably take place during the coming summer. Miss Mathewson has made her home in this city with her uncle since the death of her father, Dr. William Mathewson, a few years ago. She has been prominent here, especially in musical circles, being a member of the First Baptist church choir. She has also taken part in the several productions given by the Plainfield Operatic Association. She is popular in a large circle of acquaintances.

Dr. Lufburrow is one of the prominent physicians in the city and like Miss Mathewson has musical talent. He has also been prominent in local amateur operatic productions. During the past few years he has held the position of city physician and is an active member of the Plainfield Medical Society.

P.E. CLERGYMAN SPEAKS AT WARREN'S BANQUET

At the Men's Association dinner held Monday night at Warren chapel, Alexander Irvine, of New York, gave an interesting informal talk on "The Christianizing of Socialism" as an after-dinner address. Mr. Irvine is assistant rector of the Church of the Ascension, in New York city, and is prominent as a worker among the city's poor.

In speaking of his work, Mr. Irvine explained that it is his custom to have an open discussion of Social*istic problems in the chapel of his* church in the evening of the Sunday evening service. These meetings are attended by all classes of men, from prominent educational men of the city, authors and public speakers, to *the poor people of the slum dis*tricts. Each speaker is allowed five minutes to discuss some problem of Socialistic nature. The discussions are often carried into the evening.

The turkey supper proved a great success. Nearly 100 meals were served and the "victuals" were declared to be "first-class." The committee in charge of the cooking was composed of the wives of the various officers of the organization, of which Andrew Stiglitz is president. During the supper, music was furnished by an orchestra of five pieces, led by Whitney Fvans.

You will be surprised to find how much good there is in the world if you'll sit up and take notice.

TWO SCHOOLS NECESSARY

Jacob Kirkner, Former President of Board, Discusses School Accomodations.

BUILD ONE SCHOOL AT A TIME.

Darrow Avenue Structure, He Believes, Could Be Erected for $90,000—Then Clinton Avenue to Be Considered.

Former President Jacob Kirkner, of the Plainfield Board of Education, is one of a number of West End residents who will agitate the erection of a school in the vicinity of West Front street and Clinton avenue as soon as the Darrow avenue school, for which plans have recently been submitted, is completed. In speaking of the matter to a Daily Press reporter, Mr. Kirkner said that the new West End school will not meet the needs for school accommo*dations in that part of the city, and* that the movement for a school building north of the railroad tracks should still be actively carried on.

"The new Darrow avenue building is not going to supply the need of a school north of the railroad," said Mr. Kirkner, "but I think it wiser to wait a while after the completion of this new building before actively agitating the matter of a second school in the West End. The Darrow avenue school will simply alleviate the crowded conditions that exist now in the Washington and Irving schools.

*"I understand that the Washing*ton School, which at present has seven classes, has been sold to St. Mary's church for a parochial school. At the Irving School, where there are regularly twelve classes, five extra classes, of about forty pupils each, have been formed, and in order to accommodate them in the school, it *has been necessary to adopt a sched*ule of morning and afternoon sessions for the different classes. These are the conditions that will be improved by the erection of the Darrow avenue school, which will accommodate the Washington School classes, and the extra classes of the Irving School.

"I believe that the Darrow avenue building plans, as submitted by the architects to the Board of Education, could be bettered by another arrangement of the class rooms, which would give freer access to the stairways. But pending the subject to these plans for the new building as involving too great expense. If it is necessary to build another school in the West End, and Superintendent Maxson, in his report on the matter at the conference with Mayor Fisk, acknowledged that it is, the taxpayers should be consulted before such an amount ($90,000) is expended for one of the schools.

"While the new building is not an elaborate one, I believe that its cost should be reduced to about $90,000. This can be done by omitting many of the decorative features, both exterior and interior, and need not necessitate any radical change in the plans.

"I should very much like to see a second public school building erected within a short time in the vicinity of Clinton avenue and West Front street, north of the railroad, for the accommodation of the children in that community, who, under present conditions, have no place to go to school. I do not think it a good policy to expend even as much as $150,000 on two schools at one time. The taxpayers should be taken into con*sideration. I do think,* however, that as soon as the Darrow avenue building is completed, steps should be taken for the second West End school, which should be made of sufficient size to accommodate the future as well as the present needs for a school in that locality."

Translucent Enameled Jewelry.

This is certainly peculiarly Twentieth Century, and so many women nowadays have learned the art of making enamel that it especially appeals to us. Most of such ornaments are large, taking the form of brooches or pendants, and are made after the fashion of old paste jewelry, mingled with gems. Some of these pendants and brooches are in the shape of flowers or fruit, and faithfully copy the colors of both. Gold wire outlines the enamel. A bunch of grapes has the tendrils and leaves in gold, the grapes represented by pearls, while green tints are represented by emeralds.

Men's Club Musicale.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church is planning for an elaborate musical to be given at the church on Thursday night, March 26. The artists will be Joseph McIntyre, pianist; Sigmund Culp, of New York, violinist, and Miss Anna L. Case, soprano. The program will be one of exceptional merit.

A Table Novelty.

Here's a change from the familiar finger bowl. A hostess with a fondness for things Japanese introduced it. She had little wicker baskets placed before each guest. In each basket was a folded napkin of Japanese material. These napkins had been made quite moist, but not dripping, with perfumed water. Each guest used this napkin, keeping it folded, on lips and fingers.

ATLANTIC COUNTY PROSECUTOR NAMED

Governor Fort took the Atlantic county Prosecutor fight in his own hands at Trenton, yesterday, turned down the demands of both the "organization" and the "reform" elements and named an independent Republican to the office by appealing to the Senate the nomination of Chaffee L. Goldenberg, following the precedent he established when he named an outsider in the Bergen county judgeship fight. The nomination was accompanied by one of the Governor's characteristic statements.

This action by the Governor is more of a slap at the "organization" than at the "reform" wing of the Atlantic county Republicans. It is a particularly severe blow at the gambling element of the seaside resort, which has every reason to fear the campaign which Goldenberg will wage against wrongdoing. Goldenberg was not mentioned among those urged for appointment. Senator Wilson, Assemblyman Keller and the organization backed Henry J. Wootton, City Solicitor of Atlantic City, while Colonel Wade Edge, Henry D. Lloyd and some of the leading hotel men there wanted C. C. Babcock.

Governor Fort's statement follows:

"Clarence L. Goldenberg, appointed Prosecutor of Atlantic, is about forty years old. His father was a Jerseyman and he was born in Cape May, in this State. His father was first lieutenant in the Thirty-seventh New Jersey regiment in the Civil War and was severely wounded. His father moved to Philadelphia when he was quite a young man, but he returned to this State in 1862 and located in Atlantic City. He was admitted an attorney in 1902, and a counsellor in 1905. In the great reform fight in Atlantic City in October, 1905, which *resulted in the ex*posure of the Common Council and the expulsion therefrom of several members, on account of alleged frauds and bribery in the Trinidad Lake asphalt contract, he was the lawyer who unearthed the corruption and compelled the resignations at that time, representing the Citizens' League, composed of twenty representative citizens in Atlantic City. In all this work he acted gratuitously, refusing compensation. He is recognized and is known as an independent Republican."

Other nominations made yesterday were: Members of the State Board of Education, Ninth district, Zamor Allen, of the County of Hudson, reappointed.

Manager of Sanatorium for Tuberculosis, Theodore Seneman, of the County of Atlantic, re*appointed.*

Tenement House Supervisor, Edwin West, Jr., of Bergen, re-appointed.

Fish and Game Commissioner, William H. Logue, of Cumberland, re-appointed.

Manager of State Village for Epileptics, Mrs. Brice Collard, of Hudson.

All appointments were referred in executive session and referred to the Judiciary Committee for confirmation later.

DE ALVANDROS IS IN PATERSON JAIL

Paterson, March 11.—Four of the principals in the shooting of Charles de Alvandros Saturday night by his supposed mother-in-law are now in the county jail. Martha Hurd, the much married young woman, who Alvandros says he married in New York three years ago, and Edwin Hurd, her Paterson husband, were committed yesterday afternoon, after being subjected to a "third degree" examination by Police Chief Simson and the policemen. Mrs. Hurd at first denied that she was married to Alvandros, but later admitted that a ceremony might have been performed without her knowledge.

"I first met Alvandros about a year ago when I went to him to have my fortune told," she said, "and he invited me to have a drink with him in a saloon in Eighth avenue. I remembered nothing after taking the drink, and I am sure I was drugged. Next morning Alvandros said we were married."

After the shooting, about midnight Saturday, Mrs. Hurd, her husband and her mother hurried to the Governor street home and walked two miles to Teaneck. It was daylight when they reached there and took a car for Fort Lee. Mrs. Hurd and her husband declared that they had made up their minds to return to Paterson when the police located them.

Police Chief Simson is convinced that Alvandros, besides being a bigamist, has a record in other ways that should be investigated. He believes that Alvandros has been implicated in swindling operations in various cities.

Mrs. Winfield S. Decker and daughter, Miss Ada Decker, of West Fourth street, are spending a week with relatives at Mariners Harbor, Staten Island.

Dr. Charles B. Mathewson, of Sandford avenue, is able to be out again after being detained at home for a number of weeks with an attack of grip and stomach trouble.

Ladies Are Learning to Aim Straight.

Using firearms does not necessarily mean to hunt game, kill and destroy. Target practice is a sport the possibilities of which are rapidly becoming more appreciated and can be enjoyed by young and old of either sex.

There are a number of excellent bowlers, golfers, tennis players, etc., among the fair sex—in fact, the masculine province of outdoor sport is more and more invaded by the athletic young lady of the period. It is a gratifying sign of the times that "hitting the bulls-eye" at target practice is now claiming the attention of the outdoor girl, and there is certainly no more beneficient sport or exercise.

"Looking for new worlds to conquer" and the persistent efforts made by the J. Stevens Arms & Tool Co., Chicopee Falls, Mass., makers of the famous Stevens firearms, in advocating the delightful recreation, are main factors in the extraordinary interest among the fair sex in target shooting. To be properly equipped means the adoption of Stevens Rifles and Pistols—these arms make more records than all other makes combined, and cost no more.

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS APPOINT ASSISTANTS.

At the March meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday, the medical board reported the number of patients for February as follows: Remaining at last report, 31; admitted, 49; total number, 80; discharged cured, 39; improved, 5; not improved, 1; died, 7; remaining, 32; number of hospital days, 929; operations, 46. In the dispensary the number of patients was 59 and there were 85 visits of patients.

The following physicians were appointed by the board as assistants of the medical board for the year ending April 30, 1909: Drs. Marcus L. Clawson, J. Hervey Buchanan, Albert Pitts, Frederick J. Hughes, Peter B. Cregar and Alfred F. Van Horn.

"A Day In a Cat's Life."

The March number of Brownies' Magazine contains a series of pictures entitled "A Day in a Cat's Life," the work of Mrs. W. Durant, of this city. There is also a short article, "On Real Money," written by Charles Battell Loomis, formerly of Fanwood.

Shells Remove Clinkers.

When the fire bricks have become covered with clinkers which have fused and adhere they may be cleaned by throwing oyster or clam shells in the fire box while the fire is hot and then allowing the fire to go out. The clinkers will then cleave off easily. Salt sprinkled on in the same way will loosen them.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR M. E. CONFERENCE

Sunday Assignments, Lodgings for Delegates and Other Announcements are Issued.

BISHOP SPELLMEYER PRESIDES.

Laymen's Meeting On April 3—Complete List of Delegates and Their Hosts.

The complete official program for the Newark Conference was issued today under the direction of Rev. A. C. McCreary, pastor of the First M. E. church, who is chairman of the committee on program and anniversaries. The details for the conference, which will be held here from April 1-7, are completed. The first session will be held at Vincent chapel Tuesday morning, April 1, at 10 o'clock, with the examination of candidates for admission, local deacons and elders ordered. The examinations will be continued in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening Rev. Dr. William H. Crawford, of Allegheny College, will deliver a lecture on Savonarola. The Florentine Reformer." Bishop Henry Spellmeyer will preside. The lecture will be followed by an informal reception to the Bishop by members and friends of the Plainfield churches.

In connection with the conference one of the most important features will be the meeting of laymen, on Friday, April 3, at the First Baptist church. At 10 o'clock in the morning there will be a meeting of the lay electoral conference, which will be continued at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. At 3 o'clock the tenth annual meeting of the Laymen's Association will be held and Rev. Charles H. Mitchell, formerly of this city, but now of Cleveland, O., will speak on "The Mission of a Methodist." The importance of these meetings is that delegates are to be elected to attend the general conference to be held in Baltimore.

On Sunday, April 5, the pulpits of the various churches in the city and borough will be occupied by delegates to the Conference, as follows:

Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. Fred Clare Baldwin. 7:45 p. m., Rev. George W. Smith.

First Presbyterian church, 11 a. m., Rev. Dr. Albert F. Diefendorf. 7:45 p. m., Rev. H. J. Johnston.

First Baptist church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. Abner H. Lucas. 7:45 p. m., Rev. A. B. Richardson.

PICTURED FOREIGN CLIMES

"Personally Conducted Tour" to Italy Entertains Seventh-day Baptist Folk.

VENICE, ROME AND NAPLES.

Rev. Dr. Gardner, Messrs. Maxson and Stillman and Miss Dewey Act As "The Man From Cook's."

"An Imaginary Trip to Italy" proved a delightful form of entertainment at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, under the auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work of that congregation. The trip was under the personal supervision of Mrs. David E. Titsworth and en route four stops were made—the first being at Gibraltar, where Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner explained the interesting points. The next stop was at Naples, where William M. Stillman gave a description of the principal points. The third halt in the journey was at Rome, where Miss Carrie Dewey gave the explanatory talk, while Dr. Henry M. Haxson gave an enjoyable talk about Venice, the last stopping place.

The visit to Venice was especially enjoyable. There was arranged a Venetian cafe, where spaghetti, cheese, coffee and sandwiches were served in true style. Between the various stops appropriate music was rendered. Miss Carrie Dewey gave a description of steamer life, during which Miss Mabel Maxson was at the piano, playing several selections. There were also vocal solos by Elmer D. Cutting and Mrs. John Cottrell.

Before Venice was reached the curtain was drawn and disclosed a picturesque Rialto bridge, upon which was a group of people in Italian dress. They entertained with several Italian songs, chorus and solos, the numbers including solos by Theodore Davis and Mrs. Theodore Davis, assisted by the chorus. Mrs. Davis sang her solo while standing in a gondola and it was very effective. Another feature was a Dago banana song by John Cottrell, Jr.

Those comprising the Italian chorus were Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Davis, Miss Helen Rogers, Miss Mildred Green, Miss Mary Hunting, Miss Cecelia Cottrell, Miss Beatrice Cottrell, John Cottrell, Jr., Arthur Titsworth, Roy Titsworth and Mrs. E. F. Champlin. Several of the above named together with Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Mary Green and Miss Helen E. Lewis, acted as waitresses. They all wore the Italian costume.

During the evening there were sold Venetian and Neapolitan souvenir postal cards. Those in charge of the sale of candy, pop-corn, etc., were Mrs. Charles H. Dunham and Miss Nellie St. John. The refreshment committee comprised Mrs. Ira N. West, chairman; Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, Mrs. C. A. Rogers, Mrs. W. R. Mosher and Miss Lucy Dunham.

The general committee which arranged the affair comprised Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson and Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard. Much credit is due Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson for her management. Recently returned from a trip abroad, Mrs. Truell-Johnson rendered valuable aid in the musical numbers, the real Italian songs were obtained by her in Italy and they added greatly to the pleasure of the entertainment.

New Skirt Making Plant.

Frank Kesselring, of Chatham street, the borough, has leased the third floor of the Taylor building at Park and North avenues and will at once *install machinery for the manu*facture of silk skirts. According to the plans he will be ready to start work next week and will begin with a large force of operatives. Mr. Kesselring was formerly connected with the Hertig & Kapp concern that first transformed the Rink building into a skirt-making factory and has a wide experience in the business.

Encampment Entertainment Planned.

Plans for a public entertainment to be held in connection with the next encampment of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., No. 72, were discussed at the regular meeting of the Post held last night. The arrangements have been put in charge of Captain William Hand.

Lewis Breece.

Lewis Breece, son of James and Maria D. Breece, died Monday night at the parents' home on West Front street. He was in his twenty-second year. The funeral will be held at his late residence tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

W. Edwin Williams' Funeral.

The funeral of W. Edwin Williams, whose death occurred yesterday morning, will be held at his late residence on Second place tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

SUPPOSED "CHANCE MAN" HONORABLY DISCHARGED

Arthur Fuller, one of the two young men arrested Monday night as "chance crooks," received an honorable discharge in the city court this morning. The police investigated his stories and found that he is what he claimed to be and that Walter Carroll, nabbed as he was stealing an overcoat from Madden's pool room, was purely a chance acquaintance.

Fuller said that Carroll and he had met on a train coming out from New York and that after a social glass of beer they had dropped in to the pool room. It was then that he was seen by the frequenters of the place who corralled him later, believing after they caught Carroll red-handed that Fuller must have been in the game with him. He came here from Brooklyn, he said, in order to follow up "lightning" sketch work, at which he is very clever. Detective-Sergeant Flynn looked up the Brooklyn address and his complete exoneration followed today.

With Carroll the story is different. The police's surmise that he is a professional crook is probably correct and he was committed to Elizabeth today in default of $200 bail on the overcoat stealing charge. He claims to be from London but pawn tickets taken from his pocket show that he has spent considerable time in New York.

ONE PERFORMANCE HERE COST "ANGEL" JUST $788

Donna Seymour, an actress, was arrested last night in New York on a warrant obtained on October 8 by Hector Roy, of that city, charging her with obtaining $788 from him "by trick and device."

Roy alleged that on representation made by the actress he advanced $788 to back a theatrical venture. A theatrical company was formed, which gave one performance in Plainfield on "Mr. Bluebird." The company, with the exception of the star, Donna Seymour, was stranded, Miss Seymour had disappeared at the close of the performance.

PUPILS GIVE RECITAL AT Y. M. C. A. AUDITORIUM.

Pupils of J. Edmund Skiff gave a song recital at the Y. M. C. A., last night, before a large audience. An excellent program was arranged and the pupils acquitted themselves with credit. There was only one change in the program, Mr. Skiff singing "Farrell," in place of Carlos D. Gallup, who was unable to be present. The pupils were well received and given hearty applause by their many friends. The program:

"I Don't Know Why, or Co-Boss," Miss Helen Smalley; "Roses," Fred Knidler; "Open Thine Eyes, Thine Blue Eyes," "Come to Me, Sweetheart," Mrs. Price; "When I Was With My Dearie," Mrs. John C. Ketcham; "Lullaby," Mrs. Harry R. Moyer; "Were I a Star," Miss Laura E. Geesey; "Sing Me an Old Vincent Miner; "Because," Miss Hope Irene Miller; "Chanson Provencale," Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff; "Israfel," J. Edmund Skiff; "Carrissima," Miss Helen J. Hall; "Love Song," Willard Wadsworth; "My Heart and You," The Sweet Voice Miss Barbara vanNuis Willis; duet, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," Mr. and Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff.

BARKALEW PRESIDENT OF PLAINFIELD B. & L. ASS'N.

The Plainfield Building and Loan Association held its twenty-fourth annual meeting Monday night, when officers were elected and a statement of the financial condition of the association was presented. The receipts for the past year were $184,221.61, and the disbursements, including $915.56 cash on hand, were the same. The fourteenth series was opened at the meeting and already a number of shares have been subscribed for. These officers were elected for the year:

President, J. E. Baralow; vice-president, Henry Leitke; treasurer, W. R. Coddington; secretary, B. Frank Coriell; auditing committee, A. D. Edgar, Clarence Goss, William McD. Coriell; board of directors, L. E. Barkalew, Henry Leitke, W. R. Coddington, E. Wood Titsworth, Louis Klein, Jacob Voegtl, J. P. Homan, W. A. Woodruff, J. C. Blimm, J. E. Flannery, B. Frank Coriell, E. M. Laing.

Mr. Shepard's Wedding.

Notes from Asheville, N. C., announce that the marriage of Miss Marie Rees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rees, of Kenilworth Lodge, Biltmore road, to Augustus D. Shepard, Jr., of New York, is expected to take place soon after Easter at All Souls' church, Biltmore. Mr. Shepard is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood.

TELLS OF POLAND'S WOES

Mrs. Conner at Missionary Meeting Graphically Depicts the Oppressed Slavs.

IS A LIBERTY-LOVING RACE.

Masses Confined to Agricultural Pursuits and Are Heavily Taxed—Society Elects Officers.

A paper of unusual interest on "Poland" was presented by Mrs. W. A. Conner at the annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. It gave a short history of the Slavs from the seventeenth century, describing the years of oppression and incidentally the heavy tax imposed on the natives.

Mrs. Conner said that there are no mills or factories in Poland and the people are forced to follow the pursuit of agriculture. They are not allowed to speak their own language, being compelled to use that of Russia. Whenever the mother tongue is used it is in secret and if detected doing so the natives are likely to be sent to Siberia. Mrs. Conner said that the oppression still exists today.

The speaker said that there is a society of Polish people numbering about 50,000, the objects of which are to work for education and betterment of conditions. Outside of the city halls there are no public buildings in the cities of Poland and once a large building is destroyed it is never rebuilt. Reference was made to the large number of Polish people in this country, where they are chiefly employed in the mines. In Chicago there are 250,000 such while in the American colleges there are 523 sons of Poland.

There is now a bill before the Prussian-Poland government to dispossess the Polish people in an effort to acquire the vast estates and then tax the former owners for the maintenance of the land and buildings. To offset this action a large movement is underway the purpose of which is to defeat the measure. Mrs. Conner said that the Poles are a liberty-loving people and whenever they have the opportunity they will fight for greater liberty. There is no redress from the oppression to which they are subjected and there is nothing left for them to do but stand it as best they can. The mission work being done among these people is bearing much fruit and is a source of encouragement to those who are engaged in the labor.

Refreshments were served during the past year for missions, and of this amount about $200 represented dues. The payment of $25 for a life membership was also reported.

*The meeting closed after an inter*esting sketch of the life of Miss Johanna P. Moore, who for a great many years worked among the colored people of the south, was presented by Mrs. Charles H. Smith. Miss Moore began her work immediately after the close of the Civil War and continued it until a few years ago.

Borough Neighbors' Row.

Mrs. James O'Donnell and Mrs. Vincent Kuldoshes, neighbors on Duer street, figured in a domestic fracas in their back yards Monday which ended in Mrs. O'Donnell pressing charges against her neighbor with the borough police. They were to appear in court before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night, but the complainant did not come to the court room until the recorder had dismissed the case.

Men's Club Anniversary.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel celebrated its second anniversary last night, by entertaining a large number of friends. A feature of the evening's program was a lecture on "Camp Life in the Northwest" by Rev. E. E. Roberson, of the Monroe Avenue church. Refreshments were served in conclusion. The affair was arranged by a committee composed of John Slorah, Harold Brownell and Philip Braunstein.

—Mr. and Mrs. William A. Conner, of Hillside avenue, are removing this week to their new residence just completed, corner of Hillside and Prospect avenues.

BLUECOAT DOWNS NEGRO ABOUT TO ASSAULT HIM

Julian Feinster and Al Saunderson, local colored men, engaged in a fight at Second street and Park avenue late last night. They were rapping each other in proper shape when Patrolman Messler happened along and grabbed both. Sanderson broke away and fled but the blue coat hung fast to Feinster and landed him in a cell.

After leaving headquarters, Messler picked up Patrolman Nolan and the pair went to Sanderson's home on Arlington avenue, one going to the front and the other to the back door. Sanderson was inside but he refused the cops' demand for admission. As a result Nolan put his shoulder to the front barricade and broke it down. He had barely gotten inside when Sanderson made a rush at him with every intention of committing an assault but the officer was prepared. He swung his club squarely at the negro's head and he went down and out. The force of the blow opened his scalp and it was necessary to call a physician to close the wound after he had been locked up.

When arraigned in court this morning, the two prisoners pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and both were fined $10 or twenty days. Neither had any money.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL AT THE MONROE AVE. CHURCH.

An entertainment entitled "The Country School" will be given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tomorrow and Friday nights. Nearly all of the participants are members of the church and have expressed a desire to return to the pleasures of the "old school days," some thirty or forty years ago in some cases. All will be dressed as small boys and girls and the effect will doubtless be funny. The cast will be as follows:

Seth Crane, Rev. E. E. Roberson; committeeman, Walter McGee; Julius Caesar Smith, John Praed; Jule Call, William Jacobs; Bill Call, John Daub; Daniel Webster Tompkins, Mansfield Smith; Happy Jones Roosevelt, Blanchard Randolph; Benjamin Franklin Squeers, Louis Berger; John Thomas Thackeray, Thomas Lawson; Charles Henry Fairbanks, *Harry Luidi; Robert Singleboy Bry*an, Harry Cox; Michael O'Rafferty, Louis Tallamy; Grover Cleveland Fort, Harry Gilmour; teacher, J. Stephen Higham; Christopher Columbus Pitts, E. J. Beekman; Mrs. Crane, Mrs. E. H. Beekman; Venus Matilda Weeks, Mrs. Mansfield Smith; Zenobia Snellings, Miss Charlotte Aldrich; Mary Teresa Kelly, Mrs. John Daub; Martha Washington Hibbs, Mrs. Louis Tallamy; Rachel Rebecca Galewski, Mrs. W. B. Granbatt, Sr.; Fanny Susanah Binklespiel, Miss Georgia Beekman; Emma Mania Johnson, Mrs. Walter Manning; Carrie Naheon Chadwick, Mrs. Edward Beekman.

Good News to the Plainfield Shopping Public.

The Plainfield Credit Outfitting Company will add another link to their chain of successful stores throughout the State of New Jersey by opening at 102 Front, corner Somerset street, first floor, on or about April first. Extensive alterations are now underway and when completed the first floor at Front and Somerset streets will be fitted up with an establishment that Plainfield will be proud of. The modern style in which the new outfitting company will conduct the installment business will prove a great revelation to the economical shopping public of Plainfield and its suburbs and of vital importance to every head of a family. You must visit the new enterprising firm to learn of the many advantages they will offer. Their manager promises to carry as large an assortment of up-to-date wearing apparel for men, women and children as they do in all the other stores operated by the firm and through their close con*nection with the largest manufactur*ers they are able to undersell anyone in the business. They extend liberal credit to every responsible person and take their payments in small weekly or monthly installments. All business with them will be strictly confidential.

Lectured On Haggai.

W. D. Murray gave a talk on the prophet Haggai at the Y. W. C. A. last night, in his course of Lenten lectures on "The Minor Prophets." There were about thirty out, and an informal discussion of the book of Haggai followed the lecture.

Paulock Girl Committed.

Mary Paulock, the servant girl arrested on a charge of theft preferred by her employer, waived examination when arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. She was committed to the county jail in default of $250 bail.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Maxwell Honeyman, of Webster place, are parents of a daughter, born to them on Monday.

BIKE THIEF'S CONFESSION

Peter Hansen, Would-be Suicide, Implicates Others in Many Stealings.

STILL UNDETERMINED TO DIE.

Rash Prisoner Closely Watched—Muskovitz Admits Taking Twelve Wheels.

Though he had the police on the anxious seat for awhile as to whether or not he was guilty as charged, Peter Hansen, the bicycle thief twice frustrated in his attempts to commit suicide, reached the conclusion last night that it was a forlorn hope to try and convince the police that he was being wrongfully accused. He according opened up to Charles Miller, the city court's Polak interpreter, who had been placed on guard over him, and made a complete confession of his part in the wheel stealing. He declared that he had gotten away with four machines in all, taken from in front of the following places: The Waldorf Hotel, the postoffice, Fred Ostrom's office in Watchung avenue near the Fourth street and Kesselring's barber shop on Park avenue. His attempt to get away with George W. Geary's wheel Saturday night is what led to his capture.

Hansen also told Miller that it had been the practice of himself, his brother, Albert Hansen, and Ignoe Muskovitz, to come to town from Dunellen every Saturday night and each pick up a wheel. They would sell them to their countrymen after changing the tires and various other parts so that those they couldn't dispose of could be hidden away. He gave the names of a number of men who had purchased machines from them and the police will probably get a few back. He also gave a Newark address where his brother, who fled Sunday, may probably be found.

Hansen is still determined to die because of the "disgrace of his arrest," as he terms it, and last night sought by various ruses to secure a knife or razor. Miller was compelled to watch him closely until this morning when he was removed to Elizabeth in company with Muskovitz. The latter has admitted stealing some twelve or fourteen Plainfield wheels since last September.

Schoolboy Pupils Quickly Found.

Joseph Corey, a farmer living at Mountainside, telephoned local police headquarters, last night, that two boys, claiming to reside in Plainfield, had asked permission to sleep in his barn until morning. They gave their names as John and James Ridgely. A little later officials from the Grossmann School called at the station and report that two pupils, James Ridgely and Bernard Johnson, had gone out for a walk and had not returned. They were sent to Mountainside and found the two barn-sleepers to be the pupils they were after.

Hugh Baldwin to Wed.

The wedding of Hugh G. Baldwin, formerly of this city, and Miss Abbie Caroline Oberthier, of Hendersonville, will take place tonight at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Baldwin is the son of A. C. Baldwin, of the late firm of Schepdin, Baldwin & Tweedy, who had a clothing house on West Front street about fifteen years ago. He is a graduate of Leal's School, but has now located permanently in the south-west, where he has business interests.

Miss Katie Moran.

Miss Katie Moran, for twenty years a faithful servant in the home of A. G. Thorn, of East Front street, died last Friday at the Home of the Divine Providence, at Ridgewood. She was a member of St. Joseph's church, of the borough, and had many friends in the city. Plainfields. The funeral was held in St. Joseph's church, Newark, yesterday, and burial was in the cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre.

"The Pocket on the Hearth."

The junior class of the North Plainfield High School will present "The Crimp in the Hearth," on Friday night, April 3, at the Casino. Miss Stutzberger, of the high school faculty, will coach the juniors for the production, which is to be followed by a dance.

Organist Charmed.

Edward W. Vail has been the organist of New Brunswick Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., for the past thirty years. Monday night the lodge presented him a handsome gold watch charm to him in appreciation of his faithful service.

Oral Argument In Lang Case.

Prosecutor Berdine, of New Brunswick, has received notification that the United States Supreme Court has declined to hear the appeal of Fred Lang, convicted murderer, on briefs, but will listen to arguments in court on April 6.

FARMER KILLS HIMSELF

Christopher N. Wilson Deranged When He Ended His Life by Hanging.

HAD PARTED WITH FARM.

Father of Mrs. Thomas E. Currin, Jr., and Mrs. Peter Saums Commits Suicide—In Prosperous Circumstances.

Christopher N. Wilson, a wealthy retired farmer of Millstone, and father of Mrs. Thomas E. Currin, Jr., of North Plainfield, committed suicide Friday by hanging himself in his bed, while the family was at breakfast. He tore his pillow-case into strips which he knotted about his neck. After making one end of the improvised rope fast to a bedpost he leaned out of his bed until strangled to death. He was found dead soon afterward by members of the family.

For a great many years Mr. Wilson was a prosperous farmer and owned considerable valuable land in Somerset county. Owing to advanced age he decided to dispose of some of the property at Millstone, and it is said, that the day he parted with the farm he suddenly became demented. Constant worry over the sale of land proved on his mind to such an extent that he was led to take his life.

Mr. Wilson was a highly esteemed citizen and for several years was tax assessor of Franklin Township. He was a veteran of the Civil War, serving in Co. K, 30th N. J. Vols. After the war he settled at Millstone, where he acquired considerable property and prospered. Besides Mrs. Currin, another daughter, Mrs. Peter Saums, of Somerville, who has many friends here, survives him.

VETERAN MISSIONARY SUCCUMBS TO DISEASE

Mrs. Fanny Bond, who with her husband, Rev. Lewis Bond, was a missionary in Macedonia, chiefly Monastir, Bulgaria, for thirty-eight years, died Friday at her home on Kensington avenue, aged seventy years, from a complication of diseases. Mr. and Mrs. Bond gave up their work abroad about two years ago, owing to advancing age and the ill health of Mrs. Bond, and returned to this city, where they made their home with their daughter, Mrs. G. P. Hinman, of Kensington avenue.

Mrs. Bond, whose maiden name was Miss Fanny Crandall, was born in New York. She was married to Mr. Bond about thirty-eight years ago in the Fifth Avenue Dutch Reformed church, New York, and soon afterward they went abroad as missionaries under the direction of the American Board of Foreign Missions of the Congregational church.

During their long service as missionaries, they returned home four times. They were also in Bulgaria about ten years when they were burned out during the Turkish-Russian War. They remained here but a short time, when they again returned to their field of labor. Despite the great difficulties which they lived as missionaries they were successful and were instrumental in bringing many souls to Christ. Mr. and Mrs. Bond were warm personal friends of Miss Stone, whose experience with the British brigands aroused such world-wide interest, and in many respects the two were co-laborers. Mrs. Bond was a woman of exceptional qualities, and an exemplary Christian, which was shown in her faithful service as a missionary. Her daughter, Mrs. Kennedy, who with her husband, Rev. P. H. Kennedy, known to many Plainfielders, is now at Salonica, waiting to engage in mission work in Turkey. Mrs. Bond is survived by a husband, two daughters, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. G. P. Hinman and one son, A. Russell Bond, the last two named of Plainfield.

Sardines Deserting France.

An unexplained phenomenon of sea life has caused great loss to the sardine fishers and packers on the west coast of France. The French sardines have long been known everywhere for the superior quality, but during the past season they seem to have deserted their favorite haunts, and most of the few caught have been too large for packing. No satisfactory explanation of the disappearance of the fish, upon which an extensive industry was based, has been offered. Some of the packers say that the fishermen themselves are to blame, because the price of bait, imported from Norway and Sweden, having increased, they neglected to strew it in the usual quantities over water, and thus the shoals of fish were not attracted to the coast.

Knew One of Them.

"Of course, Mr. Sophmore, you are familiar with all the great plays," remarked Miss Kulcher. "Now, do you consider Goldsmith's as clever as Sheridan's?"

"Goldsmith?" replied Sophmore. "He must belong to some minor college. Why, there isn't another halfback in the country that can touch Sheridan of our varsity."—Philadelphia Press.

JUST PUT RIBBONS ON YOUR GOWNS.

To break the monotony of black lace evening gowns a frill of pompadour ribbon is being used, just under the lace at the front.

This is a charming idea and one that will make black gowns appropriate as costumes for young women.

One French gown of black chiffon is entirely lined with pompadour silk, with a black background, and the roses showing with elusive color through the outer folds of the chiffon, makes the dress beautiful in the extreme.

The same idea may be carried out for a young girl in white, using either thin crepe, China silk or chiffon cloth as in outer covering. A wide belt of ribbon to match the lining makes a most girlish dress.

No more useful garment would be included in a trousseau for debutante or bride than a princess slip of pompadour silk. It is charming when worn under lingerie gowns in summer or under crepe and chiffon in winter.

The pompadour is also beautiful when lining an opera coat or cape. One of the newest evening capes is of pink panne velvet lined with flowered silk and bound all round by a band of velvet embroidered in pink and gold.

WOULD-BE CITIZEN SAYS ROOSEVELT MAKES LAWS.

The manufacturer of new citizens is in much less profitable industry now that the new procedure is under way. To begin with, the court sits in naturalization cases only once in three months and the applicants have to go through a grilling examination.

Asslan Canalsey Gregg turned the handle of the mill at New Brunswick and tripped up candidate after candidate.

"Who makes the laws for this country?" he asked Adam Canalsey, a Cartered Hungarian.

"Roosevelt," answered Canalsey with beautiful conviction.

"Is there no other governing power?" asked Judge Booraem, who believes in giving the applicants a little leeway.

"No," replied Canalsey.

The faith of John Remar, a Woodbridge Bohemian, in Mr. Roosevelt was also great. "What body makes the laws for the United States," asked the lawyer.

"Roosevelt," said John promptly.

"Who makes them for New Jersey?"

"The Chief Justice." Both of these cases were continued to the April session.

"Who is the Governor of New Jersey?" Andrew Kusac, of Woodbridge, was asked.

"The Judge," said the applicant, with a reverential look at his honor. Judge Booraem looked a little compassionate as he continued the case.

BIG GAME SEIZURE MADE; TO BE SOLD FOR STATE.

There will be a conference next Monday between the Fish and Game Commission and the Attorney-General as to what disposition will be made of the 17,000 plover and ruffed grouse seized Thursday by Wardens Herbert Dane, Fred Hall, James Bellingham and Edward Shorter, in the storage warehouse of the Merchants' Refrigerating Company, of New Jersey, at Second and Warren streets, Jersey City.

Under the former Commission, where seizures were made of this kind, it was the practice to return to the violators the game seized. Commissioner Simeon H. Rollinson contends that the birds become the lawful property of the State, and to give them back to the owners would be aiding a violation of the Fish and Game Laws.

The Commissioner's contention is that the birds should be sold at auction to the highest bidder by the Fish and Game Commission, and the proceeds be sent to the State Treasurer for the Fish and Game Fund.

Killing Bacteria With Electric Light.

It has been found that the bactericidal effect of the arc light is much superior to that of sunlight, because the very rapid ultra-violet radiation from the sun is absorbed by the atmosphere. A rapid oscillation high-tension arc, particularly when the carbons between iron points, gives off an abundance of ultra-violet rays of extremely short-wave length. Quartz is transparent to this light, of which it transmits 60 per cent., but gelatine and an oxide of iron, even a thin film of it, are entirely opaque. Ice is as transparent as air to these rays, but blood is opaque, and accordingly, in applying them to the human body, they are passed through ice, which is put upon the region affected so as to make it bloodless.

As Bait.

Mrs. A. (over 'phone)—Can you send me up to cook today, Mr. Dwyer? Head of Intelligence Office.—Sorry I can't accommodate you, Mrs. A., but we have only one in the office. Mrs. A.—But why mayn't I have her? Head of Intelligence Office.—Oh, we have to keep her as a sample!—Harper's Weekly.

It Followed.

The following question was asked a class of small boys who were studying Scripture history:

"Where did John the Baptist live?"

One small boy answered, promptly, "In the desert."

"Quite right," was the reply. "Now what are people called who live in the desert?"

"Deserters, sir," was the answer.

WHAT ABOUT A COOK-STOVE?

Now that summer time and "dog days" are just ahead, everybody who "summers" at home, is considering how to simplify things and get the most comfort out of an uncomfortable situation.

We interview the ice-man; order chin cherries; plan to eat up here and relax there; but more than likely forget the one most important item in the whole hot-weather scheme—some means of doing the family cooking without the inevitable heat of a coal fire in the kitchen.

Everyone with experience knows how tiresome it is to stay in a stuffy room to prepare a meal, let alone the doing of a big baking. But everyone doesn't know how very easy it is to change a hot kitchen to a cool one, and do better cooking at the same time. Just add to your list of summer conveniences a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove and you've done all that any one can do to lessen hot weather discomfort.

Doesn't it be fine of a summer morning to step in the kitchen, put on the kettle, broil the steak, bake the muffins, filter the coffee and give the breakfast call in one fourth the time you'd take to do it all on a coal stove?

And wouldn't it be fine to be as cool when the breakfast was prepared as when you first entered the kitchen?

People who have tried it say that the New Perfection Oil Stove actually does everything in the line of cooking and domestic service without overheating the room or the worker.

Undoubtedly the reason is to be found in the blue flame principle on which it burns.

A cylindrical chimney concentrates the heat at the stove top and in this way prevents surface radiation as in a coal or wood stove.

It is easy to see that this lessens very much the heat discomfort in summer housekeeping.

So don't forget the New Perfection Oil Stove in your summer plans and you will have a comfortable kitchen and the best cook-stove in the world.

SHOOTING WITH MORTARS.

How do we hit with the mortars? An observer near the shore who sees the target communicates the horizontal angle at which to lay the mortar and the instant of time at which to fire, and the gun does the rest. If you were standing at the centre of a large clock dial laid flat on the ground and wanted to hit twelve o'clock, and were walking around on the outside, you would notice how long it took the man to get from I to II and again from II to III. Then you would decide whether if the ball were thrown over a point halfway between III and IIII it would have arrived opposite IIII the man and the ball would reach the same spot at the same time, it being understood, of course, that he maintained uniform speed and direction and that the ball was thrown with proper force. The instruments give us the range and observations, and mechanical devices give us the range differences, increasing or decreasing by certain short intervals of time, too short for a ship of any size to change its position, and the range direction or speed. Our observer's circle has 36,000 divisions.—Captain Howell in Scientific American.

Carelessness of the Hens.

The Bridies had been in their new country house for scarcely a week before the girl who went out to hunt for strictly fresh eggs came back empty handed.

"Where are the eggs, Ellen?" asked Mrs. Bridie.

"Cure, mum, Of couldn't foind a wan."

"Did you look in the henhouse?"

"Yis, mum."

"And in the barnow?"

"Oi looked all over the place."

"And the manger?"

"They wasn't there, mum."

"Well, sometimes Henry collects the eggs in a basket and hangs it under the cow shed."

"Oi looked the basket, but it was limpty. Oi hunted all over the place and, high nor low, sorra a sign of thim eggs could Oi foind anywhere."

"Dear me," said Mrs. Bridie absently, "I hope they haven't been mislaid!"—London Scraps.

Paris Ever Famous.

Paris was a famous and cultivated city ages before Venice. If we search for them we may find it in historical associations that may vie with those of any city in the world except Rome and Constantinople, and even its antiquarian and artistic remains are seldom equaled or surpassed. At Rome, Florence or Venice the tourist talks of old churches, palaces and remains. At Paris he gives himself up to the boulevards, the theaters, shops and races. The profoundly instructive history, the priceless antiquarian remains of the great city, are forgotten carent quia vate sacra.—London Spectator.

The Ayes Had It.

There is a certain representative in congress whose secretary is a young lady. She is pretty, and she is as bright as she is good looking, being also the possessor of a pair of beautiful eyes. The other day she called on a cabinet official to ask a favor for a constituent. The grave and dignified head of the department looked at her and said:

"My dear young lady, I am afraid I cannot do what you ask, though your big brown eyes—"

Then the eyes knew it," quick as a flash the young lady said. And she got what she asked for.

SCIENCE AND ART.

A Storm as Pictured by the Weather Bureau and by a Poet.

In commenting on the fact that a person may be thoroughly equipped on the scientific side of music without being sensitive to its beauty as an art Gustav Kobbe in his book "How to Appreciate Music" quotes the will distinction which Edmund Clarence Stedman draws in his "Nature and Elements of Poetry" between the indications of a storm as described by a poet and by the official prognostications of the weather bureau:

Mr. Stedman gives two stanzas:

When descends on the Atlantic the gigantic

Storm wind of the equinox,
Landward in his wrath he scourages the toiling surges,
Laden with seaweed from the rocks.

And this stanzas by a later balladist:

The east wind gathered, all unknown,
A thick sea cloud his course before.
He left by night the frozen zone
And smote the cliffs of Labador.
He lashed the coasts on either hand,
And betwixt the Cape and Newfoundland,
Into the bays his armies pour.

All this impersonation and fancy are translated by the weather bureau into something like this:

"An area of extreme low pressure is rapidly moving up the Atlantic coast, with wind and rain. Storm centre now off Charleston, S. C. Wind N. E.; velocity, 4; barometer, 29.6. The disturbance will reach New York on Wednesday and proceed eastward to the banks and bay of St. Lawrence. Danger signals ordered for all north Atlantic ports."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped, try to improve matter by training, cuticle. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes. Then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to lengthen the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream. Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very dry.

Sage tea as a hair tonic may be made by mixing two ounces of dried sage and two ounces of green tea, then putting them into three quarts of water, boiling in an iron kettle. This should simmer until reduced to two quarts, then stand for twenty-four hours in the same kettle. Afterward strain and apply to the hair at night. It is a stain as well as a tonic.

After the infant has had his bottle or been fed it should not be put at once to lie down. Instead set it upright on the knee, carefully supporting the delicate little neck with one hand while with the other you rub gently up and down the spine for a few minutes. This treatment, which is now commended by experienced trained nurses, helps up the gas and lessens the tendency to colic and sickness.

To help reduce a double chin practice the following exercises: Stand erect in the military position. Place the hands lightly on the hips, fingers forward. Drop the chin slowly on the collarbone, then throw the head back with a quick, even movement—that is, not a jerk. Yet putting all the muscles into quick play. Repeat ten times. Turn the head quickly to the right till the chin is just over the right shoulder, then back again. Repeat ten times. Then turn the head to the left in the same way. Repeat ten times. Do not lift the muscles of the neck, but gradually increase the number of exercises daily until you can practice each one about fifty times without after discomfort.

Slang of the Army.

In the army there are expressions peculiar to itself. Heard for the first time by outsiders, they need interpretation. Among the most common are "hike" for "match," "striker" for a soldier serving as bodyservant or house man to an officer, "O. C." for "commanding officer" and "O. D." for "officer of the day," "hop" and "hoproom" for "dance" and "dancing room," "civ clothes" for "civilian dress," "commissaries" for "grocerie," "coffee cooler" for an officer who is always looking for an easy job in some staff position, "found" when an officer fails to pass his examinations and "shavetail" for a youngster just out of West Point. Among the soldiery the expressions have multiplied until quite a vocabulary of strange words has been established. "Bobtail" is a dishonorable discharge. "Orderly bucker" is a soldier who, when going on guard duty, simulates the greatness of appearance to be appointed orderly to one of the officers. "Dog robber" is the soldier's contemptuous expression for "striker."—Leslie's Weekly.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.
(OFFICIAL.)

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, March 5, 1908, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. Rolf call showed all members present except Freeholder Crowell.

The minutes of the previous meeting were on motion of Freeholder Cady, adopted as per printed copies on members desks.

Reports of Committees.

By Committee to settle with the surrogate:

To the Board of Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to settle with the surrogate, would respectfully report that they have audited the surrogate's accounts covering the period from November 15, 1907, to February 29, 1908, and find the same correct and the total amount received during that time to be $2,820.72, and the total disbursements $117.25, total balance paid to the County Collector $2,703.47.

CHARLES A. SMITH,
J. HERVEY JOANE,
BRADFORD JONES,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Robison, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Jail Inspection:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.

Your committee on jail inspection would respectfully report that they have visited and made thorough inspection of the jail, also the books of the warden.

For the month of February, 71 prisoners have been committed; 77 are now confined in the jail, 50 men, 7 women and 14 boys; average confined during the month, 71.00; number treated by jail physician, 26.

Your committee would also report, that during one of our tours of inspection, examination of the physician's report, we discovered that an advanced case of tuberculosis was being treated, and the patient was allowed to eat, drink and hold conversation in the jail corridor with the other prisoners. This particular case was one of tuberculosis of the glands of the neck, an open, running sore on the left side, making the case more serious. We are informed from reliable sources that cases of this kind, and many of a more infectious nature are given the same opportunity of imperiling the health of other prisoners, who from the fact of their being confined in the atmosphere common to a jail, are more susceptible to infection. This atmosphere is not affected. The lack of light and oxygen therefore is all in favor against the diseased or sickly ones. The prisoner mentioned above was in such a serious condition after the physician ordered him sent to the hospital. After a short time the hospital authorities sent him back to jail, refusing to keep cases of this character. Incidentally we are informed that the expense is $1 per day for a prisoner while in the hospital is $8 a day.

Your committee therefore would recommend that the Board take suitable action to ascertain the advisability and probable cost of providing suitable quarters in connection with the jail for the isolation of prisoners affected with contagious or infectious diseases, the same to be known as "Pesthouse," and also one room for female prisoners. The danger of infection, and the cost of keeping these prisoners in a hospital, we respectfully refer us in making these recommendations.

Respectfully submitted,

E. E. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY JOANE,
J. LOGAN FAYS,
Committee.

After some discussion, it was ordered that the report be received and referred to Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings, said committee to report back to this Board.

By Committee to report with State Aid Road on North Broad street and Elizabeth avenue, Union Township, etc.:

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee to whom was referred the above matter, would report that they have examined into the matter and made an examination of the situation with regard to the Street Railway Company, and the work which would devolve upon the Railway.

We find that the Street Railway Company is willing to remove its tracks to the centre of the railway, and is also willing to pave with stone blocks, the space between the tracks, also between the rails, and for eighteen inches outside of the rails the work to be done at the same time that the road is rebuilt.

Your Committee would therefore recommend the adoption of the resolution presented herewith concerning this matter.

JOHN W. CADY,
NOAH WOODRUFF,
HENRY KROMER,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, the report was received and placed on file.

Freeholder Adams, chairman of County Road Committee, reported progress on matter of Borough Resolution Re B. & O. Railway crossing on St. George's avenue.

IMITATING NATURE.

Natural Conditions Simulated at the Royal Botanical Gardens.

The most perfect imitation possible of the natural forces at their best has been sought in the artificial plant-growing at the Royal Botanic Gardens, in London, and B. M. Thwaite points out that the triple combination of water-screened electric light, electrostatic stimulus and highly-fertilizing atmosphere can be controlled in a wide range of experiments to show the maximum acceleration of growth and the highest quality of product.

Electricity, heat and actinic light, as well as carbon dioxide, moisture and nitrogen fertilizer in the form of ammonia sulphate, are all derived from coal. Perfect combustion is insured by bringing the fuel into gaseous condition by a producer-gas engine, and the gas engine gives power for electrical energy, while the water from the cylinder packet supplies heat for the glass house, and the exhaust gases are led through earthenware pipes to the plants, furnishing carbon dioxide, water vapor and gas and nitrogen in a heated condition. The power, heat, moisture and gases are easily controlled. The arc lights, with hood and water-screen, are slowly moved to and fro along the entire length of the glass house, and an electrostatic machine carries plants and roots as well as the air.

A Party Where Nobody Gossiped.

I went to a party last night
Where ever one looked his best—
The beetle in armor burnished bright,
The snake in a jacket laced with white,
The pink-eyed canker-worm and the snail,
And the toad in an orange vest.

The orchestra soon was heard
With a toot and a tum-it-tum;
And the bough of the blackthorn stirred
With a ripple of notes from a roguish bird,
Who pipped a song to his hashful wife,
While a bowlegged grasshopper played the fife;
And a bullfrog beat the drum.

What mallows and pinks were there,
And clover as good as June,
And rose-leaf cakes enough and to spare,
With honey-dew nectar everywhere!
And nobody gossiped or danced all night,
For nature at 7 put out the light,
And we all went home by the moon.

"The Lowest Order of Mind."

At a recent meeting of New England college presidents one of the most important of them all remarked that mental arithmetic did not train a child's mind and that a mathematician per se was incapable of moral reasoning. Mathematicians might take notice, remarks Harper's Weekly. "It reminds one," says the writer, "of Stiles—Stiles, the greatest of the Yale mathematicians of his time. He, indeed, held virtues as well as mathematics and was the graceful and learned editor of Garden and Forest, horticulturist editor of The New York Tribune and president of the New York Park Commission. Once he was for a long time—a very long time—and he was not himself then. He became convalescent he discovered that the mathematical was the lowest order of mind. He wanted to read; he tried poetry, and that would not do; nor would fiction or philosophy or history—but when he at last tried mathematics he found that his enfeebled mind could master that."

Balloons Need Pure Gas.

A writer in a contemporary states that he examined the envelope of a balloon which burst at the International Exhibition at Milan in 1906. A number of spots were visible on the envelope, and at these places the material could be easily torn, whereas at other parts it showed great resistance to tearing. These spots were found to have been caused by phosphoric and arsenic acid, produced by oxidation from arseniureted and phosphureted hydrogen contained in the hydrogen gas. The presence of these impurities is due to impure materials in the preparation of the hydrogen, and the author therefore recommends that the preparation of the gas for filling balloons should be under strict chemical control.

MADE PASTOR-EMERITUS

Trinity Reformed Church Appropriately Recognizes the Services of Dr. Schenck.

TO CALL ANOTHER PASTOR.

Dr. Schenck Will Draw An Annual Salary In His New Position—Congregation's Resolutions.

Considering the inclement weather there was a large attendance at the congregational meeting of Trinity Reformed Church Wednesday for the purpose of taking action on the resignation of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, who has been its pastor for more than twenty years. After a half-hour service of prayer the congregation resolved itself into a congregational meeting. Elder Robert Clark, Jr., was made chairman and Edgar F. Fisheppard occupied his position as clerk.

The question of electing Rev. Dr. Schenck pastor-emeritus was thoroughly discussed and it was the unanimous opinion that he should be so honored and that a suitable compensation should be made, thus recognizing his more than twenty years of faithful services as pastor. The following resolution was agreed to by a standing vote:

"That, of the fact that the Consistory has in hand the resignation of Pastor Schenck, it is our unanimous judgment to make the following recommendations to the congregation:

"First, that we sadly comply with his request to retire from active pastorate, and respectfully elect him pastor-emeritus, with an annual consideration.

"Second, that endeavor be made by the church to raise an additional sum for current congregational purposes, and extend a call to a new pastor.

"Out of sincere love and esteem for Pastor Schenck, and in remembrance of his long and faithful services for twenty-one years as our beloved pastor, these recommendations are submitted to the congregation for their present consideration and our future guidance."

Dr. Schenck will become pastor-emeritus after his resignation takes effect in October. The Consistory will take up the matter at its next meeting and go before the Classis of Newark April 15 to present the resignation and the appointment of Mr. Schenck as pastor-emeritus to the Classis for its ratification. Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson will continue to supply the pulpit until Dr. Schenck's successor is installed.

MEADOWVIEW KENNELS TAKE NUMEROUS PRIZES

The Meadowview Kennels, owned by Abram G. Hooley, of North Plainfield, were awarded many prizes at the dog show in Newark, Friday. The English setters taking nearly everything in that class. This is especially gratifying to Mr. Hooley as all of his dogs have been born and raised here. The awards to Mr. Hooley were as follows:

Novice dogs—first, Meadowview Don Limit, dogs—bred-by-exhibitor, Meadowview Owners, dogs—first, Meadowview Don Limit, bitches, first—Meadowview Beatrice. Open, bitches, first, Meadowview Lady Allister. Brace class, first—Meadowview Kennels. Winners, bitches, first—Lady Allister; reserve, Meadowview Beatrice. Team class, first—Meadowview Kennels.

HELD CHICKEN THEFT.

Colored Man Steals a Dressed Fowl from a Front Street Market.

Three colored men entered Fred Endress' meat market on West Front street at 8:15 Friday night and while one of them engaged the attention of a clerk in selecting a dressed chicken the other two ran looking about the place. Another clerk happened to glance up just in time to see one of the two slip a chicken under his coat and run out. Employes in the store gave chase but the thief had a good start and disappeared back of the small stores on Madison avenue just off Front street.

The chicken purloiner was described to the police as being a young man, about five feet six inches tall, slightly pockmarked and wearing a mustache. The other members of the trio disappeared while the excitement was on.

LAWRENCE'S GOOD WORK

Leal's School Athlete Wins All Points for Leal's Track Champions.

HE BREAKS THREE RECORDS.

P. H. S. Second and Westfield High Third In Annual Interscholastic Track Meet—Relay Race Close.

Though he was able to be about Thursday for the first time after an attack of the grip, Russell J. Lawrence, the Leal's School record breaker, won five firsts in the interscholastic track meet, establishing three new Plainfield interscholastic records and winning all the twenty-six points, which gave Leal's the school championship cup as winners of the fourth annual interscholastic track meet. P. H. S. finished second, with 19 points, and the Westfield High School got third honors with 18 points.

Lawrence's record-breaking work was in the three standing broad jumps, the standing high jump and the 12-pound shot put. His three jumps in the first event were a gross distance of 31 feet 4½ inches. The former record was held by himself, and was made in the interscholastic meet last year, when he did 29 feet 10 inches. Clark, of Westfield, who finished second in this event, cleared 28 feet 6½ inches. In the standing high jump, the Leal's School athlete again made the record figures look easy as he went by 5 feet 1¼ inches. He cleared the bar by a good margin, but would take no more trials. Clark, of Westfield, who again took second place, did 4 feet 5 inches. Stuart Freeman, P. H. S., and H. Welsh, W. H. S., held the former record of 4 feet 5½ inches, made in 1906. When it came to the shot put, Lawrence made the gallery dodge by tossing the 12-pound ball 46 feet ½ inch. This passed up his record of 38 feet 10 inches made in the 1907 scholastic meet, and Winkler, of Westfield, who won second place, did 35 feet 2¼ inches.

The relay race, which was the final event, brought second place in the track meet to the P. H. S. athletes, who won by about fifteen yards. The race was between the High School and the Westfield four. Miller, the first of the four runners for P. H. S., had a lead of about five yards on Breese, his closest competitor, at the end of the 440-yard run between the potato boxes, and this lead was held by Pryor, who ran second for P. H. S. Woodhull, who ran the third 440 for P. H. S., lost distance to Clark, of Westfield, but moved steadily away from Smith and was a good fifteen yards ahead at the end. The Leal's team was weak in this mile relay, but got the point for third place as the only other contesting team. The time was 7 minutes 17 seconds.

T. S. Class, of the Westfield team, made a record figure of 5 feet 1 in the running high jump, but the record does not stand because it was in the competition for second place. after Dey, P. H. S., had won the event at 5 feet, his record figure, held by Lawrence, who did not show in the event. The 15-yard dash, the first event, was closely contested, Lawrence finally landing first place. The heats were won by Murphey, P. H. S.; Delatour, W. H. S., and Lawrence, Leal's, and in the finals Murphey was a close second to Lawrence, while Delatour was the last to cross the line. The time was 2 2-5 seconds. The summaries of the meet follow:

Fifteen yard dash—First, heat won by Murphey, P. H. S.; second heat won by Delatour, W. H. S.; third heat won by Lawrence, Leal's. Final heat won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Murphey, P. H. S.; third, Delatour, W. H. S. Time 2 2-5 seconds.

Standing broad jump—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Murphey, P. H. S.; third, Morris, P. H. S. Height 9 feet 9½ inches.

Running high jump—Won by Dey, P. H. S.; second, Class, W. H. S.; third, Ham, W. H. S. Height 5 feet.

Three standing broad jumps—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Clark, W. H. S.; third, Murphey, P. H. S. Distance 31 feet 4½ inches. (Plainfield interscholastic record).

Standing high jump—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Clark, W. H. S.; third, Dey, P. H. S. Height, 4 feet 8¾ inches. (Plainfield interscholastic record).

Twelve pound shot put—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Winkler, W. H. S.; third, Otto, W. H. S. Distance, 46 feet ½ inch. (Plainfield interscholastic record).

One mile potato race. Four man relay teams)—Won by P. H. S., (Miller, Pryor, Woodhull, Murphey); second, W. H. S., (Breese, Marsh, Clark, Smith); third, Leal's (Rushmore, Duke, Dallas, Lawrence). Time, 7 minutes 17 seconds.

COLD FEET.

Where are the girls
Who, the year gone,
Watched for the glad
Leap-year to dawn?
Where are the men
That we heard said
Swift at the altar
Would be led
When leap year came
And made its bow?
Where are these young Folks anyhow

The girls we note,
Are girls till yet;
The bachelors
Don't seem to fret,
They don't scare at
A skirt a-la fron-frou,
Nor fly at sight
Of peek-a-boo;
And all are single
All are spared
It must be that
The girls are scared.

CURES FOR LOVE.

Sages and Writers With Widely Differing Prescriptions.

Absence is one of the means of curing love. Two thousand years ago Ovid advised his readers who wished to cure themselves of an unlucky attachment to flee the capital to travel, but not to sail the soil.

"Love," said Coleridge, "is a local anguish. I am fifty miles away and not half so miserable."

But other men have found that absence increases love. La Rochefoucauld insists upon the truth when he said that "absence destroys weak passions, but increases strong ones, as the wind extinguishes a candle, but blows up a fire." If the love is all fancy and has little strength it may be cured by personal contact with the object, but the safer plan perhaps is to keep out of the way; hence travel is a good expedient. Business perhaps is a better one. Ovid said, "If you desire to end your love employ yourself and you will conquer, for work is a business."

Still another expedient is reflection upon the unhappiness of married life. A man in search of this view can find it everywhere. Addison said that "beauty soon grows familiar to the pitiest look." But none of these men married happily. Goldsmith said, "Many of the English marry in order to have one happy month in their lives," and Colley Cibber, "Oh, how many torments lie in the small circle of a wedding ring!"

But undoubtedly the best way to get rid of one love is to have another. "All love may be expelled by love as poisons are by other poisons," says Dryden. Hope is another "The most effective antidote to woman is woman. In such a case the medicine is often more noxious than the malady, but it is at any rate a change, and in a diconsolate love affair a change in the inamorata is unquestionably the best policy."

GAPPING THE WIGS.

Official Visit of London's Lord Mayor to the Law Courts.

A curious survival of mediaeval custom is witnessed in London on every lord mayor's day. This is an official visit of the lord mayor to the law courts. In old times the sovereign himself awaited at Westminster the coming of the lord mayor in a chariot of state with sword bearer, mace holder, chaplain and gorgeously liveried coachmen and footmen. The forms have been changed, and the visit is now paid to the high court, but the spirit of the act remains, for the lord mayor opens his term in the Mansion House with a ceremonial involving the recognition of the supreme authority of the crown.

The instrument used for expressing this traditional idea is an old fashioned cocked hat. When the lord mayor in his splendid robes of office enters the high court with his retinue in costume no solemnity lifts his cocked hat three times from his head and salutes the lord chief justice and the justices.

The judges always wear robes and wigs when in court. For lord mayor's day they have also a flat black cap, which is placed over the top of the wig. The lord chief justice and his associates return the lord mayor's salute gravely, but do not take off their black caps. If they were to do this, they would place the crown on a level of equality with the municipality.

The lord mayor, with his retinue, then visits the judges in other courts to invite them to the Guildhall banquet. When the rustling noise of the procession is heard each judge fumbles in a drawer, pulls out a little square of black cloth and crowns his wig with it. The lord mayor takes off his three cornered hat three times, and the justice on the bench bows, but remains covered.—New York Tribune.

P. H. S. FIVE CHAMPIONS

President Gavett, of Y.M.C.A. Presents Championship Cup to School Team.

LEAL'S WON LAST TITLE GAME.

Defeated P. H. S. 24-23 Yesterday in Ladies Game—Champion Medals Given Out.

Awarded the championship cup as winners of the local interscholastic basketball league, the Plainfield High School five put the last league game with the Leal's School team at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, when the private school five was victorious by a score of 34-1. The big three-handled pewter tank, 12½ inches high, and appropriately engraved, was presented between the halves by President J. W. Gavett, of the association. The president spoke a few words congratulating the team on their record in the league play, and Walter Caldwell, captain of the school team, received the cup for the team and responded with a few words of thanks in behalf of the school. The individual medals awarded to the members of the championship team, were presented by Mr. Gavett and distributed to the members of the team on the floor by Caldwell. Those who receive the medals as members of the title-winning five are Caldwell, Doane, Snyder, Mortimer, Morris, Parsons and Robins.

*The high school boys played a list*less sort of game Wednesday, weakened by the absence of Caldwell, Doane and Morris from the line-up. Leal's, on the other hand, played fast ball all the time, scoring seventeen points each half. Martin scored eight baskets and Duke accepted seven chances from the foul line. At the end of the first half, the score was 17-14 in favor of Leal's, and they kept the pace through the greater part of the game. Snyder, of the high school five, scored four baskets, and Mortimer three. Snyder made good on seven chances from the foul line. The lineup and summaries:

P. H. S.—Murphy and Robins, forwards; Mortimer, centre; Parsons and Snyder, guards. Leal's—Dallas and Martin, forwards; Brown, Day, centre; Duke and Rushmore, guards. Field goals: Martin, 8; Snyder, 4; Mortimer, 3; Dallas, 2; Duke, 2; Murphey, 2; Robins, 2; Day. Goals from fouls: Duke, 7; Snyder, 7. Leal's awarded a point on technicality in the first half.

DEMAND THAT TERRILL ROAD BE MACADAMIZED

The residents of Fanwood and Scotch Plains desiring of obtaining road improvements in their part of the county have taken action to bring about the macadamizing of the road which is the dividing line between the township and city of Plainfield, which leads from the township to Mount St. Mary's College, the splendid structure occupying a site on the picturesque banks in North Plainfield.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Fanwood Township Committee and the following resolutions adopted by, that body will be sent to the Boards of Freeholders of Union and Somerset counties:

"Whereas the road known as Terrill road, which road is the dividing *line between the Township and Bor*ough of Fanwood and the City of Plainfield has never been macadamized and is in a bad state and condition;

And whereas in the opinion of this Board the interests of the Township of Fanwood and of the adjacent municipalities would be greatly promoted by the macadamizing of said road; and

Resolved that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union be and they hereby are requested to take such action looking to the macadamizing of the said Terrill road, from Green Brook to Raritan Road, and the adoption of said road as a county road, as said Board may deem proper under the State Aid Act.

Further resolved that the Clerk of this Board be and he hereby is requested to certify a copy of these resolutions and to present the same to the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Quartz Thermometers.

In France Mons. Dufour has succeeded in making thermometer tubes of pure quartz. Not only are these tubes exceedingly transparent, but their resistence to heat and other advantages make them superior to glass for thermometers intended to measure high temperatures. In such thermometers melted tin takes the place of mercury, and the scale reads from about 465 degrees Fahrenheit up over 1000 degrees. It could be run up to 1800 degrees, for quartz does not soften below that temperature.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION MARKS THIS WEDDING

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Stephens, 324 East Fifth street, Wednesday, their granddaughter, Miss Emma L. Esmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Emmons, of North Plainfield, was married to Jacob V. Coles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Coles, of Scotch Plains. The ceremony took place at 7 o'clock, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, officiating.

Mrs. Mary B. Frentz, of Summit, was matron of honor, and Lt. C. Bindell, also of Summit, was the best man. The bride was gowned in white silk and carried white sweet peas. The matron of honor also wore a gown of white silk and carried a bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony congratulations were showered upon the couple and supper was served. While the guest were enjoying the festivities of the occasion a company of friends called to surprise Mr. and Mrs. Stephens in honor of the thirty-ninth anniversary of their wedding. They were completely surprised having no intimation of the intended visit. They joined with the bride and groom in receiving congratulaiions and both couples received a great many handsome and useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens were married at Morristown thirty-nine years ago yesterday by Rev. C. Abbott French, pastor of the Presbyterian church of that place at the time. Mrs. Stephens, who was a native of Morristown, was Miss Emma L. Lopez. Mr. Stephens was born in Stanhope, *Morris county, but was living at Mor*ristown at the time. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Westfield and twenty-five years ago they came to Plainfield, where they have resided ever since. Mr. Stephens has been employed at the local postoffice for the past eighteen years as a letter-carrier, being the eldest in point of service. He is also prominent in G. A. R. circles, having been commander of Winfield Scott Post, No. 75, G. A. R. Mrs. Stephens is also active in the Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Post. By their marriage they have had two children, Charles Stephens, of Elizabeth, and Mrs. William B. Emmons, of the borough.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Coles left to enjoy a honeymoon in the southern part of the State. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the bride's grandparents on East Fifth street.

Among those at the double celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Coles and son, Fred, Miss Harriet V. Coles, Thompson C. Coles, Mrs. Horace Hand and son, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hand, L. C. Bunnell, Mrs. Mary B. Frentz, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Emmons, Miss Lydia Emmons, Miss Anna Emmons, John B. Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Stephens, Mrs. George Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Gus. Mobus, Mrs. Alfred Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. George Hoagland and daughter, Miss Bertha Hoagland, Mrs. John T. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Schmeyer, Miss Irene Sokol, Miss Emily Eckhardt, Miss Isabel Conover, Mrs. C. M. Meeker and daughters.

BUSINESS MEN'S FIVE END SEASON UNDEFEATED

As winners of the Local League of five basketball teams which have just completed their league schedule, the Business Men's five will receive their championship medals at the annual gymnasium contest of the association to be held April 16. The presentation will be President J. W. Gavett, of the Y. M. C. A. The Business Men won all of the eight games played.

Physical Director Lehman announced this morning that the following members of the Business Men's team will receive the medals: John H. Doane (captain), E. L. Jarvis, George C. M. Smith, F. O. Dunning, and George C. Klarr. The standing of the teams in the league follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Business Men	8	0	1.000
Leaders	5	2	.625
Baptists	3	5	.375
Rangers	2	6	.250

More Oratory Wanted.

The remark made by the prolix Scotch counsel when some one observed that he was "surely wasting a great deal of time" is among the wittiest of bar anecdotes: "Time! He has long exhausted time and has encroached upon eternity!"

It is seldom, to do the judges justice, that they encourage this failing in counsel. But in Cockburn's memoirs we are told how a dull and commonplace advocate was almost frightened out of his wits by an observation of Lord Meadowbank, who thought his style unpleasing: "Declaim, sir. Why don't you declaim? Speak to me as if I were a popular assembly."—St. James' Gazette.

COMMUTERS' CLOSE CALL

Jumped Over Dividing Fence at Netherwood Station in Front of Fast Express.

BARELY ESCAPED BEING HIT.

Were Taking "Short Cut" From Standing Train, a Practice Railroad Officials Have Sought to Discourage.

The practice of jumping over the dividing fence of the Central's tracks at the Netherwood station in order to avoid going around the subway after leaving westbound trains, came within a hair's-breadth of costing the lives of two commuters Friday night. Unaware of the approach of a "Philly" flyer" they sprang off the 5:53 express directly in the middle of the eastbound passenger track. The flyer was almost upon them and both men gave wild leaps for safety as the engineer jerked the whistle cord. One of them, wearing a light overcoat, fell as he reached the eastbound right track and was so badly frightened he did not regain his feet until after the train had passed.

The "Philly" is the one that passes the Plainfield station at a mile-a-minute clip at 5:45 but was running about 10 minutes late. It is generally on time and accordingly is beyond Netherwood before the 5:53 pulls in. The commuters have grown accustomed to a clear track for the express jump and this fact led to the near-collisions making the jump without looking. Both of them was any danger. Their identity could not be learned as they hurried away as soon as they recovered their composure.

Leaping over the fence has also been prevalent at the North Avenue station and the railroad officials have sought in vain to stop the practice. As a rule about a dozen men take the "short cut" at the arrival of all the incoming evening trains and the fact that none of them have been caught and to good luck more than management. Fatalities have been brought about in this way at Westfield, Cranford, Bayonne and other places along the line.

"DUTCH SUPPER" FOR THE DOMINIES' BENEFIT

Under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, a Dutch supper was given in Vincent chapel Friday night, the purpose of which was to raise funds for the entertainment of delegates to the conference to be held here the first week in April. Liberal patronage was accorded and the affair was considered one of the best given by the Epworthians. The chapel was appropriately decorated in true Dutch style, while the members of the league were picturesque in their Dutch costumes.

It was a "Dutch treat" for every one attending the affair. Various booths were arranged in the class room, where different dishes were served. Patrons were invited to visit them and make such selections for their supper as they desired, after which they would go to one of the numerous tables and eat. There was almost everything on the menu one would care for, from clam chowder to ice cream, cake and coffee, with all the trimmings. The chicken salad was particularly good and the demand far exceeded the supply, in fact everything was sold out at an early hour.

After the supper there was a musical program and "Mrs. Ruggles and her children" were shown in shadow pictures and pantomime by some of the young people. Miss Hope Irene Miller was "Mrs. Ruggles," and her children were Robert Becker, Frank Rowley, Jr., Arthur Slade, Charles Smith, Clarence Skiff, Kathryn Bingaman, Pauline Gates, Caroline Slauson and Charlotte Skiff. As the pictures were shown Miss Bertha Whitney read the story. Other features were selections by an orchestra and piano numbers by Miss Jubilee Rowley and Miss Mildred Burnett.

Miss Jubilee Rowley, in charge of the Epworth League, Miss Edna French, as chairman of the social committee, had general supervision of it. Those in charge of the booths and the waitresses were as follows:

Chowder, Miss Mattie Humble, Miss Caroline Shaver; tea, coffee and milk, Miss Meeker; Miss Geswein, Mrs. Chas. Geswein, Mrs. Joseph Dunham; bread and butter, Miss Helen Whitney, Miss Antoinette Aalholm, Miss Nan Wilson; baked beans and potato chips, Miss Minnie Ayres and Long; salad, Miss Frances Weed, the Misses Stowell, Harmon, Lake, Curtis, Beard and Martin; pie and cake, Miss Rose Irene Miller, Miss Katherine Slade, Miss Dibrow; ice cream, Mrs. Hoagland, Mrs. McGrath; meat, Mrs. Harold Whitney, Miss Margaretta Runyon; waitresses, the Misses Dorothy and Marion Lynn, Kathryn Smith, Helen Edgar, Hannah Bingaman, Hazel Moore, Edna Mosher, Mildred Burnett, Gertrude Pryor and the Misses Beekman. The flowers for the affair were donated by Mrs. L. J. Denton.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY

Published at

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1908.

It is a matter of conjecture what good purpose W. W. Suydam thought he was serving when he fathered a resolution in the Common Council for the police to clear the streets of "loiterers." If he is at all acquainted with existing conditions in this city, he should have knowledge of the fact that a big majority of the taxpayers who are guilty of this offense (?) are honest toilers who have been thrown out of employment temporarily by the existing hard times. They are not as a rule loafers, but good men who have not the means to enjoy club life and other forms of amusement while the financial depression lasts. It is safe to say that very few of them obstruct the pavements and that none of them would be guilty of coercion in manner, inasmuch as they are feeding any person. These facts are known to the police and could have been learned by Mr. Suydam had he consulted with the head of the police department. They could have been learned if he had discussed the subject with the chairman of the Council's police committee, who if it seems was the proper person, if any, to introduce such a measure. It is a pity, indeed, that the city fathers acted so hastily in passing so entirely an uncalled for resolution just at this time.

ANNEXATION'S FATE.

That politics will defeat the passage of the proposed referendum annexation and consolidation bills, should the Bi-municipal Consolidation Commission, cause their introduction at the present session of the Legislature, is freely predicted. Practical politics and personal animosities were instrumental six years ago in the victory won at the polls by those then opposed to the scheme and the same will be in store, it is generally believed, if the proposition is brought before the Legislature this year.

Dwelling on this phase of the scheme, the Newark Evening News, which like any other commonsense newspaper, favors the idea, says:

"There ought to be a Greater Plainfield created by the consolidation of that city and the borough of North Plainfield, for these two municipalities are now practically one for every respect except the fact that they have two governments and are located in different counties. The attempt has been made in the past to unite them, but it has resulted in failure because of political conditions, and it is likely to fail again for the same reason when the bill now being drawn by former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins is introduced in the Legislature, probably next week. This measure provides for consolidation, and also for the annexation of North Plainfield, more a portion of Somerset county, to Union county, and it has the indorsement, it is believed, of a majority of the residents of both places.

But the carrying through of this project this year would be apt to endanger the success of the Republicans of Somerset county, and there's the rub. There are Senators to be elected from both Somerset and Union next fall, and the party in control of the Legislature is not likely to do anything that will endanger the success of their candidate, who will probably be Senator Frelinghuysen. Last fall the Republicans, on the vote for Governor, carried Somerset by only 163 plurality, as Fort received 3,542 and Katzenbach 3,379. At the same election, North Plainfield gave Fort a plurality of 214, and had the returns of that municipality been eliminated from the county returns, Somerset would have gone for Katzenbach by fifty-one plurality. It is questionable, even in a Presidential year, if Somerset will surely do better for a Republican Senatorial candidate than it did for Fort, and so with North Plainfield taken from the county the latter would be in the gravest danger of being surely Democratic next November.

"It is for this reason that Senator Frelinghuysen can be counted upon to oppose the annexation of North Plainfield to Union county, and he will undoubtedly be given support by the State leaders and a majority of his fellow-members of the Senate. It is reported that Senator Ackerman, who is also a candidate for renomination this year, will, on the other hand, do his best to bring about the passage of the measure. From a political point of view, it would be a great advantage to him to have the measure enacted into law, as it will fall the Republicans carried Union county on the Governorship by 815 plurality, and if the county had contained North Plainfield, these figures would have been swelled to 1,020. That is none too wide a margin, figure on this year when matters political are so unsettled, and Senator Ackerman would undoubtedly feel safer if North Plainfield were in his county. He can, therefore, with good grace work for the passage of the bill and he can use the argument that the best interests of the people of the two places demand consolidation. When it is merely a question between the interests of the people and the interests of the politicians, however, in a case like that of the Plainfields, the public usually takes a back seat, and that is probably what will happen in this instance."

AMUSEMENTS.

The splendid acting of Charlotte Walker and Frank Keenan in "The Warrens of Virginia," at the Belasco theatre, has been compared by such eminent critics as William Winter to the highest standards of the American stage, and many of the idle actors now in New York attend the performance of the superb production which Mr. Belasco has given the stirring drama of Old Dominion in order to witness not only a striking and effective play, but such acting as is rarely seen at a New York theatre nowadays. The theatre is crowded each performance, and curtain calls are the order after the strong climaxes and forceful situations in which the play abounds. The curtain on the first act never rises but the audience breaks into applause at the realistic beauty of the scene.

Charles Frohman and Henry Miller present "The Servant in the House" at the Savoy theatre. The piece is a drama in three acts, modern in manner, classic in structure, and loveless in story, by C. Rann Kennedy. The author is the husband of Edith Wynne Matthison; the nephew of C. Rann Kennedy, the famous translator of the classics, and is remembered by some for his acting on "The Doctour" in the morality play made celebrated by his wife's performance of "Everyman," Mr. Miller does not act in the play. The company, known as "The Henry Miller Associate Players," includes Edith Wynne Matthison, Tyrone Power, Walter Hampton, Arthur Lewis, Charles Dalton and Mabel Moore. This is understood to be the first of a set of plays that will be offered. It is playing to "S. R. O." houses.

Proctor's theatre, Newark, for week of March 23. The stellar feature will be the initial vaudeville appearance here of Josie Sadie Buncland and Dorothy Door, in a condensed version of Grace George's success "Divorcons." Ella Snyder and her dancing boys present a well dressed singing and dancing turn. Stuart Barnes will tell in his inimitable way original stories, tells how they do things "in Vod-vil." The Josetti Troupe, six in number, will astonish and please with marvelous skill and daring in acrobatic feats. Zaretzsky Troupe are an aggregation of Russian dancers who introduce all the whirlwind gyrations peculiar to this style of dancing in an entertaining manner. Jack Reidy and Elsie Currior present one of the best singing acts in vaudeville. Gilbert and Katen, newcomers here, will enliven the bill with parodies on the latest songs in Hebrew dialect. The Musical Avians appear in a refined and up-to-date musical act. A new film of animated pictures will complete the bill.

The season's latest novelty in the world of entertainment is offered for the amusement of New York theatregoers, the Shuberts producing Clyde Fitch's new comedy entitled "Girls" at Daly's theatre. The subject of girls is one that has been of interest ever since the world began and their many attempts to go their way through life independent of man and his moral and financial support has probably caused more to be written and spoken pro and con than any other subject that has engaged public attention. In "Girls" Mr. Fitch has taken hold of the subject in a most entertaining and instructive way, and the comedy tells us the story of four girls of education and refinement who come to New York to live bachelor lives, depending only upon their own efforts to win success. They live the studio life and we are shown the girls in all the glory of "independence," asserting their rights and equality with mere men. Mr. Fitch has found in the girls, for a flash of permitting the curtain to fall with them unhappy, he lets us see the right man in the right place, taking charge of the girls, who, after all, are just like the rest of their sex, ready to succumb when the man comes along. It is expected that Broadway will have something to talk about for months to come when "Girls" stars its campaign at Daly's.

Speaking of "The Merry Widow," today in different parts of the world, particularly at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York, one hundred Sonias are merrily dancing "The Merry Widow, and as many Prince Danilios are waltzing in the widely scattered theatres of the world. From the Ural mountains to Chicago, from Christiania to Cape Town, "The Merry Widow" is being played, and it is said that the role receives treatment in this country quite different to that received abroad. The acting of the American Sonias is more circumspect and less cheerful than the original Sonia was Frauline Guenther, who has played the role continuously in Vienna for two years. She would not fulfill our idea of the widow, because she is stout and rather slow of movement, but she is a wonderful voice, and affects a dreamy sort of language that has given her great success. In Hamburg, Marie Ottermana, a woman who looks much like Frauline Guenther, and who is, perhaps, even a better singer, is credited with unusual success. The London Sonia is Lillie Elsie, a strikingly beautiful English girl, fair, tall, lithe and graceful. She is celebrated as the ideal, sentimental Sonia. Ethel Jackson, who is playing the widow in New York, has been described as nakedly simple in her acting, and one enthusiastic young writer said that she was Venus Victrix come to life.

NEARLY A HERO.

The new Shubert production, "Nearly a Hero," in which this enterprising firm is starring Sam Bernard at the Casino, New York, has proved to be one of the biggest finds of the season, and with three such exceptional productions as this one, Lew Fields at the Herald Square theatre and Williams and Walker at the Majestic, backed by the glories of the seven hundred voice chorus at the Hippodrome, the Shuberts are setting a pace that will not be approached for many seasons. The new vehicle in which Mr. Bernard is being starred is from the Casino staff, and all the atmosphere of that famous theatre's best days. The girls are plentiful and lovely to the eye, the gowns are the most richly designed and executed seen on that stage in years, and the whole atmosphere of the production is one of gorgeousness in staging and equipment which would do credit to the record of any theatrical producing firm.

Rawson Twp Takes a Wife.

Albert W. Rawson, one of the Rawson twins, of Hilladale, a grandson of Laura Keene, the actress, who was on the stage at the time President Lincoln was assassinated, has married. His bride was Miss Jessie Tompkins, daughter of the late Mrs. George W. Tompkins, proprietor of the Hilladale Manor House. The bridegroom will conduct the hotel.

PRESENT GOOD PROGRAM AT THIS ENTERTAINMENT

About 125 people enjoyed the musical and literary entertainment given in Trinity Reformed church Monday night by the quartet choir of the church, comprising Miss Etta Rayhert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; H. S. Butler, bass, and E. D. Young, tenor; assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, of Brooklyn, elocutionist. The affair was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society and was a success in every respect.

An excellent program was arranged, and the various numbers by the quartet, as well as the solos, were greeted with hearty encores, to which the singers generously responded. Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist of the evening. The work of the vocalists demonstrated the care and training given under the direction of Arthur L. Tilsworth, organist and choirmaster of the church.

The program opened with a quartet selection, "Parting Kiss," by Pinsuti, which was followed with a bass solo, "Tis Love," by Frederick Oliver, by Mr. Cutter. He was in fine voice and his singing delighted everyone as was shown by the very hearty applause accorded him. Miss Roberts then gave two numbers, "Rosa," a pathetic Italian story, and "Tit Gee-Gee," with musical accompaniment. The first selection was original and both called for an encore. She at once won favor with the audience and during the evening she was repeatedly called back.

The next number was a soprano solo, "Sweet Maiden," by Parker, by Miss Rayhert. Her attractive voice was heard to the best advantage and in response to an encore she gave an old favorite selection.

"On the Beach" was the title of a tenor solo by Edmund D. Young, which he gave in good style, responding with an encore. Miss Roberts was again given a cordial reception when she gave an original selection, "The Shop Girl," being typical of an every day scene in one of the large department stores. The second number was an imitation of a young woman practicing her music lesson, which was exceedingly clever.

Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto, gave two numbers, "Slave Song," Terese del Riego, and "Dreams," Starr, with a pleasing selection for an encore. She has a voice of great sweetness and strength and her singing was much enjoyed.

A feature of the program was a duet, "Ich Fukle Deinen Odem," Hoffman, by Miss Raybert and Mr. Cutter, which called forth hearty applause. Miss Roberts again favored the audience with some of her best selections and it was with regret on the part of the audience that her part of the evening's entertainment was concluded.

The final numbers were "Kate," Hawley, and "All Through the Night," Damrosch, by the quartet, which were well received and a fine program. In the arrangements for the musicale Mrs. L. B. VanCamp and Mrs. George W. Cole assisted in the attractive decorations about the platform.

Brooksides to Open Season.

The Brooksides will start the baseball season on Saturday, March 28, when a game will be played with the Juniors on Hope Common. The line-up the Brooksides will be as follows: Catchers, T. Mullin, School; pitchers, Conshay, Stoltz; first-base, Rutledge; second-base, Elliott; short-stop, W. Mullin; third-base, Connelly; left-field, Harney; centrefield, Howe; right-field, Conshay and Stoltz.

MONTCLAIR CITIZENS SCORE SCHOOL BOARD.

At the public hearing held in Montclair Hall Saturday night an attempt was made to adopt a resolution censuring the Montclair Board of Education for criminal neglect in not adopting safeguards against danger of fire and panic at the public schools of Montclair. The calmer counsel of some of the four hundred men and women present prevented such severe condemnation, and the resolution introduced by Charles Whiting Baker was finally adopted, urging the School Board to take immediate action to reduce the danger of fire, panic and disease in the local schools and calling for the appointment of a committee to make an investigation of the buildings and bring the defects of construction to the notice of the Board.

The meeting Saturday night was called for the purpose of hearing the report of a committee of prominent citizens, appointed at a meeting held in Unity Hall, on March 9, to act in bringing about an adjustment of the differences that existed between the Town Council and the Board of Education and prevented the erection of the much needed Grammar School. The committee, while it has not achieved any definite results, has been informed that the Board of Education has prepared new plans for the building, and that the situation now appears favorable for the early commencement of the construction of the new school, which will cost over $200,000.

Lack of proper fire protection at the schools was brought up at the meeting by George De Cunha. There were talks on the subject by Messrs. Starr J. Murphy, Frederick W. Bates, George W. Murray, F. W. Holloway, James Owen and others. All favored immediate action by the Board of Education in removing the dangers which Mr. Da Cunha declared have made death traps of some of the schools, but they opposed the adoption of a resolution offered by Ezra Fitch, censuring the School Board for criminal neglect, and favored the resolution, which was finally adopted. The discussion of the subject was very warm. F. Gordon Smith read the report of the fire inspector of the city of New York, whom he had employed to visit the schools, and this report confirmed Mr. Da Cunha's statement of the dangers at the school. Great interest was taken in the meeting, and many women were present. Decatur M. Sawyer presided.

WANTS EQUAL NUMBER OF CHURCHES AND SALOONS.

The Rev. Albert von Schlieder, pastor of the fashionable Dutch Reformed church, of Montclair Heights, is of the opinion that the ratio of the churches to the population of Montclair should be the same as that of the saloons—one for every fifteen hundred people.

The Rev. Mr. von Schlieder says there are too many churches in the town. He declares that of the twenty-one that are now supported here eight could safely be dispensed with. The ministers of the eight churches are all that the town requires, Dr. Schlieder declares.

There are eight saloons in Montclair, and it is said that the excise committee of the Town Council intends reducing the number to seven. If there is a municipal opinion of the churches it is likely that the town will continue to have what Dr. von Schlieder believes is a surfeit of religious ministration. Dr. von Schlieder says:

"We spiritualty comes from the constant struggle to keep bills and salaries paid, creating an apparent necessity for fairs, suppers and other parasaical claptrap to maintain the gospel, giving education to the young as a side issue, and finally failing forth a few, who, from the evidence of financial ability, are qualified to become pillars of the church. Haughty thoughtlessness is the struggle to compete through pulpit power. What are the floating church populace which flocks to hear the latest voice and remains only until the next advertisement. And witness the effort of the faithful to attract that some may return and abide.

"We genuine ministers are not the real soul savers; they are the other pastors, whose work is individual. Selfish individualism is created by the above conditions in breeding the odious church boss, who spends time, money and breed the devil in our churches. The people who are responsible for these thirteen unnecessary churches in Montclair are responsible for thirteen men dwarfing their powers and indirectly encouraging the most influential hypocrisy, namely, ministerial."

Killed by Engine in Jersey City.

Edward Simon, forty years of age, of No. 92 Pacific avenue, Jersey City, was run over by a drill engine at Van Horn street crossing, in Jersey City early yesterday morning, and almost instantly killed. He was crossing the track and did not see the engine approaching. He leaves a widow and three children.

Camphorated Oil.

This is splendid for cuts, bruises, sore throat bunions and lame backs. Put a pint of kerosene into a quart bottle, add all the gum camphor it will dissolve and shake until the camphor is taken up by the oil. Then mix with it half pint of sweet oil and 5 cents worth of laudanum. Shake vigorously before using.

ACKERMAN ON C. S. BILL

Union's Senator Explains the Real Purpose of Measure He is Fathering.

WHEREIN IT WILL BENEFIT.

Favors a Non-Partisan Civil Service Commission—People's Business Is Most Important.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, father of the Civil Service measure bearing his name, in talking of the provisions of his bill says:

"A Governor of New York said once, in speaking of the Civil Service regulations in New York, where they had been in force fourteen years: 'Now that we have it embodied in the constitution of the State, it is deemed by the people that appointments in the various civil divisions of the State shall be according to merit and fitness, so far as practical, to be determined by examinations, and those examinations, to be practical, to be competitive. In my opinion, there is no clause in the constitution since those great clauses embodying our fundamental rights were written which is of greater importance to the maintenance of high standards of administration than the clause relating to the Civil Service.'

"I understand that, wherever Civil Service laws have been enacted, no serious efforts have been made to secure their repeal, and they have proved to be both economical and efficient. The object of Senate bill No. 6 is to benefit all the people, not to hurt them, for it means a fair show for everybody. It means a square deal to those holding and seeking employment in the public service.

"The suggested law for New Jersey is based on the principle of merit and fitness. It expressly states that no question in any examination shall relate to political or religious opinions or affiliations. It also provides that such examinations shall be practical in their character, and shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the relative capacity of the persons examined to discharge the duties of the position to which they seek to be appointed. The examinations are to be in such locality or localities as will most readily provide an opportunity for all citizens of the State or to all citizens of any municipality that may apply for provisions of the act. Do these things look like theories, or are they common sense and practical propositions?

"Take the case of the unskilled laborer. Vacancies in the labor class shall be filled by appointment from lists of applicants and preference in employment shall be given according to the date of application—and the only examination in this class refers to age, residence, physical condition, ability to labor, sobriety, industry, capacity and experience in the trade or employment for which he applies. The laborer is protected in his subsequent employment in the public service the same as the other branches of the service. Is there anything fanciful about this plan? Is it unbusinesslike?

"The object of Senate bill No. 6 is to have the business of the State—and it is a detailed business proposition of serious and lasting value to the people—conducted as well as it can be conducted, and with a degree of efficiency equal to the highest commercial standards. While primarily the object of the act is not to protect a class of people who happen to be engaged in the State's service, yet it is only fair, equitable and proper that those who are now doing excellent service in the line of their offices or employments, and shall not be removed except for cause, as provided in the act. Is this an unreasonable proposition?

"Criticism is something made that the Civil Service laws created a non-efficholding class, but the statistics of changes where the laws are in force indicate that just the reverse is the case.

"That is to say, the separations from the service are numerous, owing chiefly to the attractions and better opportunities in commercial fields—or this reason it is important that faithfulness and efficiency should be recognized and rewarded in the public service, and that those who distinguish themselves in public work should be promoted just have a reasonable security in their tenure of office.

"There is no business more important than the people's business, for it relates to records and documents of great value to the people, individually and collectively, and to transactions involving millions, and it should be conducted on the most systematic, economical and efficient basis. Who can successfully impeach this proposition?

"I don't think the commission should be an elective body, for it will have nothing to do with the political policy of the State and ought not to have anything whatever to do with politics on a political campaign. The same argument would apply to electing by popular vote the State Board of Assessors or any other similar body, which should be absolutely separated from politics.

"It would also be necessary to hold a State convention in order simply to nominate one Civil Service commissioner. I don't think such an expense would be warranted. If possible, I would like to see the commission a non-partisan body."

ON THE APOSTLES CREED

Rev. Dr. Herring Takes "I Believe" as First Topic for Series of Talks.

IT HAS DEFINITE MEANING.

First Two Words Tell of Kind of Belief One Is to Have in God's Revelation.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church began Sunday a series of twelve Sunday evening discourses on "The Apostles Creed." The treatment of the various themes will be practical and personal application will be made. Last night the topic was "I Believe."

In part Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"This much of the Apostles Creed shall be our topic for tonight—I believe. I think that this part of it alone should be sufficient to hold our attention for one sermon. These are the first words of the oldest and simplest of the great creeds of the church.

"For two thousand years men have been uttering this creed as their response to God's revelation of Himself. We know that the outlines of this creed were in existence in the second century but who wrote the creed is a problem. It certainly is a most excellent summary of Apostolic teaching.

"The first thought of the creed is not an 'affirmation of God' but an affirmation of man.' It is not 'God spoke,' but 'I believe.' The Bible is God's word to man. The Creed is man's answer to God. A man's creed presupposes his faith. His creed is the embodiment of his faith.

"Every man believes something, and a very definite something, and he shapes his life accordingly. He believes in living rich or he believes in making rich or he believes in political ambitions. He doesn't put this faith on paper but it is very evident what his ideals are.

"It is sometimes said that it makes no difference what a man believes if he is only sincere. Now sincerity is a great thing but a man's belief make the man. His whole life is shaped by his practical faith.

"It helps a man to have a definite creed to which he gives his hearty assent. Don't let it be too short for in that case they shut out a part of God's necessary truth. Don't overestimate one part of God's truth to the obliteration of another. The Apostles Creed presents the great truths of the Christian faith in harmonious relation. You believe in Christian Science. Well and good. I believe some parts of that, but you deny the forgiveness of sins, which runs like a scarlet thread through the whole Bible. Your Christian Science is not Christianity for it omits the essential truth of Christianity. But the first two words of the Creed tell me of the kind of belief I am to have in God's revelation.

"It is 'I believe in.' Believe in what? Believe in God and all his revelation. That is something more than an intellectual belief. It means that there are realities above our temporal experience, that the eternal God who never changes is your refuge, and that underneath you through time and eternity are the everlasting arms."

LOCAL TRUST COMPANY ON A ROLL OF HONOR

The current supplement to The Financier, a financial publication of New York, contains a roll of honor of trust companies of the United States for 1903, carefully prepared from the latest data available, and publishes a list of 239 companies with surplus and profits in excess of capital. The Plainfield Trust Company ranks 72d in the honor list with a capital of $100,000, surplus and profits, $151,507 and a percentage of $151.51 of surplus and profits to capital.

The fact that The Plainfield Trust Company has a place on the honor roll with the leading institutions of this character in the United States speaks well for the management, because it puts the stamp of solidity and prosperity on the institution and again because position on the honor roll cannot be bought. It is an absolute requirement that surplus and profits be larger than the paid-in capital to be enrolled. As a rule but few in our State are entitled to such honor and those fortunate to be listed in the class by themselves and knowledge of such standing is a guarantee and assurance to local patrons or to bank correspondents that they are doing business with the best bank in the locality and people love to deal with strong concerns.

Ex-Presidents Honorary Senators.

Mr. Coudrey, of Missouri, in Congress on Saturday, introduced a bill providing that all ex-Presidents of the United States shall become honorary members of the United States Senate for life, and as such shall receive a compensation of $25,000 per annum.

CONFERENCE'S CAMPAIGN

Visiting M. E. Ministers Plan to Conduct Meetings in all the Shops.

ALSO AT RESCUE MISSION.

Preachers Assigned For Special Evangelistic Services During First Week In April.

In connection with the sessions of the Newark Conference to be held here April 1-7, a number of special meetings have been arranged in which members of the conference will take part. There will be services every night at the Plainfield Rescue Mission at 8 o'clock, the topics and speakers being as follows:

April 1, "Why I Believe in God," Rev. J. B. J. Rhoades; 2, "Why I Believe in Prayer," Rev. William Redheffer; 3, "Why I Believe in Salvation;" Rev. Wilbert Westcott; 4, "Why I Believe in Christ?" Rev. R. J. Watkins; 5, Why I Believe in the Bible?" Rev. C. H. Powers; 6, "Why I Believe in Heaven?" Rev. John Bovenizer.

The same subjects as above on the same dates will be used at service to be held at the Salvation Army by these speakers: Rev. D. B. Tompkins, Rev. W. H. Hampton, Rev. C. S. Kemble, Rev. J. H. Howard, Rev. Thomas Hall, Rev. M. E. Grant.

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. shop meetings will be held at noon as follows:

Thursday and Friday, April 2 and 3, Scott Press Works, speakers, Rev. W. H. Morgan and Rev. R. B. Urst; Saturday, April 4, Quincey-Manchester-Sergeant Co. shop, Rev. C. S. Mead; Monday, April 6, Scott Press Works, Rev. F. C. Baldwin; Tuesday, April 7, Manganese Steel Safe Works, Rev. A. H. Lucas. A conference quartet, comprising Revs. F. I. Hubach, C. S. Kemble, D. E. Davis and H. E. Andariese will sing at these services.

On Sunday afternoon, April 5, at 4 o'clock, meetings will be held for boys and men at the Y. M. C. A. Rev. J. H. E. Shultz will address the boys and Rev. C. L. Mead the men. Dr. Henry A. Buttz, president of Drew Theological Seminary, at Madison, will be the speaker.

Bicycle Thieves Rounded Up and Two Members Landed in Jail.

PRISONER ESCAPES BY FLIGHT.

Wheels Stolen Here Recovered and Many More Found to Have Been Sold.

As the result of an arrest made Friday night, Detective-Sergeant Flynn, of the local police force, yesterday unearthed a gang of bicycle thieves who have been stealing wheels in Plainfield by the wholesale. Two prisoners are now at headquarters and another member of the band is fugitive, while eight machines also have been recovered and are now awaiting claimants. Found evidence the officer obtained it is believed has been stolen and sold many other wheels within the past few months.

The thieves now in custody are John Mruskoevic, twenty-three years old, and Peter Hansen, twenty-two years, both living at Dunellen. The latter was captured by Patrolman Meisser just after he had stolen a wheel on Park avenue Saturday night, and the latter was caught through the detective-sergeant's working up Mruskoevic's record. Both were arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning and were held in $200 bail to appear before the Grand Jury. Mruskoevic admitted his part in the thefts but Hansen protested innocence.

Mruskoevic's arrest was brought about by his making off with a wheel belonging to Nicholas Thul, of Rahway road, as he was buying a pair of tires in Willett's place on Park avenue. When the owner came out and discovered the machine had been taken he informed Patrolmal Nolan. While he was giving a description of the two miscreants friends came up and hooted what was said, both stating that they would keep a watch out to help get it back. One of these friends was Clinton Noe, of Kensington avenue, and a little while later as he passed Stekler's saloon on Front street he saw a wheel that resembled Thul's description standing at the curb. He hastened back to the owner and Thul returned with him, the latter identifying the machine as his property.

The two men kept a watch and in a few minutes Mruskoevic came out of the saloon and jumped on the wheel, but before he had gone a few feet Thul and Noe pulled him out of the saddle and clung to him. They yelled for the police and Patrolman Meisser ran up. When the case was explained to him he took Mruskoevic to headquarters.

The prisoner refused to say anything at first, but finally admitted that he lived in Dunellen and Detective-Sergeant Flynn went there yesterday to see what could be learned about him. He found that Mruskoevic was employed at a Polak place near the Lehigh & Garrigues works, the proprietor stating that the accused man had the habit of bringing bicycles home every time he went to Dunellen. He added that a friend of Mruskoevic's who formerly boarded with him did the same thing and he could not tell because he had lost track of the being stolen and sold. This fellow, he said, was Hansen.

Hansen went out on a new tack and located Hansen at Joseph Sirisky's boarding house on Front street, Dunellen, opposite Taylor's hotel. He had just completed a deal to sell a boy's wheel for $5 when the officer stepped up to him and under arrest. Sirisky pointed out several machines that had been brought to the place by Hansen and more were located at Mruskoevic's boarding house, all of which were brought here.

After pressing to this morning's session of court, George W. Geary, of the ground, appeared at headquarters and told of an attempt to steal a bicycle belonging to him, Saturday night. It was taken as he was buying a meal at Roth's shop on East Front street and as he came out he thought he saw a man riding away on his wheel. Then he discovered that his machine was missing he set out on a run after the fellow he noticed pedaling away and caught up with him just beyond Somerset street. He jerked the thief from the seat but he broke loose and a chase up Front street followed, a big crowd joining in the pursuit. Geary became tired of running and followed the fleeing man to Central avenue and Second street where he disappeared. Geary was unable to get a call to get at Hansen he declared without any hesitation that he was the one who had tried to steal his machine.

The wheels now at headquarters and which the police wish to restore to their owners are described as follows: A Cleveland, black frame; a Yale, blue frame; a Miami, black frame and fitted with coaster brake; a Colvert, black frame, red head and coaster brake; a Butler, black frame and coaster brake; a Spalding, blue frame; a Reading, black frame, red head and coaster brake; one black frame wheel without a name plate.

Peter Hansen, Accused of Wheel Thefts, Makes Two Unsuccessful Attempts.

BARELY REVIVED SECOND TIME.

First Used Suspenders For a Noose and Afterward Fastened His Head In Chain of Cell Cot.

Making two attempts to kill himself in his cell at police headquarters, Peter Hansen, one of the men arrested Saturday night for bicycle thefts, all but succeeded in ending his life this morning. At his second try he adopted a novel method to strangle himself and but for the fact that his struggles were heard by other prisoners he would have been dead before help arrived. He was lifted down and Dr. Geswein worked over him an hour before he was restored to consciousness. At one time it was thought his demise was but a matter of a few minutes and Rev. Father Delehanty was summoned to administer extreme unction.

Hansen protested from the time of his arrest that he is innocent of the charge and he took the imprisonment very much at heart. He was locked up in the first cell of the row at the police building, located in such a position that the inmate cannot be seen by those around him. He remained in a disconsolate mood all yesterday afternoon but at 9:15 last night Patrolman John Kelley heard an unusual noise coming from his cell and making his round found Hansen slowing choking to death by means of a noose he had made from his suspenders and fastened about the door frame. He was cut down and quickly revived.

During the night Hansen was subjected to a close watch to prevent his making a second attempt, the vigil being relaxed just before court time this morning. Nothing was left with him that it was thought would aid in self-destruction but he was determined to die and at 9 o'clock he hit upon a scheme to make another try. Each of the cells at police headquarters is fitted with two iron cots, suspended one above the other by a chain so they can be pulled to one side when not in use. Hansen shoved the upper cot up and then twisted the slack out of the supporting chain about his neck. It fitted so tight it was like a noose and would have served his purpose very well but for interference.

There were five other prisoners near Hansen and when they heard him kicking and grasping they set up a howl which brought all the officers in the station on the run. Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Roundsman Higgins were the first to get to him and by that time the would-be suicide was in a bad way. His body bung purple and apparently lifeless while the color of the face was changing to black. He had fastened himself in the chain in such a way that it required several minutes to get him free. Two policemen had to lift him up while a third worked to ease the cord. When he was finally stretched out on the floor and Dr. Gesswein set to work, it appeared to be a hopeless task to bring him back to life. The physician persevered, however, and at 10:30 the young man was able to sit up on a cot.

Judge Runyon became very much interested in the case and after court adjourned had Hansen subjected to a rigorous examination. He is unable to speak English and the questions were put to him by Charles Miller, the police's Polak interpreter. Hansen told the court that he did kill himself he declared he was being imprisoned for something he hadn't done and there was no use in living. He insisted that the bicycles stolen were taken by his brother, Albert Hansen, and Isnoc Muskevitz, the latter having been arrested and confessed his part in the thefts. Albert Hansen fled from his boarding house in Dunellen Saturday night.

After the examination, enough evidence had been secured to make the young man's guilt a question and Judge Runyon instructed the police to follow up at once anything that might tend to establish his innocence. Hansen was positively identified by George Geary yesterday as the man he had caught taking his wheel from in front of Roth's butcher shop Saturday night, and there is no chance that a mistake has been made. The prisoner is being closely watched to prevent any further attempt at suicide.

Fire at Berkeley Heights.

The large barns and wagon-house owned by H. B. Zimmerman and located on the county road, Berkeley Heights, were destroyed by fire Saturday night about 9 o'clock, and the contents, comprising three valuable horses, one valued at $800, as well as eight Jersey cows and a large St. Bernard dog. The fire started in the end of the barn where the catlle was kept and spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save anything. A company of neighbors led by William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, rendered valuable assistance in saving the wagons and preventing a spread of the blaze. The total loss was about $10,000.

IRVINE PLEADS WITH MEN

Speaker at Y.M.C.A. Declares That Christ Should Be Rescued from Society.

WANTS GOSPEL SIMPLIFIED.

New York Minister Tells of Problem of the Church in the Twentieth Century—Discussion Follows.

Declaring that Christ's love for workingmen, as shown by His constant association with them and his choice of twelve laboring men as His band of apostles with which to transform society, was the greatest contribution ever made to the cause of labor, Alexander Irvine, of New York city, gave a powerful address on "Christ, the Workingman's Champion," at the afternoon men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday. The talk was attended by nearly two hundred men, many of whom took part in the open discussion on the present-day socialistic and economic crisis and its relation to Christianity, which followed Mr. Irvine's address. At the outset of his remarks, the speaker deployed the fact that in view of Christ's love for the workingman, there should be so great a gulf between the laboringman and the church.

"The problem of the church in the twentieth century," Mr. Irvine said, "is to rescue Jesus from society. It is for the church to take hold of the gospel in its pristine simplicity and with the burning heart-love for working classes that animated Jesus Christ.

"There are three aspects of the life of Jesus Christ that I wish especially to emphasize. First, He preached to the multitudes, to 'all sorts and conditions of men;' second, He taught individuals, and third, we constantly read of Him as keeping in touch with the multitudes and frequently going to the mountain-top for prayer and meditation. Every man alive today, no matter what his class of society, should have three similar aspects in his character. We need a more abundant life, and can best fulfil it by following Christ's example in our every-day living. The three aspects I have named in Christ's life have analagous interpretations with us today. We need to keep in contact with the people, as we find in the man-to-man association, which marks the best in family life, and above all, we need to keep in constant touch with our Heavenly Father, as Guide for our souls."

At the conclusion of the address, there was an open discussion of the movement which is now on foot to bring the masses back into the churches. Ministers, socialists and business men took part in the general discussion which speakers was limited to two minutes. In speaking of the Social-Christian movement, on foot, Mr. Irvine said: "I expect that this economic and industrial revolution, now being agitated, will surely come, but I believe that it will be preceded by an ethical revolution. Many New York churches, among them the Brick Presbyterian church, where Dr. William R. Richards is now in charge, are planning to open their pulpits Sunday evenings for the discussion of subjects of vital interest to the masses."

J. W. Gavett, president of the Y. M. C. A., was the leader of the meeting, and Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotos Glee Club, lead the singing.

Presbyterial Society to Meet Here.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions will be held in Warren chapel, Friday, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning with devotional exercises; reports of Presbyterial officers; address on "Freedmen," by Mrs. T. H. Amos. At noon luncheon will be served by the Missionary and Aid Society of the chapel. The afternoon session will begin at 1:30 o'clock with devotional services; addresses by Miss Mary Ogden White, on "Settlement Work Among Foreigners;" and by Miss Amelia Frost, missionary to Bannock and Shoshone Indians. At 3 o'clock there will be a conference for young people's work, led by Mrs. A. S. Lyon and Miss Harriet HaNoway, and the young people's societies are invited to send delegates.

LITERARY

An article of the utmost interest to American magazine readers is "The Influence of the Stock Exchange on the Development of America," by John Paul Ryan, in the March Metropolitan. Other important articles in this number which will be widely read are: "Americanizing the World's Food Products," by Alexander Hume Ford; "The Greenheart Fleet," by Day Allen Willey; "The Motor Boat as a Pleasure Craft," by W. L. Diddley; and "The Scouts of Progress," by James Anderson.

The humor of the picture on the front page of the March American Boy representing two grinning boys teasing a friendly but very smart looking dogs, will appeal to all boys. The contents of this number cannot fail to interest every reader. The fine serials presently running in the magazine are each continued two or more chapters.

JAILED AFTER RESCUE FROM POSSIBLE DEATH

A father and son, both residents of this city, were co-defendants in the Elizabeth police court, Saturday, charged with drunkenness by a policeman who had saved them from getting struck by a train at the Port station of the New Jersey Central. Both were in the advanced stages of intoxication and had fallen on the tracks in front of an approaching local when the bluecoat got them to safety.

The prisoners gave their names as Edward McCann, the father, and Charles McCann, the son, the latter having frequently appeared in the local police court. Neither denied that they had "had too much, but Charlie thought father had led him astray while father was positive that Charlie was responsible for their predicament. After consideration of the case, which was perplexing in many ways, Judge Mahon decided to fine both $2 and costs, afterward suspending sentence on the elder McCann. This did not work out as the judge expected, however, as the father paid Charlie's fine.

CATHOLICS ARE URGED TO OBSERVE SABBATH

In all of the Catholic churches of the Diocese of Trenton, including St. Joseph's, North Plainfield, there was read Sunday a pastoral letter from Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, on the subject of "Sunday Observance." The bishops' letter in part follows:

"We would remind all Catholics, especially the members of Catholic societies, to protest against the tendency of our times to change the Lord's Day into a day of sinful amusement. We further deprecate and strongly condemn the unChristian action of those employers, both public and private, who, actuated by greed, and in absolute and scandalous disregard of the sanctity of the Lord's Day, force their employes to perform unnecessary and servile labor thereon. Where there is necessity really requires such labor, we demand that the employers make some provision so that their employes may be enabled to assist at divine service.

"It is evident that the desecration of Sunday is on the increase, for we are told that nearly 500,000,000 of the American people never enter a church on that day. It, therefore, behooves the Catholics of the republic, by word and example, to insist on Sunday observance.

"Some people think that we should have here what is known in Europe as the Continental Sabbath. There, in the afternoon, places of refreshment and amusement are opened. It is but fair to add that these places are conducted in such a way that general do not consider them objectionable, although there are occasional abuses.

"Whatever may be said of this European custom, it would not be suitable for America. Conditions are quite different here. The American bar and our habit of treating would render the opening of the saloons on the Lord's Day destructive of that quietness, solemnity and sanctity which Americans expect on the day of rest."

Bishop Dubs To Speak Here.

Bishop Rudolph Dubs, of Harrisburg, Pa., will be the speaker at the men's meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. His topic will be "Does It Pay to Be a Christian?" The open parliament following Alexander Irvine's address Sunday afternoon proved so helpful that it has been decided to hold another open discussion after Bishop Dubs' address, when he will answer questions dealing with Christian life and doctrine.

Margaret M. Shea.

Margaret M. Shea, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shea, of Jersey City, died Saturday. The body was brought to this city yesterday and burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery. The parents formerly resided here, the father having conducted a saloon on East Third street near Plainfield avenue.

Auto License Rates.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, framer of New Jersey's automobile law, in a letter of W. Clyde Crosby, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, says the feeling among the Senators is that the license fee should be raised to $3 for cars under ten horse power, $5 for from ten to thirty horse power, and $10 for cars above that figure, and the drivers' fee should be raised to $2 and $4, no tourist privilege, the manufacturers' one to five cars at $5 per annum.

State Convention, May 5.

The official call has been issued for the State Republican convention to select delegates-at-large for the National convention. It will be held at Taylor Opera House, Trenton, Tuesday, May 5. There will be 1,257 delegates with a total vote of 645. Union county will have 69 delegates and 36 votes, while Somerset will have 29 delegates and 12 votes. 323 votes are necessary to a choice.

WHEN THEY ARE NOT WANTED.

Some People Seem to Have Faculty for Unconsciously Butting-In.

"Have you ever noticed," said the melancholy man, "how it is the vocation of certain people to get in the way—to be around when they are not wanted? I suppose that if they were aware of their calling they would feel bad about it. But, as a matter of fact, they never have a word of it, and this, probably, explains why they keep at it. Take my brother-in-law, for instance. He has a marvelous faculty for turning up at inopportune moments. If we are going to have company to dinner we can surely count on a message from him asking whether it would be convenient for his wife and himself to drop in on us. If I am anticipating a quiet hour of reading in the evening it is ten to one that I'll hear his voice in the hall. Just as I am planning to take my self-love in the afternoon he is apt to come in and establish himself for a prolonged talk. Take a hint? Such men never take a hint. They are so obtuse that they don't see when their presence turns company into a crowd. They have not learned the art of effacing themselves on occasions, and they never will. You feel sorry for them at first, but sorrow soon changes to another sentiment."

HAD NO CAUSE TO BE AFRAID.

Very Harmless "Tiger" Was Irishman's Companion in Cage.

The manager of a wild animal show was so unfortunate as to lose by death the only lion in his collection. After trying in vain to replace this loss he finally secured an Irishman to appear in his exhibition on all fours in the lion's cage, wrapped in the dead beast's skin. This plan worked well enough for a while, and the public was fooled. One night, however, it became necessary, in the course of one performance, for the lion to enter the tiger's cage. Pat pleaded strenuously behind the scenes against being sent into the other menagerie's presence; but his employer was unyielding, assuring him repeatedly that the tiger was harmless. Though well-nigh dead with fear, Pat, after long and vigorous persuasion, at last crawled into the tiger's cage. So sooner was he in the cage than he lost what little courage he had left, and lay down, calling in a hoarse whisper, "Please don't bite me; I ain't no lion; I'm an Irishman." The tiger appeared thoroughly disgusted, and in a moment he growled back, "Shut up, you fool, so am I."—Harper's Weekly.

A Matter of High Politics.

One the wittiest of English peers is Lord Longford, and he has also earned the reputation of being one of the worst-dressed, in spite of the fact that he has been a member of the Second Life Guards. The story goes that a friend once met him in Ireland garbed in a pair of continuations which were not on speaking terms with his boots, and chaffed him mercilessly about the "bold interval" that parted them. But Lord Longford, "Pat" to his friends, is known to his intimates in nowise disconcerted, blandly explained that it was really a matter of high politics. "You see, my dear fellow, the breeches are made by a tailor who is a rampant Orangeman, while the boots are the achievement of a Fenian cobbler, so how can you expect 'em to meet?"

Rats, Plague Carriers of India.

Before plague makes its appearance in a house the rat mortality generally gives warning and in case occurs among the people in a house near which rats have been found. The people have now come to know that there is some connection between the rat mortality and the occurrence of plague cases in a house. The rats go about from one place to another and they carry infection from place to place and render the task of controlling plague, when it is once spread, very difficult. It therefore necessary that the public should cooperate with the health department to destroy as many rats as possible. The rains have now stopped, and, as it is the breeding season for rats, the present is the fittest occasion for a campaign against rats.—Bombay Gazette.

An Interpolation.

The old-time revivalist often possessed a gift of gentle satire which stood him in good stead. At a Maine camp-meeting long ago a young man made himself so obnoxious during a prayer that the old preacher rounded off one of his sentences rather abruptly. "Now, Lord," he then continued, without a trace of irritation, "we pray that Thou wilt in the mightiness of Thy power take that young man in the fourth seat and open his heart as free from sin as his head is from sense."—Youth's Companion.

Careless.

"Oh, George, dear, our wedding must be postponed." "No, darling, it must not be." "But it must, George, for Father has lost all his money in the market." "You are right, dear. You are right. The wedding must be postponed. I never thought it of you, Mabel. I never thought that you would have such a careless father."—Detroit Free Press.

Setting Himself Right.

"Here is the man, your honor, who was caught stealing the hog." "Caught in the act?" "Yes, sir." "Judge," said the prisoner, "dat man is lyin' to you. It wuz in de fence corner what he kotched me!"—Atlanta Constitution.

COURT PUTS "KIBOSH" ON SUYDAM RESOLUTION

City Judge Discharges "Offender" and Warns Police Against Councilmanic Ruling.

STREETS DEDICATED TO PUBLIC.

Magistrate Rightfully Declares That Suydam Resolution Is Peculiarly Ill-Timed—Mayor Townsend's Opinion Given.

Expressing decided disapproval of Councilman H. B. Suydam's "loitering" resolution, as passed by the City Fathers Monday, Judge William N. Runyon in the city court Friday refused to impose sentence upon Bernard Tracey, arrested Thursday for the "offense" named in the measure. At the same time he took occasion to tell the police not to take any more men in custody for the same reason, declaring that it is not within their jurisdiction to keep men from standing in the streets unless they obstruct traffic or become public nuisances.

The resolution as introduced by Mr. Suydam and passed by the Councilmanic body gave instructions to Chief Kiely to see that "men and youths were not allowed to congregate on street corners or other public places" and to enforce the ordinance against "loafing." The head of the department imparted the information to his men and as a result Tracey was arrested by Policeman Charles Flynn. He had been in no wise disorderly but had stood on a street corner so long that the officer obeyed the Suydam resolution and locked him up.

When the prisoner was brought in court today and the cause of his appearance was made known to the magistrate, he at once showed that he was displeased with the arrest. Sending for Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, who was in another part of the building, he gave his opinion of the resolution and left no doubt in the mind of the officer that any further action in this way would not be upheld. In the course of his remarks Judge Runyon said:

"I regard the resolution pursuant to which this arrest was made as peculiarly ill-timed, even if it had merit. With so many good citizens and workingmen out of employment there is naturally a large number of men to congregate about streets and this resolution pretends to deny to them in a certain sense the right of liberty. The streets are dedicated to the public, are public property and any man has the right to use the same in any manner he may see fit so long as his use of them does not in anywise interfere with the rights of others. In case, of course, that loitering is a menace to or interference with the rights of the public, you will be warranted in making arrests. Inasmuch as the police will be held personally responsible for such arrests as they may make without actual merit, you would caution them to be very certain of their ground and to class no unemployed citizen with the professional loafer."

When Judge Runyon concluded, he dismissed the charge against Tracey but warned him that his ruling did not mean that he was granted any unusual right relative to remaining on the street. There is a distinct difference, he said, between ordinary standing and loafing and if in an officer's judgment a corner has been "held down" to the obstruction of passersby an order to move on must be obeyed.

The magistrate's ruling in the case is almost identical with that handed down on Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Missouri. An appeal had been made by Jacob Gloner, of St. Louis, who was arrested and fined for standing at a corner doing picket duty during a strike in 1905. He carried the matter up and the higher tribunal decided that city ordinances prohibiting persons from lounging or loafing at street corners are unconstitutional.

Borough Not Afflicted.

The North Plainfield police officials have not fallen prey to "Suydamitis." In speaking of the effort to enforce the city ordinance, Mayor Samuel Townsend of the borough, said today that he left its enforcement to the police officers.

"There is a similar ordinance in North Plainfield, but I do not think that there is enough "loafing" on the borough streets to warrant the action of the Council for its enforcement. I leave such matters to the judgment of the police officers. If a man is known to be a confirmed loafer, who stands about the street corners and refuses work when it is offered, the police keep an eye on him and keep him moving. Loafers in front of a store or on a corner are nuisances to business, for no woman will patronize a store, the door of which is shut off by idling men. If the North Plainfield police find groups of consistent loafers thus interfering with business, arrests will be made but I see no need of a vigorous, literal enforcement of the ordinance under the present conditions in the borough."

AUTOMOBILE FIRE ENGINE FOR NETHERWOOD SECTION

With the idea of being strictly up-to-date with its fire department equipment, the Councilmanic fire committee of which Henry D. Hibbard is the chairman, is considering the advisability of installing an automobile combination chemical engine in the east end of the city, when a site has been selected and an engine house is built. In the opinion of the committee such a apparatus would mean a great saving as it would do away with horses, feed and other expenses. Instead it would only be necessary to employ a sufficient force to operate the engine and one man to drive to fires.

The first cost for an apparatus of this kind would be the heaviest, and the committee believes that it would be possible to purchase such an engine for $7,000 or $8,000. These figures are based on estimates obtained from different manufacturers.

The automomobile engines are being used with great success in many large cities, including New York, Boston, Hartford, Bridgeport, and they are highly approved by fire officials. The committee believes that it would be possible to answer fire alarms much quicker than with horses and in this way thousands of dollars might be saved in the course of a year. The extent of the territory to be covered in the east end of the city, including the Netherwood district, is large and with an automobile any point could be reached quickly. The proposition will come before the Councilmanic body within a short time when a decision will be reached.

HOPE CHAPEL BOYS' CLUB OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

In connection with its semi-annual meeting and installation of officers, the Hope chapel Boys' Club observed its fourth anniversary Friday by entertaining 300 friends at a social in the Sunday-school rooms. The affair marked another step in the history of one of the most important organizations in the congregation and showed in a general way what has been accomplished by the members.

Rev. L. R. Howard formally opened the meeting which followed and was followed by Walter Firstbrook, the retiring president, who made a short address. He thanked the members for the assistance given him during his term and especially commended the lieutenants, Harry Kenney and the other officers. Other addresses were made by Ira W. Travell, principal of the city High School, and Mr. Howard, in which they spoke of the influence wielded in a community by young men equipped with spiritual, social and athletic training, the purposes which led to the club's organization.

The retiring president read a letter from the club's founder and leader, G. Herbert Condict, who is in Vermont on a business trip. Mr. Condict congratulated the boys on what had been accomplished in the four years they had been banded together and urged them to be faithful and better things in the years to come. At this juncture the entertainment committee took charge and provided everyone with a liberal supply of ice cream and cake.

The officers installed are as follows: Leader, G. Herbert Condict; president, Harry Kenney, first vice-president, Joseph Muir; second vice-president, George Gage; secretary, Clarence L. Hoffman; treasurer, Bertram Smith; chairman of committees, entertainment, Clinton F. Firstbrook; game, George Leighs; light, Earle Lynn; lookout, Arthur Hoffman; membership, Alfred Mundy; music, Joseph Muir; invitation, Bertram Smith. Since the present time has thirty-two members.

Coal In Austria-Hungary.

The official figures of coal production in Austria-Hungary, during 1907, show that the output was 13,828,000 tons, which is an increase of about 2,200,000 tons on the output of 1906. The output of coke was 3,345,000 tons, and of briquettes 137,000 tons. The production of lignite last year was 26,048,000 tons; of lignite briquettes 159,000 tons, and of coke from lignite 32,000 tons.

His Bright Idea.

Not many years ago a well known dealer was visited by a would be seller who had in his hand an envelope containing seventeen signatures of Samuel Pepys, which, he said, he had just cut off the original letters to save trouble! By so doing he had diminished the value of his property by nearly £200.—London Opinion.

"Coming Through."

Marjorie was gazing intently at her father's bald head as she remarked: "Papa, are you still growing?"

Papa—"No, dear, I think not. Why do you ask?"

Marjorie—"Because you're coming through the top of your head."

MRS. UPDIKE AIRS WOES

In Telling Her Story, Petitioner for Divorce, Calls Hubby "Whited Sepulchre."

SHE WILL GET A DECREE.

Manley H. Updike Never Supported Her, Woman Alleges—He Skipped Away In Short Order.

"We weren't married a month when trouble began," Mrs. Rowena Updike, formerly of this city and now of Atlantic Highlands, confided to Vice Chancellor Stevens at Newark on Wednesday afternoon, when he quizzed her respecting the circumstances of Manley H. Updike's play for headline part in a "Gone, but not forgotten" travesty a few months after their marriage.

Updike has not sent his wife any picture postals and she hasn't an idea of his forwarding address, so he filed Mrs. Updike before him yesterday.

Mrs. Updike presented the court with so graphic a word painting of her husband—styled by her the "whited sepulchre"—that she was awarded the prize she coveted when the vice chancellor announced he would advise a decree nisi in her favor.

Mrs. Updike pictured her first meeting with Updike at Hot Springs, Ark., where he was undergoing treatment. The man in May, 1901. They were married in New York in the course of the following winter. She repented with much greater celerity, she said.

Admiration for her capacity as a money-earner and a mercenary desire to profit thereby, Mrs. Updike says, prompted her husband's wrong, rather than a more tender affection. She explained that she had been making a living for herself and a son by a former marriage, now a cadet in the Naval academy at Annapolis, as an "ad writer."

Updike was in the same business and together they went to Tampa, Fla., where her husband undertook a historical write-up of that city. She says she lent him several hundred dollars to bide a wee with, but that when he had cleared $1,000 or so from the undertaking he took a little sea trip on a steamer to Mobile without buying any return ticket, and never came back. Mrs. Updike has chalked up the money, but, she says, to the profit and loss column.

"He never supported me," declared Mrs. Updike, "and was all the time finding fault because I was keeping my boy in school, Sacred Heart College, in Westchester county, with my own money."

SILAS DEWEY DRAKE HAS RETIRED FROM BUSINESS

Silas Dewey Drake, the founder of Lincoln and Dewey Park, told a reporter yesterday that he has retired from business on account of his health.

Mr. Drake is one of the first and foremost of New Jersey real estate hustlers. He has long held the position of Chief Boomer of the Legion of Boomers.

He dislikes to give up the active life, but his physician has ordered him to do so.

"I have been in the real estate business for the past twenty-five years," said Mr. Drake yesterday morning, "operating between Elizabeth and Bound Brook, and I want to say that in all of that time I have never seen so many New York realty companies and real estate men trying to buy up tracts of land in this part of the State as at present."

LEAL'S TEAM GETS SILVER CUP AS INTERSCHOLASTIC CHAMPS

As winners of the local interscholastic track meet held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday afternoon, the Leal School track team carried off the championship cup with them at the conclusion of the meet. The cup is a three-handled, pewter tankard, standing eight inches high, and will be engraved with the name of the winning school. This is the second successive year the Leal's athletes have carried off the trophy, winning the meet last year with a total of 29 points. The Plainfield High School athletes were the titleholders.

Watch fob medals of silver were awarded to the winners of first places in the meet yesterday, and similar medals of bronze were given to second place contestants. The score by points:

OPEN PRIMARIES APRIL 28

State Republicans Set Date for Primaries to Select Delegates to State Convention.

CUTTING DOWN THE DELEGATES

Fort, Murphy, Griggs and Baird Said to Be the Slate for Delegates-at-Large.

The Republican State Committee of New Jersey, in session in Newark, yesterday afternoon, adopted a resolution providing for an open primary 28, without enrollment, for the selection of delegates to the State convention at Trenton May 5, when the four delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention are to be chosen.

Besides this, the resolution provided for a reduction in the voting power of the delegates which, to a majority of the Republican leaders, appears a means of paving the way for the selection of Governor John Franklin Fort, State Chairman Franklin Murphy, former Attorney General John W. Griggs and State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, as delegates-at-large in face of the opposition by United States Senators Briggs and Kean and their interests.

By the new order of things, one delegate will be allowed for every 30 votes cast at the last election, instead of 200 votes, as at present.

There are 1,257 voting districts, and under the proposed change there will be but 645 votes, with 323 votes necessary to a choice. Essex, Hudson, Passaic and Camden counties, with an aggregate of 325 votes, united, will have the convention at their mercy.

UNITY LODGE PASSES TWENTY FIFTH BIRTHDAY

In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization, Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, enjoyed an informal social time and smoker in its rooms in Knights of Columbus Hall Thursday. It followed the regular business session and in the opening of the second rank on one candidate, the work being done in an excellent manner by the degree team.

Unity Lodge was organized in 1883 with twenty members, five of whom were present last night. They are Charles Buckle, Jr., Buckle, Thaddeus C. Smith, Charles E. Harris, Joseph F. Sheppard and Horace J. Martin. Mr. Martin was the first chancellor commander and is at present the lodge's master of finance. The membership is now very large and an active organization is one of the most prosperous in the State. Jeremiah VanWinkle is the presiding officer for this term.

At last night's session, addresses were made by all the charter members present and their reminiscences of Unity's early life was decidedly interesting to those who became allied with it in later years. Grand Inner Guard William Quick and Grand Representative Joseph Fitzgerald, of Somerville, were present, honor, and spoke at some length, recalling their many visits to Unity when it was just a healthy youngster. Cigars were passed at the first call for addresses and with the double indegree it was well midnight before the session closed.

The lodge will confer the second degree on Thursday night, April 2, and will be followed by another social and smoker.

MAKING TICKETS FROM DISCARDED NEWSPAPERS.

That newspapers are constantly left on the seats in railway trains nobody with the slightest power of observation need be told. On the other hand, few people would suppose that these discarded papers could prove of any value to the company controlling the line. But this is essentially the age for the utilization of waste products and great corporations are quick to own any labor or money-saving device.

Probably the strangest development in this direction would appear to be that prevailing now in Belgium. Upon the government railway systems newspapers left in the train are the property of the nation, to be used in the manufacture of railway tickets. The papers are carefully collected and sent to the head depot, where they are reduced to pulp and a special variety of cardboard for ticket purposes is prepared.—Chicago Tribune.

Newton R. Smalley Invests.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, has purchased the residential property owned by W. F. Williams at Somerset street and Jackson avenue. The property has a frontage of 137 feet and is 167 feet deep. The consideration is said to be about $6,000. Mr. Smalley is planning to improve the house.

Will Dispense with Choir.

The music committee of the Congregational church has decided to dispense with its quartet choir after May 1, and Charles L. Lewis, music instructor in the Plainfield public schools, has been engaged as pectcentor.

Opdyke; president, Miss Elinore Stutsman; vice-president, Miss Grace Weeks; secretary, Miss Marjorie Brown; treasurer, Miss Dorothea Opdyke.

Hopeless.

"He's no good at an argument, is he? Not at all convincing?"

"Well, I should say not. Why, that man couldn't convince a woman that she was pretty!"—Cleveland Leader.

RAHWAY MAKES A CLAIM.

Its Candidate Alleges Liquor Distribution of "Pap"—Says It Is Getting Small End of the Stick.

Although the real fight will not be on until next fall when the county convention meets, Union county seems already alive with candidates for the $5,000 shrievalty plum which is now in the possession of Col. William B. Lawrence, of Summit, who succeeded B. Frank Corlett, of Plainfield. Neither Plainfield nor Summit is likely to make any claims for the fat job, but there will be no dearth of candidates in other parts of the county.

Elizabeth is backing Captain Robert Kirkland, who is a member of the county board of elections and who has had some experience in running for the shrievalty nomination before. Kirkland has been endorsed by the Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth and is understood to have the backing of the powers that be. But Kirkland is not going to have such an easy running, it is predicted by the knowing ones, at least not if William H. Wright, of Rahway, can help it.

Mr. Wright has had his eyes on the plum for a long time and he has come out for a formal announcement of his candidacy. The Republican Club of Rahway has endorsed him for the office and is understood to number it is understood intend to put up a stiff game in the game for the plum. In an appeal issued today, Mr. Wright bases his candidacy on three conditions of political expediency. First, he asks, is the party proposed for the office competent to fill the same; second, does he represent a section of the county where republicans votes are needed, and, as the expect to attract them, and, third, should not each section of the county be fairly represented in the distribution of the offices. He modestly leaves the answer to the first two questions to his friends, but he makes some odious detailed comparisons of party "pap" distribution. Elizabeth with its 4,348 Republican votes now holds $35,000.00 worth of county plums, including the county clerk, county collector, county judge, prosecutor, surrogate, member of county tax board, court house custodian and county engineer. Plainfield, with little less than half as many republican voters, the actual number being 2,098, gets $10,000 in choice jobs including register of deeds, county attorney, State Senator, member of county tax and county election boards and the county hospital, while the 695 Republican votes, has the $5,000 shrievalty, while Rahway with 911 Republican voters only has a salary aggregate of $2,500, which includes a member of Assembly, deputy sheriff and freeholders' clerk.

"THE BRISTOL" COMPLETED; ORNATE APARTMENT HOUSE.

"The Bristol," L. L. Manning's handsome new building on West Front street and Madison Avenue, was completed yesterday and the ten commodious and attractive apartments will be occupied within the next few days, while a New York firm has taken a five year lease on the store on the ground floor and will be ready for business April 1.

Those who have leased apartments in the building are Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Geeswein, Mr. and Mrs. Francis K. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Todd, Mrs. Sarah House, Mrs. L. E. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley S. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Haines, all of this city; Mr. Van Cassel, of Somerville; Mr. Van Boskerck, of Morristown, and Mr. Willis, of Cranford.

The building, three stories in height, is of brick, and all of the apartments are hardwood trim and equipped with modern conveniences. One decided advantage is that every room is well lighted, which is compulsory under the new State law.

The contractors who were employed in the construction of the building were James Manning, carpenter; Townley Robinson, mason; C. W. Kranase, plumber; Charles Beecher, heating; R. B. Van Arsdale, tiling; P. Egany, painting, and S. H. Whitney, window shades, etc.

He Got His.

"They tell me you don't believe in advertising."

"Well, I don't."

"Why, man, you're two hundred years behind the times! Don't you know that?"

"I know all about the results, young man; I got my wife that way."

IDEAL WIDOW'S LONGINGS

"Mrs. Mary Chandler," Alone and Lonely, Asks Western P. M. to Find Her a Mate.

TELS OF HER MANY CHARMS.

If She's All She Is Cracked Up to Be, There's No Reason For Her Leaving Plainfield.

Taking advantage of leap year a Plainfield widow, who describes herself as "Mrs. Alice Chandler," claiming to possess all the qualities which combine to make an ideal wife, has invited a proposal of marriage and seeks a desirable helpmate in the Great West. On Thursday, March 12, there appeared in the Daily Record of Coffeyville, Kansas, a letter signed by "Mrs. Chandler" in which she announced her purpose and added a description of herself. Those thing that appealed to eligible candidates was her statement that she is entirely alone in the world and very lonely.

Since the publication of the proposal, several letters have been received from men in search of such a wife as "Mrs. Chandler" declares she would make, but the postoffice authorities have been unable to find the alleged "lone widow." Among those who have pressed the suit is John G. Darts, of Liberty, Kansas, who says he would like to correspond with her with a view to matrimony, but all of his missives have been returned to the local postoffice by the carriers with the explanation that the woman in the case is not to be found.

It was why "Mrs. Chandler" should go so far from home to advertise herself and seek a husband is not understood by several eligible candidates in this vicinity, one of whom said today that if she is all that she claims to be it would not be necessary for her to leave Plainfield. Another different men in this city said today that they were open to such a proposal and would like to investigate it further. One Plainfield lady has been considerably annoyed by the receipt of applications from prospective husbands in the west, and today notified Postmaster Bird that there are no widows in their household in search of a husband.

"Mrs. Chandler" states that she has traveled some and is partial to western life. She requests The Daily Record to put her in correspondence with some of the unmarried cowboys living on the ranches in the vicinity of Kansas, adding that if among the ranchers there is one who would like a good woman and would make a comfortable home, she would be pleased to correspond.

While the widow's intentions may be the very best and sincere, it is the opinion here that the announcement is the work of a practical joker. That is the opinion expressed today by Postmaster Bird and others who heard the story.

This is the heart-burning epistle as published in The Daily Record of Coffeyville, and which has caused a panic among the great army of bachelors in the west:

"Dear Sir—My object in writing you these few lines is to ask a favor of you, which I will greatly esteem (also a few of my lady friends); if you will kindly put me in correspondence with some of the unmarried cowboys living on the ranches in your vicinity.

"I am a widow, 28 years old, no incumbrances, good disposition, very affectionate, good looking; gray eyes, brown hair (slightly gray), fair complexion. I am entirely alone in the world, and very lonely. I know somewhat of your country and traveled a good deal some years ago. My object in corresponding is with a view to matrimony. I would like the Western climate much better than here, and I also like the people of the West. If among any of the ranchers you know of any one who would like a good woman and would make a comfortable home, I would be pleased to correspond.

"In the meantime, I remain, yours respectfully,

"MRS. ALICE CHANDLER."

Commercial Travelers Elect.

Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers of America, has elected these officers for the coming year: Senior Councilor, Charles A. Sturtevant; junior councilor, Alfred I. Laing; past councilor, James C. Field; secretary and treasurer, Frank W. Weed; conductor, John E. Dunn; warden, Arthur Organ; Associate, A. D. Thompson, Jr.; executive committee, John E. O'Mara, H. F. Warner, John E. Dunn and Charles S. Randolph.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus C. Smith, of Madison avenue, have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ernestine Curtis Smith, to Dr. Charles Milton Bodick, of Ogdensburg, N. Y. The event will be celebrated Thursday evening, April 2, at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 19 Madison avenue. After May 1 the couple will be at home at St. Lawrence State Hospital, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 29, 1903.

REV. E. H. DOYLE.

People—Some missions.—Progress in the Philippines.—Matt. xiii. 31-33.

The Scriptural references include the parables of the mustard seed and the leaven. The ideas suggested in each are that from small beginnings the kingdom of heaven grows and spreads mightily; that it is a great and powerful thing. The seed of which becomes a great tree. A little leaven the entire lump. These parables are particularly applicable to the kingdom in the Philippines. It is a great field, and today is the day of small things," but we are to do use it for that reason. Under God the small becomes great. Even the present time great progress has been made in our Pacific islands educationally, governmentally and religiously. Churches and Sunday schools of fair numbers have already been established. Tracts are being distributed perhaps in no other country in the world. The people no longer under the dominion of priest craft are more willing to hear what Protestants have to say. Vice and immorality are disappearing. Drunkenness has a terrible hold upon the people, and the saloon shocks. Those who are interested in things worldly well rejoice over what God has done already in the Philippines. The seed of the word is taking root, and the leaven of the kingdom is widely spreading.

Items following in "Philippine Notes" from the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Manual are interesting and instructive:

The saloon is the greatest enemy of progress in the Philippines, as it is the greatest to success in every country. Weak it even at home, and you will do the most for missions abroad.

"Christian Endeavor is the Philippines to-day splendid society on Dewey's ground," says Olympia. It speedily spread among the Filipinos, and it is destined to be an important agent in planting Protestant Christianity in those islands.

There are about 1,725 islands in the Philippine archipelago, with an area of about 122,000 square miles—a glorious new empire to win for Christ.

The population of the islands is about 8,000,000, of all of them Catholics though. Fortunately, 2,000,000 are independent Catholics. There are 270,000 Mohammedans, 2,500 Buddhists and Confucianists, 5,000 Animists—a complicated task for the missionaries.

Several denominations and several of the smaller ones hastened to the Philippines as soon as the war was over. Spain and Inaugurated a second war with ignorance, superstition and barbarism.

About 1,000 converts have been made by our missionaries in the Philippines. More than 200 churches have been built, such a center of light in such darkness. The missionaries have distributed more than 200 pages of religious literature through the islands, and each page is a precious seed that may bring forth glorious fruit.

The native converts have begun to take up the work of evangelizing their fellows. Seminaries have been established to train the native preachers and schools to train native deaconesses and other women workers.

Nearly 500,000 of the Filipinos speak English well, and this is a great help toward the spread of the gospel.

There are employed in Filipino schools 1,000 teachers and 4,000 Filipino teachers. Nearly 500,000 children attend these schools—one of the most encouraging signs of the future.

BIBLE READINGS.

I Ps. ii, 1-12; xxxiii, 12-20; Dan. xii, 3; Isaiah. iii, 17-20; Acts i, 8; xiii, 1-3; Rom. ix, 3, 4, 14, 15; Rev. i, 4-9; xxi, 17.

Seattle Pickups.

Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in his address to the Endeavorers in convention assembled at Seattle, among other things, said: "The key word of Christian Endeavor is training. Training in expression, training in service, training in living, training of the heart, training of the mind, training of the tongue, training of the boy and girl, training of the young man and woman. Training in all these directions is training to make effective Christians, training in the church, training for the church, training in the church. The three great departments of Christian Endeavor are the week-day meeting, the committees, the individual work of them indispensable to the success of each of them, wherever established, so many training schools for the church, the nation, the world of the future.

"The prayer meetings are the training schools for expression.

"The committees are training schools in service.

"The unions are training schools in fellowship and united action."

In conclusion he said: "Take courage and press on, Endeavorers. See clearly, think straight and act."

Gideon Equipment.

Are you a Gideon Endeavorer?

If you are, and it is a good kind to be, you possess three things—a torch, a pitcher and a trumpet.

The torch—You lead a life that is a light, and you are ready to let your light shine.

The trumpet—You have convictions, and you are ready to express them.

The pitcher—You have common sense. You know that there is a time to speak and a time to keep silence, a time to work and a time to rest. You know when to smash the pitcher, let the torch flare out, blow the trumpet and shout—"A sword of the Lord and Gideon!"

Character.
Courage.
Wisdom.

No load equipment, that, for the doing of Christian Endeavor work—Christian Endeavor World.

To Work Out the Golden Rule.

You recognize only one Master, and your work is one of co-operation. The aim of the Christian Endeavorer is not for its members to live as self-individuals, but to ease the burden of the less fortunate, to work for others and work out the Golden Rule.—Hon. James R. Garfield at Seattle.

GIRL IN SCANT ATTIRE DANCES ON HOUSE TOP

CAVORTS GAYLY BEFORE HORRIFIED THRONG ON BRINK OF DEATH WHILE DEMENTED.

New York.—Clothed only in her silken nightrobe, a pretty French maid-in-waiting to a prominent Fifth avenue woman, cavorted gayly on the narrow ledge of an apartment house and furnished excitement for a big crowd which soon gathered in the street early the other day. With her hair tossed by the brisk morning breeze, and her scanty covering blowing closely to her, displaying a sylphlike form, she danced about heedless of the imminent peril of her position, while frenzied onlookers called for the police.

Some one turned in a double alarm, and three patrol ambulances and one hook and ladder company quickly responded, the clanging of signal bells adding to the excitement of the crowd, now thoroughly horrified at the sight, as the apparently crazed girl swayed to and fro on the brink of death.

Policeman McShane made his way to the sixth story of the building, and raised a window opening to the three-foot ledge on which the girl was giving the startling exhibition. Just as she was about to pass in front of him McShane stretched out his arms, and, closing them about her slender waist, pulled her through the opening, as her screams floated out and mingled with the cheers of the throng.

Throwing his coat about her, the policeman carried her down six flights and placed her in the ambulance.

The girl was taken to Bellevue hospital, where it was learned her name was Lizette Conlon, and that she had become demented during the night.

BABY BRAVED DEATH ON ROOF.

It Sat on Eaves Trough While Crowd Below Was Terrified.

Chicago.—Robert, the 13-months-old child of A. Sayers, mechanical engineer, played delightedly while perched on the extreme edge of an eaves trough at his home on Eggleston avenue and waved his chubby hands at a terrified crowd of persons gathered on the stone pavement below. The baby had clambered down the slanting roof of the porch in close pursuit of a little red slipper which had slipped from his grasp while leaning from an open window. Shrieking with laughter, the child slid down the slippery shingles toward the precipitous edge of the roof. Two feet below was a stone sidewalk. But the tin trough at the edge of the roof stopped the progress of the baby and its plight was soon recognized by Mrs. Mary Conlin, who lives just across the street.

With a scream for help Mrs. Conlin hastened to the spot where the child was in imminent danger of toppling over the edge of the roof to the stones below. Other persons gathered about and in the crowd was Richard Hogan, detective, from the Englewood station, who quickly recognized the child's danger and climbed one of the porch columns, while Mrs. Conlin kept the baby's attention from him. At the same time Mr. Sayers appeared at the open window and cautiously approaching the edge of the roof dragged the child from the grasp of the officer, who was clinging to it with one hand and to the roof with the other.

Located by Wooden Legged Hen.

Winsted, Conn.—When Lewis Ives made a wooden leg for one of his chickens to replace one a rat had gnawed off last summer, little did he think that it would be the means of his locating a rich cousin, Charles Hlsted of Joy, Mercer county, Ill. Hlsted read about his cousin's novel work and wrote to him. The deformed chicken grew to good size. Ives said the hen was as tender as any he had ever eaten, but he did not try the wooden leg.

Has No Use for Razorback Hog.

That degenerate monstrosity, that reproach to our civilization, that shrunken, shapeless, tasteless, porcine nightmare, that hideous dream of hide and hair and horror, that allegory of starvation, that specter of want and woe known as the Florida razorback hog—to sing his praises is to encourage degeneracy; to declare him toothsome is to insult the memory of Epicurus.—Live Oak (Fla.) Democrat.

HARD WORK TO RETAIN YOUTH.

One Man Declares He Is Not Envious of His Friend's Success.

"The fabled secret of youth, the fountain of everlasting life and all the panaceas for growing old without looking old or feeling old are absurdities by the side of the process used by a professional man of my acquaintance," said a widely known lawyer of Philadelphia. "That man looks like a chap of 35, acts, eats, drinks and enjoys himself like one, but I know he's past 60, and sometimes envy him a bit that. He hasn't a gray hair on his head, his eye is bright, his skin clear, his step elastic, and his voice strong. What's the secret? It has been an inflexible habit with him from early youth to retire at eight o'clock in the evening and sleep until seven in the morning. On rising he takes a cold bath, but many men do that. Oh, that's all easy, you say? It's not so easy, after all. Try it and stick to it, despite engagements at the theater, business affairs left over from the day, and all the variety of things of that sort, and you'll find it about as hard a task as you can place before yourself. Of course, there have been a few breaks in his lifetime habit. But in the main he has adhered to it. Do I recommend it? Well, hardly. It's a dry existence. I prefer this style of life, and am willing to die young accordingly."

EFFECT OF EARTH'S ROTATION.

Belgian Geologist So Ascribes Curious Twists in Tree Trunks.

Curious twists are observed in many tree trunks, and the inquiry just began in Europe suggests the surprising conclusion that they are produced by the earth's rotation, like the twists of storms and the whirls seen in water. Van den Broeck, the Belgian geologist, points out that if conditions of growth were the same they should all follow the sun's apparent path. In at least 990 out 1,000 trees the reverse is true, and it may be that the twist is usually to the left in the northern hemisphere and to the right—or with the clock—in the southern hemisphere, like the turn of the cyclonic storms and water vortices. This difference is due to the earth's rotation. Jean Brunhes notes that it was about some years ago that the winds due to the earth's motion blow steadily at a season when vegetation is active and sensitive, and a slight continuous bending and turning then would be likely to affect the tree permanently. —From the Bulletin of the American Forestry Association.

The American Beauty's Defects.

If we were to find particular fault with our American beauties dominant in the public eye to-day, it would be their lack of facial strength, the absence of soul quality which our strenuous national life and feverish ambitions tend to nullify if not annihilate. The nobility of countenance, the calm, pure, steadfast expressions seen in the faces of the great sculptures might well be emulated by our own maritrix women. We admire the simplicity, the repose of the period that produced those beauty types that have been accepted as a standard for all ages. The American girl, with all of her picturesque qualities, needs some of the serenity and dignity of old Greece to make her more perfect than she is. Her facial weak points are in her nose and chin and forehead. Now and then one comes upon the strong type, but it is the exception.—Perrington Maxwell, in the Bohemian.

How a Philosopher Described a Child.

A child is nature's fresh picture, newly drawn in oil, which time and much handling dims and defaces. His soul is yet a white paper, unscribbled with the observations of the world, wherein, at length, it becomes a blurred notebook. He is purely happy because he knows no evil, nor hath made means by sin to be acquainted with misery. He arrives not at the misfortune of being wise, nor endures evils to come by foreseeing them. He kisses and loves all, and, when the smart of the rod is past, smiles on his beater. Could he put off his body with his little coat, he had got eternity without a burden, and exchanged but one heaven for another.—John Earle (1601-1665).

Tennyson and the Socialist.

Tennyson figuring as a champion of the imperiled rights of property is thus quoted in William Allingham's lately published "Diary." "I was once in a coffee shop in the Westminster road at four o'clock in the morning. A man was raging, 'Why has so-and-so a hundred pounds and I have not a shilling?' I said to him, 'If your father had left you a hundred pounds you would not give it away to somebody else.' He had not a word to answer. I knew he hadn't."

What Happened.

Eva—"Dear me! I really believe that Jack was a bigger fool at some stage of his career." Katherine—"Gracious! What in the world gave you that idea?" Eva—"Why, the other evening when we were sitting on the sofa little Tommy peeped in the parlor and shouted, 'Ma!' and Jack actually jumped all the way to the other end of the room. After that he said in confusion he was thinking about reference."

Real Sweet.

"Please let me take your picture, miss," pleaded the young man with the camera. "I declare, you are sweet enough to eat." "Gracious!" laughed the pretty summer girl; "and is that why you wish to put me on a plate?"

The Only One.

Henry VIII. of England, being at one time at variance with Francis I. of France, decided to send an ambassador and to charge him with a very fierce and menacing message to his prince. He chose for this office an English bishop in whom he had great confidence and of whom he believed would be the most proper person to carry out his design. His prelate, being informed of the nature of his mission and fearing for his life should he treat with Francis in the haughty manner his master desired, represented to the king the danger to which he was exposing him and begged not to be sent on this mission.

"Oh, never fear," said Henry. "If the king of France should kill you, I will have the head of every Frenchman I find in my kingdom."

"I believe you, sire," replied the bishop, "but permit me to assure you that of all the heads you will cut off there is not one of them that will fit on my body as well as my own!"

Needs of Cavers When Asleep.

"The reason it is necessary to be well covered while sleeping," said a physician in giving some advice to a patient, "is that when the body lies down it is the intention of nature that it should rest, and the heart especially should be relieved of its regular work temporarily. That organ makes ten strokes a minute less than when the body is in an upright position. This means 600 strokes in sixty minutes. Therefore in the eight hours that a man usually spends in taking his night's rest the heart is saved nearly 5,000 strokes. As it pumps six ounces of blood with each stroke, it lifts 30,000 ounces less of blood in the night's session than it would during the day when a man is usually in an upright position. Now, that body is dependent for its warmth on the vigor of the circulation, and as the blood does so much more slowly through the veins when one is lying down the warmth lost in the reduced circulation must be supplied by extra covering."

When Spectacles Were New.

In the days when spectacles were introduced the world was not all wise. Glasses became so fashionable that people did not wait until necessity compelled the use of the new invention. Whether their eyesight was bad or good, those who would be stylish wore spectacles. In Spain they formed part of the costume of every well dressed person. The object of the wearer in putting on glasses was to give an air of gravity of his appearance and render himself more directly imposing. The glasses of spectacles were proportioned in size not to the eyes, but to the rank of the wearer, those worn by the Spanish nobles being twice as large as the hand. The Marquis of Astorga, viceroy of Naples, after having had his bust sculptured in marble particularly enjoined the artist not to forget his beautiful spectacles.

Buying Books.

A library is something more than a collection of books. An imposing array of well bound and gilt lettered volumes does not make one. Your books should express your own individuality, says a writer in the Delineator. Do not let any one persuade you to buy a book you know is not your kind of book. Do not be lured into buying a handsome library edition of some author that you do want if the library edition is heavy, and uncomfortable to hold and your own preference is a comfortable pocket edition with flexible covers. And, above all, if you are building up a home library to which the whole family is to have free access do not choose bindings of such delicate colors of expensive texture as to destroy all the comforts of reading.

When Man Ceases to Be Useful.

The moment a man reaches the stage where he thinks more of his dinner than he does of his study, more of his coat than he does of his character, more of his standing in "society" than he does of doing his plain duty as a man and citizen—that moment he ceases to be a factor in the preservation of the State.—Rev. T. B. Gregory.

His Mistake.

"I told Mrs. Jinx that I was a perfect slave to you."

"Well, you're not."

"I am a slave, you know I am!"

"Yes, but you flatter yourself when you use the adjective 'perfect.'"—Houston Post.

A Sharp Thrust.

"You're trying very hard to be a man, it seems," said the disgusted husband the other day to his wife.

"Well," she replied coldly, "don't you think we need one in the family?"—New York Tribune.

To Keep from Breaking.

"My hero has a strong face," remarked the author.

"He needs it," replied the critic. "I notice his face falls every time he meets the heroine!"

The Speedshrift Version.

"You know what old saying," began Kwoter, "'Take care of the pennies and'"—

"And," interrupted Galley, "the dollars will take care of your heirs."—Philadelphia Press.

An Agreement.

SCIENCE NOTES.

The council of the Senate of the University of Cambridge has reported favorably on a proposition to hold a great Darwin celebration next year in honor of the centenary of the birth of this scientist. The date of the anniversary is February 12, but the week beginning June 20 has been suggested as the most convenient time for getting together such a gathering as is contemplated.

Robert Koch, the famous German bacteriologist, it is announced, will visit this country during the coming spring, but, as the trip is part of a year's rest which he has arranged for himself, he has refused all invitations to deliver lectures while in this country.

There is a movement to provide for the erection of a memorial to John Wesley Powell, director of the Bureau of American Ethnology and the United States Geological Survey.

One of the many methods resorted to by London of its fog nuisance was the erection of towers in different parts of the city through which, it was designed to pump the foggy atmosphere and clarify it.

As an evidence of China's progress it is stated that the number of newspapers published in that country has been increased greatly in the last decade. They now number 200.

The mail, telephone and telegraph are more generously used in the United States than in any other country.

The statement is made that there are $40,000,000 of American money invested in what is known as the Guanajuato mining district of Mexico. There are many mines in that section which have been idle for a century, and more because the surface richness of the mines had been exhausted by the Spaniards and the cost of fuel was too great to continue operations. It was well known to the mining men of the early days that rich deposits of ores existed in the Guanajuato mines at greater depths, but it was impracticable to go deeper. In those days no power existed which could keep the lower workings clear of water or hoist the ores to the surface at low expense. The mines had to be abandoned with great wealth almost within reach. Under the new conditions these mines are being developed with great success. Hydraulic plants have been established and power transmitted to the mines in the shape of electricity. That supplying the district referred to is located at El Duro, and the current is transmitted a distance of 110 miles, supplying a number on mining plants. There are several other power projects in this kind in operation and projected, making use of the great waterfalls which abound in that country, and in one instance it is contemplated to carry the power a distance of 175 miles.

A Peer and His Patent.

After it is once passed the patent for the creation of a new peerage cannot be altered. Otherwise Lord Glenawley, as Glerawly was written by a clerk in mistake for this word. Another interesting case of a similar nature is that of Charles Pawlet, afterward third Duke of Bolton, who died in 1754. In 1717, while his father, the second duke, was still alive, Pawlet was made a peer as Lord Pawlet of Basing, although the intention of the king and his advisers was to summon him to the house of lords under one of his father's junior titles—that of Baron St. John of Basing. However, the writ of summons had been made out to Lord Pawlet of Basing, and Pawlet bore this title until he became Duke of Bolton in 1722.—Westminster Gazette.

A Good Timepiece.

Here is a fish story—the truth of which we cannot vouch, but which all fishermen, young and old, will enjoy. It comes from an Englishjournal. The Northampton Daily Reporter. Last spring, while a party of tourists were sailing "up North," a well known lawyer lost his gold watch from the boat in which he was sitting. Last week he made another visit to the lakes, and during the first day's sport caught an eight-pound trout. His astonishment can be imagined when he found his watch lodged in the throat of the trout. The watch was running and the time correct. It being a "stem-winder," the supposition is that in masticating his food the fish wound up the watch daily.

Windmills Furnish Light.

On the Danish island of Sjalland there is an electric lighting system which is driven by a windmill. The wheel is 46 feet in diameter, and is supported by a tower 42 feet high. The area of the blades exposed to the wind is 340 square feet, and with a wind blowing at the rate of 33 feet a second the mill will give 8.5-horse power. The speed is then 24 revolutions a minute. Current is supplied to 378 incandescent and six arc lamps, besides several small motors.

SCIENCE NOTES.

Public attention has been recently directed to the Paulo Affonso Falls and the San Francisco river, situated in Brazil. They are 230 miles from either Pernambuco, which has a population of 200,000, or Bahia, with 230,000 people. The average flow of the river is 1,000 cubic meters per second, and between Jatobo and Piranhas, a distance of about 85 miles, the fall is 756 feet, 400 of which takes place in the rapids, extending about 15 miles. This vast undeveloped water power will become in time the nucleus of a great industrial region.

The yearly heap of a large industrial company is a decidedly interesting affair and a rather valuable asset. That of the New York Edison Company for last year was sold approximately for $200,000. The material included 832,000 pounds of scrap copper, 359,000 pounds of pig lead, 71,000 pounds of mixed metals and approximately 500 tons of iron. This does not include the materials which were redeemed for further use.

A New Operation for a Young Man.

"Yes," said Mrs. Malone to the old friend who was picking up the threads of family history, "my Bobby, he's travelling with a circus now."

"Pretty hard work, isn't it?" inquired the interested woman.

"Never a bit of it," returned the proud mother of Bobby, "He's living like a gentleman, he is—hand in his pockets, as ye might say—for it's a handsome salary he gets, and every blessed thing he has to do is to lay his head on the pillow of a mahogany bar of some two or three times a day or thereabout."—Youth's Companion.

Good Ink, but No Bread.

Sweynheym and Pannartz, the two Germans who were the first to print books in Rome, used paper and type of excellent quality, their first 300 pages printed more than 400 years ago can vie in blackness with the best of the present day. Yet with all their labors they often lacked bread. In a petition to the Pope they informed his holiness that their house was full of proof sheets, but that they had nothing to eat.—Argonaut.

Took No Chances.

A Scotch farmer went to town to have a tooth extracted. His wife said:

"I would advise you to have it out by the painless system. It is only a shilling extra," said the dentist.

He showed the apparatus for administering gas, remarking that it would cause him to fall asleep, and before he awoke the tooth would be out.

After reluctantly consenting, the customer proceeded to open his purse.

"Oh, never mind paying now!"

"Hoots! I wasna thinkin' o' that, but if I'm gaen tae sleep I thocht I wa like to count ma siller first."

In Lengthy Terms.

In the suburbs of one of our great cities recently a new resident stopped in front of his neighbor's gate and inquired of the boy swinging thereon:

"Is your pa home, sonny?"

"No, sir," replied the lad. "He went up the road apiece."

"Gone afoot?"

"No; about a mile."—Judge's Library.

Queer Definitions.

Among the curious definitions given by pupils in a recent public examination were the following:

POLICE ARREST EX-PASTOR ON A CHARGE OF FRAUD.

The Rev. George A. Francis, of the Central Real Estate Agency, of Westfield, was arrested Saturday morning on a charge of fraud made by Jack Capitelli, who swears that Francis got him and his wife to give him power of attorney, which was used by Francis, or the Central Real Estate Agency, or someone in their behalf for their use; and he or they did collect and receive the sum of $2,500 as the proceeds of the sale of property belonging to Capitelli and his wife.

Francis was arrested shortly after 9 o'clock and taken before Judge Toucey. He waived examination and was held in $2,000 bonds to await the action of the Grade Jury.

New Visitor.

A young married man of extremely jealous disposition recently visited one of the most famous mediums in London. Being far from home, he wanted to know what his wife was doing.

"She is looking out of the window, evidently expecting some one."

"That is strange," said Benedict. "Whom can she expect?"

"Some one enter the door, and she caresses him fondly," went on the medium.

"It can't be!" cried the excited husband. "My wife is true to me."

"Now she lays his head on her lap and looks tenderly in her eyes."

"It's true! I'll make you pay dearly for this!" yelled the jealous husband.

"Now he wags his tail," said the medium.

The green eyed monster subsided, and the young husband cheerfully paid over his consulting fee.—London Scraps.

Strange Uses For Churches.

There are cases innumerable of churches being used during England's civil war to accommodate the horses of one or another regiment of the opposing troops. Dedham church still shows traces of the equestrian mutilated sculpture. The oak doors at one time elaborately decorated with small carved figures of saints now shows the figures without their heads. And there is the famous case of Notre Dame at Paris, which during the days of the Revolution was converted into a "temple of reason," with its goddess, a ballet dancer, enthroned on a mound in the midst of the choir.—Strand Magazine.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEARING COMPLETION

Imposing Structure on Mountain Slope to Be Ready for Sisters of Mercy by July First.

DEDICATION SET FOR AUGUST.

Bishop McFaul to Officiate at Ceremony—College to Open in Fall —Ground Gift of D. T. Keaney.

Situated on the southern slope of the picturesque Watchung Mountains, above the intersection of Mountain avenue and Terrill road, in North Plainfield township, the new convent of Mount Saint Mary's, the $200,000 college structure erected by the State order of the Sisters of Mercy, is now practically completed, and will become the Mother House of the Order about July 1, when Saint Joseph's Academy, now the Mother House of the community at Bordentown, will take up quarters in the new building. The new college, an impressive-looking structure of brick and limestone with a facade of 200 feet, is erected near the summit of the mountain, facing the south and commanding a superb view of Plainfield and North Plainfield. Mother Gabriel, the Mother Superior of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy and now superintendent of the Bordentown community, will make the new convent her headquarters, and Sister Saint John, now in charge of the Bordentown College, will be the new rectoress. Mother Cecelia, with Sisters Mercedes, Concepta and Bernadetta, now of Saint Gabriel's Academy, North Plainfield, will also transfer their field of work to the new college, where they will assist the 160 other teachers of the order, 30 of whom will act as instructors at the new Mount Saint Mary's College.

Planned for the instruction and rooming accommodation of 200 pupils and a community of nearly the same number of Sisters, as instructors, the building is three stories in height and contains ninety-eight rooms. Two hundred feet in length, it is eighty-two feet deep, and on the east end is a single story addition, where will be the kitchen, heating plant and supply rooms. The large wings at the ends of the building, as shown in the architect's drawing, have not yet been built, but will be constructed as the community outgrows the present main building.

The main entrance, with its Indiana limestone porch, porte-cochiere and handsomely decorated door-way, is flanked by monolithic Corinthian columns, twenty-eight feet in height. From the vestibule, Renaissance stairways of heavy oak lead up from the mosaic and marble panelled entrance to the main hall, large, lofty and square, at the end of which is a high broad corridor, running the width of the entire building. Across the hall-way, in rear of the corridor, is the main office of the Mother Superior. Directly over the square hall-way, rearing to a height of 168 feet above the ground, the roof is surmounted by a tower, and cupola, which contains the big convent bell and is surmounted by the cross of the order. The rooms on the main floor include three large primary recitation rooms, the library, dining-rooms for the Sisters and pupils and offices of the directress and principal.

Above-stairs, on the second floor, are the music rooms—eight for piano instruction and three for vocal instruction—more class rooms for the advanced pupils, the community room, dormitories and private suites. On the top floor are twenty-six private bed-rooms, another pupils' dormitory, the infirmary, studio and novices' room. Aside from the main stair-case, there is a stair-case at each end of the long corridor, and an elevator.

A large gymnasium, 48x50 feet, is in the basement, with a recreation hall for the younger pupils, a physics laboratory, domestic science room and sewing rooms. The basement of the kitchen wing contains the heating apparatus for the entire building, storage bins, kitchen and butlery and sleeping quarters for the culinary Sisters. The roof is flat, except where the bell-tower rears its height in the centre, and is surrounded by a heavy balustrade, forming a promenade, from which an excellent view of the valley may be obtained.

The property consists of forty-four acres, the gift of David T. Keaney, of North Plainfield, who is much interested in the institution's welfare.

Ground for the new building was broken in July, 1906, and, while the building is now practically completed, the Order will not take possession until July 1. The new college will be formally dedicated in August, when Bishop McFaul will officiate at the dedication services. The Order has secured a large tract of land, and a fund has already been started for the erection of a chapel adjoining the Convent.

P. S. G. WILL IMPROVE LOCAL TROLLEY SERVICE

Superintendent J. J. Gettings, of the Public Service corporation, who was to have held a conference with Mayor C. J. Fisk on Saturday regarding the proposed new arrangement of operating local trolley cars, was prevented from coming to Plainfield because of another important engagement. He has promised to be here this week, however, and present the company's plans for bettering the trolley service.

The plan to run the Netherwood cars through Front street, without a change at the Watchung avenue stand is being urged, and efforts will be made to have the change go into effect by April 1st that the many ministers who will attend the Newark Conference, and who will stop at Truell Hall, may be able to ride between the Hall and the First M. E. church, without change. Mayor Fisk's attention has been called to the matter and he will do all in his power to bring about the improvement.

It is also expected that Plainfield will be remembered by the company in the distribution of new cars, as promised last fall. Mayor Fisk is insistent that old cars on the city lines be replaced with new ones and that it must comply with his request. The company has further agreed to improve the Fourth street line by laying new rails thereby making it possible to operate the larger cars through that thoroughfare. New rails are also to be laid on sections of the Netherwood line, where no improvements have been made since the line was built.

THROUGH CITY STREETS. RUNAWAY GALLOPS 2 MILES.

Establishing the local record for a long-distance runaway, a grey horse, attached to a buggy, started from Stonewall Jackson's stables on Somerset street Sunday afternoon and ran at top speed up Somerset street to Park avenue and through the city until it was finally caught by a Plainfield policeman just outside the city limits. The horse was without a bridle and made record time, galloping most of the distance, which is more than two miles. Several pedestrians attempted to stop the frightened animal as it galloped through town, but their efforts only frightened it the more and caused it to increase its speed.

The animal belongs to a couple from Woodbridge, who brought it to Jackson's stable for dinner. The bridle had been taken off and one of the Woodbridge men was going up to the horse with a box of feed when it took fright and bolted. Although the buggy was overturned as the horse went up Park avenue, the horse was uninjured when caught and the damage to the rig was slight, so that the owners, after borrowing a bridle and reins from Brantingham's stables, near which the runaway was stopped, could drive back to Woodbridge. The men returned the harness to Brantingham this morning and reported that the horse was none the worse for his long run.

LOSES $2,000 IN BLAZE

Councilman B. R. Waldron's 2:17 Trotter Perishes when Fire Destroys Barn.

OWNER SUSPECTS INCENDIARIES

Barn Found a Mass of Flames at 5 o'Clock This Morning and Another Horse Also Burns.

A valuable trotter owned by Councilman B. R. Waldron, of Codington avenue, was burned to death early Tuesday in a fire which totally destroyed the barn and caused the death of another horse stabled there and a loss of $2,000 to stable and contents. The trotter was valued at $250 and had a record of 2:17.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but Mr. Waldron stated this morning that he suspected incendiarism. He said that he has observed suspicious-looking men on his premises recently and that it has been a practise of certain men to go into the barn and smoke.

The fire was discovered at 4:45 this morning by William Uhrhahn, of Regent street, who saw smoke swirling from the crevices of the barn. Shouting the alarm, he rushed to the door, and on opening it, discovered the entire interior of the building to be a mass of flames. Mrs. Waldron, wife of the Councilman, telephoned for the North Plainfield fire department, but when the firemen arrived upon the scene, the barn was a mass of flames and nothing could be saved. Prompt action on the part of the firemen saved the chicken-coop, which stands near the barn. Captain Edmund H. Terry, Lieutenant William Nash and Fireman Hollingsworth were at headquarters when the telephone alarm came in at about 5 o'clock, and Terry sounded a general alarm from box 135.

The blaze started in the hay directly in front of the horses' stalls, and the animals were suffocated. Mr. Waldron had left the barn on his milk route about an hour before Uhrhahn discovered the fire, and the horse and wagon he drove were the only things saved. Aside from the two horses, a new road wagon, two other wagons, two sleighs, four sets of harness, blankets and a quantity of hay and grain were lost. Mr. Waldron stated today that his loss will reach $2,000, partially covered by insurance.

NEW BOWLING TOURNEY TO START NEXT WEEK

A five man tourney made up of eight teams was organized Monday at a meeting held at Campbell's alleys. The tourney will open next Tuesday evening and series will be rolled three nights a week until the schedule is finished.

The officers of the tourney are C. W. Runyon, president; Dr. F. C. Herbert, vice president, and J. J. Campbell, secretary and treasurer; executive committee, V. W. Nash, Jr., Dr. F. C. Herbert, Edward Toenes, Charles Ortleb and P. J. Reville.

The line-up of the teams will be as follows:

Somersets—C. F. Stout, captain; John Conklin, John Wirth, William Pope and George Quinn.

Centrals—F. J. Blatz, captain; Charles Ortleb, Chauncey Koons, William Owens and John Smalley.

Belvideres—P. J. Kiely, captain; James D. Keefe, John Campbell, Edward Toenes and J. H. Crane.

Madisons—Louis Skelly, captain; William Mullin, F. Elsbush, Frank McInerney and Monroe Squier.

Arlingtons—Edward Britton, captain; Dr. F. C. Herbert, George Ortleb, Harry Martin and George Eller.

Prospects—P. J. Reville, captain; Frank Willett, H. C. Van Emburgh, Walter Vail and V. W. Nash, Sr.

Putmans—V. W. Nash, Jr., captain; Percy Gaddis, Wilson Gary, John McLoughlin and C. W. Runyon.

WHERE PLAINFIELD EXCELS

Wm. Jeffery in Protest Against Personal Tax Tells of This City's Realty Wealth.

UNION COUNTY COMPARISONS.

Summit Shows Up Well In Many Particulars—Some Interesting Facts and Figures.

That the burden of a personal tax falls heavier in proportion on the rich than on the poor is the argument made by William Jeffery, a real estate specialist of Berkeley Heights and a former resident of this city, who today registered a protest against the present campaign in Plainfield to enforce such a tax.

"It is bad economics," says Mr. Jeffery, "that Plainfield is following the assinine policy of 'soaking' personal property, instead of 'letting up.' All countries have tried to get at the elusive personal property and far back as we know anything about history. Always the same old result, the wise and the rich evade the tax and the poor always caught in the assessor's net, yes, the ones that are caught are those upon whom such a tax bears the heaviest, the mechanic on the bench, in the factory, again in the warehouse, again in the retail store, and then in the home, the producer gets it in the neck from first to last and the insignificant amount of the tax realized by this double dealing and inquisitorial method is ridiculous.

"The amount of this personal property tax in Plainfield is only twenty-five cents of the total tax raise of $1.47 for 1907, the balance, one dollar and twenty-two cents, is on real estate, yet with so small a proportion of the taxes shown to cover personal property, Plainfield is the highest in the county, with an assessment of personal property of $163 per inhabitant. Summit next, $116.50, and Elizabeth with headquarters of the great Singer Sewing Machine plant, etc., assessed at only $85.88 per inhabitant. Elizabeth has probably cut her wisdom teeth, and seems to be enjoying the fruits of satisfactory development.

"Ask any assessor who really knows his business and he will tell you that work of listing up personal property is his only trouble. He has to 'bull in' on people, sit on their front porches, search into the neighbors' house and ask all kinds of questions about you—do you own the furniture? how many musical instruments have you? what salary do you make (when you make it)? Then he looks wise and says, 'I guess you will have to put up for a couple of hundred dollars or a thousand dollars.'

"Of course no poor man wants his companion in misery to think that he is not worth a couple of hundred dollars, still he knows well enough that it is an unjust tax, and no one should be forced to perjury. However, what is the reason most of our assessors do not see or hear very well, they are ashamed to be caught at either game, and those of them who are not new at the work, pass on. If it were put to a vote, I believe we would round up a good majority for the abolition of the personal property tax I believe.

"Plainfield is richest, also, in churches in the county. You know churches do not pay any taxes, no matter how much property they hold, and in this way and that the rest of the county in the value of her public schools, amounting to twenty-one dollars and sixty cents per inhabitant, over double that of Elizabeth and almost three times that of Summit per inhabitant. Summit has the largest value of real estate in the county per inhabitant, amounting to $1.74, and I suppose that's the reason the schools are not up to a higher amount, but then, you know the residents of Summit do not have the 'Bungalow' or 'Adam Smith 1776' families, or else the city is short of proper school accommodation. Anyway, Plainfield stands at the top of the list, and whoever was responsible for this condition ought to get a gold medal from the present city authorities. If there were more than one or a few interested, give our more medals, even if you have to make them out of aluminum.

"Plainfield has also the highest graveyard value per inhabitant next to Westfield. This does not indicate that there are more dead ones in these two places proportionately than in the rest of the county. The value of the Plainfield graveyards amounts to two dollars and seventy-two cents per inhabitant, and does not include) While you are alive the proportionate value of the graveyards is found by the assessor is the trifling sum of less than three dollars, and at this rate would give you under an equal division of the property enough to bury the whole of your family. But when you die your wife or mother-in-law goes to buy a cheap plot to give you a comfortable resting place for once, and they are confronted by all sorts of demands for a price that would make the angel Gabriel blush. The bereaved ladies must unload you at any price for peace sake and for the sake of respectability, so the plot you are dropped into cost you probably twenty or hundred times the amount of the assessed value per capita.

"The Elizabeth graveyards are assessed at only five cents. I repeat it for fear you may think it is an error in the print. Five Cents. And if prices are in proportion to the assessment, a decent plot down there ought to cost a bunch of money. I understand that Lizzie doesn't bother burying her dead there, she sends them over to Linden. Railway can't stand any more dead ones, she is filled up. We tax the dead, we tax those who are half dead. Those who employ capital and labor are taxed to death. We chase the spirit of personal property and try to tax it. Value will escape our attention. People come and people go, prices of vacant land keep going up, and it has been the policy of the authorities to encourage the holding of land vacant by taxing it lightly, and 'soaking' the houses so that the tenants would have to pay high rents.

"Banks do not regard vacant land good enough as a rule to lend money on. They know that this is a waiting game, and they can't wait. They must show dividends regularly and unless some other of the bank or a director who has money enough can arrange it, the officers (who are nothing more than clerks as a rule), stick up their noses at the mention of a land proposition. And the real reason is that one does not have to be a banker to invest in land. It will answer all purpose to be a respectable ground-hog, and wait for the dear people to come around.

"I am in the pork business. My Plainfield friends know that, but I am justifying my position in doing two things—first, living on my job and bringing up my children in the simple life; and second, telling you of the inequalities that exist. I know from experience, covering a period of twenty years in the real estate business, that the real estate owners, especially those owning improved real estate, are especially anxious that the personal property tax be abolished, and the amount now raised on it to be added to real estate. I have found that the rich are busy grinding, while the rich are busy finding, and all are victims as well as the assessor of the lack of thought in making proper laws for the taxation that must be arranged equitably to provide money to run the government with.

"The men who are now in public office are for the most part just as anxious to do what is right as we are, but they do not know how. It has always been a wonder to me that the supervisors do not get together and take up the subject of taxation and thresh the matter out, each county could have an organization, and the counties could have a State organization to take up the matter and such a policy would be for the good; it would even pay the State to encourage this by providing the ways and means for the meetings and allow public spirited citizens to address the assessors.

"I believe that Governor Fort wants to get down to the bottom of the tax question, and we must be prepared to help out when the time comes. I shall be pleased to try and answer any question on this subject which may be submitted to me."

STOLE TO FIT UP HOME

Police Find Mary Paulock, Recently Committed, Guilty of Numerous Thefts.

NEW VICTIM FOUND YESTERDAY

Northerwood Man Makes Complaint and $200 Worth of Property is Returned to Him.

Edwin Allen, a resident of the Northerwood section of East Seventh street, visited police headquarters yesterday and informed Chief Kiely that someone had stolen nearly all of his wife's summer clothing, packed away in boxes last fall, and a handsome silk umbrella, the aggregate value being $150. He was unable to tell just when the articles were taken as they were not missed until Mrs. Allen went to get the apparel for over-clothing.

In the course of questioning, Mr. Allen said a servant girl had left them suddenly on February 9 and he gave the police head a description of her. He struck the chief as fitting Mary Paulock, the young woman who was sent to the State Home for Girls last week on charges of theft preferred by H. F. Florey, of Putnam avenue, for whom she worked. He produced a picture of her, taken at the time she was arrested, and the instant Mr. Allen saw it he exclaimed:

"That's the girl."

In company with Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, the complainant was sent to Newark and taken to 50 New York avenue where the Paulock woman had stored a lot of stolen stuff recently recovered. The address is that of a relative and when he was instructed to produce all the articles left by Mrs. Allen's property was located. There was even more than Mr. Allen had first spoken about as he found various household articles that had not previously been missed. He returned to Plainfield with fully $200 worth of clothing, the umbrella and parasol-a-brac.

In speaking of the Paulock girl the police chief today said that she had intended to be married within a short time and that she was stealing stuff from places where she had worked in order to furnish her future home. She is attractive in appearance and it seemed to be her chief motive for her to procure a situation. She remained in each one only long enough to appropriate something that wouldn't be missed right away and by the time it was missed would probably be forgotten. The police recovered a number of articles of property from the Newark address and it was thought nothing more remained, but yesterday's trip being taken by Mr. Allen was more than anything else.

LOCAL COAL DEALERS FIX SUMMER PRICES.

The coal dealers of Plainfield announce today a graduated reduction in the price of egg, stove and chestnut coal for the summer months. A flat price of $6.50 per ton will be charged for the whole year, but during the months of April, May, June, July and August, a discount will be made on coal paid for within thirty days from time of delivery, as follows: April, fifty cents a ton; May, forty cents; June, thirty cents; July, twenty cents; August, ten cents. On September 1 the full price of $6.50 will be charged and no discount allowed. This schedule is according to the agreement of the dealers who are members of the local association organized for their protection and is said to be based on the prices fixed by the wholesale dealers. As heretofore the price of pea coal will be $5 a ton.

BIBLE CLASS HOLD SOCIABLE AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

A program of vocal and instrumental music, with recitations, preceded light refreshments at a highly successful sociable given by the Adult Bible class at the First Presbyterian church last night. There were about fifty present, and it is planned to hold similar affairs periodically in future. The program of entertainment included a piano solo by Miss Florence Dixon, a recitation, "The Flag," by Mrs. Andrew Mulford, a solo by W. W. Giddes, accompanied on the piano by Miss Eva Kelly, and a dialogue by Miss Try Mattox and Mr. Mulford. Late in the evening, refreshments consisting of a salad, ice cream, coffee and cake, were served.

The committee in charge of the affair included Mrs. Kelly, chairman; Joseph Allen and Mrs. E. W. Pointer. The officers of the class are F. O. Dunning, president; Mrs. Kelly, vice-president; Mrs. Kendall, treasurer, and F. L. Goodwin, secretary.

FREEHOLDER AND COPS ARE SUED FOR DAMAGES

Papers for suits aggregating $3,000 have been filed in the Somerset county court at Somerville against Freeholder Andrew J. Lutkins, Chief George Weiss and Marshal Lemuel Pope, of the North Plainfield police. The suits are brought by James Fleming, proprietor of the Union meat market on Somerset street, who alleges an illegal attachment and sale of a horse and wagon for payment of a bill of $47.15, owing to Gross & Snyder, a wholesale produce firm of Newark. At the time the attachment was made, Fleming's nephew, Robert, was in charge of the business, and the action was brought against him, although James Fleming asserts that he was owner of the business at the time and knew nothing of the bill against the firm.

There are three suits brought by Fleming, who alleges that he was legal owner of the business at the time the attachments were made, last November. Freeholder Lutkins bought the wagon and Chief Weiss, of the borough police force, the horse, at a public sale, so that the claims could be satisfied. Each of these men are being sued for $500, and Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope, who served the papers of attachment after due course of law, is sued for $2,000. Fleming has retained Lawyer Johnson, of Somerville, as his attorney in the case, and the action will be tried at the fall session of court.

It is said that the sale was legally advertised and duly performed according to law. Gross & Snyder, the firm bringing action for recovery of a bill of goods, have furnished bond for Marshal Pope. The transfer of the business was made before the levy by the Newark firm.

SUBJECTS FOR P.H.S. PRIZE COMPOSITIONS

Subjects for the annual prize compositions to be submitted by the pupils of the Plainfield High School were announced this morning by Principal Ira W. Travell. There are twenty-six topics for these themes, which are to be from 800 to 1,200 words in length, and are to be handed in not later than Monday, May 18.

Among the subjects is "Plainfield As a Suburban Town," and the pupil who writes the best composition on this topic will receive a ten dollar gold piece from The Daily Press, in accordance with this paper's annual custom. In addition to this award, books to the value of $15 are awarded the writer of the best composition, and $10 worth of books will be the second prize. These are known as the George H. Babcock prizes and are awarded from the Commencement stage. The complete list of topics follows:

"Plainfield As a Suburban Town," "A Harvard Boy During the Revolution," "The Life Story of a Salmon," "The Alchemist," "The First Surrender," "The Faith of the Forest," "Napoleon, the Drummer Boy," "The Day I Had Wings," "The Enlighted Harbor," "The Sissy," "A Piece of Paper," "The Mother's Mistake," "A Leaf From the Story of My Life," "My Hobby," "A Character Sketch," "A Story (subject adapted)," "The Golden Rule," "Such a Close Connection," "The Future of China," "The Perils of Socialism," "Out Waterway and Their Possibilities," "An Original Poem," "My Favorite Season," "The Influences of the Theatre," "Books of the Hour and Books of All Time," "The Power of Music."

McCAULEY GETS A CHANCE.

Banished for Six Months When He Tells the Court He Will Begin Life Anew in Another Place.

James McCauley, he of the locose disposition who hurled electric light globes at a group of men "just for fun," pleaded guilty to drunkenness and disorderly conduct when arraigned in the city court this morning. He followed up his admission of wrongdoing by telling Judge Runyon that it was impossible for him to live straight in Plainfield and that if he was given one more chance he would go out of town to begin life anew.

"All right," the magistrate said quickly, "I'll take you at your word. I'll banish you for the next six months and if you return before the end of that time and come before me for any reason you may expect a heavy sentence."

McCauley is a first class workman as long as he leaves drink alone but liquor has had the best of him for several years and he has been in the city and borough courts repeatedly. After his dismissal this morning he left police headquarters without saying where he would locate.

Mrs. Albert Cox, of East Rutherford, is visiting friends in this city.

WANTS SHARE OF ESTATE

Missing Fair Heir Turns Up and Reopens the Famous Case.

SUES TO RECOVER $1,000,000.

Names Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs Defendants In Action Commenced In New York Court.

Frank P. Smith of Topeka, Kan., who claims he is a brother of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, formerly of New Market, has brought suit to recover from Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs a share of Mrs. Fair's estate. Application was made before Justice Fitzgerald in the Supreme Court, New York, a few days ago for the appointment of a commission to take the testimony of witnesses in France. No date has been set as yet for the trial of the suit here.

Smith claims a seventh of the estate, or about $1,000,000, and has retained as counsel Chandler & Beekman, of No. 17 William street. Smith declares that evidence exists which will establish his suit, and which also may result in other suits being brought by heirs who accepted a settlement in waiver of their claims. Daniel F. Cohalan, of No. 2 Rector street, New York, has filed an answer in behalf of Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs. He declined yesterday to discuss the case.

It is understood that the answer contains a challenge of the authenticity of Smith's relationship to Mrs. Fair, as well as a general denial of the allegations made in the complaint.

Following the death of Mrs. Fair and her husband in an automobile accident in France in August, 1902, the former's relatives used this fact to their advantage in the estate. There were six of these heirs, the late Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of Mrs. Fair; William Smith, of Caldwell; Mrs. Joshua Leonard, of Caldwell; Mrs. Bonnell and A. G. Nelson, of New Market; Charles J. Smith, of Boulder, Col., and the children of Mrs. Charles Lefler, of Union. Mrs. Fair provided in her will a bequest of $10,000 to Frank P. Smith, "whose residence is unknown."

Smith ran away from home when he was eighteen years old. He now says that he was traveling in Mexico and Texas when Mrs. Fair was killed. He had not kept in touch with home affairs, he says, and when he read of the fortune left by his sister he did not occur to him that Mrs. Fair was his sister. He had returned to his home in Topeka when his wife read to him one night that a Mrs. Nelson, of New Market, the mother of Mrs. Charles L. Fair, had died.

Says He Has Proof.

"This was in your home town. Could this be your mother you have told me about?" Smith's wife asked him. He made inquiries, which he says revealed that Mrs. Fair was his half-sister and that he was entitled to a share in her estate. He says he remembers his sister "Carrie" as a very pretty child. Smith visited the Fair relatives in New Jersey recently, and it is said they are satisfied that he is the brother whom they had thought lost. Proper search made for Smith, but when he could not be found the California courts declared that his legacy of $10,000 had lapsed because of his failure to appear and claim it.

Frank Smith says he is the second son of Mrs. Hannah E. Smith, who later married a man named Nelson. His relatives discontinued their suit on receipt of about $25,000 each. An offer of a settlement on these terms was made to Smith, but he refused it. The heirs brought an action two years ago to have the settlement set aside, but it was never pressed.

Smith claims as heir of Mrs. Fair on the contention that she outlived her husband a very brief period following the accident.

Patrolmen Dropped from the Force.

Thomas Burns and Earl Smith, patrolmen attached to the Dunellen local force, were dismissed from the department today on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer. Both men attended inspection yesterday afternoon and appeared for duty last night in an intoxicated condition. Burns was formerly a letter carrier and was dropped from the service for a similar charge.

FIRE ALARM BOXES FOR CITY SCHOOLS

Local school and fire department authorities, in conference at the Common Council chambers, last night, with a representative of the Gamewell Company, discussed the proposed installation of fire alarm boxes in the city schools, and today a committee comprising General Manager Gillette, of that concern, Fire Chief T. O. Doane and Allen H. Laing made a tour of the schools with a view to preparing an estimate of the cost of installing the improvements. Those at the meeting last night were President Ralph I. Tolles, of the Common Council, the entire fire committee, with the exception of Chairman Hibbard, President L. N. Lovell and E. M. Cave, of the Plainfield Board of Education, Fire Chiefs T. O. Doane and Howard Woolston, of city and borough, respectively, Supervising Principal Henry C. Krebs, of the borough schools, Councilman Smith, chairman of the North Plainfield Council; fire committee, and Frank Clark, clerk of the city Board of Education. These officials met with Mr. Gillette, of the Gamewell company, who explained the system of school fire alarm boxes planned for the city schools. The consensus of opinion at the meeting was that such boxes should be installed immediately, and the committee was chosen to prepare an estimate of the cost.

When installed, the boxes in the various buildings will be in charge of the city fire department, and an alarm from them will summon the firemen directly to the school. At many of the local schools, the fire alarm boxes in the vicinity are so far from the buildings as to entail considerable loss of time if the department rung to the box from which the alarm comes. The boxes will be installed either in the principal's office or the hallways of each building, and will be operated the same as the street boxes throughout the city.

At several of the schools, the expense of wiring for the new boxes will be considerable, owing to the location of the buildings. The boxes will cost $35 apiece, exclusive of the cost of wiring, which will vary in the different buildings. The committee appointed to make an estimate of the gross expense involved by the installation of the school box system visited the schools today, and will report their estimate at the April meeting of the Common Council. It is be held next Monday night.

The North Plainfield officials were present at the invitation of Fire Chief T. O. Doane, who thought they would be interested in an explanation of the Gamewell system. The number of school fire boxes is yet to be reported on by the borough Board of Education, who appointed a committee at their last meeting to look into the matter and get estimates for the two schools.

To Give College Pictures.

The Plainfield High School Alumni Club of Rutgers College will present pictures of the college buildings and campus scenes to the local school. The club is composed of Charles Elliott, Walter Rugen, Harry Shrager, Robert Rugen, Russell Foote, Dr. Lancey Ferguson, Stanley Fisher and Fred Smith.

NEWARK M. E. CONFERENCE BEGINS ITS SESSIONS

Bishop Spellmeyer Presides; Rev. J. F. Dodd Secretary; Organization Effected.

REV. JACOB COLE, TREASURER.

Memorial Service This Morning Followed by Women's Meeting This Afternoon—Dr. Crawford's Fine Lecture.

Bishop Henry Spellmeyer, of Cincinnati, is presiding at the fifty-first annual session of the Newark Conference which convened at 9 o'clock this morning in the First M. E. church, where practically all of the meetings will be held. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper marked the beginning of the opening session.

Sacrament Administered.

The Bishop was assisted in the opening service by the four presiding elders, Rev. Dr. Daniel Hallerson, Rev. C. M. Anderson, Rev. L. C. Mul*ler and Rev. J. M. Meeker and Rev.* A. C. McCrea, pastor of the home church. The impressive ritual was read by the Bishop, while the presiding elders, were kneeling about the altar, after which sacrament was conduced by the elders, according to the usual custom. Several times during this part of the service the congregation joined in the singing of an appropriate hymn.

Rev. Mr. Dodd Secretary.

Immediately following the actual business was taken up with the roll call. A majority of the delegates are present. At the organization of the conference, Rev. J. F. Dodd, of New York, was again chosen secretary, and as his assistants, Rev. Frank MacDaniel, Rev. Frederick Bloom, Rev. Heddings B. Leech, Rev. W. E. Armstrong and W. B. Fleming were named.

Dr. Guttridge Statistical Secretary.

Rev. Dr. John A. Guttridge of Newark, was chosen statistical secretary. His assistants are Rev. S. K. Doolittle, Rev. Arthur Lucas, Rev. W. C. Timbrell, Rev. F. C. Mooney and Rev. P. King. Jacob Cole, of Newark, was elected treasurer, and his assistants are Rev. J. W. Ryder, Rev. J. O. Spanon and Rev. W. R. Neff.

By a unanimous vote the standing committees of last year were confirmed, the program adopted and 12:30 was the time fixed for the adjournment of the morning sessions.

Bishop's Committee.

Bishop Spellmeyer announced the following as committee on memoirs: Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, Rev. Dr. D. L. Hoagland, Rev. C. S. Woodruff and Rev. E. V. King, and after the reading of transfers from other conferences, a memorial service was held.

Memorial Service.

During the past year three members of the conference died, Rev. W. B. Judd, of Alliance, Ohio; Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Parsons, of North Plainfield, and Rev. William H. McCormick, of Dover. Dr. Hoagland read the memorial on the death of Mr. Judd, while Dr. Snodgrass read the paper on the life of Dr. Parsons, which was prepared by Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll and with the approval of Mrs. Parsons. Mr. Woodruff presented the memorial on the life of Mr. McCormick, while T. H. Landon, president of the Bordentown Military School, supplemented the sketch by Mr. Woodruff with personal observations. Between the reading of the papers, the congregation sang an appropriate hymn.

Arrange New Business.

Before adjournment shortly after noon the first meeting of the various committees was determined and it was announced that at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning several propositions will be presented under the rule of the order of the day.

At the suggestion of Rev. C. Muller, the secretary was instructed to send to Rev. Frank MacDaniel, who has been ill at Asbury Park, an expression of sympathy over his long illness and congratulations over his prospects of returning health.

Conference Claimants.

Rev. Dr. Snodgrass brought up the question of a report on the Bishop's cabinet, but action was postponed until tomorrow morning. The suggestion of Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes that a memorial be sent to the General Conference in behalf of the support of conference claimants, will also be taken up tomorrow. This committee was appointed to canvass the Newark Conference in the interest of the matter: Rev. Dr. John A. Guttridge, Rev. J. B. J. Rhodes, Rev. O. J. Shoop, Rev. W. E. Palmer, Rev. Charles Waldron and Rev. C. J. Hoyt.

Bishop's Announcements.

Bishop Spellmeyer announced before the morning session closed that he would make it a point while here to see the man that wants to see him, that he would be at the parsonage, 610 Central avenue, each afternoon from 2 to 3 o'clock for conference purposes. He said that he had decided not to allow the conference to adjourn in haste. There would be many important matters to be discussed and he suggested that all committees and those having matters to bring before the conference arrange to do promptly and thereby aid the presiding officer and dispos*ing of the business*.

A Cabinet Meeting.

There was a meeting of the Bishop's cabinet at the parsonage on Central avenue, this afternoon, when *several matters of importance per*taining to subsequent sessions will be discussed. It is at these sessions of the cabinet that appointments are considered which are afterward announced by the Bishop.

Women In Session Now.

This afternoon's session is devoted to the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. Mrs. J. H. Knowles, conference secretary, presiding. Re*ports are being presented and an ad*dress is to be made by Rev. Dr. Joseph Beach, president of Chenu Colleges.

Insurance Meeting.

At the same hour a meeting of the Conference Life Insurance Association was held in Vincent chapel.

Tonight's Program.

Tonight at 7:45 o'clock the anniversary of the Centenary Fund and Preachers' Aid Society, will be observed. Rev. Dr. Halleron will preside. This will be followed with the report of the corresponding secretary, Rev. Dr. John A. Guttridge, and the treasurer, Milton E. Blanchard. At this service Mayor Charles J. Fist will extend a welcome to the delegates and introduce Governor A. Franklin Fort, the speaker of the evening. The public is invited to these services.

Dr. Crawford's Lecture.

"Savonarola, The Florentine Reformer" was the subject of a lecture given in the First M. E. church, last night, by Rev. Dr. William H. Crawford, president of Allegheny College. While the meeting was in no way connected with the session with the Newark Conference, which began this morning, it served to attract many of the delegates who arrived early, and members of other churches. The lecture was followed by an informal reception to Bishop Henry Spellmeyer, who presided.

In the treatment of his subject, Dr. Crawford showed thorough knowledge, as in quick succession he followed the short but busy life of the Florentine reformer from his boyhood days when his father and grandfather destined him to honor the name of the family in the medical profession until he came forth as the leading figure in the reform movement which aroused Florence to the centre of her very existence.

His Description.

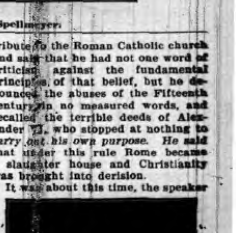
The speaker said that there is hardly a street in Florence that does not remind one of Savonarola and his heroic achievements, of his triumph and humiliation. Born 400 years ago, in 1452, Dr. Crawford step by step enumerated the great events in the reformer's life during the fifteenth century, which he called the age of transition. The masses were steeped in ignorance and superstition, while the political situation was as bad as possible.

Pays Tribute to Catholicism.

At this point Dr. Crawford paid a tribute to the Roman Catholic church and said that he had not one word of criticism against the fundamental principles of that belief, but he denounced the abuses of the Fifteenth century in no measured words, and recalled the terrible deeds of Alexander VI., who stopped at nothing to carry out his own purpose. He said that under this rule Rome became a slaughter house and Christianity was brought into derision.

It was about this time, the speaker

Bishop Henry Spellmeyer.



Rev. Dr. W. H. Crawford.

said, that Savonarola was called upon to play so important a part in the affairs of Florence. While not good looking or brilliant, he was serious. Pomp and display had no attraction for him. He saw the fruits of vice, justice being dethroned and decided to renounce his profession. He entered the monastery at Bolobna and was soon made an instructor of novices. At the expiration of seven years he returned to Florence and entered the monastery of San Marco. All this time he labored within the reform that great desire to purify and cleanse his country of vice, but when he began preaching a series of Lenten sermons there were scarcely forty persons left to hear him.

Florence was not ready at this time for the great preacher, but it was no long before the people flocked to hear the great moral reformer of the age. All Italy began to listen to him as he preached in the great cathedral.

Savonarola as a Reformer.

In his characterization of Savonarola, Dr. Crawford said that he was a great preacher, a statesman, a reformer and a pulpit orator who had broken every homilitical rule of his time. He attacked the gambler of the club and palace as quickly as the lowest gambler of the street. He assailed the idea that there must be different standards for living and even dared to bring Christianity into the market places, where the common people could hear it. He would not recognize Lorenzo beyond simple justice, and when the great Cardinal's hat offered to him if he would modify his words. In the words of Dr. Crawford, no one ever spared this democratic monk. His reform measures were extended and tax reform abolished, while the social status of the people advanced to a high plane. Women dressed plainly and purity, sobriety and justice were restored and prevailed.

In conclusion Dr. Crawford recited the work of the reformer as he discussed the Roman abuses, and how his influence spread to such an extent that he was finally arrested, tried as a convicted and burned at the stake in 1498. Even though he was put to death the cause he represented lived and continues to live today and as a result England has given Savonarola a first place and *Germany has given him true recog*nition, while in Florence he will ever be held dear to the hearts of the

CONSOLIDATION SETBACK

Now Considered Improbable That Referendum Bills will Reach Legislature.

THE DILLY DALLY POLICY.

Too Late Now to Get Desired Referendum Measures Enacted Before Lawmakers' Adjournment.

Another year must elapse probably before the question of union between Plainfield, Union county, and North Plainfield, Somerset county, is brought before the voters of the two communities for final verdict. It may have been practically decided by those having charge of the matter not to introduce the necessary referendum bills in the Legislature during the present session, according to the best of authority it would be practically impossible to have the necessary measures passed by both Senate and House before adjournment particularly inasmuch as public hearings would likely be granted before final action would be taken.

The subject has been hanging fire for some months, in fact since the Bi-municipal Consolidation Commission reported that matter investigation had brought conviction that merger of the two communities only with annexation of North Plainfield to Union county would be desirable. Finally former Judge Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City was reluctant to draft the required bills for introduction in the Legislature. Senator Ackerman was chosen to champion them and it soon became known that State Senator Freilnghuysen would use all his influence, rhetoric and logic to prevent their passage. As both Senators will come up for re-election this fall, their friends say that the decision to postpone the fight over the matter relieves a situation embarrassing to both.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, the father of the consolidation scheme, only recently returned from abroad and when he learned that no steps had been taken to introduce the referendum bills he got hard at work. But it is said now that he has been convinced that it would be unwise to go ahead now when it would be next to impossible to get the bills through before Legislature's adjournment.

UNION COUNTY W.C.T.U. HOLDS SPRING INSTITUTE

The Union County W. C. T. U. held its spring institute in the Fulton Street M. E. church, Elizabeth, Friday, and there was a large representation from the Plainfield Union, as well as those throughout the county. Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, county president, was in the chair.

Addresses of the session were addresses by Mrs. E. R. Fuller, of Westfield, and Miss Emma Starr, of Westfield. Mrs. Fuller spoke on "On to Washington," her key-note being the total abolition of the liquor traffic. Miss Starr addressed the members on the "White Slave Traffic." She said that there were many proofs that such a traffic did exist and that it was most prevalent in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. The shame, she said, was that the police were not blind to the fact that it existed, and besides, profited by it.

The service was opened with a devotional exercise under the leadership of Mrs. M. F. Francis. Rev. Enoch Meacham, pastor of the church, welcomed the delegates. Mrs. E. W. Rogers and Mrs. L. Decker were appointed a courtesy committee and Mrs. William Nelson and Mrs. John Wilson were appointed as a page committee.

During the session Mrs. Emma Bourne, State president, conducted a Bible reading. She touched briefly on the progress of prohibition in the country and said, "If it is true, as some people say, that more liquor is sold in prohibition States than there was when saloons were licensed, why do they fight when a move is made to establish prohibition in their State?"

The afternoon session was taken up with the presentation of reports from the various committees, and all afforded much encouragement to the advocates of prohibition, who believe that great progress is being made today in the wave of temperance that is sweeping over the country.

BRYAN LOSES DISTRICT

Congressional Delegates to Democratic Convention Likely to Favor Gray.

MARTINE ADMITS HIS DEFEAT.

"Farmer-orator" Says It Is Probable That Delegates From This Section Will Not Be For His Friend.

"Farmer-orator" James E. Martine admitted today that the Fifth Congressional district, which he came within an ace of sweeping when running for Mr. Fowler's place three years ago, may send an anti-Bryan delegation to the Denver convention. When shown published reports of an interview with General D. F. Collins, Union county's chairman, the sturdy old worshipper at the Bryan shrine today said that he was full aware of the fact that the Elizabeth leader is heart and soul for Gray and against a Bryan delegation, but that it would be up to the rank and file of the party to say what's what.

"I do not doubt for one minute that Morris county will be against Mr. Bryan," said Mr. Martine, "but I have a firm conviction that Warren will present a solid front for the Nebraskan. It will all depend, as you see, on Union and I know that some of the leaders are working hard to prevent any Bryan delegation. But by the very gods, I do believe that no matter what the Fifth district does or how New Jersey stands when lined up at Denver, Mr. Bryan will be nominated by a very large majority. To nominate either Judge Gray or Governor Johnson would be most unwise and if either is chosen I want to predict right now that the nomination will fall flat as that of Alton B. Parker's did and you only have to look at the Democratic political map to see what it did to us."

Mr. Martine said that he was not a candidate for district delegate but that of course he would much like to attend the convention. "There wouldn't be any mistake about my vote," he added with a merry chuckle.

The action of the Democratic leaders in choosing April 22 as the date for the Democratic State convention for the selection of national delegates has brought to a fever heat the local contest which has been smouldering for some time as to the 5th Congress district delegates from Union, Warren and Morris counties. From this county alone there are three candidates for the delegateship, William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, and Charles H. Winans and Alfred A. Stein, Elizabeth councilmen. Both of the Elizabeth candidates favor Judge Gray. Morris county wants a representative in the Congress district and Warren, which was the only county not represented four years ago in the Fifth, will no doubt come

JUDGE ATWATER GIVES BAKER THREE YEARS

Walter Carter and Walter Baker, colored, were among those arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court, Saturday, for sentence. They were arrested recently by the Elizabeth police, as they were getting off a trolley car in that city, on a charge of robbing the homes of William Nelson and Mrs. Jennie Gauthier, of Watchung avenue. When picked up, clothing belonging to Mr. Nelson was found in their possession. They entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, but the weight of evidence was against them.

Baker, who has a bad record, having previously served eighteen months in the Eastern Penitentiary of Philadelphia, was sentenced to three years in State Prison, while Carter was given eighteen months at the same place. The latter is well-known in Plainfield, where he formerly lived. Lately he had been making his home in Newark.

John H. Loving, also colored, found guilty of stealing a watch from Stanley Paulock, of Watchung avenue, about a year ago, was put in charge of the probation officer and fined $25, the agreement being that he is to pay the money at the rate of $2 a month. After taking the watch Loving remained away from Plainfield for nearly a year. A month ago he walked into Paulock's place to inquire the time. The proprietor recognized his watch and had Loving arrested.

Lung Hearing Advanced.

The Supreme Court of the United States advanced for hearing on April 6 the appeal of Frederick Rang, who was convicted of shooting and killing his niece, Kate Gordon, near Brunswick, N. J., in April, 1906.

"Because it's got good manners, and behaves itself, and doesn't go shouting around like a boy, I guess," said Polly.

SIC FAMA AD ASTRA; ANECDOTE ON DREW

The chef d'oeuvre of anecdotes, characteristic of John Drew, has just come to light apropos of Miss Louise Drew's present part of "Miss Minety" in the new Ethel Barrymore play, "Her Sister." Miss Drew first saw the manuscript of her part when she was one of the party that accompanied her father on the automobile tour through Italy last summer. Mrs. Drew was also of the party. As Charles Frohman had promised to dispatch the manuscript to Miss Drew as soon as it was put into form, careful pains were taken everywhere by the party to leave specific addresses for forwarding all mail from town to town.

From Sarento to Orsant is one of the finest tours known to any Italian traveler. It winds itself along a devious course, affording the most delightful, because the most unconscious glimpses of the Mediterranean. It was this trip that Mr. Drew's family had taken when it was decided to stop at Orsanto, where a rest might be had and where perhaps the delayed mails might catch them. Orsanto has, upon one of its hillsides, one of the most picturesque of Italian inns. It is conducted by a father and a son.

Addressing the son, in "his best Italian," Mr. Drew ordered lunch for the party and especially some fresh milk for Miss Drew. Something was muttered by the waiter as he served the lunch, but thinking it a bit of local obscure Italian, the remark went unanswered. Then it was that Miss Drew discovered the milk to be quite warm. The waiter was recalled and requested once more "in Mr. Drew's best Italian," to serve some ice.

The amazement of the party is better imagined than described when the waiter replied in emphatic "American English:"

"Why, boss, you might as well ask for a gold mine in this country as a chunk of ice."

The father and son, it turned out, had lived for years in New Orleans; had made their fortune there and returned to Italy to buy out the little inn that, from the earliest days, had always been the object of their greatest envy.

The men tremendously interested Mr. Drew, who immediately felt kindly towards him, and, in fact, invited him to look him up if ever he came to New York.

"And your name?" said the innkeeper.

"Why, John Drew," was the answer.

"Oh, yes, I know you," the fellow said. And Mr. Drew waited to hear his name connected with one of his more famous characterizations.

"Yes, I remember your name," continued the innkeeper, in all seriousness. "You run a cigar factory over there, don't you?"

And visions of his bete noir, the signs painted "John Drew Five Cent Cigar," flouted before the eyes of the star of "My Wife."

NIGHT SONG BY THE SEA.

Wind and rain are at the pane,
Shrilling, drumming without cease;
And the breakers loud refrain
Given the shuddering heart no peace.
Lord of all the things that be,
Pity thou the souls at sea!

Snugly roofed with warmth and glow,
And encompossed soft by sleep,
Little we land-dwellers know
Of the terrors of the deep.
Lord, in thy sweet charity,
Pity thou the souls at sea!

On the smiling face of morn
Sure are we to gaze again;
What of those poor waifs forlorn
Furrowing the untracked main?
Lord, in their dire need of Thee,
Pity thou the souls at sea!

Although riven be the rail,
Snapped the shroud and rent the mast,
May they into harbor sail,
All their perils over-past!
Lord, in Thy compassion, be
Pilot to the souls at sea!

Motor Boat Disease.

New occupations and recreations are known to have developed a variety of new diseases, and now De Forest, a Paris surgeon, has called attention to a form of accident peculiar to those who use motor boats. The machinery often starts suddenly and rapidly after a hitch in its working, at which time the handle of the heavy balance wheel is very liable to strike the operator before he can get out of the way. The result is usually a fracture of the bones of fingers, wrist or forearm, sometimes of the leg, and the blow is so sudden and violent that the breaks are quite unlike those from falls or other ordinary accident, more resembling those from large calibre projectiles without the penetrating effects. The bone fractures at the point of impact instead of at its weakest part.

"Well," explained the breathless clerk, "I have to button up the ashes and shake down a shirtwaist and carry out the furnace every morning."—Pittsburg Post.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

THE CIVIL SERVICE BILL'S FATE

Senator Ackerman's latest statement regarding his civil service bill that is to come up in the Legislature this week in the hope of reconciling the differences between the Senate and Assembly on the measure, is full of good arguments and sound reasoning. The Union county representative tell the purpose of the bill and what its passage would accomplish. It is for the benefit of all the people; it means more peace to those holding and seeking employment in the public service; it would guarantee that the business of the State would be conducted as well as it can be conducted, on lines of efficiency; it provides that faithfulness and efficiency shall be protected and rewarded, and that men who distinguish themselves in public work shall be guaranteed a reasonable tenure of office.

Such a bill, it would seem, ought to secure the support of all of the members of the Legislature desiring good government, especially when it is known that civil service laws in other States have worked for the benefit of the government and the taxpayers and that no serious attempt has ever been made to repeal them when once they have been placed upon the statute books. But the opposition to the Ackerman measure is not based upon reasonable grounds. It is inspired entirely by partisan zeal—the desire of political bosses to control the spoils system, with all the opportunities it gives for serving selfish purposes and compelling the taxpayers to pay for the cost of keeping the bosses in power. No arguments as to the good effects of such a bill will be of any influence with such antagonism. What is needed just now at Trenton is a demonstration to the members of the Legislature, who are trying to carry out the wishes of the machine representatives, that the people will not submit to such misrepresentation and will show their disapproval at the proper time of the men who stand for the violation of the pledges made last fall by the State platforms and the candidates of both parties.—Newark News.

Evolution.

In the days when the higher education of women proved more distasteful than it does at the present time, a number of Cambridge University men—among them Arthur Clement Hilton, who was born a Wesleyan and died a clergyman—were discussing the establishment of women's colleges.

Hilton, says his biographer, Sir Robert Edgecumbe, expressed himself in favor of the movement.

"Of course, he said, "when women get their degrees they will not be bachelors but spinsters of Art, and so after a while they will proceed to the degree of M. A.—MA."— Youth's Companion.

"Barbarities" in Fashion.

One hears, with interest, of captain artistic evening confections, arranged on strictly classical lines, that depend wholly for their final touch on large barbaric ornaments that ostensibly hold together the draperies of the corsage. In the construction of these beautiful barbarities enamel plays a large part, since their ralson d'etre should be color, picked out with great blister and baroque pearls.

MEN'S CLUB MUSICALE PROVES HIGHLY PLEASING

The musicale given at the First Presbyterian church Thursday under the auspices of the Men's Club of the congregation, attracted a large audience appreciative of the genuinely artistic work of the artists and the well-selected program. Joseph McIntyre was at the piano, Sigmund Culp the violinist and Miss Anna Laurie Case the soprano.

The program comprised three numbers in part first and four in part second, but the audience was so enthusiastic that an encore was requested and generously responded to each number. The work of Mr. McIntyre at the piano and Mr. Culp as violinist was a revelation to many and the hearty applause given was evidence of the true appreciation. As soprano, Miss Case sang in her best style, in part first her number was taken from "Romeo and Juliette," Gounod, and as an encore she sang "Annie Laurie." In part second she sang the last number, "The Minstrel," with violin obligato. The sweetness and strength of her pleasing voice was never heard to better advantage.

Mr McIntyre opened the program with "Rhapsodie No. 8," Liszt, and in this difficult number as well as the succeeding ones, his complete mastery of the piano was displayed in brilliant fashion. In part two he gave two numbers, "Caprice," and "Valse de Concert," by Joseffy, and they aroused the greatest enthusiasm of the audience, which called for an encore.

The appearance of Mr. Culp, whose work as a violinist, has won fame for him in this country as well as abroad, was a noteworthy event. He played "Rondo Capriccioso," Saint-Saens, and the solo and "Fantasie," from Faust," together with encores. His renditions brought forth warm praise and he carried off a good measure of the success attending the musicale.

The program follows:

"Rhapsodie No. 8," Liszt, Mr. McIntyre; "Rondo Capriccioso," Saint-Saens, Mr. Culp; aria from "Romeo and Juliette," Gounod, Miss Case; "Caprice," and "Valse de Concert," Joseffy, Mr. McIntyre; "Faust," "Fantasie," Sarasate, Mr. Culp; "The Minstrel," (with violin obligato), Hildach, Miss Case, Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Culp.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS BY GIRLS' MISSION BAND

A clever farce, "Lunch in the Suburbs," was presented in the lecture room of the Crescent Avenue church Thursday by a cast of ten members of the Sunshine Mission Band of the church. A capacity audience greeted the players, who developed some commendable amateur talent by the interpretation of their lines. Nearly $100 was netted as a result of the affair, and the money will be sent to girls' schools in Syria and the Philippine Islands, to which the band makes regular contributions.

The lines of the play were unusually clever, presenting many ludicrous situations evolving during a luncheon tendered by a suburban woman to a party of intimate friends from the metropolis. The part of "Mrs. Jenkens," the hostess, was taken by Miss Mildred Brownlee, while Miss Janet Lane, as "Kitty," her daughter, helped her receive and entertain at table her guests. The visitors included "Mrs. Brown," Gladys Chase; "Mrs. Montstuart," Miss Beatrice Hedges; "Mrs. Page," Miss Dorothy Parvin; Mrs. Lawson," Miss Frances Zelie; "Mrs. Jenkens, the hostess' mother-in-law," Miss Carolyn Hedges; and "Mrs. Martin," Miss Dorothy Lyon. Miss Lyon, as the last named guest, is in the role of a deaf woman, and added much to the interpretation of her part by some cleverly adapted stage business.

At the conclusion of the dramatics, home made candy was offered for sale at a prettily decorated booth, where Miss Agnes Scribner presided, assisted by the Misses Helen Terry, Louise Paterson, Margaret and Mildred Miller, and Margaret Hutchinson. The success of the production was in a large measure due to the coaching of Miss Elsie Goddard and Miss Helen Brown. Miss Harriet Goddard is president of the Band, which numbers thirty members.

Electric Are Under Water.

Experiment has shown that an electric arc can be employed under water for fusing metal. The intense heat turns the water surrounding the arc into steam, thus forming an insulating cushion of vapor. It has been suggested that with proper apparatus the electric arc could be employed by divers for quickly cutting through large chain cables or iron plates under water.

AGENT HAYNES' FAREWELL

Veteran Railroad Employe Now Retiring on Pension, Dines His Friends.

GUESTS HANDSOME PRESENTS.

Masonic Jewel As Their Remembrance of Occasion—The Repast An Excellent One.

Joseph A. Haynes, who has been employed by the New Jersey Central for fifty-three years, and for more than a quarter of a century as station agent in this city, tendered his farewell dinner, Thursday, the guests being those who have been employed under him while agent here. Included among those present was Edward Martin, the colored station porter for more than twenty years.

The dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Haynes at the corner Avenue and Front, which is soon to be vacated by them to make room for the new agent, Joseph Koehler, of Bound Brook.

Mr. Haynes was presented with a handsome Masonic jewel, the gift of the guests, and the presentation speech was made by J. P. Ryno.

Those at table were J. P. Ryno, F. H. Stein, Ticket Agent V. Wignant, the veteran telegrapher Charles H. Schermerhorn, for fifty years an operator; Edward Monnerjahn, the oldest telegrapher operator who ever served here; Baggage Master Jeremiah Garretson, William Wilson, Harry Carey, Si Seals, E. B. Fuller, J. A. Taylor, William Gaston, Chas. Ryno, George Smith, John Ackerman, Isaac Ryno, Addison Amerman, Chas. Schwartz, Van Fleet Ryno, Alexander Wolf, Joseph Agar and Edward Martin. Mr. Haynes entered the service of the Jersey Central at the age of 16 on August 1, 1855.

The most excellent dinner was prepared and served under the direction of Mrs. J. A. Haynes, whose reputation in the culinary art is widely known.

CITY RECEIVES BIDS FOR CRUSHED STONE

The Watchung Stone Company, who again the lowest for the contract for furnishing the city with crushed stone, when the bids were opened at a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee, last night. Three offers were submitted on the crushed stone proposal blanks, the Watchung Stone Company, Smalley Brothers and J. Y. Wilson. The average bid of the Watchung Stone Company on the four sizes desired was 82½ cents, while that of Smalley Brothers was 85½ and that of Mr. Wilson $1.04½.

Bids for crushed stone were asked on four sizes—screenings, ¾ inch, 1½ inch and 2½ inch stone, and outside of the screenings, the other sizes were designated as A, B and C. The bid of the Watchung Stone Company was the same throughout, that is 75 cents for screenings, 85 cents for the ½ inch, 85 cents for 1½ inch and 75 cents for the 2½ inch.

Under classification B, the bid of Smalley Brothers was 90 cents for screenings, 90 cents for ½ inch, 85 cents for 1½ inch and 75 cents for 2½ inch stone. Under classification C, Smalley Bros. bid were $1.00 for screenings, $1.05 for ½ inch, 90 cents for 1½ inch and 80 cents for 2½ inch, and the bid of Mr. Wilson was $1.20 for screenings, $1.10 for ½ inch, 95 cents for 1½ inch and 85 cents for 2½ inch. The average bid of Mr. Wilson's bid was $1.02½.

The Watchung Stone Company and Andrew Roach were the only bidders for furnishing cover stone, curbing and crosswalks. For cover stone the bid of the company was 30 cents a square foot and that of Mr. Roach 28 cents. For 4x12 curbing the bid of the company was 50 cents a lineal foot and that of Mr. Roach 45 cents a lineal foot. For 4x20 curbing the company bid 66 cents a lineal foot, and Mr. Roach 56 cents a lineal foot. For 4x2 crosswalks the company bid 65 cents and Mr. Roach 70 cents and for the 4x30 crosswalks, the company bid 75 cents and Mr. Roach $1.00. Basing these bids for curbing on the basis of the total per one bill of each, the bid of the Watchung Stone Company was $2.80 and that of Mr. Roach $2.07.

No action was taken by the committee last night in awarding the contract, but the matter will be presented at the April meeting of the Common Council.

Preserving Marine Specimens.

To the Museums Journal Dr. C. Sorby contributes a paper on the best means of preserving marine invertebrates for museum purposes in such a manner that their natural coloring will be retained. As regards his own private collection, the author dips anhydrous glycerin—covered, if necessary, with a layer of almond oil—the most satisfactory medium some specimens which have been preserved in this manner for fully five years displaying their tints with even more than normal brilliancy. The chief difficulty in the case of museum specimens would be in the use of large rectangular vessels, owing to danger of leakage.

ENJOY 'COUNTRY SCHOOL'

Rollicking Entertainment at Monroe Ave. M. E. Church Makes a Genuine Hit.

J. STEPHEN HIGHAM TEACHER.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, the Pastor, Takes Part—The Songs Particularly Good—All Dressed As Children.

"The Country School" given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Thursday, attracted a capacity audience and the abundance of genuine fun furnished by the participants kept everyone laughing from beginning to end. It carried many of the older people present back some thirty or forty years to their school days, though not many were permitted to play the pranks which combined to make last night's affair such a real success.

Everyone in the cast took his or her part in true style and under the direction of J. Stephen Higham, who planned the entertainment and acted as teacher, there was no end to the mirth-provoking incidents. The participants were dressed as boys and girls and their antics exceedingly funny.

Miss Charlotte Aldrich was at the piano, during the evening, with the exception of being the accompanist for Louis Tallamy, who sang a typical song. In that he was accompanied by Mrs. Tallamy at the piano, was that of "I Can't Do that Sum," from "Babes in Toyland," while the words were in the nature of local hits. One verse follows:

"No doubt you've heard about the fuss they've had around our town,
"Where a citizen no longer has the right to stand around,
"The cop will nab you by the neck and hustle you off to jail."
"Would you subtract or multiply to get the price of bail?"

The entertainment will be repeated tonight when several new features will be introduced. Those taking part are as follows:

Rev. E. E. Roberson, Walter Mc-Gee, John Prasel, William Jacobs, John Smith, Mansfield Smith, Blanchard Randolph, Louis Berger, Thomas Lawson, Harry Luidl, Harry Cox, Louis Tallamy, Harry Gilmour, Stephen Higham, E. H. Beekman, Mrs. E. H. Beekman, Mrs. Mansfield Smith, Miss Charlotte Aldrich, Miss John Daub, Mrs. Louis Tallamy, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt, Sr., Miss Georgia Beekman, Mrs. Walter Manning, Miss Edward Beekman.

E. R. ACKERMAN SHOWS VIEWS OF OTHER LANDS

Exhibiting nearly one hundred stereopticon slides on scenes in foreign countries, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman gave a most interesting lecture in explanation of the pictures at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The affair was under the auspices of the Swedish Augustana church and a large percentage of the parish was present. The slides, many of which were reproductions of photographs, taken by the Senator himself, were beautifully colored and included views of the natural and architectural wonders of many lands, as well as many pictures illustrative of the customs of the European peoples.

Especially interesting were the views of Japan, China and India and the pictures illustrating the religious customs of the East. These included a series of slides from photographs on the banks of the Ganges, the west bank of which is thickly built up with palaces and temples, while the east bank is a desert stretch. This is because the Easterner believes that to die on the west bank of this much worshipped stream means a certainty of salvation, while to have life end while on the east bank signifies that the sould of the departed will go into a donkey in its next existence. Excellent views of the Taj Mahal, the pyramids and scenes of Sweden and Norway were shown, and the last views were reproductions of photographs of the Lusitania on her maiden trip, when the Senator was a passenger.

Mr. Ackerman was introduced to his audience by Rev. Theodore Englund, pastor of the church. A neat sum was realized for the general fund to defray parish expenses.

Hartridge School Incorporated.

Certificate of incorporation has been filed in the office of the county clerk by the Hartridge School, the principal offices of which are at 107-109 West Seventh street and 203 East Seventh street, this city. The objects for which the corporation is formed are to take over a concern of the same name. The total authorized capital stock is $20,000, divided into 400 shares at a par value of $50 each. The incorporators are Emelyn B. Hartridge and Elizabeth H. Mapelsden, of Plainfield, and Julian Hartridge, of New York city.

GREAT ADVANCE IN MEAT

All Local Butchers Make an Increase of Three to Five Cents a Pound.

SITUATION IS UNPRECEDENTED.

Scarcity of Cattle Makes Prices Highest Since 1888—No Sign of Change for the Better.

Retail prices of meats of all grades were increased two cents a pound in Plainfield last week and before another week has gone by it is very probable that prices will go from three to five cents a pound higher as the result of a strange combination of circumstances which has affected the cattle raising industry of the country.

A few local meat dealers are now compelled to pay higher prices for their meats and consequently the retail prices have taken a corresponding jump. The increase in price is universal with the local butchers. The farmers have not increased their prices to any great extent, but there is very little meat for the local trade purchased now except through the monopolistic packing houses. A loss in meat prices comes about this time of the year as a rule, but farmers obtain not more than one or two cents at most. It is not since the fall of 1888 that meat has been sold at the local markets at such high figures.

Speaking of the increase in prices, a local butcher said this morning: "The rise in price primarily affects lamb, pork and beef, although veal is also slightly higher. We buy in hundred pound lots as a rule and the wholesale prices have jumped three and four cents a pound. The greatest increase is in the price of lamb, so far, and we have to pay about 3½ cents a pound higher. Beef and pork have gone up three cents and I believe that veal will go higher. We have not had any trouble in getting the meat, although there is a persistent rumor that shortage with the wholesale dealers may make it difficult to get certain cuts of meat if the condition continue."

The raise said yesterday at the offices of the Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Company, First avenue and Forty-ninth street, New York, that if existing conditions become more acute it will be necessary for the people of this country to eat sheep and cattle from the Argentine Republic, England and Australia.

Persons visiting the butchers' stalls in the last week for their customary supply of meat, no matter what it was, have found that prices of three to five cents a pound has been added to the price they paid for beef a week ago. When they turned to lamb and mutton as a substitute they found that the price had increased twenty cents a pound, and also that the price of pork found the heavy demand had increased that product from one to two cents a pound from sausage to loin chops and hocks.

When persons asked for an explanation for anything that could be seen by the retailer was that the wholesale price had been increased from $2 to $2.50 a hundred pounds, and that the loss to the dealers in lamb and veal was so much greater in proportion that they felt compelled to make the increase larger than that made by the wholesaler, whose loss in buying did not call for such a proportionate loss.

At the offices of the Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Company, New York, yesterday the statement was said that it is true that the wholesale prices of meats had increased, and was also told that the prices are likely to go still higher within the next week or ten days.

"We handle about twenty-five per cent of the total output of this country, and we have our buyers scattered throughout the entire country, trying to buy sheep and cattle," said Mr. Sulzberger. "For the last week we have been receiving telegrams from them every day reporting a great shortage of the usual supply of sheep and cattle. In fact, they say they cannot buy one-third of what we need, and that there are no cattle on the farms compared with what there ought to be at this season of the year.

Situation No One Foresaw.

"This condition no man in the business foresaw, although it is perfectly plain to all of us now. Last fall when the cattle raisers were preparing to put their cattle up for winter feeding and were ready to go into the market and buy lean cattle to fatten, they suddenly made the unprecedented demand on the banks for money. Just about that time the money stringency came on and currency practically went out of circulation, so that the banks could not get the cash to lend to the farmers. In consequence the farmers could not buy any more cattle to feed. But worse still, they could not borrow any money on the cattle that had on their farms and ranches with which to buy food for them for the winter.

"As a consequence, it was necessary for the cattle raisers to ship to the markets as fast as they could get rid of the cattle they did not have grain enough on hand to feed. This, as you will recall, made a heavy supply greater than the demand last fall, and meat went much lower to the retail trade, but meat got so low that people who had only been able to buy it once in a while found they could buy it more frequently, and the oversupply was used up in that way.

"While, of course, the greatest hardship will be felt by the poorer classes, those in the middle walks of life as well as the rich people will have to pay the increased price. 'Chuck' as well as porterhouse will be higher, but 'chuck' will not rise with a corresponding degree of rapidity. 'Chuck' is taken largely by a class of people who will not stand for an increase in living expenses to any great extent, and those butchers who sell this grade of meat heavily will be afraid to raise the price very much for fear of trouble with their customers. You know the foreigners on this side are particularly averse to having their living expenses increased, and you know there are many in New York who would not hesitate to attack the butcher who tried to raise prices very much.

Mr. Sulzberger said pork had got up a cent or two a hundred pounds, but the tendency was upward.

May Have to Buy Meat Abroad.

Mr. Sulzberger added that he did not see the slightest sign for any change for the better, and he considered "if that was much worse and our buyers are not able to get the cattle here it will be necessary for the packers in the United States to call on the Argentine Republic, Australia and England for our beef supply, although there is a persistent rumor that shortage with the wholesale dealers may make it difficult to get certain cuts of meat if the condition continue."

LEGISLATURE HONORS FARMER-ORATOR MARTINE

"Farmer-orator" James E. Martine, he of many unsuccessful political campaigns, was the guest of honor of the New Jersey legislature, the body which but a short time since came near making him an United States Senator to succeed John F. Dryden.

"Jim" got up with the shiknes Wednesday morning for had he not read that his bosom friend, William Jennings Bryan, the Peerless One from Nebraska, had accepted an invitation to speak before the State's solons? He took a train for Trenton shortly after the sun rose and was hob-nobbing with Senator Joe Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, and other tried and true admirers of the author of "The First Battle" when word arrived that the "Peerless One" could not keep his engagement.

Senator Bruere, R., Atlantic, hearing that his distinguished fellow-citizen of Union county was in the corridors of the State House introduced a resolution that "Mr. James E. Martine, of Union county, be admitted to the privileges of the floor of the Senate. The resolution went through "with bells on" and "Our Jim" was given a place of honor in the Upper House for the time being. It was not long, however, before the Democrats in the Assembly learned that the "Farmer-orator" was "in their midst." In a few minutes, Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, a worthy Republican member from Union, took his cue and introduced a resolution that the same "Honorable James E. Martine, of Union county," be extended the privileges of the House and be invited to address the members of this body.

Well, did "Jim" speak? Did he? For ten minutes he kept on thanking the House for the honor and telling his audience how he said he was that the "Greatest Living Statesman"—W. J. B.—could not be present.

CLARENCE E. TEEL NOW HEAD OF LOCAL ELKS

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., held its annual meeting, last week, during which the following officers were elected: Exalted ruler, Clarence E. Teel; esteemed leading knight, Lawrence Marshall; esteemed loyal knight, John H. Coe; esteemed lecturing knight, Robert S. Craig; tiler, Edward C. Searing; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, Harry B. MacDonald; trustees for three years, S. P. Wilbur; representative to the Grand Lodge session at Dallas, Texas, George G. Stevens. Reports showed the lodge to have made splendid gains in membership and finance during the past year.

Following the business session the initiatory degree was conferred upon three candidates, John A. Lawrence, Richard L. Bellis and A. E. Force.

The attendance was the largest noted at any meeting of the lodge in many months and the custom of a social period lasted until after midnight. A feature of this part of the program was a "Dutch" supper served by Caterer Timbo. There were also numerous vocal and instrumental musical selections.

Large Thumbs.

"People of great strength of character, who are guided by the head rather than the heart, have large thumbs," says Irving R. Bacon. "Whenever you see a person with a strikingly large, well developed thumb, you may be almost certain you have before you one who is a natural born ruler, eminently practical and fond of whatever is useful. Whenever also he is fond of history. A large thumbed woman may fall in love as deeply as her small thumbed sister, but will not marry unless she can see a sufficient bread and butter supply ahead. But she is more apt to be a real helpmate when adversity comes."—New York Journal.

Hash in Pepper Shells.

Chop cold roast veal or fowl fine; cover with cold water and cook slowly until very tender. Then season to taste with salt; add a dash of cayenne and a generous lump of butter. Remove from the fire and add sufficient bread crumbs to give "body" to the hash. Have at hand the required number of pepper shells washed cleaned; fill them with the hash, stand upright in a baking pan, dot with butter, half fill the pan with boiling water and stand in a hot oven over fifteen minutes. This makes a delicious luncheon dish or an entree.

"Plainfield Beauty" a Winner.

At the American Horse Breeders' show at the Park on Wednesday, George Roblig's bay mare, "Plainfield Beauty," captured two cups, one being first prize in Class 22 for novice saddle horses, and the other being second prize in Class 16. She was formerly owned by James Gethin, of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, and on Wednesday was ridden by Hugh Gormley of that club.

PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS HEAR CHURCH REPORTS

Reports of the various church officers and of the societies and departments of the Park Avenue Baptist church, one of this country's oldest church meeting held last week. Rev. Arthur E. Finn, pastor of the church, presided, and opened the business session with prayer and scripture reading.

Trustee E. LaRue was elected treasurer of the church Benevolent Fund in place of E. F. Vail, who was not a candidate for re-election. Harry C. Runyon was re-elected church clerk. Theodore I. Runyon and D. M. Runyon were elected deacons, and the vacancy left by the latter's death was again left unfilled. John H. Doane and Martin B. Stutsman acted as tellers for the balloting. It was voted to open the church pulpit to Methodist preachers a week from Sunday, when fraternal greetings will preach at the morning and evening services in the church. The announcement of the annual parish meeting, to be held Wednesday evening, April 3, was made by the pastor.

Reports of the church departments showed gratifying results along all lines for the past year, and the report of Lewis R. Schofield, treasurer of the church, showed a neat balance on hand after the year's expenditures. H. F. Cuming, as secretary of the Sunday-school, read a report of the work accomplished by the report of Joseph Hawkins, treasurer of the school. The deacons' report was made by T. I. Runyon. D. M. Runyon reported for the Fellowship Fund, and Secretary E. Frank Vail for the Benevolent Fund of the church.

Reports on the work of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the church were made by Mrs. S. Arthur Krum, the secretary, and Mrs. John H. Doane, treasurer. Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson, treasurer of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, also read her report. Mrs. James S. Pray reported for the Women's Home Missionary Society, and the Misses Louise Harral and Elvira Runyon for the Y. P. S. C. E. The report of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society was presented by Miss Alice Brown, of the intermediate department, Miss Arline Brown, the secretary, and Miss Mabelle Stutsman. Other reports received were from Mrs. John H. Doane, chairman of the Central Visiting Committee, Martin B. Stutsman, of the Ushering Committee, Lewis R. Schofield, of the Welcoming Committee, Roland Coles Treadwell of the Harbinger Board and Miss Olive DeLany for the What-so-ever Circle of King's Daughters.

An Oversight.

Two good natured Irishmen on a stormy night occupied the same bed. In the morning one of them inquired:

"Dennie, did you hear the thunder last night?"

"No, Pat. Did it railly thunder?"

"Yis; it thundered as if hiven and airth wold come together."

"Why, in thunder, then, didn't you wake me up, for I know I can't slape while it thunders?"

ELECTION OF OFFICERS ENDS MISSION MEETING

The balloting for officers at the concluding session of the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions in the Presbytery of Elizabeth, held in Warren Chapel on last Friday, resulted in the re-election of Mrs. Augustus S. Crane, of Elizabeth, as president of the general society. Mrs. I. C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, and Mrs. W. W. Cashelberry, of Dunellen, were re-elected vice presidents, and Mrs. Gideon Ludlow was chosen corresponding secretary to succeed Mrs. J. Anderson Frazer, of Elizabeth. Mrs. Frazer was selected as secretary of the Presidents, in place of Mrs. Hilla S. Beale, of Roselle. Miss Catherine Reed, of Basking Ridge, was elected recording secretary to succeed Mrs. Alward, of the same town. Mrs. J. Edward Kerog, of Elizabeth, was re-elected to office for another year, as was Mrs. Adrain G. Lyon, of Perth Amboy, secretary of Young People's work.

The afternoon session of the meeting was followed by a conference on Young People's work in charge of Miss Harriet Halloway, of East Fifth street, and Mrs. Adrain Lyon, of Perth Amboy, the two secretaries of this department. Several of the out-of-town delegates remained in this city as guests of various members of the local society for the night.

CONGRESS BOOMS FOR HILLERY AND REILLY

In both Warren and Morris counties booms have been started for "favorite sons" for the Congressional nomination in the Fifth district, John I. Blair Reilly, who recently resigned the Warren county committee chairmanship after twenty years service, and Thomas N. Hillery, Morristown, being the two men whose names are frequently mentioned. Mr. Hillery is said to have the support of "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, although the Morris county leader is also quoted by one of his friends as being favorable to a seventh nomination for Charles N. Fowler. Mr. Reilly's candidacy was sprung at a dinner given in his honor recently at Phillipsburg and it was taken as significant by the leaders that he made no attempt to deny that he had ambitions that way.

Union county will be without a candidate if he is understood unless Mr. Fowler's friends bring him out again. Efforts on the part of the correspondent for some time to get information from Mr. Fowler as to whether he will be a candidate and whether he would accept a nomination have failed, but according to his admirers here it is probable that he will come out at what they call "the proper time."

ALEXANDER GILBERT PRESIDES

at Elizabeth Meeting Which Arranges all the Details.

TO BE AT TRENTON ON MAY 3.

Basis of Representation Same As to State Convention and Same Delegates For Both—The Delegates Present.

Arrangements were made Friday at a meeting of the Fifth Congressional Committee at Elizabeth for the district convention to be held at the Trenton House, Trenton, on Tuesday morning, May 5, at 10:30 o'clock. At that time two delegates and two alternates to the National Republican convention at Chicago will be chosen to represent this district. Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association, presided at the meeting and Harry VanGilder, of Morristown, acted as secretary.

It was decided to make the basis of representation the same as that arranged for the State convention, which on the same day at Trenton selects for delegates-at-large. That is there will be one vote for each district convention for every 200 Republican voters and one additional in case of 150 odd more voters in the given section. This means that Plainfield will have seven delegates to the district convention, apportioned as follows: First ward, one; Second ward, two; Third ward, one; Fourth ward, three.

At the meeting, Union county was represented by Mr. Gilbert and John I. Howe, of Rossell. Morris by Mr. VanGilder and Jacob W. Welsh, of German Valley, and Warren by Joseph Fulper and I. W. Ingham, of Belvidere. Hamilton F. Kean and Assemblyman Buxton, the latter holding the proxy of "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, represented the State Republican committee, while Frank H. Smith as Union county chairman, was also present.

CONGRESS COMMISSION DECIDES NOT TO MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS

in its Report to City Fathers.

REPORT READY ON APRIL 24.

Then It Will Be Up to the Common Council—Investigators Are Pessimistic Over the Scheme.

Having practically completed its work of investigating the problem of municipal water supply for Plainfield, the Plainfield Water Commission met last Friday in the office of Mayor Fisk for the purpose of discussing the situation and learning what has been accomplished, especially by the engineering committee, of which Joseph O. Osgood is the chairman. After a full consideration of the facts as presented, it was the unanimous decision of the commission not to make any recommendations.

It was decided to appoint a committee from the commission to draft a report for presentation to the Common Council with a view of giving the citizens an opportunity to vote, whether they desire to establish an independent water supply or purchase, through condemnation proceedings, the Plainfield-Union Water Company plant.

While the work thus far accomplished is said to be satisfactory to the commission, it is stated on authority, that the majority of the members are not enthusiastic over the proposition of acquiring a municipal water plant, either by establishing an independent one or purchase of the present one. While it is realized, it is said, that it would be possible to condemn the plant of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, it is known that it would be impossible to fix a purchase price, and then some of the members of the commission feel that if the city should buy the local plant it would have a white elephant on its hands.

The commission, it is said, considers the matter purely as a business proposition, and all agree that either plan suggested would be expensive to the city. If the property of the Plainfield-Union Water Company should be purchased, the city, it is declared, has no assurance that the company will not establish another plant on its land adjoining the pumping station and distribute water to the towns between here and Elizabeth. Such action would only tend to further depiete the city's water supply, it is said, while it is argued, it would not be able to get any revenue for water sent out of town, and it would have to depend on its local sales to maintain the plant.

It is said to be a serious question in the minds of many as to whether a municipal plant could be maintained within a reasonable figure and it is admitted that the present method of water supply is by far the most reasonable from a financial point of view, and it is argued that it is the wise policy to heavily burden the city with bonds.

The report to be presented will cover in detail every phase of the situation and will also give figures showing the estimated cost of an independent plant and purchase of the Plainfield-Union Water Company property, and will contain data on local water supply, covering very fully the whole course of investigation.

The special committee to be appointed to formulate the report will present the same to the commission at a meeting to be held Friday night, April 24, and it will then be sent to the Common Council at the regular May meeting.

Those present at last night's meeting were Mayor C. J. Fisk, J. B. Dumont, W. L. Saunders, J. O. Osgood, Harry L. Hall, Dr. Justus H. Codley, William Pitt Lyon, Councilmen H. L. Tolley and Frederick E. Mygatt and Leon Thurlow.

S.P.C.A. WARNING TO LOCAL HORSE OWNERS

The attention of the S. P. C. A. having been called to the fact that there are a large number of horses in Plainfield and vicinity suffering from the mange, steps have been taken to stop the use of such animals in general business. W. A. Coddington, counsel for the society, has notified several owners of horses afflicted with the disease that it is contagious and that they must not drive the horses in public places. Everyone notified has complied to the request of Mr. Coddington, but there are many other owners he has failed to reach, and he wants them to know of the action taken by the society.

After being warned not to use horses afflicted with the disease and persisting to do so, the society will at once prosecute the owners to the full extent of the law. The disease is readily communicated and is likely to do great damage if measures to prevent its spread are not adopted promptly.

JUDGE WADSWORTH DEAD

Once Wealthy Resident and Leader in Politics Ends Days in Industrial Home.

PASSES AWAY FRIDAY MORNING.

Graduated from Trinity College and Gay Promise of a Brilliant Career—Leaves No Known Relatives.

Louis F. Wadsworth, graduate of Trinity College and at one time one of the leading citizens of Plainfield, died on Friday morning in the Industrial Home where he had been an inmate for the past ten years. He had been failing gradually for eight months through the infirmities of old age and recently the end had been expected at almost any time.

Known to everyone as "Judge" because of having once held the office of justice of the peace, Wadsworth's death ends the career of a man who began life with everything in his favor and who knew what it meant to have wealth and the respect of a community. Plainfield has probably never had a citizen more adept at political manipulation or parliamentary law and there were days when a State or county convention without "Judge" Wadsworth presiding would be like Hamlet with the melancholy Dane out of the cast.

Born in Hartford, Conn., May 26, 1825, he was given all the mental and social training that money could command. His father was a wealthy merchant and Louis and his brothers received the academic education and finally graduated from Trinity College, receiving special awards for his splendid standing in the classical courses. That the young man ranked as an exceptionally proficient Latin student and he always retained his knowledge of the subject. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

After a brief stay in Michigan with a brother, young Wadsworth made his way to New York. He became allied with the Tammany Hall politicians and there received his instruction in the methods adopted to win political victories. He took part in many hard-fought campaigns and contributed no small part to their success. As a reward for services on one occasion he was appointed to an important position in the Customs House and he held that for a long time. He resigned after his marriage to Mrs. Fisher, of Morris county, this State, very wealthy in her own right and the owner of a handsome country place near Dover where they made their home.

Wishing to get within easier reach of New York, the Wadsworths moved to Plainfield in 1871, purchasing the property at the east corner of East Second and Richmond streets. From the time that he came, "Judge" Wadsworth took an active interest in civic affairs, and was soon one of the leading Democratic workers in the city. His influence and methods spread about the county and then to the State. Those who remember him say that no one before or since could equal his executive ability or his exercise of parliamentary rules.

Though a leader in the Democratic party, in the days a strong combination of the wards of which the "Judge" was elected to was as a member of the Board of Education, serving a term from 1884 to 1887. It was principally through his efforts that the Spring school at Fourth street and Seventh avenue was built. He also served as justice of the peace, more as a means of keeping interested in something than anything else.

Mrs. Wadsworth died fifteen years ago and the "Judge's" loss of money and position began shortly before that time. He spent freely for drink and "good times" and finally was reduced to absolute want. His relatives had either passed away or lost track of him and with health gone and his mental capacity failing the Industrial Home was the only haven left. He went there in 1898. At the Home he was a veritable book-worm and sat day after day reading articles of travel, sociology, civics and law. He made regular trips to the Public Library for books and in addition eagerly seized hold of any magazines or papers that were brought to the place. In his younger days he was a great baseball enthusiast, having played on the old Atlantic team of Brooklyn, and in his summer season like to follow the games of the big leagues as industriously as any present-day crank.

The "Judge" had no family of his own and it is hardly likely that any of his brothers or sisters can be located. He rarely mentioned them and no letters ever came to him, possibly because he preferred not to let them know where he was.

SCOTT PRESSES FOR ALL PARTS OF WORLD

The firm of Walter Scott & Company, printing machinery manufacturers, has just completed a new four-roll quadruple press for the Houston, Texas, Post. This is the fifth large newspaper press the Scott company has built for Texas during the last few months. The Fort Worth, Texas, Record has just installed two combination color four-roll quadruple presses with complete stereotyping plant, the Port Worth, Texas, Star a three-roll special inserting press with color attachments for printing in four colors, and the Houston, Texas, Chronicle a two-roll four-plate-wide quadruple press of a new design, which is considered far superior to anything now on the market.

Two more newspaper presses are on order for Texas, one a three-roll special inserting press with color attachments for printing in three colors for the San Antonio Gazette, and one a two-roll special inserting press for the Waco Times-Herald.

The Scott company has also just completed the installation of two combination four-roll quadruple presses for color and black printing in the office of the Kansas City, Missouri, Journal, one of the machines printing in four colors, and two four-roll quadruple presses in the office of the Hoboken, New Jersey, Observer. A three-roll newspaper machine has just been set up in the office of the Yorkshire Observer, Bradford, England.

Other foreign newspapers having recently installed Scott presses are the Jornal do Brazil, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, a four-roll special inserting combination color press printing in four colors, and O'Paiz, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, a special sixteen page inserting press; also El Diario, Lima, Peru, a similar sixteen page press.

STRICTLY FIRE PROOF HOME AN INNOVATION

A new residence now in course of construction on Madison avenue for DeWitt C. Hubbell, is marking a new era in home building in Plainfield and is said to be the first of its kind ever put up in the city. The architectural work was done by Squires & Wynkoop, of New York, of which Frederick L. Squires, a native of Plainfield, is senior member, and the paramount idea in their designs was to make the house strictly fire-proof.

A glance at the residence as it is to be seen at present will show how the work already done that there is not a thing in it that could burn. All the walls and floors are made of cement and hollow tile from the National Fire Proofing Company, the concern that furnishes most of the fire-proofing material for the New York skyscrapers. There are other houses in Plainfield whose outside walls are practically fire-proof but in this building the floors themselves are masonry, and so are all the interior walls, even to the closets.

The floor beams, which in the ordinary house are wood, are here of concrete with a re-inforcement of steel. The concrete beam is only six inches square and the steel rod but a half an inch, either by itself a very weak support but when combined the floor will carry more than twice as much as the ordinary floor. The hollow walls are not only fire-proof but the air space forms a non-conductor against the outside heat or cold.

The building when completed will be covered on the outside with cement stucco, arranged in such a manner as to make it one of the most attractive homes in the district where there are so many handsome structures to compete with.

Bomb Victim Lived Here.

Ignatz Hildebrand, the victim of the bomb explosion at the labor demonstration in Union Square, New York, was at one time a resident of this city. This is according to a statement made by his wife, who said he was in no way associated. The couple moved to Newark from this city and Mrs. Hildebrand is now living there.

BISHOP DUBS' SERMONS

Founder of United Evangelical Church Preaches Twice at First M. E. Church.

AND IN AFTERNOON TO MEN.

"The Passion Conference" and "The Christian Witness" Are the Harrisburg, Pa., Divine's Themes.

Bishop Rudolph Dubs, of Harrisburg, Pa., founder of the United Evangelical church, occupied the pulpit at the First M. E. church, Sunday morning and evening, and delivered two exceptionally strong sermons before large congregations. The venerable divine, past seventy years, yet hale and vigorous, was an impressive figure. His discourses were helpful and inspiring and held the close attention of everyone.

"The Passion Conference" was the theme for the morning sermon, and it was based on the transfiguration of Christ, linked with His journey to Jerusalem. He mentioned the different parties in the conference, first, Christ; then Peter, James and John, the disciples, representing the earthly and Moses and Elias representing the spiritual world, all of whom he described as partners of the conference.

The Bishop then took up the subject of the meeting, the trial, death and ressurection of Christ and he dwelt at some length on spiritual realities, the materialization of spiritual things as exemplified by Moses and Elijah in the spiritual world in its relation to the material, which he said he was pleased to call Biblical spiritualness. He elaborated on the many strong points presented and gave his congregation a clear and concise view of his topic.

An equally large congregation listened to the Bishop in the evening when he preached on the theme "The Christian Witness," taken from the words in the Acts, "Ye are witnesses of these things." He described the court of trial, the place of witnesses there, the character of witnesses, and declared that a witness should not be ignorant, nor prejudiced or have self-interest. Any of these things would tend to weaken his testimony, making it valueless.

Speaking in a positive way, the Bishop dwelt on the creditability of witnesses, the necessity for unanimity of testimony, all of which would strengthen the case. He then referred to the Christian witness as possessing these qualifications, making him one of the best in advancing the interests of the Kingdom of Christ. The Bishop illustrated his discourse with numerous illustrations, which were appropriate.

In the afternoon the Bishop spoke at the Y. M. C. A. on the subject, "Does It Pay to be a Christian?" With some people, the speaker declared, the almighty dollar was something more to be desired than being a Christian. This he disputed and he treated his theme solely from a business proposition. He said that being a Christian was profitable unto all things and increases the value and use of things possessed by the individual, while it also adds to one's usefulness and happiness.

BLAZE AT MIDNIGHT DESTROYS TWO HOUSES

Fire of a mysterious origin that broke out in a vacant house on Ann street shortly after midnight Monday morning, brought about the complete destruction of the building and another adjoining and would have burned at least a second to roof but for the work of the city department. The property is located just over the city line in the Guines Egg pond district but the firemen disregarded the boundary and earned the thanks of several families by saving their homes.

The two houses destroyed were owned by Edward Burke, who lived in the one next to where the blaze started. The two adjoining are owned by his brother, William Burke, of New York. The flames had partially consumed the first structure and were spreading to the second when they were discovered by the family. At the same time the reflection in the sky was noticed by a patrolman on Front street and an alarm was turned in from box 89 at 12:22. When the apparatus reached the scene by way of Rock avenue, the first house was in ruins, the second was about to topple over and the third had just started to burn. The blaze had also crept around to the fourth structure when water was first secured. Chief Doane directed to the remaining buildings and after saving them the streams were turned on the ruins of the others. It was 2:30 before the last embers were distinguished.

The loss to Edward Burke will aggregate about $3,000, partially covered insurance. In a statement to Chief Doane the owner declared that he had no idea as to how the blaze started as no one had been in the place so far as he knew.

The average girl baby is so fond of her father that she sleeps during the day while he is busy so she can stay awake all night and enjoy his society.

AMUSEMENTS.

Vaudeville in its entirety will be presented at Proctor's Newark theatre during the week commencing Monday, March 30th, when Tim McMahon's Pullman Maids heads the bill. In this vehicle McMahon is given ample opportunity to exhibit the versatility and that made him famous a decade ago when he was associated with Billy Rice, Billy Emerson, Billy West and the other names that have made minstrelry; the men who raised this form of entertainment to the high standard it now enjoys. Ten pretty and spritely young misses assist Mr. and Mrs. McMahon (Edith Chappolle) in this production. The six Musical Nosses under the direction of B. A. Rolfe present a musical diversion that for scenic and artistic conception is unsurpassed they present a scene in "Old Seville" in which they play all sorts of brass and reed instruments in a pleasing manner. Ben Welsh appears again in new songs and parodies, in the dialects that have made him as famous as his brother Joe. Work Over presents a laughable acrobatic comedy skit. Barry and Hughes get a laugh a minute during their occupancy of the stage, having just returned from a nervelous tour of European acrobats. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Darrow draw pictures in smoke, sand, rags and shadows, a seemingly impossible feat. The Brittens, two dusky headed performers, who never fail to please when new are animated pictures, will complete the bill.

Into its sixth great week, "Paid In Full," enters at the Astor theatre, Monday night. Wagenhals and Kemper have in this new play by Eugene Walter, the dramatic sensation of the current season and from present indications it is destined to a high speed through the summer months. In the triumph of "Paid In Full" there is a reward for daring, unconventionality, striking originality, for Walter cobbed nb one in his method and as a result he has been acclaimed the author of the hour. In the entire four acts there is not a dull moment, nor is there a single moment when the auditor can really guess what is going to occur next. Mr. Walter takes his audience wholly by surprise at every angle and it is safe to say that when commends the play to the attention of all virile, forceful men and women. "Paid In Full" is unquestionably a play to be seen for it tells a wholesome, natural story in a most consistent manner. Next week matinees Wednesday matinees are continued at popular prices while the Saturday matinees are as usual at night prices.

Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, the coming of which is always a matter of great interest to young and old alike, is doing a unprecedented business at the Madison Square Garden, New York. There are circuses and circuses, but the New Yorker Barnum & Bailey's circus is the only one, as well as the greatest one, in all of the world. New York loves huge things and so it loves its circus, which, by the way, is the only one that is annually seen in the Empire City. Big as has been the circus during previous years this season it is bigger than ever. As exhibited at the Madison Square Garden it will be the biggest thing of its kind and the world has known. The huge entertainment will mark an epoch in the development of the show. Rich and glorious in novelties, wonderful acts, sensational feats and thrilling surprises, the circus still finds abundant room for real educational features. No other form of entertainment devised by man makes so many appeals to so many people as does the circus. A city in itself is the circus this season. It contains fifteen hundred people. The menagerie is larger than that possessed by any of the local zoological societies around the country. There are seven hundred horses. The big spectacle, "Cleopatra," with which the circus entertainment opens, calls for a thousand men and women. On the program there are one hundred and ten acts. There are three hundred and fifty performers and they come from all corners of the earth. Twenty-seven different languages are spoken by the people on the roster.

Otis Skinner's Phillipe Bridau in "The Honor of the Family," at the Hudson theatre, is just now being discussed by all theatre-goers who have witnessed this wonderful presentment of the swaggering, devil-may-care Colonel, who takes everybody by storm in his role. Mr. Carle's household, but every one in the big audiences present at each performance of this very attractive Potter play. All New York is unanimous in their praise of this wonderful piece of workmanship as represented by Mr. Skinner and that "The Honor of the Family" will be seen at the Hudson until late spring there now seems little doubt. The splendid cordiality of Mr. Skinner's reception illustrated at each performance by rounds of applause after each curtain and seldom is a performance played through without a veritable ovation for the star who, although holding the curtain speech in great disfavor, is compelled to come before the footlights with a word of thanks, in order that the play may go on.

"Every one who can possibly do so owes it to himself to see David Warfield in "A Grand Army Man," says the Middletown (N. Y.) Press. William Wister in the New York Tribune: "Mr. Keenan's performance at the Belasco theatre as Gen. Warren in 'The Warrens of Virginia' is one of the worthiest and most admirable impersonations that have been seen in this city of late years, and no lover of the art of acting could fail to appreciate it or should miss the opportunity of seeing it. The representation as a whole," adds the distinguished critic, "is prominent among the best now visible in New York." David Belasco's beautiful setting of "The Warrens of Virginia" in the Belasco theatre, coupled with the sterling work of Charlotte Walker and Frank Keenan as Agatha Warren and Gen. Buck Warren respectively, may be counted on to attract audiences for weeks to come. Out-of-town playgoers appear to like the special Thursday matinees.

"Marta of the Lowlands."

To an audience that tested the capacity of the Lyceum theatre, Tuesday evening, Bertha Kalich began her engagement in "Marta of the Lowlands," "an appearance," to quote the Evening Journal, "that was one of the most genuinely enthusiastic successes of the season; a success that spread like the breath of living affairs that sends you home in a glow. The applause was not mere handclapping; it ran into shouts." Continuing the Journal said: "Bertha Kalich is a unique artist, she has the absolute preparedness that makes the appeal spontaneity. Every detail of her speech as it soars from mood to mood, from low, passionate throbs to the very altissimo of grief or joy, every a greater scale than that of any contemporary actor. The cast is good throughout and the production is in the taste that one has learned to expect of Mr. Fiske." The Herald stated that "the play achieved a decided success. Madame Kalich's portrayal of Marta was a remarkable bit of work. The supporting company gave the star efficient support."

Henry Miller has scored another triumph as a producing manager in New York. His latest offering, "The Servant in the House," now at the Savoy theatre, New York, has been pronounced the greatest play of the generation and one of the most daring ever produced. In dealing with the hypocrisy of the Church and others in high places it goes deeper than Bernard Shaw or Henry Arthur Jones ever had the courage to penetrate. It does not attack the church as such, but as a scathing denunciation of the sins and shams which has crept in and corroded the places where only sanctity should reside, and a concrete, pictorial, moving plea for that forbearance and brotherhood which is the essence of right living and happiness and which core the heart and kernel of religion. The Sun avers that it is the "most important play produced in America in a generation." Without a doubt as presented by the Henry Miller Associate Players it is the best acted of all the dozen of recent seasons. Walter Hampden, Tyrone Power, Charles Dalton, Arthur Lewis, Galway Herbert, Mabel Moore and Edith Wynne Matthison combine their abundant talent to give one of the finest performances the modern stage ever has seen. Further, the production more fully establishes the fact that Henry Miller stands at the forefront of American producers in judgment, in ideals and in the practical knowledge of his art and business. Last Monday's performance was complimentary to the clergy, and the house was filled with ministers of every creed and denomination, all of whom endorsed the play as dramatically setting forth the principles of universal religion. Without a doubt "The Servant in the House" is the only play which ever accomplished this end and was at the same time a treat for the ordinary theatre-goer.

VENICE INTERESTS WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The informal meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, held at the Casino Monday, the fifth Monday of the month, was a most unusual one. The entertainment committee had arranged a delightful program with Venice, which has been the winter's study, for its motif. Mrs. John M. Whiton read the interesting account of the exquisite piece of music rendered by the Venice orchestra, entitled "Scenes from Naples and Italy," by Liszt.

The music, representing the lapping of the tide, the ripple of water, the gondolier's stroke and song, the happiness of lovers, the beauty of moonlight on Italian lakes with the clock of St. Mark's striking twelve at the grand finale, was artistically executed by Miss Corey and gave great pleasure.

Miss E. E. Kenyon read effectively "In a Gondola," by Robert Browning. Tea and a social hour concluded the entertainment. Mrs. James W. DeGraff and Mrs. Frank H. Condict presiding at the tea table. The guests were received by the president of the club, Mrs. Henry M. Masson, and the vice presidents, Mrs. Orton G. Dale and Mrs. Gates Willard. The committee of arrangements carefully looked after by the entertainment committee, Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Edward V. Cox and Miss Ethel L. Titsworth.

EPISCOPAL BISHOP'S VISIT

Rt. Rev. Dr. Scarborough Confirms Classes at Both Holy Cross and Heavenly Rest.

PRELATE MAKES ADDRESSES.

Thirty-two Candidates—At Night the Bishop Preaches at Holy Cross Church.

Administering the rite of confirmation to thirty-two candidates, Right Reverend Dr. John Scarborough, bishop of New Jersey, visited the Church of the Heavenly Rest Sunday afternoon and Holy Cross Church last night. At both services the Bishop made the customary address to the candidates, charging them with their duties and privileges as full-fledged church members.

Confirmation was a part of the 5 o'clock evensong service at Heavenly Rest, Rev. C. I. Townsend, rector of the church, officiated at the service. There were eighteen candidates for confirmation, six of them young men. The congregation taxed the capacity of the edifice.

A class of fourteen candidates, nine of whom were young men, was brought before the Bishop at Holy Cross church last night, and presented for confirmation by Rev. George A. Warner, the rector. The service was impressive, intoned ritual of the church, and the rite of confirmation followed the order of evening prayer.

The Bishop occupied the pulpit for the evening sermon, preaching from St. Matthew 8:8. The text is "I am not worthy that Thou shouldst come under my roof," the words of the centurion who besought the Lord to heal his servant. Dr. Scarborough spoke of the attitude of modesty in a Christian, urging Lenten contrition, the realization of humbleness and close communion with the church and its principles. The congregation was an exceptionally large one.

BOROUGH CHEMICAL OUT FOR SCHOOL FIRE DRILL

Realistic fire drills were held at the North Plainfield schools Monday morning, when the borough fire apparatus responded to alarms with the chemical engine and ran out a line of chemical hose to the buildings. Despite the appearance of the firemen at the schools, there was no tendency to panic or disorder of any kind on the part of the pupils. At both the Somerset street school and the Watchung school, the drill was entirely unexpected by the pupils and teachers. Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield fire department, was present at the drills on the invitation of Supervising Principal Henry C. Krebs, of the borough schools, and Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield fire department.

The three officials went to the Somerset street school at about 10:30 this morning and when Mr. Krebs pressed the alarm button, the chemical engine galloped up, ready for business, and the firemen stretched the hose. The building was emptied of its 140 pupils in a minute and thirty seconds. All six exits were used.

From the Somerset street school, the fire chiefs went with Mr. Krebs to the Watchung school, where the alarm was sounded as soon as they entered the building. The pupils filed out in excellent order, clearing the building in a minute and fifteen seconds. The engine came up on the line. There was no disorder, although all of the 220 pupils filed out by the front door, not using either of the two rear exits.

Chief Doane spoke enthusiastically of the discipline at the drills and commended Mr. Krebs on his training of the pupils. He was especially impressed with the work of the boy monitors who ran ahead of the pupils to fasten back the exits doors in each school. The little fellows made fast time to the exits and had the doors open in a few seconds.

Chief Woolston also spoke of their quickness, especially at the Watchung school. He was the last of the officials to enter the building, and the alarm bell rang before he got in the hall. One of the little door monitors, who rushed to the exit when the second bell was touched, opened the swinging door just as the Chief was about to reach it. Mr. Woolston had to dodge quickly to avoid being struck, as the boy swung the door out directly in his face.

Will Sing "The Crucifixion."

Clifford W. Bralder, organist and choirmaster of the First Presbyterian church, is planning to give "The Crucifixion" at the church on Sunday night, April 12. The quartet choir, comprising Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Herbert W. Byard, bass, and E. D. Catting, tenor, will be assisted by Mrs. Willard M. Martin, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; E. Maxwell Honeyman, tenor, and Chas. Titsworth, bass. Miss Alice Miller will be at the piano. During the service Miss Case will sing a solo "Come Unto Me," and Miss Burd will sing "There Is a Green Hill."

P.H.S. GIRLS CHAMPIONS

Win State Basketball Title by Defeating East Orange Girls Five.

THE FINAL SCORE WAS 18-16.

Miss Barbara Fleming Scored Eight Out of the Nine Baskets—An Uphill Game.

Brilliant individual playing by Miss Barbara Fleming, who scored eight of the nine baskets of the local team, was largely responsible for the defeat of the East Orange High School five by the Plainfield High School girls' basketball team at the High School gymnasium Saturday afternoon, when the local five were victorious by a score of 18-16. The victory gives the Plainfield girls the State championship in basketball. The three teams in the contest for the title were the Newark High School five, the East Orange High School five and the local Plainfield five from Newark 24-10, but the East Orange High School five defeated the Newark girls by the overwhelming score of 48-6, and put up a hard fight for the State title in Saturday's game in this city.

Miss Fleming, who has just reached the age limit in track and field sports, was the star of the game, when the teams lined up in the first half. Plainfield started the scoring after a minute of play, when Miss Harriet Mooney dropped the ball through the iron ring on a pretty angle. Soon afterward Miss Fleming took Miss Madeline Durar's place at right forward, and at the end of the first half, the East Orange five had a lead of 9-6. Play in the second half was marked by particularly close guarding on both sides, and the score see-sawed up and near the end of the half, when the Plainfielders established a decided lead for the visitors, Miss Nora Tompkins excelled, scoring five baskets and accepting four chances at the foul line. No points were made from fouls by the Plainfield five, but Miss Fleming broke away from the opponent time after time to score. The Misses Apaugh and Crampton, guards for the Plainfield five, played an exceptionally strong defensive game.

The Plainfield five, of which Miss Bessie Alpaugh is captain, has been undefeated for the past two years. Last year the championship came to Plainfield on a close game with Newark. The East Orange five has been undefeated until Saturday's game. They have won from many of the large high school fives in the vicinity of their school. The line-up and summaries:

Harriet Mooney, left forward.	Norma Tompkins
Madeline Durar, right forward.
Barbara Fleming, centres.	Freda Dey
Bessie Alpaugh, left guard.	Adelaide Bass
Esther Crampton, right guard.	Edith Bass

Referee and umpire, Miss Constance Patton and Charles B. Moore. Fifteen minute halves.

LOCAL SCHOOL NINES WIN PRACTISE GAMES

The inter-scholastic baseball season opened in this city Saturday afternoon, when both city and borough high school nines won in the local diamonds in practise games which precede the opening of the regular shedule this week. The opening game of the Plainfield High School baseball team, the Mono A. C. nine, who were defeated in a well played game by a score of 6-5. The school team had a try-out of the material on the ground and showed themselves to be good stuff, although as yet not playing in high school form. The game was played at Crescent Oval, which was ready after the rain. In the box Captain Murphey and Harry Van Zandt made good, keeping down the hits. Dodwell was behind the bat for the Wednesday and looks like a fixture there. The lineups:

P. H. S.—Murphey and Van Zandt, p; Dodwell, c; Dey, 1b; Herman, 2b; Giddes, ss; Van Zandt and Murphey, 3b; Dutcher, lf; Robins, cf; Rifert, rf.

THAT 137 YR. OLD DOMINIE

Rev. W. B. Mason, Who Says That He Remembers Washington, Talks on Scriptures.

AN OLD COLORED EVANGELIST.

Preaches At Ebenezer Baptist Church—Here With 28-Year-Old Wife—He Will Be 138 On Friday.

Exhorting his colored "brothers and sisters" at the Ebenezer Baptist church on East Third street, Rev. William Brooks Mason, the 137-year-old Cuban-Indian-African preacher, who is here on an evangelizing trip, spoke for an hour and a half at the church Monday. His text, taken from the thirteenth verse of the tenth chapter of Joshua, was "And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves of their enemies." The old man preaches according to the old school methods of testimony and quoted instances from the Bible in his ninety-nine minute development of the text. He takes the verse in part as the reason for his old age. "As long as I live a holy life, working for the interests of the Lord Jesus Christ, I believe he will spare me. I cannot do anything; it is the Lord's work I do. He keeps me alive. He kept alive Elijah and Moses while they preached and worked in his cause, and I believe he will keep me."

"I don't believe in all this yer talk about creeds and doctrines, y'understand me, but I believes in each and every one of 'em. I believes in Jesus Christ, following His teachings, and continually having his own church right yer in his heart. The four gospels are all one, and that one is Our Lord. We can do nothing without God, but if we trust Him, He will light the battle and win for us, as he did for Joshway. I certainly believe that the sun actually stood still. God ordered it to do so, and He can do anything.

"I've been responsible, through God's help, for the conversion of many a soul, and I've been a preacher of the Lord threw 139 souls into my net through meetings, and in Jackson, Mississippi, I raked in 201 more for His cause."

The old man came to this city from New York with his wife, a bride of three months, who is twenty-eight years of age. He explained that she was his second wife, as he had married seven ago in the South, his bride at that time being fifty-eight years old. He returned about four months ago from Africa, where he spent some time in missionary work among the savages. The Lord "filled his net" with converts at this time, including one savage, who died three days after he had "given his soul to God." Mr. Mason carries in his breast pocket a piece of canvas, several feet square, on which is a picture of this converted African, painted by himself after his conversion.

Hale and hearty, despite his great age, the old man, who says he was born in Havana, Cuba, is straight as a reed and acts like a young man. He says he will be 138 years old Friday at 12 o'clock noon, and was one of twins, but his twin sister died at the age of twenty-five. He is a veteran of four wars, he says, having fought in three wars in Cuba and taken part in Venezuelan campaigns of the Civil War. He was shot in the head at an engagement near Petersburg, Virginia, and lost the sight of his left eye. He says he distinctly remembers Lee's surrender at Appomattox Court House, "under that same apple tree, y'understand me?" He done stick his sabre right down in the turf and den grab the point an' hand it right over. I was a-standin' right near 'um an' he give me a picayune. I held Washington's horse at Yorktown, an' that there when Cornwallis surrendered to him."

The old preacher belongs to four fraternal orders, among them the Odd Fellows and the Elks. He says he is a "full-blooded Elk, with every penny I ever made paid up, y'understand me?" He has his headquarters in New York, going from there to lead evangelistic meetings in the colored churches. Asked about his knowledge of New York, he said:

"I was in New York first when I was fifteen years of age. My father, who was a wealthy, sold tobacco there. But, shoo, New York ain't anything like it was then. Ain't no more like it 'n chalk is like cheese. Why the land is different, the food is different, and the men have changed. Too, too, too, New Yawk ain't no wiser in mind, but weaker 'n salvation. You can't rely on their word now-a-days, y'understand me, for they will try to cheat you. It used to be different entirely."

Asked if he thought the world was growing worse, he responded: "No, suh, the world am'less' the same, y'understand me? But the people in the world are growin' more and more wicked every day."

A Catastrophe.

Mother had put the mutton stew on to cook and got ready for church. "Now, Tommy," she said, before she started, "I want you to stay at home and see that the stew boils continuously until I come back." Half an hour later Tommy came rushing breathless into church, exclaiming: "Mother, come home, quick! The sheep is butting all the dumplings out of the kettle."

YALE'S ALUMNI BANQUET HUNT CLUB MAKES PLANS

Sixty Sons of "Old Eli" Make Merry at Annual Dinner at the Casino.

MAYOR AND PROFESSOR SPEAK.

College Songs, Yale Fellowship and a Good Feed Make It the Most Successful Affair of the Local Club.

Yale good fellowship predominated at the annual dinner of the Plainfield Yale Club held at the Casino, Saturday night, when sixty loyal sons of "Old Eli" met together around the banquet board, sang the old college songs and discussed the old days and the new in speeches. The affair was the most successful in the history of the local club and it was midnight before all rose to sing "For God, for Country, and for Yale" and consolidated the evening's festivities with a serpentine dance around the banquet board, singing the famous "Chi Rho Omega Lambda Chi" chorus, which customarily concludes all Eli festivities here.

The Casino was handsomely decorated with Yale banners and pennants for the occasion, and the table, of horse-shoe shape, bore great bouquets of carnations. Boutonnieres of violets were the place favors. As toastmaster and chairman of the general banquet committee, Edward A. Stevenson, '88, was at the head of the board and introduced the evening's speakers with quip and jest, when the toast of the college men's "feed" had been borne away and the banquet pipes smoked regretfully to thicken. Professor Edward B. Reed, '94, of the Yale faculty, was the guest of honor, and the first speaker of the evening. He refreshed the memories of all by his talk about the University and spoke especially of the democratic spirit which typifies a Yale man. He said that it is the man who counts at Yale, not the money he spends.

Dr. B. San D. Hedges, Princeton, '85, was invited to the banquet to talk on behalf of the regretful wearers of the Blue as the brother college. He spoke of the keen rivalry in athletics between the two institutions, and the clean character of the sport which marks a Yale-Princeton contest. Dr. H. Harry, '85, was drawn for "In Church and State," by the verse "Go thy way, eat thy bread with Joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart," used on the card in connection with his name better than one could by a long talk. Mayor Link, invited as a "Father," was called on for some remarks, and spoke on the importance of the college man in politics—urging every Yale man present to do his duty, whether it be office or office holder. Rev. John Sherman Zelie, '88T., delivered the invocation at the beginning of the banquet, which was "in truth, a royal feed."

The committee in charge of the affair was made up of the following officers of the club: E. A. Stevenson, '88, president; Clifford W. McGee, '98S., vice president; L. A. Williams, '98, secretary-treasurer; and Harry B. Lovell, '96, Henry L. De-Forest, '92, and Rufus S. Rowland, '88, as members of the executive committee.

FAREWELL SERMON BY REV. T. MOORE-SMITH.

Never once referring to the severing of his ties with the Scotch Plains Baptist church, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, the retiring pastor, preached his farewell sermon at the morning service yesterday. His text was taken from St. Matthew, 22: 42, "What Think Ye of Christ?"

Rev. T. Moore-Smith has been serving as pastor of the Scotch Plains church for three years past, and at the conclusion of the service, a parish meeting was held, at which the board of deacons of the church and two members of the congregation were appointed a committee to arrange for pulpit supplies until Dr. Moore-Smith's successor is appointed. Deacon Hall was appointed chairman of the committee, which comprises Edward Johnson, C. H. Vincent, John T. Hatfield and Dr. F. W. Westcott. Rev. H. J. Atkinson, of New York, will preach at the church for the next two Sundays, but does not come to the church as a candidate for the pastorate.

Agriculturists Meet.

The Somerset County Board of Agriculture met in the court room at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, but the stormy weather early in the day deterred many from a distance attending. President Cortelyou presided. State Secretary Franklin Dyer, who was scheduled for an address, was unable to be present, because of illness. F. C. Minkler, from the New Jersey State Agricultural Experiment Stations in New Brunswick, spoke on "Corn Production." He advocated the germation test for seed corn. There was a general discussion.

The various bids received by the Councils street committee for furnishing crushed stone, crosswalks and culverts during the coming year, have been referred to Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh for examination. The committee does not propose to have a repetition of last year's mixup in the awarding of contracts.

WEBSTER PIONEERS

OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

(Second Article.)

O. B. LEONARD.

The grandfather of the late Catharine R. Webster was Joseph Webster, who was born March 17, 1779, died December 20, 1854. He made a will November 6, 1847, designating Catharine R. Webster executrix and Jesse Vail and Nathan Laing executors of his estate. This will was witnessed by Jacob Manning, William Webster and John Edgar. It was duly probated January 6, 1855, before Hon. Cornelius Boice, of Plainfield, then Surrogate of Essex County, N. J.

Joseph Webster, the testator, married in 1801 Amy King and had one child, Nathan Webster, who married in 1824 Catharine R. Vail and were parents of one daughter, Catharine R. Webster, sole heiress of her grandfather's property. Her father (Nathan) died in 1827 and her mother in 1825, surviving the birth of Catharine only about a fortnight.

The six brothers and five sisters of Joseph Webster (who was the youngest of all the children), were the following: William, John, Samuel, Hugh, Isaac and Marsh Webster, Mary, Martha, Susannah, Sarah and Anna Webster.

The parents of these twelve children were Hugh Webster, Sr., and Sarah Marsh, married in 1753. He was born in 1730 and died 1815. Being an exemplary Friend he was consistently opposed to the use of war and of gun. In 1758 Hugh Webster was drafted in the Colonial service during the French and Indian War. He had to suffer for his peace principles and on this occasion was arrested and was forcibly taken from his home to answer before Captain Benjamin Stites, who demanded that Hugh must go into the service himself or furnish a substitute. Webster positively refused o do either. The guard then led him a few miles further to the place where the militia had assembled. But they in the meanwhile had moved away from the encampment and the guard left Webster there to take care of himself. Hugh at once retraced his steps towards home, stopping at Captain Stites' to inform him that the attempt had abandoned him and so he set himself free.

An extract from the last will and testament of Joseph Webster is herewith given. In this interesting document many of our pioneers are referenced and mentioned and will be pleased to read the bequests made by the testator and former resident of Plainfield.

Extract from Joseph Webster's Last Will.

I give all my wearing apparel to my beloved wife, also the use of three-quarters of all my real estate and personal estate as long as she remains my widow. I give and devise the use of the other one-quarter of my real estate, both real and personal, to my granddaughter, Catharine R. Webster, during her natural life, and in case of the death or marriage of my wife before Catharine, then she shall also have the use of the property and personal hereby given after devised to my widow. I mean by the foregoing devises to my said granddaughter to create in her a life estate and no other. In case of the death of Catharine before my widow, then in that case if Saint Mary's Hall Library Club say they regret that the policy of the latter club was not more liberal and that certain concessions were not made. Under such able to combine the two clubs and make it one of the largest and strongest in this part of the country.

Early in April arrangements will be completed for the weekly hunts throughout Middlesex and Union counties. The fact that the members will be able to enable their horses at the new home will have a tendency to attract them in large numbers to the weekly events.

End Season With Victory.

Defeating the Belleville Y. M. C. A. junior five by a score of 33-27 at Hope chapel, Friday night, the Hope chapel Boys' Club five wound up a successful basketball season with a victory. The teams were evenly matched, the score being 18-18 at the end of the first half, but the local five got a lead in the second period and held it until the whistle. The Hope boys have a record of twelve victories out of fourteen games.

Pupils' Recital.

A pupils' recital of instrumental music was given at the residence of Miss Karr on Putnam avenue, Saturday afternoon. Miss Karr played Koelling's "Hungary Rapsodie Mignonne." Others taking part were: Miss Blanche Stout, Miss Carol Iradell, Theodore Karr, Miss Eleanor Iradell, Miss Elizabeth Bremble, Miss Kate MacDonald, Miss Rosamond Carey, Miss Bertha Touchon, Miss Ada Williams.

Crescent Avenue Church Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held on Wednesday night, April 8, at which time the election of elders to succeed Leander N. Lovell, John F. Harman and Dr. E. W. Hedges, and one deacon to succeed Dr. W. H. Murray, also to hear reports of the year's work. Previous to the church meeting will be held the annual meeting of the society.

Board of Stewards Orders Improvements at Clubhouse and Names Committees.

FORMAL OPENING NEXT MONTH.

Buildings on Grounds to Be Completely Remodelled—Thirty-eight Hounds in the Pack Now.

In preparation for the opening of the season next month when formal possession of the handsome new property and clubhouse will be taken, the Board of Stewards of the Watchung Hunt Club on Saturday appointed H. M. Stockton, Lewis G. Timpson, Simeon A. Cruikshank, Harry L. Hall and Frederick E. Butler a house committee. Extensive improvements and a general cleaning-up process will be commenced this week so that the club can move into its new quarters between April 15 and 20.

The improvements to be made will consist chiefly in enlarging the kitchen in the big house to adapt it to club purposes, while the interior of the small house, which is 160 Years old, will be remodelled, making it an attractive grill room. The fireplaces and other features about the old style architecture will be left intact. This house is right at the entrance to the grounds and will overlook the three tennis courts to be laid out there. A spacious veranda will also be built on the old house.

Since the acquisition of the new club property between sixty and seventy applications for membership have been received, bringing the total up to about 120. As the limit is 150 there will be no trouble in filling the list. No action will be taken on the applications until April 9, when a club meeting will be held. E. S. Hooley and Lewis E. Waring have been given entire charge of the grounds and all buildings, outside of the clubhouse, and Mr. Waring as master of the hounds, will also have the care and direction of them.

The club has now one of the finest pack of hounds in this country, a draft of seven couples having been made from the famous pack of Alex. H. Higginson at South Lincoln, Mass. This pack is composed entirely of English hounds and first and second prizes have been taken by them at Madison Square Garden. With the addition of seven couples, the club will have thirty-eight matured hounds of the finest breed for hunting purposes. It is quite likely that the club will select eight or ten couples from its pack for exhibition at some of the big shows.

As previously stated the club is to be strictly a man's organization and no one under twenty-one years of age will be admitted to membership. The wives and women friends of the members will be extended the privileges of the club during the day for teas, receptions, tennis, etc., but they will not be admitted to membership. The club rules will be strictly enforced in every particular.

The organization is just the kind of one that many men in Plainfield have desired and a number who are also members of the Mountain Country Club say they regret that the policy of the latter club was not more liberal and that certain concessions were not made. Under such able to combine the two clubs and make it one of the largest and strongest in this part of the country.

Early in April arrangements will be completed for the weekly hunts throughout Middlesex and Union counties. The fact that the members will be able to enable their horses at the new home will have a tendency to attract them in large numbers to the weekly events.

ARTIFICIAL LAKE HOLDS 35,000,000,000 GALLONS.

The most interesting construction ever undertaken in New Jersey will be that of the proposed reservoir, or artificial lake, by the building of a dam across Pompton river at Mountain View, as recommended by the State Water Supply Commission. Two plans were under consideration —one for a dam at Little Falls and the other at Mountain View. The Water Supply Commission employed a number of eminent engineers to make a careful examination of the respective merits of the two plans, and these reported in favor of the Mountain View dam. Their objection to the Little Falls project was that it would involve a large area of shallow water around the margin, which would foster the growth of injurious algae. The Mountain View plan calls for a dam one hundred and twenty feet above sea level, affording a capacity in excess of that needed for flood protection of 55,000,000,000 gallons. This will afford sufficient capacity to provide for a daily draught of 50,000,000 gallons, which can be allowed to pass down the river to maintain the normal flow, in addition to a supply of 200,000,000 gallons per day for potable and power purposes.

It is proposed that the normal level be maintained at about 202 feet, the upper half of the basin, to 220 feet elevation, being necessarily reserved for the temporary storage of flood waters, which will be drawn as soon as practicable each flood, in order to provide for the greatest period of high water. The proposed dam will be about 3,500 feet long, creating a lake of 15,200 acres, a considerable part of which will be from forty to fifty feet in depth. In the region to be flooded by this dam are situated the villages of Pompton Plains, Pompton, Pequannock, Wayne, etc. It will involve the change of location of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad for a distance of seventeen miles, and the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad and the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad for considerably greater distances. It will also necessitate the rebuilding of a part of the Morris Canal, and many changes in highway and other structures affected by the impounded waters. The total estimated cost of the scheme is $5,950,099, or, with contingencies, $7,437,624. This includes $1,962,225 for the dam; $458,000 for damage to highways; about $700,000 for relocation of railroads; $1,176,900 for Newark pipe line, and $2,235,220 for the land for the reservoir.

More interesting even than the prely utilitarian purpose that would be served by the creation of this reservoir are what may be called its aesthetic or sentimental attractions. It will create a large and beautiful lake amid charming mountain and rural scenery, within easy reach of New York and other large cities, and will probably become the seat of many summer and suburban homes.

Corned Beef Hash.

This is, perhaps, the most usual and at the same time one of the most savory kinds of hash. To make it, allow one part of cold boiled potato to cut into small cubes to two parts of cold corned beef chopped fine; mix well and season to taste with salt and pepper. Put a large tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan; when melted turn the meat and potato mixture into it and add enough boiling water to moisten thoroughly. Cover closely and let cook in hot part of the range for five minutes, being careful not to let it scorch. When a crust is formed on the bottom, turn and brown the upper side; then transfer to a hot platter and send to the table at once.

Shame on Him!

"Of course, John," said Mrs. Younghusband, "I like my kitchen quite well, but I'd like to have one of those new portable ranges."

"But, my dear," protested her foxy husband, "we'd have to get portable cooking utensils to go with it."

"That's so. I never thought of that."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

Her Reason.

Judge—Madam, this court has indisputable proof that your age is thirty, yet you say you are only twenty-four. How do you explain this?

Witness—Well, your honor, I can only say that I was six before I learned to count.

PASS BRYAN RESOLUTION

Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee Endorses the Nebraskan.

SCULLY AGAIN MADE CHAIRMAN.

Col. Dungan, Surrogate De Mond, Sheriff Rose, A. A. Clark and S. S. Swackhamer Speak at Banquet.

The candidacy of William Jennings Bryan for the Democratic Presidential nomination was endorsed at a meeting of the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee at Somerville on Saturday, instruction being given its delegates to the Denver convention to vote for the Nebraskan. Michael W. Scully was renamed as county chairman at this meeting which wound up with a dinner at the Somerset Hotel given by the successful county candidates in the last campaign.

Walter C. Linbarger introduced the Bryan resolution, and there was not a single vote against it on roll call. Horace Codington was reelected secretary of the committee. At the dinner speeches were made by Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, Surrogate William DeMond, Sheriff Frank T. Rose, former Congressman Alyzo A. Clark and former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer. Mr. Scully acted as chairman. The primaries for the election of delegates to the State and district conventions will be held on April 18 except in North Plainfield where the date will be announced later.

The Bryan resolution follows:

"Whereas, In our opinion the welfare of the country and of the Democratic party will be best served by nominating for the Presidency in July next at Denver the Honorable William J. Bryan, a man qualified by character, experience and training to advance and protect the welfare of all the people of this country, and one whose honesty, sincerity of purpose and fidelity to Democratic principles is unquestioned.

"Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee, do hereby call upon the Voters of this county to choose as their delegates to the State and district conventions men who will support delegates to the National convention who are favorable to his nomination."

7TH-DAY BAPTISTS' S. S. ANNUAL MEETING

Reports of the year's work and the election of officers, together with other important business were the features of the annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Sabbath-school, held Sunday. Appropriations were voted to the various charities from the balance in the hands of the treasurer. During the year the school has paid in benevolences outside of the church, $297.30, including the Children's Home, Day Nursery, Primary Sunday-school work, Union County Sunday-school Association, Loyal Temperance Legion, Chinese Famine Fund, Organized Aid Association and Muhlenberg Hospital, in addition to denominational objects.

These officers were chosen for the coming year:

Superintendent, Orra S. Rogers; assistants, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Asa F. Randolph; secretary, Nathan S. Wardner; treasurer, Charles F. Neugebe; librarian, Miss Nettie Bellman; pianist, Miss Eva Rogers; choristers, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Davis; auditors, Mrs. O. S. Rogers, Mrs. Asa F. Randolph; superintendent Home department, Miss Nancy Randolph; superintendent Primary department, Miss Ida L. Spicer.

Favorable reports for the year were presented by Superintendent Rogers, Secretary Nathan Wardner and the retiring treasurer, Miss Ernestine C. Smith. Resolutions were passed expressing appreciation of the long and faithful services of Miss Ernestine C. Smith as treasurer and David E. Titsworth as chorister. Mrs. H. M. Maxson was the chairman and David E. Titsworth secretary of the meeting.

At the session of the Sabbath-school on Saturday occurred the pleasant graduation exercises of a class from the primary department to the next grade. The members of the class received diplomas and Bibles.

MYSTERY IN YOUNG WOMAN'S DEATH.

Detectives Seeking Without Success Midwife Said to Live in New Brunswick.

Detectives working on the death of Miss Mary Vleit, of Blairstown, N. J., in St. Michael's Hospital, in Newark, on Thursday, are looking for a midwife who described herself as Mrs. F. Dodge, of New Brunswick, who, it is said, took Miss Vleit to a boarding house in Newark, from which place she was taken to the hospital. So far their search has been futile. Malpractice is thought to have caused her death.

The young woman came from a well-to-do family in Blairstown. She went to Newark on Thursday, ostensibly to do some shopping, with a young man said to have been Irving Van Horn, also of Blairstown, a friend of her family. He returned home without her and said she had been taken ill and had been operated on. No arrests have been made.

PRISON FOR TWO WHO HAD HIDDEN WEAPONS.

New Brunswick, March 30.—Charles Bitz, who despite his name is an Italian, was sentenced by Judge Bookstaver in the Court of Quarter Sessions Friday morning to nine months in State prison on conviction for carrying concealed weapons. Bitz was arrested at Roosevelt with a heavy caliber revolver in his pocket.

In imposing sentence Judge Bookstaver declared that Bitz had no excuse, there was no evidence to show that he had been threatened or that his life was in danger and ignorance of the law could not be pleaded, since in his native country the laws against carrying weapons are more stringent than in America.

William Lowden, of Plainfield, who denied being a member of the "Dutch Idee" gang, was sent to the reformatory at Rahway on conviction for carrying concealed weapons.

FORT SIGNS TRENTON'S $800,000 CITY HALL ACT.

Governor Fort Friday signed the two bills permitting Trenton to build an $800,000 city hall. The law under which the commission had been operating, passed two years ago, was shown to be defective in the courts, in that it did not give the commissioners the right of land condemnation. The new act gives the power.

The people who were against the bill, whose properties are wanted for the new building, sent a telegram to the Governor to protest against his signing the measures, but the Governor, after remarking that he did not intend to stand in the way of municipal progress, signed the bills.

Quartermaster General C. Edward Murray, Ferdinand W. Roebling and ex-Senator John Griggs Blackwell are the commissioners who will erect the building.

Use Dogs to Track Thieves.

Bridgeton, March 30.—Bloodhounds are now being used by officers of the law in an effort to track down a gang of thieves that have been operating in this city for a month past. Almost every night from one to half a dozen places are entered and robbed, and up to this time the thieves have made good their escape. Last night attempts were made to enter three residences in the western section of the city. A telephone message to the city hall brought the officers and dogs to the scene, but nothing was accomplished. The robberies are very mysterious, and the women folks of the city are terrorized and afraid to remain alone at night. So many of the robberies occur in the early part of the evening. Prosecutor Pithian has been appealed to, and is using all means at his command for the apprehension of the thieves.

Accept $10,000 Library Bequest.

Flemington, March 30.—Much interest was manifested in the special election held here Friday afternoon to vote upon the question of accepting or rejecting the bequest of the late Dr. William H. Bartles, who left the town $10,000 to erect a public library building. Those interested in accepting the gift were at the polls and worked hard to get a heavy vote cast. It was decided to accept the bequest by a majority of 196. There were 322 votes cast in favor of the gift and 25 against it. Hiram E. Deats, after the result of the election was announced, donated to the town a lot in Main street as a site for the building. The lot is valued at $5,000. It is not likely that the building will be erected during the present year. It will be used by the Hunterdon County Historical Society as well as the library association.

To Ordain Episcopal Clergymen.

The Rev. Morgan Ashley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Ashley, of Prospect street, Orange, will be ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in Grace Episcopal church, Orange, next Thursday morning. It will be a double ordination, the Rev. H. K. Garnier also being scheduled for the same ceremony. The services will be conducted by Bishop Edwin S. Lines. Four windows, a testimonial to the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, a formed rector of the church, will be unveiled at the time.

Threatened to Kill His Wife.

Elizabeth, March 30.—John Williams, a blacksmith and horseshoer, was arrested Friday at his home, 67 West Jersey street, on complaint of his wife, whom he chased out of the house with an axe and threatening to kill her. The frightened woman was given shelter for the night in the residence of a neighbor. Williams was arraigned in police court before Judge Mahon, who committed him to the county jail in default of $200 bonds to keep the peace.

Bar to Dine Justice Voorhees.

Freehold, March 30.—At a meeting of executive committee of the Monmouth County Bar Association here Friday arrangements were made to tender to Justice Willard P. Voorhees a complimentary dinner on the first day of the May term of court, when he first makes his appearance in this district.

House 136 Years old Burns.

The home of Eugene Benjamin, in Roseland avenue, Caldwell, and the oldest house in the borough, was wrecked by fire yesterday. The building, which is 136 years old, was originally occupied by Denman Goold, and later by Dr. Daniel Halsey.

William E. Bartle, of this city will take possession of the Bartle farm at Martinsville on May 1.

DAD SPEAKS HIS MIND.

Here he is writing again!
Really, it isn't a joke;
Wants me to send him a "ten,"
Says the young rascal, he's broke.
Says, too, his watch is in soak.
Well, the boy's nerve isn't small,
This is a masterly stroke.
What does he do with it all?

Sent him ten dollars last week—
Told me he wanted some books.
This is positive cheek;
Very suspicious it looks.
Think's when his finger she crooks.
I'm there to answer his call,
"Borrowed a 5-spot from Snooks!"
What does he do with it all?

Study's an awful expense,
Seems to be rough upon dad.
Hasn't the boy any sense?
Certainly time that he had.
"Send me ten dollars," he said!
Yes, he has plenty of gall,
This thing is making me mad.
What does he do with it all.

Useful Contrivance.

Mrs. De Flat—"Can you show me anything new in folding beds?"

Dealer—"Only this, madam, and it really is quite a success. On arising in the morning you touch a spring and it turns into a washstand and bathtub. After your bath you touch another spring and it becomes a dressing case with a French plate mirror. If you breakfast in your room, a slight pressure will transform it into an extension table. After breakfast, you press these three buttons at once and you have an upright piano. That's all it will do, except that when you die it can be changed into a rosewood coffin."—Independent.

Seized Her Opportunity.

He was not a very rapid wooer, and she was getting a little anxious.

Again he called, and they sat together in the parlor, "just those two."

A loud rap came at the front door.

"Oh, brother!.. she said, "who can be calling?"

"Say you're out," said the deceiver.

"Oh, no; that would be untrue," murmured the ingenious one.

"Then say you're engaged," he urged.

"Oh, may I, Charlie?" she cried, as she threw herself in his arms.

And the man kept on knocking at the front door.—Illustrated Bits.

Himself to Blame.

A youthful versifier in Washington not long ago sought the criticism of a well-known publisher who chanced to be at the national capital on business with the copyright division of the Library of Congress.

"Sir," said the near-poet, indignantly, when the publisher had brusquely advised him to "burn the stuff"—"sir, poets are born, not made."

Whereupon the publisher smiled broadly. "Young man," said he, "it won't help your case in the least to try to shift the blame on your parents."—Kansas City Journal.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 5, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart.—IV. The Psalmist's inspiration.—Psa. 122.

The Twenty-fourth Psalm was sung in connection with the entering of the people into the gates of Jerusalem at the time of the annual feast of the Passover. It is first described; then comes a description of the Old Testament ideal of the city, and the climax is the call to open the gates that the King of Glory may come in. Our topic deals with the ideal man or the man whom God accepts. In the Old Testament period he is the man who is morally upright. In the New Testament he is the man to whom righteousness has been imputed through the Lord Jesus Christ. The characteristics are practically the same in both cases; the difference is in the way they are obtained.

The man whom God accepts is described in the fourth verse.

He is the "man that hath clean hands." This refers to the outward life of the man. Clean hands stand for a clean outward life. God is a Spiritual being, and we cannot have fellowship with Him acceptable to Him whose spirit is not what it ought to be. The man who leads a wicked and sinful life cannot expect to find favor in God's sight. Noah found favor in the sight of God because in the midst of a sinful generation he walked in righteous life. In an age of gross idolatry and idolatry Abraham found favor in the sight of God because his faith in God was counted and reckoned "his faith was imputed unto him for righteousness." The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. Righteousness is necessary to acceptance with God. The outward life must be right before God will hear us when we pray.

He must also have a "pure heart." He must be clean without and pure within. These two elements of life go together and make a man's life what it is. A pure heart assures a righteous life, and the two together cause a man to find favor and acceptance before God. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Humility is a grace that lends to acceptance with God. "Who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity nor sworn deceitfully." Pride that leads to falsehood is worse in the sight of God than wickedness in life is despised of God. He hates the proud, but receives the humble. The Pharisee who extolled himself was unacceptable, while the publican who humbly confessed his sins was justified.

The Two and New.

"Lyman and Clark" is the title of an article in the Congregationalist which will greatly interest every Christian Endeavorer. It is by Rev. Robert Whitaker of Oakland, Cal., and contrasts two prominent Portlanders of Maine, Dr. Edward Payson and Dr. Clark. The contrast is especially interesting now since Dr. Payson was born 100 years ago.

"No two men," says Mr. Whitaker, "illustrate better than Payson and Clark the contrast between the old faith and the new, the piety of yesterday and the righteousness of today. Payson's introspective piety could not do for him nor for the world what the outward, Christward look of Christian Endeavorers of all the wiser faith of our time is capable of doing for us.

"Precisely because Payson's piety was so excessively introspective Payson was especially far from being a happy man. Here is the great characteristic of Christian Endeavor than its cheerfulness.

"We can afford to remember with the centenary of Payson's pastorate much that is vital and abiding in Payson's sermons and preaching. It would be most of us good to read the story of his life and a few of his sermons. But we have a right to rejoice in our living leaders and in a living faith which, while holding fast to that which is good, is ever pressing forward to a better understanding of our Lord's plain indeed, but also risen and glorified. There is still need of pressing toward God, but thank God for the new emphasis upon the fellowship of faith, upon righteousness between man and man."

Strenuousness.

Our name Christian Endeavor suggests strenuousness. There is a touch of the military life about it, a sound as of the bugle blast. Many have entered the ranks like the little boy, unwilling to do the fighting they have enlisted in the wrong army and will soon prove deserters, for the test will prove too severe, and only brave, gallant spirits will keep the ranks, scatter the enemy and win the glory crown. May the ranks of our Endeavor army be filled with those who strive on to victory!

Blood must fight if I would reign,
Love me up courage, Lord,
Lift up thine arm to defend the shame,
Supported by Thy word.
—Miss Susie Fiske in Irish Endeavorer.

Aim of Endeavorers.

It ought to be the aim of all true Endeavorers to come to those whom they touch for life, but this can only be done as there is power flowing into us from God Himself. Unless we are in close touch with the Master and have the grace and divine influence flowing in us through it we shall not succeed in raising either our church, our societies or our companions.—Rev. F. S. Horsefield in Irish Endeavorer.

HAD TO DISTINGUISH HIMSELF.

Jimmie Simply Reversed the Order of His Activities.

The teacher in the kindergarten gave a little talk on "helping mother," explaining that children who were almost six years old could at least dress themselves. A number of children told what they had done in the way of drying dishes, etc. All this seemed to impress little Jimmie very much. The next morning he proudly announced in the circle: "I dessed myself dis mornin'." Of course Jimmie received the highest praise and other children were urged to go and do likewise. The next day Jimmie again announced: "I dessed myself dis mornin'," and so proud was he that at every frequent intervals during the morning he triumphantly repeated this. So it continued on the third day, until the teacher answered that she was very glad to hear it, but thought that a boy who was big enough to dress himself ought to be able to sit quiet without interrupting so often. Jimmie, however, continued to inform the kindergarten at every possible moment that "I dessed myself dis mornin'." Finally the teacher told him that if he interrupted again he would have to leave the circle. Jimmie soon forgot and the teacher sent him behind a chair in the corner. A minute later the principal entered with a visitor and was surprised to see a little head poked out from behind the screen. The teacher explained and the principal, crossing the room, spoke the screen to one side. To her horror there stood Jimmie with not even his shirt on. "I didn't dess myself dis time," he said tearfully, "I undessed myself."

SHE SEIZED THE OPPORTUNITY.

Family Didn't Often Get Chance to Have Photographs Taken.

A philanthropic Cleveland man heard the other day of a family down in the flats who were in extreme need of financial aid. He made a trip down to the poor, miserably furnished home and found that the family was, indeed, having a struggle to get enough to eat. He pulled three five-dollar bills out of his wallet and handed it to the gaunt, half-starved looking mother and told her to take it and spend it as she thought best. A few days later he returned to see how the family were getting along. All the members in sight still looked poorly fed. "Did you buy some groceries with that $15?" he asked. "Well, no," said the woman, with some hesitation, "you see, it was the first time we had had so much money all at once, and it looked like such a good chance that we each went up and had a dozen cabinet photographs taken." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Oregon Apples Sold at $1 Each.

The record sale of a number of boxes of winter banana apples at Hood river at $8 a box has brought up the question of record prices for apples. The horticultural annals of the state show that in 1856 one box of Spitzenberg apples grown in the Willamette valley and shipped to San Francisco netted the shipper $60. In the same year a few boxes of winesaps were sold in Portland for $102, or $24 a box. In 1855, 6,000 boxes of apples grown in Oregon were sold at prices which netted the shipper $20 to $30 a bushel. In 1854, 500 boxes were sold at from $40 to $50 a box. The first lot of apples grown on grafted trees were sold in Portland by the grower, Henderson Luelling, at $1 an apple.—Los Angeles Times.

His Wish Came True.

Prof. Edgar L. Larkin, the noted astronomer, was discussing marriage at a dinner in San Francisco. Prof. Larkin believes that it is criminal to continue for life marriages that are unhappy. "Why condemn," he said, with a grim laugh, "men and women to such misery as afflicts our mutual friends, Blank and Blank? We have mutual friends in the Blanks' position. At the height of their nightly quarrel the other day Mrs. Blank choked back a sob and said reproachfully: 'I was reading one of your old love letters to-day, James, and you said in it that you would rather live in endless torment with me than in bliss by yourself.' 'Well, I got my wish,' Blank growled."

Test Satisfactory—to Himself.

A recent number of Simplicissimus tells this "story with a moral": "The Union Bank of Frankfort has its own police service. One night the director was sleepless. He wondered whether the bank police were really trustworthy. He concluded to make a trial. He disguised himself and rushed, pistol in hand, into the bank vault. The police were good for nothing. They looked on quietly while the director pocketed 2,000,000 rubles and carried them away. Since then no one has seen the director."

Not a Reformer.

"I should think you could easily show the errors of your political opponents." "Perhaps," answered Senator Sorghum, "but if I should convince them they would simply adopt my suggestions without giving me any credit for them. The opposition's mistakes are a part of my capital."

More Practical.

"Did you hear that the professor had succeeded in squaring the circle?" "No, I didn't; but if he would figure a while longer and tell a man how to square his wife when he comes home at two a. m. I think he would have a more appreciative audience."—Nashville American.

Classics on the Turf.

"Do you think scholarship assists a man to pecuniary success?" "I should say not," answered the patron of the races. "Half the time the bookmakers can't pronounce correctly the names of the horses on which they are the most money."

READ THE WRITERS OF TO-DAY.

American Intellectual Life Shaped by Living Authors.

The journeymen writers write almost all that almost all Americans read, says Walter Page in the Atlantic. This is a fact that we love to fool ourselves about. We talk about "literature" and we talk about "hack writers," implying that the reading we do is of literature. The truth all the while we read little else than the writing of the hacks—living hacks, that is, men and women that write for pay. We may hug the notion that our life and thought are not really affected by current literature, that we read the living writers only for utilitarian reasons and that our real intellectual life is fed by the great dead writers. But our hugging this delusion does not change the fact that the intellectual life even of most educated persons, and certainly of the mass of the population, is fed chiefly by the writers of our own time. Let us hope that the great writers of the past do set the standards whereby a few judge the writing of the present. But, even if this be true, it is still true also that the intellectual life of the American people is chiefly shaped by current writing.

SHOWED THE PATH OF DUTY.

Timely Advice That Shaped the Destinies of Great Men.

At a critical time in the life of John Wesley, when, to save his soul, he was about to retire into a remote privacy and give himself up to prayer and self-discipline, an unknown adviser, a "serious man," gave him back to England and humanity by saying to him: "Sir, you wish to serve God and go to Heaven. Remember, you can not serve Him alone. You must find companions or make them. The Bible knows nothing of a solitary religion." A few words spoken by a servant maid to Charles Wesley led him to step, before his long-struggling brother, into the full liberty of God. And when Whitefield was setting out for America some wise friend said to him: "If you have a mind to convert Indians, there are colliers enough in Kingswood." He went to the Kingswood colliers, and in his doing the great evangelical revival in England was begun.

Women as Story-Makers.

Women write with color and spirit; an unexpected number of them are shooting genuine humor. A few are brute force as well. Women novelists have the sense, too, of situation; they construct plots that are intricate and then carry them through with dash. They manufacture good dialogue, and they know human nature under all aspects save one. The woman who knows man is yet to come. She can handle him domestically, perhaps, though there is often more of masculine objection to a fuss than feminine diplomacy in his confessions. But she cannot maneuver him in a book. Man, though, has plummeted woman's heart and charted it better than she could do herself. Until she can do as much for him, fiction has no fear of being entirely ousted from the field of fiction.—Cleveland Leader.

Through Purifying Process.

A business man who had purchased a Salvation Army paper from one of the blue-bonneted peddlers, handed her a five-dollar bill with the order to turn into the treasury with his compliments. As she thanked him, he said: "How do you know how I made that money? Perhaps it is tainted." She looked at the money for a moment, and then, folded it up and put it in her purse, as she answered: "No money can be so bad that it cannot be fumigated in passing through our treasury. In this gift, sir, you have done good for yourself, good for the army, and good for some poor sinner who needs aid. How can money be tainted that does so much?"

The Family's Night Out.

In one large family a pegboard on which the members can record their outgoing and incomings at night is a valuable article. It is a board with holes in it like a cribbage board, arranged in two vertical columns. Each column has as many holes as there are persons in the family, with the names in between. When "George" goes out he puts his peg in the "out" column and when he comes in he puts it back in the "in." The last one who puts the last "in" for the night has to lock the door and make things secure for the night.

Living Books.

Aprina Indian library is an interesting one. An Arizona judge, who has been studying this tribe, says that they maintain a complete system of their tribe from time to time for living libraries of their traditions, and they are carefully instructed in the historical legends pertaining to their tribe, being required to commit them faithfully to memory. They in turn instruct their successors, and thus preserve the traditions in the exact language recited by their ancestors of many years ago.

More Practical.

"Did you hear that the professor had succeeded in squaring the circle?" "No, I didn't; but if he would figure a while longer and tell a man how to square his wife when he comes home at two a. m. I think he would have a more appreciative audience."—Nashville American.

Classics on the Turf.

"Do you think scholarship assists a man to pecuniary success?" "I should say not," answered the patron of the races. "Half the time the bookmakers can't pronounce correctly the names of the horses on which they are the most money."

AN ANCIENT HIGHWAY.

England's Great North Road Is Two Thousand Years Old.

Before we reached Hatfield, a few miles out of London, we had already been impressed with the magnificence of this Great North road, which is said to have been built by a Mr. Caesar, whose headquarters were in Rome at the time. It is the direct route from London to Edinburgh and has been traveled for so many centuries that the earliest histories of England contain accounts of the movement of troops upon it. It is a great thoroughfare for vehicles of all sorts, motorists and cyclists, and in these modern days there are well worn footpaths along either side for pedestrians. We passed scores of motors, and I was told while in England that the popularity of motoring had noticeably diminished the number of grst class travelers by rail. We found the road for its entire length of 400 miles in perfect condition. In many portions the macadam is said to be a foot thick. Long sections of the road are oiled, and on no part of it was there any appreciable amount of dust. There are few sharp curves, and the grades are so slight that it has become a great thoroughfare for speeding, with the result that there are many police traps for which one has to watch. We found that we could stop in almost any little village and get information as to just where the traps were located—as, for instance, they told us at Biggleswade, which is a better looking place than its name, to look out for traps just the other side of Buckden and again in approaching Weston.—Frank Presbrey in Outing Magazine.

IN THE HOME.

An open fire is certainly a happy feature in it.

Readable books and magazines lying around loose are one of the important things.

In the living room there must be a softly shaded light placed low for reading and sewing.

Chairs that can be sat upon are a more necessary essential than some housewives think.

Stiffed suits of furniture are a good thing to avoid; also loud papers and highly colored pictures.

A carpet that can be washed on by the family is much better than one preserved for the sacred feet of strangers.

Let no tobacco smoke and dust—well, there have been homes with them and places without them that utterly failed to be homes.

Cheerfulness and love and mutual accommodation go to the making, further to make a real home than overzealous spotless and everlasting oversight.

Some Witty Titles.

The pupils of one of the high schools of Philadelphia evinced great interest in a competition for a prize to be awarded the pupil who should submit the wittiest list of titles for twelve sham books on a dummy shelf. The following are some of the titles received in the competition:

"A New England Puss," by M. E. W.

"Thoughts On My Bed," Stread.

"On Different Tacks," by Van Hammer.

"Lizzie Wouldn't," by John Wood.

"The Fatal Blow," by John Knox.

Porter's "Tales of Lost Baggage."

"Lost In the Wash," by the author of "Bachelor's Buttons."

"Grinding the Poor," by Mill.

"Owe No Man," by O. W. Holmes.

"After the Ball," by the author of "Our National Game."

Morse on "Our Old Houses."

"Woodchucks and Rabbits," by Burroughs.

"E. E.," by the author of "My Double."

The First "Coin Sweater."

"Coin sweating," which so often figures in the Sadie Bailey calendar, is a very old crime. More than six centuries before Christ there was a coin sweater, one Alexander of Byzantium. He was chief officer of the public treasury, and he amassed an immense and sudden fortune by "clipping" the public pickpockets and cunning hard-headed scoundrels.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sure Enough Hogs.

Mose, the dark cook of a party of surveyors in eastern Texas, was greatly annoyed by the razorback hogs that roamed around the camp. One evening while he was at the spring a particularly ravenous band of these "piny woods rooters" raided the cook tent and ate up everything that was edible and some things that weren't. For several moments after his return from the spring Mose could find no words to express his feelings. "Wal," he finally exclaimed, "de good Lawd suhtainly knowed his business when he named hawgs 'hawgs!' Dey sho' is hawgs!"

Sense From the Senator.

"Are you going to answer the accusations your enemies have made?" "I think not," replied Senator Sorghum. "As a rule, answering accusations merely helps to keep the public from forgetting them."—Washington Star.

NEW SILK SLIPPERS.

Dainty Footwear Made of Dresden Ribbon Lined With Batting.

For those who do not care for slippers of wool or yarn some booties are made of Dresden ribbon lined with cotton batting and sewed to a sole, just as knitted slippers are. They are comparatively easy to make at home, and trimming and skirring may be used to make them as dressy as the most fastidious could desire.

Wide ribbon skirred from arch to toe and again skirred at the heel makes a graceful fold on the side, and such a slipper is best made by first sewing the ribbon all around the edge of the sole and afterward shaping to fit the foot. This will necessitate taking a V shaped wedge from the material in front, but the skirring and a bow of the instep hide the seams, so the effect is not marred as any way.

It is one of the hardest of tasks to find a satisfactory wooden slipper to match the dressing gown, and by the time the right pair has been found it may be bought at the same time, so there will be no reason for a variation of hue.

When necessary the slipper top may be ripped off and changed, for sewing the ribbon to the sole takes little time, and the ever neat appearance of the slipper will well repay any trouble.

If ribbon is not used a piece of paper may be pinned to the sole and the pattern for the slipper cut, and the soft silken stuff cut from the paper. When this is done a row of tiny rosettes might be used to hide the seam in front.

RECIPE FOR SPRINT HAT.

A bundle of straw.
A quart of cherries.
One fall quart of greens.
A pint and a half of green apples.
A handful of grass, if you have it.
Flowers or feathers may be used instead of fruit.

Mould the straw in a plate form, shaping the crown high above.

When it has become firm, garnish the crown with the fruit, for flowers, adding the "greens" at discretion.

Set it away in a dust-proof box, lined liberally with fragrant sachets, for two days—it will be quite ready to wear.

New Insulating Material.

Mr. Muller, a Bavarian inventor, has patented a new insulating material which has a high specific resistance, approaching that of guttapercha and porcelain, and is almost incombustible, as it will even stand exposure for a short time to the electric arc without burning. According to the patent specification, the composition of the substance is as follows: 00 parts of mineral pitch are dissolved in 20 parts of a volatile solvent, such, for example, as benzine, and from 25 to 75 parts of this solution are added to 100 parts of finely ground asbestos. The mixture is then submitted to very great pressure, and is dried at a low temperature to expel the whole of the solvent.

Appreciation In the Home.

As far as my observation goes, there is one fault by no means common to men and women today. That is the fault of taking things for granted in the home life," says a writer in Good Housekeeping. "There is lack of appreciation for the little things being done for one's happiness or comfort. I believe we all need to be more careful to show and express our appreciation in our daily lives for the many kindnesses which are shown us and thereby radiate a circle of domestic happiness."

Forestry in Manchuria.

For the purpose of promoting the forestry industry in South Manchuria the Chinese officials have engaged a Japanese expert from Tokyo to act as head master for the proposed school of forests at Mukden for a term of four years, with two Chinese gentlemen as his assistants, but owing to the lack of funds, the school has not yet been opened.

The Father's Fault.

Mr. Samplesos is a very irascible man, and is in the habit of punishing his boys very severely. Not long since he observed that one of his sons needed a new pair of trousers. He scolded the boy for wearing out his clothes so fast. "Pa, no trousers can last any time the way you hits," replied the son, irresponsibly.

Roquefort Rabbit.

Take about one-eighth of a pound of Roquefort cheese and mash with a silver fork on a plate until soft and creamy. Add a half teaspoonful of salt and mustard and a tablespoonful of soft butter. Add ale enough to blend in a creamy mass, spread on toast or wafers and serve at once.

Seems So.

For the woman who does her own laundry work great saving of time and strength may be found in the use of the small five cent vegetable brushes. They are just the thing to rub soiled neckbands, wrists and all badly soiled garments.

A tiny sore at the corner of the lips should be at once well powdered with boracic acid powder and kept covered with it till it disappears.

Wash articles of brass which are tarnished in the water in which potatoes have been boiled and they will be as bright as if new.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped, try to improve the latter by training the cuticle. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes. Then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to lengthen the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream. Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very thick.

Sage tea as a hair tonic may be made by mixing two ounces of dried sage and two ounces of green tea, then putting them into three quarts of water, boiling in an iron kettle. This should simmer until reduced to two quarts, then stand for twenty-four hours in the same kettle. Afterward strain and apply evenly to the hair at night. It is a stain as well as tonic.

After the infant has had its bottle or has fed it should not be put at once to lie down. Instead see it upright and the knee, carefully supporting the delicate little neck with one hand while with the other you rub gently upand down the spine for a few minutes. This treatment, which is much recommended by experienced, trained nurses, helps up the gas and lessens the tendency to colic and sickness.

To help reduce a double chin practice the following exercise: Stand erect in a military position. Place the hands lightly on the hips, fingers forward. Drop the chin slowly on the collar bone, then throw the head back with a quick, even movement—that is, not a jerk, yet putting all the muscles into play. Repeat ten times. Turn the head quickly to the right till the chin is just over the right shoulder, then back again. Repeat ten times. Then turn the head to the left in the same way. Repeat ten times. Do not tire the muscles of the neck, but gradually increase the number of exercises daily until you can practice each one about fifty times without after discomfort.

An Unconscious Meal.

Once John Muir, author and ranchman, was dining with a friend. They sat down, and Muir began to tell a story. The waiter came around several times, but the story was so good nothing was ordered. Muir talked and talked, and in between he would reach over and break off a piece of bread from a French loaf on the table. This he did a good many times. The story reminded him of another, and now he talked and ate bread until finally, being very hungry, his companion broke in with:

"Well, what shall I order for you, Mr. Muir?"

"Order?" he repeated in his abstraction.

"Yes, order—to eat."

He looked over at the last little remaining piece of bread on the plate and said, as if waking from a dream:

"Eat? Why, I've had all I want. That bread was bully."—Bookman.

Mutton Hash With Green Peas.

Chop the lean portions of cold roast or boiled mutton fine. Cook in enough cold water to cover, adding, if the flavor is liked, a little minced onion. Bring slowly to the boiling point, then move the vessel to a cooler part of the range and simmer until the meat is very tender. Season with salt, pepper and butter, thickening with flour. Have ready stewed peas, drained and carefully cooked for the table, also a sufficient number of buttered rounds of toast; heap a help-hot oven fifteen minutes. This makes a delicious luncheon dish or an entree.

The Only "Merrymaking."

The school record kept by an old time teacher of "No. 6" in a New England village contains an item now item which moved a chance reader to smiles. It is this:

"Special honor badges were given to Flora and Minetta Lovett for the best attendance. During the entire school year they were not once absent, and they never rounded for excursion or merrymaking, the only exception being the afternoon of May 10, when their twin brothers were ill from the effect of something they had eaten and not expected to live, although they soon recovered."

Matter of Necessity.

"I thought I ordered my eggs fried."

"I believe you did."

"But these are scrambled."

"Well, we couldn't help it today. Mary slipped on an apple peal when bringing them up from the basement."

TIMELESS BODICE.

It is more than decolbete.

It's all of the elusive trimming.

The lining is quite up to standard test.

It shows great in a black, preferably spangled.

The black stops two or three inches short of the edge.

This alarming hiatus is filled in with cream tulle, lace or jeweled effects.

Thanks to the arrangement beauty's bodice seems to be open nearly down the belt line back and front.

More startling still the effect that of a high girdle rather than of a bodice, as the dress material does not reach the height of the shoulder strap.

In short, this mode suggests Venus rising out of her bodice, instead of the time honored sea.

Electricity and Memory.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Canada, Sir James Grant, M. D., presented a paper on the neurons and effect of the brain in their relation to the faculty of memory, and, after stating that, as with the other tissues of the body, so with the cells of the brain, evidence of lessening power and activity appears with the passage of years, the statement that the line of present investigation demonstrates that the electrical current through the brain rotates its molecules to such a degree as to produce a most notable physiological response in the direction of improved memory.

Wireless Telegraphy on Mountains.

The French engineers have lately made successful tests of wireless telegraphy between the lofty observatories on the crown of Mont Blanc and the Valley of Chamonix. It had been feared that the absence of moisture in the frozen surface might interfere with the earth connection, but no such difficulty arose when the alternating current dynamos of the electric light system in Chamonix were at work. At such times the wireless messages could not be transmitted nor received.

Better Than Scarecrows.

According to recent experiments by Stanlius Harrad, a widely-known Florida agriculturist, wheat and other cereals can be protected against the ravages of crows, which are particularly fond of the grain when its sprouts are just pushing above the ground, by treating the seeds before they are sown in a mixture of coal tar, petroleum and phenic acid. This treatment, which delays the growth of the seed for a day or two, but causes no damage, imparts an odor which is insufferable to the crows, but not to the human race, and when the sprouts have attained a larger growth, which they are no longer subject to attack.

Gigantic Electric Arc.

An 80,000-volt electrical transformer was recently installed at Butte, Mont., for the local lighting and power company, the distance over which the current is transmitted being 80 miles. During the insulation tests of the transformer the voltage was run up to 160,000 and at this pressure an arc was formed between the ends of the cables and the transformer tank, over a distance of five or six feet. But India rubber sheeting placed on the cable terminals prevented the formation of the arc. When 80,000 volts are used there is no brush discharge, and the disks are not needed.

Hydrogen as an Illuminant.

The production of oxygen and hydrogen on an industrial scale by the decomposition of water with electricity as the operating agent has led to the suggestion that hydrogen thus produced may find a wide field of employment as a lighting agent. It is now used for inflating military balloons. For lighting purposes it is compressed in steel cylinders. With a proper burner it is said to be a cheaper illuminant than acetylene, the relative cost for equal illuminating power being 25 for hydrogen to 50 for acetylene.

Electric Light from Car-Axles.

The "axle-light" system is in use on the trains of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad on an extensive scale. Each car has its own storage batteries supplied with electricity generated by the axles of the wheels, and the locomotive headlights derive their illumination from the same source. It is estimated that each full train, including the locomotive, develops nearly 5000 candle-power light.

No Reason for Not Fighting.

Jimmy—"You're afraid to fight; that's what it is."

Tommy—"So it isn't, either; but if I do my mother'll know and lick me."

Jimmy—"How'll she find it out, eh?"

Tommy—"She'll see the doctor going to your house."

A Good Reason.

"Why is it you eat so much bread and butter when you are visiting and gone at home, Jimmie?"

"'Cause home I know there's something else coming. Visiting, I don't."

"You say the victim was shot in the head?" queried the coroner.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

"Previous to the shooting had there been any trouble or threats that would have led the victim to expect the shot?"

"No, sir; I don't think such a thing ever entered his head before."

Y.M.C.A. LEAGUE GAMES

Local Association, With Six Other Nines, will Compete on the Diamond.

SEASON OPENS ON MAY 23.

Summit, Elizabeth, Madison, Newark, Orange and Trenton Entered in Amateur Y. M. C. A. League.

With the abandonment of the scheme for an inter-city baseball league, the Y. M. C. A. ball players have entered the race for the pennant of the State association, and Physical Director George L. Lietman, manager of the team and local member of the Y. M. C. A. State baseball league committee, announced the schedule of State league games today. The associations to be represented on the diamond in this league are Summit, Elizabeth, Trenton, Newark, Madison, Orange and Plainfield, and the players are to be entirely amateurs, bona fide members of the associations which they represent. Paterson, the eighth association to be represented in the league, has dropped out of the race.

The opening games of the league will be played Saturday afternoon, May 23, when the Summit association players are to meet the local nine on Crescent Oval. On the same day, Newark will play at Madison and Trenton at Elizabeth. The games will all be played Saturday afternoons at 3:45 o'clock, and the local association will have Crescent Oval for its home grounds. The complete schedule follows:

May 23, Summit at Plainfield, Trenton at Elizabeth, Newark at Madison.

June 6, Plainfield at Newark, Elizabeth at Summit, Madison at Orange.

June 13, Trenton at Plainfield, Orange at Elizabeth, Summit at Madison.

June 20, Plainfield at Orange, Elizabeth at Newark, Madison at Trenton.

June 27, Elizabeth at Plainfield, Trenton at Orange, Newark at Summit.

July 18, Madison at Plainfield, Orange at Summit, Trenton at Newark.

August 8, Plainfield at Trenton, Elizabeth at Orange, Madison at Newark.

August 15, Newark at Plainfield, Trenton at Summit, Orange at Madison.

August 29, Orange at Plainfield, Elizabeth at Trenton, Summit at Newark.

September 5, Plainfield at Summit, Elizabeth at Madison, Newark at Orange.

September 12, Plainfield at Madison, Newark at Trenton, Summit at Elizabeth.

Open dates are May 16 and 30; July 4 and 25; September 7, 19 and 26.

According to the rules framed by the league committee, which is to be the arbiter in all disputes, no member of a team shall be paid, either directly or indirectly, for playing; each association shall be responsible for the traveling expenses of its team, and the managers are especially cautioned to observe the amateur rule.

Candidates for Local Nine.

The local association will have an independent schedule of games, and a big squad of material is turning out to the regular practises being held on Crescent Oval. Among the candidates are James Scott, George Conover, "Lew" Minford, Ralph and Will Schoonmaker, James Conway, David Pond, H. Conover, Harry Gilmore, John Jacot, H. V. Hubbard, "Jack" Payne and W. P. Banks. Howard Craig, captain of last year's nine, will be in a suit again this season, and has been in charge of the squad at the practises held so far. The local schedule has not yet been announced, but will include a series with the Clinton Avenue nine.

MOTION IN SAFE CASE.

Defendants Want Dismissal of Bill Asking For a Receiver For Local Concern.

A motion has been made before Vice Chancellor Howell in the Chancery Court at Newark in the case of Samuel Rodman and others against the Manganese Steel Safe Company to dismiss the bill of complaint recently filed for a receiver on the ground that it was not amended within thirty days after the argument on the demurrer at the last term of court. The case is now on appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals and the motion was vigorously opposed on the part of the complainants because the decision on the demurrer was carried up, they contending that the appeal acts as a stay of all proceedings.

Pitney, Hardin and Skinner, of Newark, represent the safe company while W. S. Angleman and George Ball, of this city, are associated in looking after the interests of the complainants.

CHILDREN'S SAYINGS.

A little girl in Camden, surprised her grandma the other night by concluding her prayer with "Amen! Good-night everybody."

"Who do you mean?" asked her grandma.

"Why, God, the angels and everybody up there," was the reply.

A little girl on asking a blessing at a play-table, was heard to say: "O Lord, forgive us for having something to eat."

A very little girl said the other day: "She would like to go to Heaven if it was not so much trouble getting there."

A little boy, 4 years of age, was rebuked one day for swearing. "You swear, papa," was the reply.

"Only when I'm mad," said the father, "but in that 10 minutes the little fellow was swearing again, adding by way of explanation: "Well, papa, he mad now, isc'nt he?"

"Tommy," queried small Dorothy, "what is food for thought?"

"I don't know," replied Tommy, "unless it's head cheese."

Mamma—"Why, Elmer haven't you a kiss for papa when you haven't seen him for two months?"

Elmer (aged 5)—"No, mamma, men don't kiss each other; it looks childish."

Small Eleanor—"Papa, have you paid the doctor for the new baby yet?"

Papa—"No, dear. Why do you ask?"

Small Eleanor—"Cause if he charges full price I wouldn't pay. It ain't near as big as the one he left next door."

"Johnny," said Johnny's little brother, "a fly is a fly because he flies, isn't he?"

"Yes, that's it."

"And a flea is a flea because he flees, isn't it?"

"Shouldn't wonder."

"Then why are bees bees?"

"Because they be," said Johnny.

Mrs. Naybor—"Why, Katie, you don't bring me over any of that home-made candy you promised me last evenin."

Little Katie—"No'm. It turned out better'n we expected."

Some little while ago a popular writer visited a jail in order to take notes for a magazine article on prison life.

On returning home he described the horrors he had seen, and his description made a deep impression on the mind of his little daughter Mary. The writer and his off-spring a few weeks later were in a train together, which stopped at a station near a gloomy building. A man asked:

"What place is that?"

"The county jail," answered another propmtly.

Whereupon Mary embarrassed her father and aroused the suspicions of the other occupants of the carriage by asking in a loud, shrill voice:

"I that the jail you were in father?"

THE FOX AND THE 'COON.

How They Manage to Get Through the Winter.

The fox, as cunning as he is, sometimes goes hungry in the winter.

When there is no snow on the ground he depends to a great degree on mice for his food, but now the mice are all safe, so he must sharpen his wits and catch a partridge or rabbit.

Or, dreadful to relate, he may visit the hen-coop. He will even visit the chicken-coop if he gets too hungry.

Down in the deep woods the raccoon is sleeping soundly in a hollow tree.

The raccoon is a real little brother to the bear. He walks like a bear, and he has the same droll countenance.

All through the winter months he sleeps just as the bear does, living on the fat that he stored up in the autumn when food was plenty.

COIFFURE DECKING.

There's the comet aigrette.

It shouts straight from the forehead.

It streams very violently backward.

There are tinsel ornaments in silver and gold.

There are flowers and foliage in the greatest variety.

Jeweled ornaments in wing shapes are in very high favor.

Bandeaux, rosettes and bow-knots are seen on many heads.

Ribbon fillets are, charming on young brows of a classic mould.

A Deducted Kitten.

Miriam had asked her mother for the meaning of the word deducted, and had received for reply: "It means taken away. The next morning she came in with a rueful face and said: "Mamma, the old cat has deducted one of her kittens."

The Little Brown Bulbs.

The little brown bulbs went to sleep in the ground,
In their little brown nighties they slept very sound;
And winter he raged and he roared overhead,
But never a bulb turned over in bed.
But when spring came tip-toeing over the lea,
Her finger on lip, just as still as could be,
The little brown bulbs at her very first tread
All split up their nighties and jumped out of bed!

SECOND TALK ON "CREED"

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring Continues His Instructive Discourses.

HE INTERPRETS ITS MEANING.

Present Text of the Creed Can Be Traced to the Sixth Century, He Says.

The second discourse on "The Apostles Creed," was delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday, before a large congregation. The first sermon in the series was on the topic "I Believe," and as Dr. Herring explained these two words formed the basis for the creed. Last night under the subdivisions "God the Father Almighty," "The second affirmation of the Creed," and "The outline of the Creed in the second century," and Westcott's view the doctor treated his subject in an interesting way. He spoke in part as follows:

"In the first sermon on the creed we were concerned with the first two words, "I Believe." These two words form its basis. The Bible is God's word to man. The Creed is man's word to God. It is the definite positive confession of a man's faith and will. God's word is valueless to man until he makes that word his own by a definite act of his will.

"The 'I Believe' of the Creed is not a mere intellectual assent. It is the placing of a man's confidence in God's revelation. It is saying, will take this God to be my God.

"The Apostles Creed is not an inspired message. Back of it is God's word upon which it rests, but it gathers from that word the great truths of revelation. A man may say the Bible is my creed, but we are not clear in our minds how he interprets the Bible. A Theosophist, a Christian Scientist, a follower of Mrs. Crowdy, and a socialist all find their basis in the Bible.

"There is a tendency in men to overemphasize a part of the truth, to see it abnormally and forget its relation to other truths. Men are forever going off at a tangent in religious things and becoming religious cranks. They need some sort of a creed to keep them true to all of God's truth.

"The Creed does present the salient things we are to look for in the Bible, the great God's people have believed in the past and believe today.

"The present text of the Creed can be traced to the sixth century after Christ, but in outline we discover it as far back as the second century as before stated.

"Professor Westcott recently Regius professor of Divinity in Cambridge University, England, and who with Professor Hort edited the best version of the Greek New Testament, said regarding the age of the Creed, 'The history of the church is indeed sadly disfigured but there is no other history which can be compared with it, and from the first, the Apostles Creed was substantially the symbol of its heroes.'

"Interpretations, glosses, enlargements were added but the outline was fixed in the second century, at least, fixed unchangeably. As often as we repeat the Creed of our baptism we repeat the words by which martyrs lived and died, the words under which new nations have been enrolled as soldiers in Christ's army, the words which have remained through every vicissitude the standard of Christian belief.

"Again he says, 'There can be little doubt that the Apostles Creed in its main substance represents the Baptismal Confession in the middle of the second century.' (B. F. Westcott, The Historic Faith).

"If Professor Westcott is correct we have a confession which reaches back almost to the Apostolic age, a confession, while not the work of the Apostles, is a great outline of the Apostolic doctrine in its essential features.

"Professor Westcott says further that the Creed is 'not the complete expression of the facts of our faith, but it brings before us the facts in their simple majesty.'

"The Bible is a book that has been greatly sinned against. It has been taken to back up error as well as truth. The value of the Creed is this that it represents the leading truths of God's revelation in their harmonious relation.

"The Creed does not say, I believe in truth, in goodness, but I believe in God and the truth He has revealed. God is the great Reality above my temporal experience, and this God as my Father, as the Father of Israel, as the Old Testament pictures His, but my individual Father as Christ pictures Him. This, my Father, is at the same time 'Almighty.' His love is matched by His almightiness. He is the all-sovereign Father, to whose power there is nothing superior. His Fatherly interest in me is matched by His almightiness. Even the heaven and the earth are the work of His hands through the agency of His Son.

"All created things have a place in His plan and all created things must minister to His glory. There is nothing therefore in God's creation that can really hurt man, for the almighty Father who is interested personally in me is the same being who has created and sustains the heavens and the earth.

"What then of all that means as man answers God's revelation with these words, 'I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth.' Why should that confession not make a better man?"

FOURTEEN GAMES IN N.P.H.S. NINE'S SCHEDULE

Manager George M. Parsons, of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, has announced the schedule of the borough school nine for the season, and the schoolboys will play their first regular game Friday afternoon, April 10, when they meet the Westfield High School team on the Westfield grounds. The first home game will be played the following day, when the school players will cross bats with the school nine of the First M. E. church on the Westervelt avenue grounds in the borough, the home grounds of N. P. H. S.

The schedule, as announced today, includes fourteen games, of which seven are to be played on local diamonds. There are three open dates, May 2, 9 and 20, and the last game will be Wednesday, June 10, when the Westfield High School team will be the boroughites' opponents on the North Plainfield diamond. The complete list of games scheduled follows:

Friday, April 10, Westfield High School, at Westfield; Saturday, April 11, Grace M. E. Men's Club, in North Plainfield; April 24, Upsala College, in North Plainfield; Saturday, April 25, Holy Cross Club, in North Plainfield; Wednesday, April 29, Roselle High School, at Roselle.

Wednesday, May 6, Hudson River Military Academy, at Pinderne; Wednesday, May 13, Plainfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 16, New Brunswick High School, at New Brunswick; Friday, May 22, Upsala College, at Roundworth; Wednesday, May 27, Plainfield High School, at Crescent Oval; Saturday, May 30, Hudson River Military Academy, in North Plainfield.

Wednesday, June 3, Roselle High School, in North Plainfield; Saturday, June 6, New Brunswick High School, in North Plainfield; Wednesday, June 10, Westfield High School, in North Plainfield.

It will be seen from these dates that both games with the Plainfield High School will be played on Crescent Oval. The only out-of-town nines city and borough school teams will meet are Westfield, College and Hudson River Military Academy.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS DEFER A CONTRACT AWARD.

An adjourned meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held in the court room in Somerville on Saturday. Messrs. Vreeland, Pawelson and Everett were absent. The session was for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee appointed to examine the quarries of Travell & Hare, of North Plainfield, in reference to their bid on the Watchung-Warrenville road.

County Engineer Dunty stated that, in his judgment, the stone is of a good quality and the committee was of the same opinion. James L. Griggs, attorney for Travell & Hare, presented a written statement in regard to the quality of the stone that the firm proposes to use in the Watchung-Warrenville road.

Joel Codington, of Warren Township, asserted that it was his belief that the bids were too high and that it would be to the interests of the taxpayers to readvertise.

Member Demler moved that all bids be rejected. His motion was later withdrawn and the matter of awarding the road contract was laid over until the next regular meeting of the board, which will be held on April 14.

Deacon Frank W. Jones of the First Baptist church has been appointed treasurer of the relief fund of the church.

A DOG AND A MAN.

He was a dog.
But he stayed at home
And guarded the family night and day.
He was a dog
That didn't roam.
He lay on the porch or chased the stray,
The tramps, the burglar, the hen, away;
For a dog's true heart for that household beat
At morning and evening, in cold and heat.
He was a dog.

He was a man.
And didn't stay
To cherish his wife and his children fair.
He was a man.
And every day
His heart grew callous, its love beats rare,
He thought of himself at the close of day,
And cigar in his fingers, hurried away
To the club, the lodge, the shore, the show;
But! he had a right to go, you know,
He was a man.

DON'T SEEK TROUBLE.

When you find your passions bubble,
When your fists you tightly double,
When you feel inclined for trouble,
At some petty slight or sting,
Pause a moment for reflection,
Use a little circumspection,
Always there is this objection:
Trouble's an expensive thing.

Though the man may be a bluffer,
Though you think that you may suffer,
From the mud he likes to fling,
Keep your temper double blitzed,
Say the fellow's to be pitied,
Anyhow it is admitted,
Trouble's an expensive thing.

Wait a while before you say it,
Think it over, closely weigh it,
If it is the right card, play it—
What you think that you can stand'll
All depend what cards you handle
If the game is worth the candle,
Trouble's an expensive thing.

JUST ABOUT GIRLS.

Marriage is an eye-opener; at least it enables a man to see his wife as others see her.

Some girls cultivate the art of pouting because they imagine it makes them look cute.

Fortunate is the woman who is able to mend both her husband's clothes and his ways.

The happiest period in a girl's life is when she gets her first skirt that swishes when she walks.

Cut His Visit Short.

The Duke of Wellington once wrote to Dr. Hutton for information as to the scientific acquirements of a young officer who had been under his instruction. The doctor thought he could not do less than answer the question verbally and made an appointment accordingly.

Directly Wellington saw him he said: "I am obliged to you, doctor, for the trouble you are taking. Is it for the post?"

Clearing his throat, Dr. Hutton began: "No man more so, my lord. I can"—

"That's quite sufficient," said Wellington. "I know how valuable your time is. Mine just now is equally so. I will not detain you any longer. Good morning."

Yankee Pudding.

Remove all lean and rind from a piece of sweet salt pork; chop fine. Take a heaping cupful of chopped pork, roll in flour and fry out. To a cupful of molasses, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, a cupful of chopped and seeded raisins, a cupful of currants, one egg, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, then of soda dissolved in warm water and flour enough to make very stiff. Steam three hours and serve with hard sauce. You cannot get the best results from this or any other recipe unless you have fresh currants and raisins.

New Dates For Elks Show.

Owing to the fact that the Union County Republicans' dollar dinner takes place at Elizabeth on Thursday, April 15, the Elks have deemed it wise to make a new date for their minstrel show. It has now been set for Thursday, April 30. A large part of the chorus members and many of the lodge men had planned to attend the dinner and it was thought best not to have the two conflict. William Dodd has been added to the end men now in rehearsal.

NEWARK M. E. CONFERENCE people.

Ordinations on Sunday.

At the conclusion of the examinations held in Vincent chapel, yesterday, under the direction of the Board of Examiners of the Newark Conference, Registrar W. S. McCoy, of Newark, announced that there will be ordained as elders on Sunday:

William Burd, Stewartsville; Edgar N. Compton, Stapleton, N. Y.; Archibald S. Smith, Oxford; Charles E. Collard, Hope; Norman P. Chamblin, Keyport; Frank M. Curry, Sufferns, N. Y.; Charles H. Powers, Lindenwold, N. Y.; Sarneius Reichniser, Linden.

These are all four-year men, having completed the prescribed course or being admitted under what is known as the seminary rule. It is the custom to ordain members of this class at a Sunday service and the exercises are in charge of the Bishop.

The Elizabeth District.

The Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, presiding elder of the Jersey City district, reported nine hundred converts during the year. The district has purchased a new deaconesses' home in Jersey City at a cost of $—,000. A new church has been dedicated at First M. E. Church, Where Newark Conference Sessions Are Being Held.

—Courtesy Monarch Printing Co.

Hasbrouck Heights, costing $[illegible],000, and a new church has been organized at Weehawken, N. J. In the district there has been a net increase of pastors' salaries of about $3,000, and no church has reduced its pastor's salary. Throughout the conference there is a gratifying decrease in the restoration of the pastoral time limit.

Presiding Elders Report.

Each of the four presiding elders reports progress. The Rev. L. Daniel Helleron has completed six years of successful administration as the Elizabeth district, including the building of several churches and parsonages; the improvement of church property, the payment of church debts, the encouragement of revivals and a large increase in membership. He closes his term of service with the affectionate appreciation of the conference.

The Paterson District.

The Rev. Dr. L. C. Muller, presiding elder of the Paterson district, closes his first year of office. During the year there have been one thousand conversions, a new church, Wesley, at Paterson, has been dedicated, costing $[illegible],000, as has the First church at Dover, costing $32,000, and parsonages have been built at Simpson, Paterson, costing $[illegible],200, and at Asbury, Paterson, costing $5,000, and church membership has largely increased.

The Newark District.

The second year of Dr. Jonathan M. Meeker, presiding elder of the Newark district, furnishes encouraging news. The total number received for the year is 1,[illegible]; on probation into full membership 75[illegible]. The amount paid for building and improvements during the year is $34,200; paid on old indebtedness, $23,854; for foreign missions, $3,250; for home missions, $8,110; for church aid, $23,[illegible]. The increase in pastors' salaries over last year was $2,650. The Newark District Church Society has paid for building and support of an Italian church $7,654, besides sustaining other missions.

Appointments.

There will be some unusual and unexpected changes in the appointment of ministers, but the Bishop's knowledge of the ministers and the conference will be of great advantage. It is likely that some churches will not have pastors invited, but the rights of all concerned will be favorably considered. Several names have been mentioned for presiding elder as a fitting successor to Dr. Halleron in the Elizabeth district, among them Dr. W. S. Sneddress, Rev. A. McCrea, Dr. C. G. Fielding and W. L. Hoagland.

F. F. CHAMBERS DIES AT SOMERVILLE HOME

Frederick Frelinghuysen Chambers, 63 years old, who has been for forty years connected with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, died at his home at Somerville Sunday. He was a son of the late Rev. T. W. Chambers, pastor of the Marble Collegiate church in New York, and was born at Somerville in April 10, 1845.

Mr. Chambers centered railroad work in 1862, as clerk in the office of the president of the Hudson River Railroad. Two years later he went to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Road, and in 1890 was promoted to be secretary and treasurer of the company. His death was due to a complication of diseases.

He leaves a widow and five children. The two sons are Frederick, who is employed in the office of his father, and William, who is in the brokerage business in New York city. His three daughters are: Mrs. Chas. F. Smith, Mrs. Mack, the widow of Louis C. Mack, and Miss Georgiana Chambers. All of the children reside in Somerville. The Chambers family is one of the oldest families in Somerset county. Mr. Chambers was a cousin of State Senator Joseph F. Frelinghuysen.

CARROLL AND JOY AS DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE.

The list of delegates to the lay electoral conference to be held at the First Baptist church on Friday, in connection with the annual session of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, is practically completed. Each church is entitled to one delegate.

Five lay delegates to the general conference will be elected and according to those in a position to know four of these likely will be: H. S. Daniels, of Newark; Frank E. Morse, of Boonton, and Dr. R. R. Carroll and James R. Joy, of Plainfield.

M. CALL MISSION'S WORK

Mrs. Jessie R. Healy, the Secretary, Reads Report of the Year's Activity.

BROAD FIELD IN FRANCE.

Unsettled Religious Problems Makes Great Need for McAll Auxiliary Work at Limoges.

Following is the secretary's report of the year's work of the Plainfield McAll Auxiliary read by Mrs. Jessie R. Healy at a recent meeting of the local organization:

"The work of the Plainfield McAll Auxiliary during the past year has been of a most encouraging nature, and I think, that the members will meet with a feeling of thankfulness, to review the result of their labors.

"Our year began amid very trying times in all financial circles and it is because of great encouragement that the sympathy with the McAll work is so alive as to have made very little difference in our returns over last year. In keeping up our collections we can see the work we have started at to do in Limoges, and surely there was never greater need.

"With the passage of years the distance between New York and Paris is lessened, because of the convenience of travel, and it seems that we are literally neighbors to our French brothers and sisters, and they look to us for the help that has been so generously given in the past, and which I am glad to say we can continue to give.

"The unsettled state of religious affairs in France has been discussed at such length in this society that it hardly necessary to touch on that, but it is just this condition that makes the need of our work almost desperate. We always want to know that the work to which one gives one's mite is a useful and a necessary one and I am sure if all could become familiar with the needs in France of the Gospel in its simplicity, there could not be a question of the usefulness of the McAll Mission. There has probably never been a time in the history of the world, when the plain, sweet teachings of Jesus Christ as to who is our neighbor and brother have had as potent an influence for humanizing and Christianizing mankind as there exists today. So much of the narrowness of creeds and doctrines has been stripped away and has left perhaps, a more tender sympathy and a deeper love for our more unfortunate fellows, than ever before. This fact is shown on all sides by the wonderful response made, to the call for help to carry on all kinds of work where no effort is being made to elevate men, women and children to a life of love and usefulness.

"The conditions in France are more difficult to cope with than the average mission has to confront, for the people have had what was represented to be the Gospel of Christ and have found it cold and unsatisfying as a basis of rest and peace and they are none too eager to accept anything in the place of their old beliefs, which they have cast aside. But on the other hand the workers in France have an intelligence to work with that is more akin to our own, and with the way made plain by example, personal sympathy and love the results are wonderful. This is the work that the McAll Mission aims to do and has established its staff so that they have open to receive the flowing tide. This seems to me to be especial value just now of the McAll Mission; that it is already on the ground, in splendid running order, ready to do what it can, and so this will be lost in starting missions while the pendulum swings back again and the people find they must have a Saviour and a place where to worship Him. Meanwhile the strong, steady influence for righteousness is being spread abroad and from it that by all means the results will be effective. Then too, it is the very poor who would not be reached to go into the churches in the better neighborhoods. Our halls are all situated where temptations are most distressing kinds force themselves on the poor weak outcast and it is easier to yield than resist.

"The work of our Plainfield members has been carried on along the same lines as usual and we see again what faithful work will do. Mrs. Kelly, our secretary of literature, has done most splendid work in getting subscribers for the Record and the collections exceed those of any year for this purpose. One of our members has kept alive her great interest even though separated from us and has done some collecting through correspondence.

"The First Presbyterian and Crescent Avenue Sunday-schools have sent contributions as usual, showing the interest of the young people in the work.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON TWO NEW M. E. DOMINIES

The fact that there are two local changes in the appointments made by Bishop Spellmeyer, of the Newark Conference, Rev. Charles Sumner Kemble, of the Park church, Elizabeth, going to the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of St. Paul's church, Cranford, going to Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, interest is manifested in the new appointees.

Rev. Mr. Kemble's charges in the conference have been as follows: Ferry church, East Orange, 1891-1893; Bergen Point, 1894-1898; Piermont, N. Y., 1899; Nyack, N. Y., 1900-1902; Centenary church, Jersey City, 1903; Park church, Elizabeth, 1904-1907.

Rev. Mr. Shoop has had the following charges in the conference: Pearl River, 1900-1901; Matamoras, 1902-1903; Vallsburg, 1904-1905; St. Paul's church, Cranford, 1906-1907.

Both Mr. Kemble and Mr. Shoop will occpy their newly-appointed pulpits on Sunday. Rev. E. E. Robinson, who is succeeded by Mr. Kemble, will take up his new charge at Passaic at the same time.

VAUDEVILLE ARTISTS WILL MAKE QUICK JUMP

"How to be in two places at the same time, or vaudeville in a hurry," might be applied to a plan that Manager Counihan has devised to have Miss May Ward and her eight "Dresden dolls" appear at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. Having arranged a variety bill for that date he was anxious to have the popular comedienne and her assisants as a headline act but she has been appointed at the New Majestic theatre, Perth Amboy, and is booked for the rest of the week. The two cities are twelve miles apart and have no direct railroad connection, so for a time it looked like an impossibility.

But when Manager Counihan starts to figure on a proposition he generally manages to "make good" and accordingly Miss Ward and her singing and dancing "dolls" will appear Saturday in Plainfield and Perth Amboy. This is how it will be done: Miss Ward will open the bill at the New Majestic in the afternoon and as soon as the act is concluded, the star and her assistants, all in costume, and with their paraphernalia for the set, will be bundled into a big automobile. The machine will be driven over the roads at the fastest legal clip and the company of ten will be landed at the New Plainfield in time to close the afternoon program. They will remain in this city to appear again at night at 8:30 and will then go back to Perth Amboy to finish up, making four performances for the day.

It will be a lot of trouble and expense to carry out the plan but as every one knows who has seen Miss Ward's act, it's worth it.

Bishop Spellmeyer's Plans.

Bishop Spellmeyer, who presided over the deliberations of the Newark Conference, remained a guest of Rev. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea, last night, and this morning he left for Newark, where he will visit for a few days. He will stay in the East until the General Conference convenes in Baltimore on Wednesday, May 6. That conference will be in session for a month. Prior to that on Wednesday, April 29, the Bishop will go to Harrisburg, Pa., where there is to be a conference of all Bishops, to discuss numerous questions that will come before the General Conference. At that gathering the Bishops take turns in presiding over the session.

J. W. Reinhart's Position.

Joseph W. Reinhart has been elected assistant to the president and comptroller of the Tonopah and Goldfield Railroad, with offices at Tonopah, Nevada, and in addition to having direct control of the finances and accounts of the company will exercise executive powers over all departments, including operations and traffic, in the absence of the president.

Gold Medals Booked for Somerville.

The Gold Medal minstrels troupe, which has been appearing in the city and subscribers the past winter, will invade Somerville on Tuesday night, April 21. The show will be given in Somerset Hall under the auspices of Golden Crown Castle, No. 52, Knights of the Golden Eagle.

DEAN RODMAN'S FUNERAL

Civic Authorities, Benevolent Fraternal and Religious Organizations Represented.

SERVICES AT HIS CHURCH.

Patrons and People Pay Last Respects to Plainfield's Much Beloved Citizen—Interment at Hillside.

Imsfinal solemn tribute to the memory of Rev. Dr. Erskine M. Rodman, dean of the Plainfield clergy and rector-emeritus of Grace church, scores of people thronged Grace church this afternoon when the impressive burial service of the Episcopal church was conducted. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. Baker, of Princeton, dean of the convocation of New Brunswick, and Rev. Milton Craft, of Trenton, formerly of this city.

The gathering included many prominent men both from this city and out of town, representing the clergy, benevolent and fraternal organizations and civil authorities. In the congregation were the wardens and vestry of Grace church, and delegations from the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, of which Dr. Rodman was one of the founders and the first president, the Netherwood Whist Club, of which he was also president, the Plainfield Ministers' Association, the Salvation Army, Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., Trinity Commandery, Knights Templars and Plainfield Lodge, Royal Arcanum. Masses of floral tributes, of remarkable splendor, were banked about the casket in final mute tribute to the departed.

Through the entire night and this morning the body of the Dean rested in state in the church. Near was the guard of honor, members of the Masonic and Arcanium orders and Grace church vestry.

Following the impressive funeral ceremony came the interment at Hillside cemetery. The honorary pallbearers were Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, Captain James Parker, of Perth Amboy; Albert R. Whitney, of Morristown; General W. H. Birling, William Palmer Smith, DeWitt C. Ivins, S. D. Lounsbury, Henry D. Hibbard, Marion S. Ackerman, Lewis G. Timpson, Edward L. Finch, John B. Dumont, Charles P. Bull, O. T. Waring, H. O. Fleming and W. T. Gough, all of this city.

MISS MARSH'S TALK ON PHILANTHROPIC EFFORT.

An intensely interesting paper on "Philanthropic Effort" was presented by Miss Minnie Marsh at the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. The amelioration of the sufferings of lepers was the first philonthropic work treated of by Miss Marsh, who said that long before lepers became the care of the government, missionaries had done much to alleviate the horrors of their fate. Dr. Cary's establishment of a hospital in India in 1812; the work of the Moravians in South Africa; of Miss Reed from the Methodist church, who in 1884 returned to spend her life in a colony of lepers, and the work of the Presbyterian church in this direction were graphically touched by Miss Marsh.

Accounts of institutions for the blind in China and India, the establishment of hospitals, the protection and elevation of children, the erection of orphan and foundling asylums, the abolishing of saltee, the prohibition of footbinding, the decrease in infanticide, the bettering of the condition of India's 25,000,000 widows and the gradual breaking down of caste were among the philanthropic efforts narrated clearly and effectively by Miss Marsh.

The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. Daniel Douglass and was followed by interesting current events by Miss Ida Yerkes.

Famous Artists Will Sing.

The second private musicale by Joseph McIntyre will be given tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. P. Stevens on Watchung avenue. The assisting artist will be Dr. Carl Dufft, basso, and Paul Dufault, tenor, both well-known in Metropolitan musical circles. Like the program given a week ago at the home of Mrs. George A. Beaton, the one tomorrow will be especially interest. Mr. McIntyre will be at the plano.

Mathewson Official Umpire.

Chester Mathewson, formerly instructor in biology at the Plainfield High School, has been appointed official umpire for the Public School Athletic League, of the metropolitan school baseball teams. Mr. Mathewson is now teaching at the New York High School of Commerce.

EPIDEMIC OF MEASLES

Eighty-eight Cases in Plainfield Last Month Reported to Board of Health.

SIEGEL'S LICENSE CANCELLED.

An Amendment Proposed to Sanitary Code—Communications Received and Permits Granted.

It was admitted at the April meeting of the Board of Health yesterday that it had been impossible to stop the spread of measles in the city during the past month, when many cases were reported, because of the fact that a large number of children with mild cases had been permitted to attend public schools. The report showed that during the past month there were 88 cases of measles, nine of scarlet fever, three of diphtheria and five of tuberculosis and nine deaths from tuberculosis during March.

Considerable work was done on back-yard inspections, there being a total of 509 such inspections and few nuisances found. It was stated that but few privy vaults were found in the district bounded by Green Brook, Norwood avenue, Richmond street, Watchung avenue, East Ninth street and Park avenue.

By a unanimous vote an amendment to the sanitary code was passed on first and second readings. It refers to the care of garbage, offal and dead animals and tends to make the provision more strict. An analysis of forty-nine samples of milk was reported, and much improvement, both in quality and bacteria, was shown over the previous month. The average for the month follows: Fats, 4.04 per cent.; solids, 13.08; solids not fat, 9.04; lactometer, 112; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 29,947.

The board revoked the license of J. M. Siegel, of 527 West Third street. On December 3, 1907, Mr. Siegel was granted a permit to sell milk from his store. It being understood that he would buy his milk from a dealer holding a permit. Later he bought a farm and without notifying the board supplied his store with milk from this source. An inspection of the farm showed it to be in a very filthy condition and in no particular did it comply with the rules and regulations in the Sanitary Code. For these reasons Mr. Siegal was denied a permit to sell milk.

These permits were granted: J. F. Burke, to carry on business of scavenger; The People's Ice Company, of Scotch Plains, to sell ice. The application of Joe Muller to sell milk was laid on the table for one month and the plumber's bonds of P. A. Scovoy, Vail Brothers and P. E. Neylon were ordered filed.

A communication was received from the W. C. T. U., requesting the board to enforce its ordinance in regard to the practice of spitting on the sidewalks and in the trolley cars. The matter was referred to the health officer with power and he was instructed to take the necessary steps to enforce the ordinance.

The following returns were made to the office during March: Marriages, 14; births, 36; deaths, 33; total, 83.

P. C. C. PROFESSIONAL IN CRIPPLED CONDITION.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the popular professional at the Plainfield Country Club, returned yesterday from Southern Pines, where he has had a successful season playing golf at Piney Woods. A few days before leaving Southern Pines, "Marty" had the misfortune to suffer a severe fracture of the bone in the right forearm, together with a dislocating of the wrist. The accident was the result of a blow received from a pupil whom he was instructing in golf. The blow was with a heavy mid-iron and was a severe one.

Just at the time of the accident, "Marty" had the chance of a lifetime to win the open United North and South championship at Pinehurst, which was played last week, but the accident put him completely out of the running.

To give an idea of his chances, a week ago Friday on his first round, and the second time he had ever played on the course at Pinehurst, he made a 72, the record being 67. "Marty" is very popular with golfers in the south and townspeople alike and they all sympathize with him in his misfortune. While away "Marty" defeated Nicholls and he tried to get a match with Ross, but the latter would not consent to meet the young professional.

Will Hold Parish Meeting.

The annual parish meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held tonight at 8 o'clock for the purpose of electing four trustees, each for a term of two years, to succeed George E. Hall, S. W. V. Moy, F. T. Ostrom and A. D. Thompson, Jr., whose terms of office expire.

SENATOR INGHAM

Ackerman Admits that Legislature Might as Well Quit Its Farce Job.

OVERLORDS RUN THE STATE.

This County's Representative Speaks His Mind When He Finds Out Who the "Legislature" Is.

"Why not let a commission of political bosses run the State and abolish the Legislature," said State Senator Ackerman yesterday, expressing his disgust to a reporter at the successful efforts to thwart the passage of his civil service bill.

The overlords of the Legislature have defeated the Union representative at every turn. When he has given way on one point to give his measure a better chance to pass, the clique that opposes it soon found another excuse to hold up the bill. It did not seem yesterday morning as if anyone could predict with safety that the bill would go through.

"I am very much disgusted," said Mr. Ackerman, "and somewhat discouraged with the rebuffs that I have met in the handling of this bill. I haven't given up the fight, but I cannot say that I am going to be successful. The powers against civil service are too strong to allow of prophecy. However, I have some weapons at my disposal that I intend to use as effectively as possible.

"Yes, indeed, a commission of political bosses could do the work of the State just as well as the Legislature, as things stand now. Or let the Public Service and a few other corporations take charge of New Jersey and run it to suit themselves."

"You cannot find just where the bosses stand," they tell you that if this provision were out they wouldn't oppose the bill. Make that concession and they have found another loophole that lets them out of their promise. Last night I sought to find out why a certain legislator opposed the bill. I was told that his political future would be at end if he voted for it.

"I never saw such squirming on any point. You could go to Democratic Boss Nugent last year and he would give you his yes or no. He told you outright that he was against your proposition or not, and you knew where he stood, even if you did know also that what he said was law."

LIBRARY DIRECTORS DISCUSS GREATER FIRE PROTECTION.

The Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, last night, discussed the question of providing some simple form of fire protection and it was left to the library committee to devise some means for obtaining it. The action was prompted by that recently taken by the Board of Education and other city officials regarding more efficient fire protection in the public schools. No plans were presented last night, but it is thought that the directors will recommend that a private box be installed in the library building.

The directors reported that the interest in the library is increasing, as indicated by the great demand for books in the circulation department. There has been a notable increase in the attendance of people in the reading room.

King's Daughters' Sale.

The Cheerful Workers Circle of King's Daughters invite their many friends to a sale of fancy articles, cakes and candy to be held at the residence of Mrs. Howard Fleming, 1012 Park avenue, Friday afternoon, April 10, from 3 to 6 o'clock. During the afternoon musical numbers will be rendered. The members of the Circle are President Miss Eva Brown, and the Misses Euphemia Bakewell, Florence Curtis, Louise Curtis, Maysie Day, Dorothy Fleming, Elsie Goddard, Jean Griscom, Elsie Harman, Helen Harman, Virginia Hageman, Maude Hyde, Grace Kautzman, Margaret Magaren, Ursula Rowland, Abi Sykes, Georgianna Smith, Frances Van Deventer, Mary Wadsworth and Mrs. Lewis Squires.

To Address Teachers and Mothers.

Miss Lillian Williams, of the Trenton Normal School, will address the teachers of the city and borough schools this afternoon in the Somerset street school. Her topic will be "Helping the Children to Remember." The lecture will be at 3:30 o'clock.

Wedding in Grace Church.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead Cornell Duyckink for the marriage of their daughter, Harriet Denison Duyckink, to Henry Rutgers Conger, on Saturday, April 25, at 3:30 o'clock in Grace church.

EXCISE APPLICATIONS CONSIDERED BY COURT

For the purpose of further investigation Judge Boorsem in the Common Pleas Court, New Brunswick, yesterday held up a score or more of license applications. They will be taken up by the court on April 11. Among those held up was that of Smith Abrams, who has applied for a license in Piscataway. In many of these cases strong remonstrances were filed against favorable action, there being considerable criticism as to the character of the places.

The application of Smith Abrams is a new one and those who oppose it contend that there is no real necessity for granting it, inasmuch as there are two other licensed places in the township, namely Charles H. Thompson and Alexander Stillwagon, both of which were granted yesterday. Favorable action was also taken on the application of William H. Taylor at Dunellen.

The question of licensing places to sell liquor throughout the country districts of Middlesex county is becoming a serious one and in nearly every instance pressure has been brought to bear to reduce the number. The court has recognized this fact and has shown a tendency to make a full investigation before announcing its decision.

PLAINFIELDERS DRAWN ON THE PETIT JURY

A panel of sixty petit jurors to serve during the first two weeks of the May term of the Union county court, was drawn yesterday by Sheriff Lawrence, in the presence of Judge Atwater at Elizabeth. Among the jurors selected were: Plainfield—George H. Alcorn, Max Munger, Frederick W. Dunn, Theodore D. Osborn, Arthur C. Sholm, Hyman Adelberg, Isaac M. Engard, Harry G. Adams, Seeley Edsel, Bolling E. Abercrombie, Dorman Ferdinand, John W. Kirkman, Daniel F. Dugan, Thaddeus A. DuPlon, Walter Apgar, Edward J. Cooley, Alexander D. Ayres, Charles H. Frost, John C. Beekman, Arthur C. Griffith, Fanwood—Hurton P. Hall, Douglas L. Darby, Edwin C. Fancher.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE FOR P. H. S. INTER-CLASS GAMES.

An inter-class baseball league has been organized at the Plainfield High School, and the schedule of league games was announced today. Each of the four classes will be represented on the diamond and each class team will play two games with every other class. The season opens Wednesday afternoon, April 29, and the games will be played on Crescent Oval, mainly Monday and Thursday afternoons. Members of the regular school nine will be barred from playing on the class teams, which have been formed into a league with a view to working out school baseball material for another year. The complete schedule of games:

Wednesday, April 29, 1908-1910; Friday, May 1, 1908-1911; Tuesday, May 5, 19091-1911; Thursday, May 7, 1908-1909; Monday, May 11, 1910-1911; Thursday, May 14, 1908-1910; Tuesday, May 19, 1908-1910; Thursday, May 21, 1908-1911; Monday, May 25, 1909-1911; Thursday, May 28, 1908-1909; Monday, June 1, 1910-1911; Thursday, June 4, 1908-1910.

Patrolman Prevents a Fire.

Patrolman Messler's watchful optics caught sight of an overheated stove in the Wadley coal yard office on Madison avenue, last night, and his timely action prevented a possible fire. He notified Captain Feiring, at No. 1 engine house and the latter entered the place to stop the trouble by breaking a pane of glass in one of the windows. The stove was in such a position that it would soon have ignited some wood fixtures.

Mrs. Parsons Removes to Newark.

Mrs. Charles L. Parsons, wife of the late pastor of the Park M. E. church, removed today to Newark, where she will live at the home of her married daughter. Her children, George and Miss Helen Parsons, will remain in the borough until the end of the school year.

It's All Fixed Now.

E. A. Whittier, of Newark and Lincoln Park, was the guest of James E. Martine, of Cedarbrook Farm and Dreamland, yesterday. They let it be known that as a result of their conference W. J. B. may be the next President.!

To Dance Easter Monday Night.

The "Younger Set" will give a dance at the Casino Monday evening, April 20. The affair will be of the nature of a leap year function.

Mrs. William Murray, of Rockview avenue, is entertaining her aunt, Mrs. Holcombe, of Hartford, Conn.

METHODISTS ARE BROADER

Adopt Resolution that People Be "Advised" Not to Attend Theatre or Dance.

ANNUAL APPOINTMENTS MADE.

C. S. Kemble, Who Comes Here, Leads the Liberals in the Closing Hours of M. E. Conference.

There was another lively discussion during the closing hours of the Newark M. E. Conference sessions yesterday afternoon, when Rev. C. S. Kemble, of Elizabeth, who has been transferred to the Monroe Avenue church by the bishop, offered a memorial to be sent to the General Conference, requesting that the Discipline of the Church be changed so as to read that pastors be instructed to advise their people to refrain from attending the theatre, dances, playing cards and all such amusements. A similar memorial was introduced at the New York Conference and it was there recommended that the pastors use their discretion in these matters.

The argument presented by Mr. Kemble was that members of the church are quite likely to follow such amusements and if the discipline is strictly adhered to they must be read out of the church, but he for one would not be a party to this and he felt sure that a majority of the pastors felt the same way about the matter.

"What do you propose to do with the members of your churches who follow these amusements?" said Mr. Kimble. "You will not read them out of the church. I am sure I will not. They are the very salt of the earth, the kind of people we bank on. The trouble is that we are afraid of what the newspapers will say about us, but I think the Methodist church is large enough not to care what anyone says about it. We know that there are members of our church that go to the theatre, dance and play cards and I cannot see how we can take any steps to prevent it. For that reason I would suggest that the discipline be changed so that we as pastors may be permitted to advise our people to give up these amusements instead of continuing a mandatory rule that means little to us."

When the vote was taken it was shown that a majority held Mr. Kemble's opinion and the memorial was adopted.

The memorial offered earlier in the session of the conference by Dr. Snodgrass, which called for a change in the ratio of representation from annual conferences to the General Conference, came up for discussion; and it was the sense of the members that it would be unwise to memorialize the General Conference in the matter. It provided for a ratio of not less than one for every seventy-five members and not more than one for *every ninety. On the vote the me*morial was rejected.

Another important feature of the closing session of the conference yesterday afternoon, was the reading of the annual appointments and while there was some business of minor interest, everyone awaited anxiously for the announcement by Bishop Spellmeyer. As usual, it was the last thing on the program and both ministers and laymen gave respectful attention, when they saw the Bishop return to the chair after a long conference with the presiding elders. It was evident that the making of the appointments had been a difficult task, and before the Bishop began to read them, he remarked that there was nothing he could say on the subject. He then made the announcements.

There are several changes of particular interest to Plainfielders. Rev. Daniel Hutchison, who has been the presiding elder of the Elizabeth District for six years, is sent to Washington, Warren county, and is succeeded by Rev. D. B. H. Randolph, of Paterson. It was expected that Rev. C. M. Snodgrass would get this place but as it is a hard to choose between him and Rev. Dr. Wilding, another man was picked. *As stated in The Daily Press on Mon*day, Rev. Orra J. Shoop, of Cranford, succeeds Grace M. E. church, while Rev. C. S. Kemble, of Park church, Elizabeth, will succeed Rev. E. S. Roberson at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. Mr. Roberson goes to the church at Passaic, a $7,000 charge. This change is somewhat of a surprise, as Mr. Roberson's people had given him a call to return and he seemed desirous of doing so. As was forgotten on Monday, Rev. A. C. McCrea will remain at the First M. E. church. He could have received the presiding eldership for the Elizabeth district had he so desired, but he did not want it. He preferred to remain in his present charge where he has been doing good work, and his people urged that he be re-

MISS E.C. SMITH A BRIDE

Sister of Frank H. Smith Becomes the Wife of Dr. Charles M. Burdick.

REV. DR. LEWIS OFFICIATES.

Ceremony at Home of the Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus H. Smith, Attended by Many Friends.

The first of the local early spring weddings was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus S. Smith, of Madison avenue, April 2, when their daughter, Miss Ernestine Curtis Smith, became the wife of Charles Milton Burdick, M. D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther C. Burdick, of Lowville, N. Y. There were about a hundred guests present and the affair ranks as one of the prettiest of home weddings.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, formerly pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and the Episcopal form of service was used. Rings were exchanged. The bridal party stood in the parlor, while decorators had transformed into a veritable floral bower by the use of white carnations and Easter lillies banked against masses of palms, which were effectively used in decoration throughout the entire lower floor. The bridesmaids and ushers came downstairs, passing to the dining room where they were joined by the bride, matron-of-honor and Mr. Smith, who gave his daughter in marriage. The party proceeded to the parlor, where the groom and best man stood at the altar.

The bride was gowned in white pule de Cygne, en train, made Princess style, and her veil was caught up with orange blossoms, the gift of a friend in California. She carried a handsome bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Lillian A. Force, of the borough, and Miss Ruth L. Capron, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaids. They wore white silk batiste, over Nile green taffeta, trimmed with Valenciennes lace. The gowns were made Empire style, and the two carried bouquets of pink Enchantress carnations. Mrs. Frank H. Smith, wife of County Registrar Frank H. Smith, who is a brother of the bride, was matron-of-honor. She wore Nile green silk, trimmed with white Filet lace, and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. The best man was Albert C. Burdick, of Lowville, N. Y., brother of the groom, and the ushers were County Registrar Frank H. Smith and Asa Fitz Randolph.

An impressive feature of the ceremony was the singing of the bridal chorus, "Faithful and True," from Lohengrin. This was rendered by a quartet composed of Mrs. John B. Cottrell, Mrs. J. R. Kimball, David E. Titsworth and William J. Tajlano. Arthur L. Titsworth was the accompanist. The words of the wedding march follow:

"Faithful and true we lead ye forth, where love's true triumphant shall crown ye with joy!
Star of renown, flowr of the earth, blest be ye both, far from all life's annoy.
Champion victorious, go thou before!
Maid bright and glorious, go thou before!
Mirth's noisy revel ye have forsaken,
Tender delights for you are awaken.
Fragrant abode enshrine ye in bliss.
Splendor and state in joy ye dismiss.
Faithful and true we lead ye forth, where love triumphant shall crown ye with joy!
Star of renown, flowr of the earth, blest be ye both, far from all life's annoy!"

The groom's gift to the bride was a heart-shaped brooch, set with emeralds and diamonds. The bridesmaids and the matron-of-honor received silver card cases, inscribed with their monograms, and the groom's gifts to his ushers were pearl stick pins. At the conclusion of the ceremony, a collation was served by Russ, of Elizabeth, and music was furnished by Carpenter's orchestra. The decorations were by Mrs. L. J. Denton, and the general color scheme of the wedding was green and white.

Dr. Burdick is a physician at the St. Lawrence State Hospital at Ogdensburg, N. Y. He was graduated from Williams College in the class of 1895, and from the Buffalo Medical College five years later. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa society at Williams. The bride is well known in city and borough, where she has a host of friends. The couple will be at home at the St. Lawrence Hospital after May first.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. B. Putnam, nee Miss Ella Titsworth, of Troy, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Burdick, A. C. Burdick, Master Charles Burdick, all brothers of the groom, and Charles Stephens, of Lowville, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hardy, of Brooklyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Alberto Bucini, of New York.

Wins Medal in Big Games.

George Linke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, of West Second street, captured a silver medal in the First Regiment A. A. annual indoor games at the Newark armory Wednesday night. He was a member of the Stevens Institute team which won second place in the one mile intercholastic relay handicap, competing against some of the best runners in New Jersey. The games were witnessed by 4,000 people and were declared the most successful in the history of the regiment.

WE MAY HAVE TUNNELS—SO TRADE BOARD HEARS

The regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held Thursday but owing to the absence of President Marshall and several conflicting affairs, no business of importance was transacted. B. P. Cornell was in the chair.

Secretary A. S. Herr, who was appointed a committee of one at the previous session to confer with railway men and others in New York to learn if a tunnel under the Hudson to connect with the New Jersey Central was contemplated, reported that he had talked with Mayor Fisk. He was told that there is a possible chance of an undertaking of this kind being started within three years. William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, attended the meeting and asked that the Board have a delegation at the dinner of the New Jersey Real Estate men at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York, on April 25. The matter was taken under advisement.

M. A. Rose, a local real estate man, submitted a proposition to the Board to have an advertisement setting forth Plainfield's advantages placed on a huge sign board he has had erected on the Watchung avenue building and which faces the railroad. He offered to contribute the space gratis and by vote it was decided to let President Marshall appoint a committee to consider the matter in detail.

Communications were received from the Boards of Trade in several cities asking that the local board express its approval of Congressman Fowler's currency measure as compared with the Aldrich measure.

The application of Edward Hardingham for membership was acted upon favorably.

PLAINFIELD AUDIENCE HEARS FRANCIS ROGERS

The song recital given at the home of Mrs. George A. Beaton, of West Seventh street, Thursday afternoon, by Francis Rogers, the famous baritone, and Arthur Alexander, who was at the piano, was a noteworthy mu*sical event. It was the first appear*ance of Mr. Rogers here and he was greeted by an audience that occupied every available bit of space in the handsome residence. He was in fine voice and for over an hour he charmed all with the sweetness and complete mastery of his selections.

The whole program was devoted to numbers by Mr. Rogers, and they afforded an exceptional opportunity for a display of his vocal talent. In the first group were six little songs by Robebrt Franz, in German, and the second group comprised four French songs, while seven numbers of old and modern composition were given in the third group, concluding with the rendition of the final selection, "Rolling Down to Rio" (Kipling), Mr. Rogers generously responded to the single encore of the afternoon. Mr. Rogers' work was of the highest possible character and all were delighted with his singing.

Mr. McIntyre, at the piano, shared the honors of the afternoon. As an accompanist for the great artist, he displayed that rare genius which has characterized his work in the past and he received equal praise with the singer in the generous applause bestowed by the audience. The second recital will be given Thursday, April 9, at the home of Mrs. J. P. Stevens, when Paul Dufault and Mr. McIntyre will present a program of a classical character.

SACHER SUES SACHS; HERE ARE THE FACTS

Suit has been started in the New Jersey Supreme Court by Kassel Sacher against Nathan Sachs for $500. Sacher sues to recover on a note signed by Sachs and indorsed made by Sachs to the order of the First National Bank and which was endorsed by him and which he was obliged to pay after it had been protested.

Nathan Sachs, through his attorney, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., has filed an affidavit of merits in which he swears that he believes that he has a just and legal defence. The case will be heard before Justice Bergen at Elizabeth at the next term of court.

Sues to Recover Alleged Bill.

A suit has been instituted in the New Jersey Supreme Court by Clerk T. Rogers and William Newcorn, as trustees for Zerviah L. Rogers, partners as C. T. Rogers and Co., against *Henry Berg for $1,000. In the decla*ration of the plaintiffs they allege that they sold and delivered to Berg coal at the township of New Market to the amount of $311.10 and that he has failed to pay for the same. The papers were served on Berg in Newark by Sheriff Somers. Berg has filed an answer in which he denys that he owes the plaintiff anything, through his attorneys, Riker and Riker, of Newark. Rene P. F. Von Minden represe nsthe plaintiffs. This case will be tried before Justice Bergen at the next *term of the Mid*dlesex Circuit Court at New Brunswick.

STILL STAID METHODISM

Laymen Overwhelmingly Defeat Proposition for Liberal Amusement Policy.

ELECT FIVE LAY DELEGATES.

Two Hundred Prominent Men Attend Annual Session at the First Baptist Church.

Defeated by the overwhelming vote of 104 to 56, the resolution of the clerical committee on resolutions of the Newark Conference of the M. E. church, urging a more liberal policy relative to the question of amusements among local Methodists, but are to abide by the stern laws of Methodism as now contained in the rules,—no freer interpretation being sanctioned.

The motion, which was defeated by the votes of the laymen from the smaller towns and boroughs, was approved by the resolution committee of the clerical conference, of which J. W. Strayer is chairman. It was presented to the laymen near the close of the morning session at the Baptist church today by M. S. Daniels, of Roseville, as chairman of the laymen's committee on resolutions. It read as follows:

Amusements Tabooed.

"Resolved, That the lay delegates to the General Conference urge more liberality relative to the question of amusements."

When the resolution was put to a vote, fifty-six rose to their feet in its endorsement, but when the "nays" were called for, the resolution was overwhelmingly defeated by the rising of 104 laymen, principally from the smaller churches.

The principal object of the session was the election of five delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist church to be held May 10 at Baltimore, Md. There were thirteen nominations, but no voting was done at the morning session. The candidates mentioned were these:

Candidates for Delegates.

Dr. James R. Joy and Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Plainfield; Frank Morse, of Boontown; William Dufford, of Paterson; John H. Mott, of Montclair; Frank Larter, of Newark; Captain C. W. Kennedy, of West New Brighton, S. I.; J. W. Pearsall, of Ridgewood; M. S. Daniels, of Roseville; Frank M. Hough, of Paterson. R. R. Doherty, of Jersey City; Chas. T. Jones, of Belville, and Mrs. C. F. Woodruff, of Flemington. Of these candidates, Messrs. Carroll, Joy, Kennedy and Mrs. Woodruff are from the Elizabeth district; Messrs. Daniels, Larter, Jones and Mott, of the Newark district; Messrs. Dufford, Hough and Morse, of the Paterson *district, and Messrs. Pearsall and Do*herty, of the Jersey City district. From these candidates five and three reserve delegates are to be elected to the general conference to be held at Baltimore, May 10.

Get Down to Work.

Upon the resumption of the session, the report of James R. Joy, *chairman of the committee on organ*ization and rules for election, was received and approved. It outlined a plan for the election of the delegates to the Methodist conference to be held in Baltimore May 10, and three reserve delegates.

At this juncture, Dr. C. G. Woodruff, of Flemington, chairman of a committee from the conference in session at the First M. E. church, inviting the laymen to join the pastors at luncheon at the Park Club during the noon recess. The invitation was accepted by Chairman Ward in behalf of the laymen, but when it came time for adjournment, the meeting was so deeply engrossed in the nomination of delegates and it was 12:20 before the session broke up.

Two Hundred Delegates Present.

With about 200 lay delegates present, the session was opened promptly at 10 o'clock, when W. M. McGee called the laymen to order. John M. Ward, of Newark, was elected chairman, and W. M. McGee secretary.

Following these elections, Mr. Ward took the chair and there were short devotional exercises an invocation by L. H. Large, of Jersey City, and singing of a hymn.

On motion of James R. Joy, the chairman was empowered to appoint three committees—a committee on credentials, committee on organization to perfect a permanent organiza*tion, and rules to govern the elec*tions, and a committee on resolutions. The following were named:

Committees.

Committee on credentials: George A. Horne, of Hackensack; Robert B. Doherty, of Jersey City, and Walter M. McGee, of Plainfield. Committee on permanent organization: James R. Joy, of Plainfield; Stephen S. Day, of Summit; Oscar Geoffrey, of Washington; A. B. Meredith, of Nutley, and Edwin Flower, of Passaic. Committee on resolutions: M. S. Daniel, *of Roseville; Joseph Walker, of Ir*vington, and D. H. Murray, of Paterson.

HORACE G. ADAMS SUES ON NOTE FOR $6,000

Suit has been instituted in the New Jersey Supreme Court of Trenton by Horace G. Adams against Hubert H. Hull and others for $6,000. The case is founded on a promissory note made by the defendants to the order of themselves and endorsed by others and Adams.

The defendant, Hubert H. Hull, through his attorney, George J. Fermier, of Jersey City, has entered a denial of the allegations made by Adams, and in his defence amongst other things, says that if the note sued was at all it was made in fraud, in that it was made without lawful consideration, and that the same is injurious, and that if the note is a proper note it was not properly presented for payment. This case will have to be tried in the Supreme Court before Justice Bergen at Elizabeth. Judge William Newcorn represents Adams.

ENGINE'S SPARK CAUSE OF A FARMER'S SUIT

Suit has been started in the New Jersey Supreme Court by George W. Harris, of Piscataway Township, against the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for $1,000 damages in tort. Harris claims in his declaration that he was the owner of a farm known as the Harris Farm, near Lin*colnz, New Jersey, and that on No*vember 29 he claims that a locomotive engine of the Lehigh Valley R. R. Co., drawing the "Black Diamond Express," was passing his farm about 5 o'clock on that day and it "unlawfully" permitted large sparks or flames of fire and live cinders to escape from the engine and set fire to his meadows, fences and posts and trees to his damage.

Harris alleges that the railroad company was negligent in not having proper screens or netting about the locomotive so as to prevent these sparks or cinders from landing on his property, and that their failure to have the screens or netting resulted in the fire. He asks the court *for one thousand dollars. The rail*road company, through Collins and Corbins, of Jersey City, its attorneys, have entered a denial of the allegations.

The case will have to be tried before Justice Bergen and a jury at New Brunswick.

LOCAL LAWYERS ATTACH BANKER THOMAS' HORSES

A writ of attachment has been issued out of the New Jersey Supreme Court at the suit of the Metropolitan Trust Company of the City of New York against Edward R. Thomas, the New York banker, for $200,000. This writ was directed to the sheriff of the county of Monmouth and is returnable April 15. On March 25 Sheriff Francis, of Freehold, made a levy on the goods and chattels that he could find belongings to Thomas in the county.

The sheriff levied on 26 two-year old colts, which were appraised at $13,000; 13 yearlings, $7,800; 7 young colts, $2,600; 2 stallions, $350; 1 stallion, $100; 50 balls of yarn, $125; 1 saddle, $18; 1 pair scales, $5; total, $32,598.

A suit was commenced by an af*davit made by William A. Codding*ton, who says that he is the attorney for the Metropolitan Trust Company and that the said Edward R. Thomas is indebted to his company in the sum of $231,333.09 with interest thereon from April 22, 1907, and that he is not now a resident of this State, and on this affidavit the writ of attachment issued and was placed in the hands of the sheriff.

E. R. Thomas is the same person who was former president of the Provident Insurance Company and an officer and director of any banks and trust companies in New York, and whose home in Newport was attached in a similar way sometime ago. No defence has yet been interposed on behalf of Thomas in this suit.

Reed and Coddington, together with T. W. Day, appear as the attorneys for the Metropolitan Trust Company in this suit.

Queen Victoria's Mittens.

There are a pair of mittens, small, simple, rune, in a London paragraph, commanding the lace exhibition, and of a mellow ivory tint by this time, which Queen Victoria wore a year after her marriage, and another more ornate pair, lent by Mrs. Malcolm Drummond, *whose great-grand*father's hands they clasped that famous night, the eve of the battle of Waterloo, when the sound of revelry at the historical ball in Brus*sels was hushed by the heralding of* war.

PUPILS PRESENT DRAMA

Cast of Junior Class, N.P.H.S. Gives "The Cricket on the Hearth."

An innovation in local amateur theatricals was the presentation of the drama, "The Cricket on the Hearth," by the pupils of the junior class of the North Plainfield High School at the Casino Friday night. Drama is a new phase of amateur work among the pupils, for the local theatricals have in the past have promised only farces or comedies. A capacity house greeted the players, and the production was a decided success.

The complete cast of characters follows: John Perrybingle, a carrier, W. G. Herrman; Gruff and Tackleton, a toy-maker, Eldon Miller; Caleb Plummer, his man, Clarence Steiner; Old Stranger and Edward Plummer, Fred McClintock; Dot, Mrs. Perrybingle, Miss Florence Fowler; Bertha, Caleb's blind daughter, Miss Ida Englehart; May Fielding, Miss Gertrude Berkhan; Mrs. Fielding, Miss Elvira Hoerster; Tilly Slowboy, nursemaid, Miss Jennie Nelson; a messenger, Roy Vanderbeek; guests, Miss Marion Mabie, Miss Ruth Day, *Gay Hartley and Ror Vander*beek. The executive staff included Miss Helen T. Stahlberger, who coached the cast; Eldon Miller, stage manager; George Parsons, property manager, and W. G. Herrman, chairman of the entertainment committee.

SITE AND APPARATUS FOR NEW FIRE HOUSE

Members of the Councilmanic fire committee Friday visited Hartford, Conn., to inspect a combination automobile chemical and hose wagon which it is proposed to install in the new fire house to be erected in the Netherwood section of the city. Herbert Buxton and Robert E. Hall were the two members who made the trip. It is said that they were both favorably impressed and will likely recom*mend its purchase.*

Plans have been obtained by the city on a large tract of ground near the Netherwood station on South avenue near Belvidere avenue and it is expected that the city will at their meeting on Monday night will instruct the fire committee to negotiate the purchase of both land and apparatus. Plans for the building have not been submitted as yet but it is probable that all arrangements will be completed by May 1 so that the fire house will be finished before summer comes.

ROUTINE MATTERS IN THE BOROUGH COUNCIL

A resolution introduced by Councilman Nichol at Friday night's meeting of the Borough Council that the Somerset Board of Freeholders be requested to build a bridge over the east branch of Stony Brook, where it crosses the new extension of Watchung avenue, revived the old complaint about North Plainfield treatment by the county organization.

Former Mayor Smalley was in attendance at the meeting and asking the courtesy of the Council he took the floor. He declared that if the borough officials wanted any improvements on Watchung avenue they would never be gotten if it was put up to the Somerset freeholders. The only way North Plainfield would get a bridge, he said, was to go ahead and build it on North Plainfield's expense. The councilmen seemed to think the same way but the Board will be petitioned.

In the course of reference to borough sewers, it was stated by Mayor Townsend that the matter is still being taken up by Plainfield. A definite answer has been awaited for the past month or more but something has delayed it, yet some response may be expected in the near future.

Most of the business transacted at the meeting was of a routine nature. The committee on stationery and supplies was instructed to purchase a typewriter for the use of Borough Clerk Fred Martin and the street committee was authorized to buy a street roller provided the cost does not exceed $300. The resignation of Thomas Doud as a member of the Board of Health was received and Thomas Finney was appointed a marshal to do special duty. At the request of the Orchard Park Im*provement Association*, and following a lengthy discussion of the same, two lights were ordered placed on Peace street between Watchung avenue and Chatham street.

Chairman Waldron, of the street committee, reported that $349.42 had been expended during March, most of it for the filling in of upper Duer street. According to the report of Recorder Dolliver there were twenty-four arrests during the past month and $53 in fines collected.

FIFTH DIST. DEMOCRATS PICK DELEGATES, APRIL 28

District delegates to the Denver convention will be chosen by the Democrats of the Fifth Congressional district at a meeting to be held at the Trenton House, Trenton, Tuesday morning, April 28, at 11 o'clock. The formal call for that purpose has been issued by John J. Blair, of Summit, as chairman of the Congressional committee in this district.

A lively scrap is expected at the meeting over the choice of delegates, it being the avowed plan of General Dennis F. Collins, the Union county chairman, and others to prevent a Bryan delegation being named. It is said that Mr. Collins is assured of the support of Morris county in this effort and that he is reasonably certain of having things his own way despite the protests of "Farmer-orator" James E. Martine, of Passaic, who has gotten into the fight to help his friend from Nebraska.

The Democratic Progressive League, in other words the Bryan camp in New Jersey, has quietly hit upon Martine as one of its favorite candidates for delegate-at-large, the others being Robert Davis, Thomas Ferrell, William C. Gebhardt. Martine is determined to go to Denver and it was only after he was convinced that there is little or no prospect of his landing as a district delegate that he consented. It is going for the delegate-at-large candidacy.

Mr. Martine declared today that he would do all in his power to prevent a anti-Bryan delegation going from the Fifth district but that it mattered little so far as results were concerned. "I'm going to Denver because I have the price of the carfare. If my friends won't let me go in the capacity of a delegate, I'll be there as a visitor for I'll be darned if I'm going to miss seeing Mr. Bryan nominated."

HOPE CHAPEL REVIEWS THE PAST YEAR'S GROWTH

With one of the largest attendances that has been noticed in several years, the congregation of Hope chapel had the annual meeting last week, for the purpose of hearing reports from the church, Sunday-school and other departments. All showed that the past twelve months had been marked by a substantial growth in every department. Rev. L. R. Howard was moderator and Walter L. Firstbrook was made secretary pro tem.

The church report, submitted by Mr. Howard, stated that the enrollment had an increase of fifteen over the previous year, the pastor officiated at fifteen funerals, eleven marriages and ten baptisms. The congregation lost two members by death. In the absence of the treasurer, Robert Dorah, Walter Firstbrook read the annual report, showing that the church had raised $890.14 during the year.

According to the report of Ira W. Travel, the Sunday-school is in a flourishing condition and now has an average attendance of 345. The Sunday-school treasurer, Donald Mortimer, reported that since October 13 a total of $240 had been received and $163 expended. This is the first year that the Sunday-school has been under the superintendency of G. H. Conklin, who succeeded the late Henry C. Squires.

The other reports submitted, those giving them and the amounts raised during the year were as follows: Women's Bible class, Mrs. M. S. A. Clark, receipts $28.55, balance $109.40; flower fund, Women's Bible class, Mrs. Johnson; Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. L. R. Howard, $212.13; organ fund, Mrs. L. R. Howard, balance $446, receipts $1,200; Mary Miller Wright Missionary Society, Miss Bertha Jones, $7.20; women's missionary society, Mrs. M. A. Clark; Judge Runyon's Bible class, Benjamin Evans, $80; Young People's Society, Miss Bertha Jones, $44.20; Men's Club, Walter Firstbrook, $22. 80; Boys' Club, Walter Firstbrook; Ways and Means committee, Donald McInness, $312 raised for organ fund and other purposes.

In the election of officers, Philip Braunson was made treasurer and James Penny and Benjamin Evans assistants.

Summons Served in $1,000 Suit.

A suit for $1,000 has been instituted by Lebbeus L. Manning and Walter P. Manning, partners as L. L. Manning and Son, against Katheryne C. Dowd and the summons was served by Sheriff Sommers of Newark on March 4. No declaration or bill of particulars has yet been filed, so that the present papers do not disclose what the suit has been brought. Codington and Smith are the attorneys for Manning and Son.

Trousseau Gowns.

"Trousseau gowns are lovlier than ever," says the fashion editor of the Woman's Home Companion, "as they have increased in beauty they have lessened in number. Very few brides of today, no matter how fashionable they may be, order a trousseau consisting of a great number of costumes. The reason for this is that fashions change so that it is necessary every little while to have a new style gown if one is to keep pace with the capricious modes."

LOCAL LAYMEN DELEGATES

Drs. J. R. Joy and H. K. Carroll Chosen Lay Representatives to General Conference.

The election of five lay delegates and three reserve delegates to the general conference of the Methodist church to be held in Baltimore May 10, occupied the entire afternoon session of the Lay Electoral Conference at the First Baptist church Friday. The regular delegates chosen were Dr. James R. Joy, president of the Laymen's Association, and Dr. H. K. Carroll, of this city; M. S. Daniels, of Roseville; J. W. Pearsal, of Ridgewood, and W. M. Dufford, of Paterson. There were thirteen candidates for the five delegacies and Messrs. Joy, Daniels, Pearsall and Dufford were elected on the first ballot, while Dr. Carroll, who was the candidate receiving the greatest number of votes on all the other ballots, did not secure the necessary majority until the Conference had voted four times. Of 167 votes cast, on the first ballot, Daniels received 133; Joy, 96; Pearsall, 91, and Dufford, 80. Dr. Carroll received 121 votes of the 143 votes cast on the fourth ballot.

Reserve Delegates.

By the unanimous vote of the conference, Mrs. C. S. Woodruff, of Flemington, was chosen by acclamation as the first of the reserve delegates. Joseph Walker, of Irvington, George Backus, of Jersey City, and Frank E. Morse, of Paterson, were nominated as the other candidates, and Messrs. Walker and Morse were elected on the first ballot.

While the tellers were busy counting the votes, the Conference considered four amendments, which the clerical conference had asked them to vote upon for the general conference. The first of these, a resolution to maintain the Episcopacy of the Methodist church, and to continue with the plan of itinerant general superintendency, but to elect a Bishop for work among particular races and languages, involved considerable de*bate. It bears particularly upon the* colored Methodists, who are desirous of having a Bishop to lead them. Recently even the colored people have taken a decided stand in this measure, and it was unanimously defeated at the session yesterday afternoon.

Time Limit Restoration.

By a vote of 110-32, it was resolved to endorse the restoration of the time limit. The resolution called forth some heated debate in which representatives from the smaller towns and villages were particularly prominent. In the case of three other resolutions regarding the ratio of bishops and the ratio of representation, the conference decided to concur with the wish of the clerical members of the general conference.

Harvey E. Tingley, of Jersey City, who came to this city from the New York conference, was introduced to the meeting, during the business session, by Rev. Dr. Mitchell, head of the Wesley Brotherhood, and spoke especially on the interests of that organization, emphasizing the value of civic righteousness and explaining the work of the Brotherhood in assisting the poor and needy.

Rev. Dr. Mitchell Speaks.

After the laymen's conference, the *tenth annual meeting of the Lay*men's Association of the Newark Conference was held. Dr. Joy presided, introducing the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Dr. Charles Burke Mitchell, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Cleveland, Ohio. Dr. Mitchell was formerly pastor of the First Methodist church in this city, and spoke on the topic, "The Mission of a Methodist."

ENDEARING TERM UPSETS CITY COURT EQUANIMITY

The decorum of the city court was somewhat upset during a case, Saturday, by the persistency of William Pryor, a typical Northern darky, in addressing Judge Runyon as "Honey." He was called as a witness in a case involving Edmund Brown, colored, Lawrence Bray and Neill Scott, Jr., who were arrested a week ago for fighting at Third street and Plainfield avenue.

Pryor appeared with his head all bound up and a couple of minutes were devoted to making plain that the bandages were simply a coincidence and had not been brought about by the scrap in question. This jelled the discussion and then the witness was somewhat hard of hearing as failing to catch a question put to him by the court, he exclaimed:

"Honey. Ah 'spects yuh better repeat dat."

The southern accent and the endearing term were more than Judge Runyon could stand for and he joined the spectators in a broad smile that grew to a hearty laugh when Pryor, all in absolute earnestness, continued:

"Honey, Ah sure seed dis scrap and de white men done struck de first blow; 'deed dey did, Honey."

The humor in his words, added to a violent swinging of arms to emphasize them and the bobbing of the bandaged head convulsed the *magis*trate and judicial severity gave way to unadulterated mirth. As a result the defendants were dismissed on suspended sentence.

MAYOR EXTENDS WELCOME

Banker Fisk in Greeting M. E. Conference Delegates Defends High License.

REV. DR. HALLERON PRESIDES.

Conference Veterans Hold Their Annual Meeting—Dr. Guttridge Makes His Report.

Keen disappointment was apparent on the part of those attending Wednesday's session of the Newark Conference over the inability of Governor J. Franklin Fort to be present to address the congregation. Telegrams were received by Rev. John A. Guttridge and Mayor C. J. Fisk, who was to have entertained the Governor at dinner, informing them that matters of State importance would detain him.

Efforts for Speakers.

The announcement was made by Dr. Guttridge, and in referring to the matter he unintentionally said "Governor Woodrow Wilson of the State," which brought forth a hearty laugh. The doctor then humorously remarked: "That may be true yet." He explained that he first tried to get United States Senator Dolliver to speak, then Vice-President Fairbanks and finally succeeded in getting the promise of Governor Fort to come here. But unforseen happenings at Trenton prevented his attendance.

Dr. Halleron Presides.

It was the anniversary of the Centenary Fund and Preachers' Aid Society and so Rev. Dr. Daniel Halleron as president was in the chair. He spoke briefly concerning the needs of the society and the purpose to raise the general fund to $100,000, which could be done by the additional contribution of $13,000. He held in his hand a check for $4,100.03, representing the interest paid conference claimants and it was with not little pride that he announced that fact and that the past year was the best in the history of the society.

Mayor Fisk's Welcome.

During the early part of the meeting there was a vocal solo by Charles L. Lewis, after which Dr. Halleron introduced Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who was announced to give an address of welcome to the delegates. Mr. Fisk began by saying that it seemed strange to him to be addressing a body of ministers. Usually he occupied a pew and listened to the preacher. He paid deserving tribute to Rev. A. C. McCrea for his efforts in bringing the conference to Plainfield and told the ministers that they would find God-loving and God-fearing people here, a place where a great majority of the people stood for righteousness and a high standard of morals. It was not a case of being obliged to depend on the laws to preserve, although there are laws and they must be obeyed.

The Roads to Heaven.

Although he said that he was brought up in the Presbyterian church and at one time thought that that was the only way to heaven, Mr. Fisk said he had changed his mind since he became a man and had come to the conclusion that as all railroads lead to Chicago, so all denominations lead to heaven. He was pleased to learn that the association, whose anniversary was being celebrated, was conducted on business principles and not a "trust in luck" plan. Faith and works could accomplish much, but if a man depended alone on prayer he would get but little.

Good Men for Office.

Speaking politically, Mr. Fisk declared that only straight, upright men should be elected to office and in that way high-class men would be called upon to serve the people. He said that Governor Fort was that kind of a man and that he is now making the fight of his life to get what the people of the State want. "All the influence of the political machine is being brought to bear against his efforts," said Mr. Fisk, "but the right will prevail."

The Excise Question.

Taking up the excise question, Mr. Fisk unhesitatingly declared that the trouble with prohibition is that it does not prohibit. "In the South," he said, "one can get anything he wants to drink, he can even get liquor in eggs. You can't get evidence in these cases unless you commit crime. We must adopt a rule to control the sale of liquor. As for local option the people did away with it. Fifteen years ago Plainfield's present system of controlling the liquor question was introduced and it has worked satisfactorily." Mr. Fisk then gave a brief review of the situation when he was a member of the Common Council, how the license question was handled and how the ministers and the best people of the city were led to recognize that the present system came nearer solving the question than anything tried before.

Extends Welcome.

Speaking of the duty of the church, Mr. Fisk declared that such it was Mr. Fisk's opinion that such edifices should be open at all times, where people can go and pray and meditate.

"I am glad to welcome you to our city and I hope you will like it so well that you will want to come again. If I can be of any service personally or in an official capacity let me know."

Mr. Fisk's speech was well received.

Treasurer's Report.

The anniversary exercises were then continued with the reading of the report of the treasurer, Milton B. Blanchard. This showed the receipts at the present date to be $18,989.18, and the disbursements, including bond and morigages, and balance in bank, to be the same. The assets consisting of bond and morigages and balance in bank are $56,475.65, while the interest paid conference claimants amounted to $4,100.03. The William H. Murphy fund showed that $10,466.01 had been received from the churches and a special gift of $1,000.

Society's Officers.

The officers of the society are as follows:

President, Rev. Daniel Halleron; vice-president, W. H. Barnett; corresponding secretary, Rev. John A. Guttridge; secretary, Rev. S. K. Doolittle; treasurer, Milton E. Blanchard; trustees-ministers, Revs. S. K. Doolittle, J. I. Bartleman, Daniel Halleron, C. R. Barnes, C. S. Ryman, J. B. Faulks, W. R. Ruth, C. M. Anderson and John A. Guttridge; laymen, William Fairlie, Milton E. Blanchard, F. H. Larter, B. F. Edsall, A. P. Conant, Joseph Walker, W. W. Blanchard, J. W. Pearsall and W. H. Barnett.

Dr. Guttridge's Report.

As corresponding secretary, Dr. Guttridge presented a brief report in which he set forth what had been accomplished by the society and of the efforts now being made to enlist the co-operation of all the conferences in the increase of the endowment fund. In this connection a memorial is to be presented to the General Conference at Baltimore in May. The Newark Conference, the purpose being to still further advance the interests of the society which undertakes the work of assisting those entitled to help from the conference.

After the singing of a hymn the session was closed with the benediction by Rev. Dr. H. A. Buttz, president of Drew Theological Seminary. It was expected that Bishop Spellmeyer would be present at the service and speak, but he was detained.

OLD SURVEY MAPS HELP ROAD EXTENSION SCHEME

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, has located an old survey map of the district to be crossed by the proposed extension of Watchung avenue to Somerset street, outside the borough limits and has also found out that Mrs. Anna Miles, who thirteen years ago owned property just outside the borough limits, gave the right of way over her land for the extension of the roadway.

The Mayor communicated with County Clerk Anderson, of Somerville, today, for the purpose of finding out if this right of way is still legal and ascertaining whether other property owners between the borough limits and Somerset street did not make similar concessions of land for the proposed thoroughfare, which was agitated thirty-two years ago, and again about fifteen years ago.

A search among the old survey maps prepared by A. Onderdonk and at present filed at Street Commissioner Gavett's office, revealed the survey map of the territory to be crossed by the road, and will prove a saving of expense to the borough and to the Board of Freeholders, who have been urged by the North Plainfield government to take up the matter of building the road.

Borough School Report Out.

The annual year book of the North Plainfield public schools has been issued, containing the various reports of the school officials for the past year. Aside from the school calendar, board of education and teachers of the borough schools, the booklet includes the report of the Board of Education, submitted by President James R. Joy; the financial report of the district clerk, Albert Steiner; the report of Supervising Principal Henry C. Buchanan, an outline of the courses of study and a list of the school alumni. The enrollment shows 891 pupils in the Somerset street school and 297 in the Watchung school. The report is profusely illustrated with half-tones of the various buildings and the classes of the various departments at work in their class rooms.

Baglin-Wagner Nuptials.

Invitations were issued today for the wedding of Mrs. Sarah Baglin Fredericks to Frederick Wagner Wednesday, April 15, at the home of the bride's father, Captain W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue. Mr. Wagner is a son of the late Emil Wagner, and is living on Seminary avenue, Rahway, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Edward Feiter. One hundred invitations have been sent out.

Hems.

We are mad for them.
Everything is now hemmed.
Everything else is thus ornamented.

The edges of hats and skirts are hemmed.

After that we just hang hems "any old place."

There's the same latitude as to material, hems being done in cloth, satin, chiffon, linen and lawn.

UTILITIES' BILL PASSES

Ackerman and Frelinghuysen Among Senate Majority who Keep Platform Pledges.

ASSEMBLYMAN PIERCE'S TALK.

Members of House from Union County Make a Great Address on Utilities Measure.

The Senate has passed its own public utilities bill, the committee substitute for the Colby-Gebhardt-Robbins measures. The vote was taken Wednesday afternoon at the close of a spirited debate. The vote was 17 to 3, as follows:

Colby's Odd Stand.

Yeas—Ackerman, Avis, Bradley, Brown, Compton, Fielder, Frelinghuysen, Gebhardt, Hand, Leavitt, Minch, Plummer, Price, Robbins, Kilger, Wakelee, Wilson. Nays—Colby, Harrison, Hinchliffe.

Before the Senate met in the afternoon the Republican Senators met in conference, but Senator Colby voted as soon as he found out that the committee substitute was to be made a canvass measure.

When the debate was opened on the Senate floor Senator Robbins explained the substitute, which does not contain any rate making working power.

Keeping Party Pledges.

Senator Frelinghuysen declared that while he was personally opposed to the measure, he would vote for it because it was incorporated in his party's platform and he believed that party pledges would be fulfilled. Senator Silzer announced that he would vote for the bill because it was the best "we can get" although he declared that it was not entirely satisfactory to him. Senator Gebhardt explained his vote in much the same manner as did Mr. Silzer.

"Graft," Says Hinchliffe.

Senator Hinchliffe was the last to speak. He handled the bill without gloves, declaring that no four men could be found capable of discharging the duties required by the commission; that it represented a foolish and needless waste of the State's money; that it was merely another evidence of the disposition to emulate New York, "a State so full of graft" as he characterized it; that New York's public utility commission had spent $700,000 and done nothing; and that he did not think the State had any right to examine the properties of corporations at the expense of the State. He was warmly applauded by his fellow-Senators.

Up to the House.

The Senate now has put up to the House an appointive civil service proposition and public utilities with rate working power. Both of these the House has rejected and by vote of its members, has declared not acceptable. Therefore unless there is a colcumelve or other adjustment often existing differences of opinion neither bill will be finally passed. In the House yesterday Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county, made a great plea for the passage of a sound public utilities bill. Assemblyman Pierce's speech follows:

Mr. Pierce's Speech.

"In the consideration of the question before the House we are dealing with one of the most important, perhaps the most important, subject of the session.

"In the little I have to say I propose to discuss the matter from two points of view—one of duty, disdeeming party pledges, and the other, which coincides in result with the first, our proper policy in the abstract as representing the people of the State.

"Take first the question of duty, of our personal obligations to redeem the pledges made in party platforms upon which we received the votes that sent us here. I can conceive of a situation, some social revolution, some new unexpected condition arising, where it would not only be proper but a duty to exercise the latent discretion vested in us and change the earlier instructions to meet the new, later, unexpected demand. But, Mr. Speaker, that is not the case.

"The subject we are considering today has not changed. It was fully discussed a year ago and party lines drawn. It was one of the important subjects of the last campaign discussion, and a closer contact with it was then.' If there is a difference of any kind in the situation it' is not one of principle, but of temporary environment following a less close association with the people at large since the close of the campaign and a closer contact with interests and arguments not necessarily unfair, but seeking from supposed personal interest in neutralize the obligations of party platforms.

Party Pledges.

"But I assume these influences will be thrown aside and that we are prepared to meet our pledges and the single question is what they are.

"The Democratic State platform deals well the subject in this language:

"'We favor the establishment of a commission with ample powers for the proper regulation of steam and trolley railroads, electric light, gas, water, telegraph and telephone companies, and all other public utilities corporations.'

"The Republican State platform is stronger and in this language:

"'The party has already undertaken the question of supervision of public utility incorporations, with a view of increasing the efficiency, safety and economy of service in the interests of the public.' We pledge ourselves to enact a law providing for a commission with ample jurisdiction and powers to enable it to regulate such corporations effectively and authoritatively.'

Platforms Clear on Subject.

"The meaning of both platforms, in my judgment, is the same, but taking the language of the Republican platform as the basis of discussion, the question arises, What is an effective commission? 'A commission with ample jurisdiction and powers to enable it to regulate such corporation effectively and authoritatively.'

"Clearly an effective commission is a commission with power to put into effect whatever the commission shall deem just and fair. There is no limitation whatever. You will seek in vain for a suggestion that in this or that, or any other branch, the power of the State is limited or divided. The pledge of power is in the broadest form—it must be 'ample' to enable the commission to regulate 'effectively and authoritatively.' Mr. Speaker, in my judgment you cannot construe that platform as permitting the exclusion of the rate-making feature. And in my judgment we stand fairly pledged to include that power in any measure we may adopt.

"Passing not to the second point of view from which I desire to discuss the subject, the policy of the power of the proper policy in the abstract to be adopted by the people of the State.

"In the last analysis the question at issue is whether the final word of authority shall rest with the people or with the utility companies. On that issue we will, I think, agree that the final word shall be with the people. From the people came the authority to use the public ways, from the people comes the patronage, and in the people should rest the final word whether the privileges given are fairly used.

Plea For Justice.

"But here I would not be misunderstood. One no account would I advocate a measure which I thought would or could be used to work an injustice. I would suppose these companies with every possible protection. They are entitled to it. The moneys invested are not invested from humanitarian motives, but to secure a proper return, and a proper return means, not a meagre, four, five or six per cent., but such as is invested, but a return adequate to the risk assumed and sufficient to induce further development of public service lines and corporations.

"What protection, then, shall be given them?

"We start with the constitutional guaranty, already theirs, that vested property interests shall not be impaired, injured or sacrificed. To that principle we add the personal interest of every citizen of the State, the asset of public opinion and by voice of its members, has declared not acceptable. Therefore unless there is a colcumelve or other adjustment often existing differences of opinion neither bill will be finally passed. In the House yesterday Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county, made a great plea for the passage of a sound public utilities bill. Assemblyman Pierce's speech follows:

Mr. Pierce's Speech.

"In the consideration of the question before the House we are dealing with one of the most important, perhaps the most important, subject of the session.

"In the little I have to say I propose to discuss the matter from two points of view—one of duty, disdeeming party pledges, and the other, which coincides in result with the first, our proper policy in the abstract as representing the people of the State.

"Take first the question of duty, of our personal obligations to redeem the pledges made in party platforms upon which we received the votes that sent us here. I can conceive of a situation, some social revolution, some new unexpected condition arising, where it would not only be proper but a duty to exercise the latent discretion vested in us and change the earlier instructions to meet the new, later, unexpected demand. But, Mr. Speaker, that is not the case.

"The subject we are considering today has not changed. It was fully discussed a year ago and party lines drawn. It was one of the important subjects of the last campaign discussion, and a closer contact with it was then.' If there is a difference of any kind in the situation it' is not one of principle, but of temporary environment following a less close association with the people at large since the close of the campaign and a closer contact with interests and arguments not necessarily unfair, but seeking from supposed personal interest in neutralize the obligations of party platforms.

Party Pledges.

"But I assume these influences will be thrown aside and that we are prepared to meet our pledges and the single question is what they are.

"The Democratic State platform deals well the subject in this language:

"'We favor the establishment of a commission with ample powers for the proper regulation of steam and trolley railroads, electric light, gas, water, telegraph and telephone companies, and all other public utilities corporations.'

"The Republican State platform is

SCHOOLBOYS WIN AGAIN

THE FINAL PRACTISE GAME.

School Squad of Players in the Last Workout Before De Witt Clinton Game Saturday.

For the second time this season the Plainfield High School triple trio of ball-tossers triumphed over the Mono A. C. nine in a practise game at Crescent Oval Wednesday afternoon, winning out in the ninth by a score of 3-2. The High School team used five players in the game, for Captain Murphey was anxious to give the most likely of the candidates on the squad a tryout before the opening of the regular season Saturday afternoon.

The run making began in the first inning, when Bird scored the first tally for the Monos. In their second session with the stick, Doane and Dodwell, of the P. H. S. nine, scored when the Mono left fielder dropped a deep fly. Conway scored on a bunting play in the fourth, and things were even up until the ninth. In this session Lidgate hit safe and stole around, winning the game for the schoolboys when he came in on Dey's sacrifice.

The High School boys used their entire squad of pitchers in the course of the game, Murphey, Van Zandt and Foster each having a few innings on the slab. Murphey proved the most effective. Dodge of the Monos, fanned twelve of the opposing batsmen, and the nine is safely five times. The schoolboys proved weak with the stick, netting four singles, which Dodge kept well scattered. But a single error was scored against P. H. S., while the Monos had five tallied against them.

OVER THE TEA CUPS.

Some people wash the hair with tar soap after an egg shampoo, but the plain egg is very cleansing and leaves the hair much softer than if soap is used with it.

Should the use of grease on the face have a tendency to produce superfluous hair it may be checked by mixing spirits of camphor with the grease or by occasionally rubbing it over the skin.

Frequent dusting saves sweeping. A room dusted often and thoroughly will not require such constant sweeping as one that is dusted carelessly and seldom.

SOME ODD STATISTICS OF THE ROMAN CHURCH

The "Official Catholic Directory" purports to give the statistics of the Roman Catholic communities in countries in which residents of the United States are supposed to be interested. The figures are returns from the chancery offices of the various dioceses and pretend to accuracy.

One scarcely looks for errors in such a carefully compiled volume. Take the diocese of Salt Lake as an illustration. The recapitulation says that there are twelve secular and nine religious priests in Bishop Scanlan's territory, which causes wonderment when it is gravely asserted that there are only twenty clergymen under his jurisdiction.

At first this might seem a typographical blunder, but all is made clear when the figures for the Canadian diocese of Saskatchewan are examined. There we are told that eleven seculars, plus fifty regular priests, give a total of sixty-two, and the clergyman lost in Utah is accounted for in the wheat belt.

Bishop McFaul takes pains to tell of the efforts made in his diocese to save the foreigners, particularly the Italians. In this city there is one Italian church with two priests. Even New York with its tremendous influx of Italians does not seem to have as many Italian stations as its New Jersey neighbor.

The figures for the Philippine Islands are pathetic. The diocese of Jaro, now vacant through the death of Bishop Rooker, has more Catholics than the archdiocese of New York, and 123 priests to carry on the religious labors. Some of the laymen could be transferred to some of the Canadian or Irish dioceses that seem overloaded with canons and deans things might be equalized. There are some striking contrasts nearer home. In the western part of Nevada which comprise the diocese of Salt Lake there are said to be 19,500 Catholics. According to Mormon statistics there are 45000 Gentiles in Salt Lake alone. It is difficult to believe, then, that the Catholic body is such a minority, particularly when one remembers the gorgeous cathedral, costing $1,000,000, which has just been opened under the shadow of the New Temple.

There is no Catholic daily newspaper printed in English in the United States, but there are eleven daily newsptpers in foreign tongues. O'Connor seems to be the most numerous of the clergy here, there being seventy-seven priests of that name. The Sullivans muster seventy, the Smiths have fifty five and the O'Connells thirty-four.

Chicago is strangely modest in this volume. She will not venture to say how many Catholics reside within her boundaries. The general summary gives the number as 1,200,000, the same as for New York, but whether this is just to the Windy City let the Chicagoans tell. It would seem that the New York with 894 priests might have a few more Catholics than Chicago with 631 priests, but this impression of the children in the parochial schools of the two archdioceses Chicago has more pupils in the city alone than New York in the whole district. Another surprising contrast in the *school enumeration is offered by com*paring the archdiocese of Boston with its suffragan see, Hartford. In both the number of grammar parochial schools is the same, seventy-five. Hartford is the habitat of the theological students it has scattered all over the world. It claims 150 young men in the seminaries of fourteen different nations, which affords illuminating testimony of the polyglot character of the Catholic population in Connecticut. With Springfield, Mass., Hartford again enjoys the distinction of possessing a "vigilance council," and these are the only dioceses that obeyed the papal injunction to create such a board.

Suppers and Sleep.

Should one sleep soon after meals? This is a question which the American Medicine answers by saying that if one has eaten heartily or heavy food he will best not sleep for two or three hours after eating. An old English saw runs, "After dinner sit awhile; after supper walk a mile." This being much like the older Latin saying, "Postepulas stabis vel passus mille meabis." In Italy, where meals are lighter than in the north of Europe, the saying prevails, "The supperless man, to bed early." With Anglo-Saxons think digestion halts during sleep. Much, however, depends, our medical contemporary thinks, on the kind of food eaten before sleeping. The aged man digests with difficulty, which fact is expressed in the Spanish proverb, "Who steals an old man's supper does him no wrong." But habit has much to do with the question of safety in eating on retiring, or not long before.—Baltimore Sun.

COSTLIER WOMEN'S HATS.

"Campaign" a Wonderful Affair, Is to Be All the Rage.

It will be larger. It will be spreading, sweeping, with enormous rolling brim, covered with fluffy laces and a cockade entwining the national colors. It is known as "mother's joy," but in commercial parlance is called the "campaign" hat. This is the latest creation of the milliners who are showmasters of the millinery association recently in session at Chicago. Pearl gray and blue are to be the fashionable shades. The hat is to be worn in the back of the head, with a large "rid" covering the hair beneath.

The presidential campaigns come high. So do the hats, and it is to be presumed that it is from this fact they derive the name. They will cost from $40 to $300.

A symposium of the views of the milliners as to 1908 styles, leaving out of consideration the "campaign" hats, shows the following forecasts:

Hats are to be chiefly trimmed with flowers, preferably roses.

Hats are to be more expensive than last year.

Hats with feathers are to be worn only on dress occasions.

Hats to be fashionable must be in gobelin blue, pale yellow and a shade of green or flame red.

While the "Merry Widow" sailor, with wide brim, is to be much worn.

Hats, it is declared, will range in prices from $10 to $150, with the average hat at about $25.

Understanding Poker.

The women believe that every man knows all about poker, but only a few men do. It is true, however, that nearly every man pretends to understand the game thoroughly. When the poker joke at a theatre all the men smile and look at their women folks with a sort of pity, but the fellows who smile know very little about the game and are afraid to play it for, in almost every little town, there is a club with chips and pairs there is a tin horn gambler industriously engaged in working chumps. The few men who really understand poker have a habit of winning the money of the men who pretend to understand it, so the large majority of men know nothing about the game further than that a good hand is hard to get.—Atcheson Globe.

TRULY A MAN OF GOD.

The death of the Rev. Dr. Erskine Mason Rodman Sunday has taken from Plainfield its best-loved citizen. No words of praise can fittingly characterize the wealth of esteem in which this venerable man has been held for decades by the people of this city irrespective of religious or other belief, as no one in the history of Plainfield has ever so endeared himself to the hearts of all classes of the people.

The noble dean's bright sunny temperament, his never-failing broadness of mind, and his ever-present kindliness of heart and spirit made him the trusted friend, the kind counselor, and the genial companion of all. In his affiliations with the ministers of churches other than his own he anticipated by many years the spirit of the present open pulpit of the great Episcopal Church, and the present pleasant relations of the various churches in Plainfield with each other is owing largely, to his broad-minded treatment of religious questions.

Grace Episcopal Church, to which he ministered for many years, grew under his guiding hand to be one of the leading churches in the State, and the many matters outside of work strictly religious to which he was ever ready to lend his aid evidenced his interest in humanity and the worth of his work here. He was the real founder and was the first president of Muhlenberg Hospital, which is but one of the many monuments of a noble man. Full of years, he was yet young; although retired from the active ministry, he was yet more active than many just entering the service; a churchman, but the warm-hearted friend and brother to all. His bright smile and never-failing good nature, his hearty hand-clasp and pleasant word were an inspiration and blessing.

All Plainfield mourns the death of Dr. Rodman, the well-beloved one who has gone to the House of Many Mansions.

AMUSEMENTS.

Every visitor to the Belasco theatre in New York comments on the wonderful realism which is shown in "The Warrens of Virginia" in the details regarding the condition of the Confederate army represented in the stirring drama of the Old Dominion. Contrasted with the rough and ready appearance of some of the Union leaders, shown in the first act, general interest is inspired in the ragged looks of the Confederates, who are reduced to the last stand, with every hope staked in the arrival of the relief train, which forms the nucleus of the dramatic action of the play. This gives Frank Keenan a rare opportunity as General Buck Warren to present a picturesque figure of the Confederate who, though driven to the last ditch, still maintains his good humor when he and the commander of the Union forces, comrades of the Mexican war, stand face to face and defy each other in the first act. Such harmony as is produced by the acting of Mr. Keenan and the atmosphere created by Belasco is to be witnessed only at a theatre under the direction of America's foremost play-wright-manager.

Broadway sat up and gasped when Sam Bernard proposed to give his five-year-old son Dick a birthday party on the stage, at the Casino theatre, but all New York applauded and hugged the little fellow in sympathy when father really did it. This was the first birthday party ever tagged to a regular theatrical performance. After the matinee of "Nearly A Hero" the circus went up again and there were Dick and fifty of his little friends, seated around a table loaded with the things that make children's stomachs shout for joy. The entire audience remained. Dick and his companions had their party without the least embarrassment, and the young man was fairly smothered in hugs and congratulations from people who went back of the stage at his invitation.

Lew Fields, in "The Girl Behind the Counter," at the Herald Square theatre, has just entered his three hundredth series of performances, with never-lessening interest. With more than two hundred actual performances, not counting special matinees, the English musical comedy triumph, adapted to the American stage by Mr. Fields and the Shuberts, is setting an enviable pace. Incidentally, life back of the curtain at the Herald Square often produces some interesting sidelights. They are telling a story now of how the short one in the comedy waiter scene appeared late for a matinee recently. He went to Mr. Fields, explaining that he had overslept himself. "Aw, go on!" exclaimed the comedian; "you're too sheepish to sleep long!" It was the unanswerable retort.

Otis Skinner, in "The Honor of the Family," is delighting throngs of New Yorkers at the Hudson theatre at every performance. Every now and then the hardened playgoer comes across a character portraiture, sometimes in a good play, sometimes in a bad one, that is so perfect in detail and so convincing in effect that one is bound to confess that acting is after all one of the arts. Such a performance is Otis Skinner's portrayal of the Napoleonic hero, Philippe Bridau, in the dramatization of "Menage de Garcon." To a generation that knows its Balzac and loves its Balzac, Mr. Skinner's impersonation of Bridau comes as a familiar friend. The courage, daring, ready wit and cool nerves of the man are here clearly pictured by the actor as they are by the novelist. It is a great performance and the actor responsible for it must rank high in his profession for scoring one of the decisive triumphs of the present theatrical season. As a matter of fact Otis Skinner's career as an actor has been a long series of notable achievements, in each case approaching perfection. Mr. Skinner is an artist in the fullest sense of the word.

From every point of dramatic and artistic novelty and excellence the engagement of the distinguished actress, Bertha Kalich, in "Marta of the Lowlands," at the Garden theatre, New York city, which began March 24, is one of the most important and interesting of the season's theatrical offerings. Under the direction of Harrison Grey Fiske, Madame Kalish in the very emotional character of the peasant girl, Marta, has met with unusual tributes of praise in every city of the present tour, the authoritative dramatic critics recognizing her as one of the greatest of the world's contemporary actresses. "Marta of the Lowlands" is considered to be the masterpiece of Angel Guimera, the foremost dramatist of Spain.

Bonita, the handsome star of Mortimer M. Theise's "Wine, Woman and Song," the attraction that made such a tremendous success at the Columbia theatre last season, has the honor of being the first to play the Queen of "Three Weeks." Of course the show at the American theatre is only a travesty, but it is original, and the audience shakes its sides in appreciation by continuous laughter while the skit is on the stage. It must be mentioned that Miss Bonita is assisted by Lew Hearn, the funny little sheriff, and a real "near tiger skin" (that is, if some tigers are spotted this one is O. K.). Miss Bonita looks the part of the Queen and Miss Glyn herself could not be otherwise than pleased at her appearance. The "Tiger Skin" would also come in for praise on the artistic manner in which it plays the "blinking" part. But the fair Elinor would surely garner all she saw Hearn and "her big blue eyed Paul." Far be it from us to intimate that Mr. Hearn has not the manly appearance of a regular Paul; but—It is a very bright bit of work; in fact one of the best bits of business that has been seen this season, and fits well in this show of original features.

Francis Wilson's tour in "When Knights Were Bold" has been so successful that Charles Frohman has extended the route until the end of June.

Charles Frohman has purchased from Madame Yvette Guilbert the English-speaking rights to the words and music of all her songs, for Hattie Williams' future use.

Charles Frohman has decided to establish Otis Skinner in a Repertoire Company next season. Besides "The Honor of the Family" Mr. Skinner will revive four of his former successes.

Ethel Barrymore's tour for next season has been so laid out as to enable her to accept an invitation to star in "As You Like It" out-of-doors in the Greek theatre of the University of California.

Charles Frohman announces Joseph Coyne and Alexandra Carlisle in Henry Hubert Davis' play, "The Mollusc," as the first bill at the Garrick theatre when the house re-opens early in September.

Hattie Williams has received the complete manuscript of "Fluffy Ruffles," her play for next season. On May 2 Miss Williams will sail for Paris, where it procure additional gowns for her new part.

Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, the coming of which is such a matter of great interest to young and old alike, is doing an unprecedented business at the Madison Square Garden, New York. There are circuses and circuses, but to the New Yorker Barnum & Bailey's circus is the only one in all of the world. New York loves huge things and so it loves its circus, which, by the way, is the only one that is annually seen in the Empire City. Big as has been the circus during the past, there are one hundred and ten acts. There are three hundred and fifty performers and they come from all corners of the earth. Twenty-seven different languages are spoken by the people on the roster.

The program offered at Proctor's Newark theatre during the week commencing April 6, will be headed by the two Gilfoil boys, Gilfoil in his initial performance of a gay old Boulevardier "Baron Sands," the gay old sport, who is not as "old as he looks but as old as he feels." W. C. Fields returns after a long absence with his comedy juggling act. Juggling act. Chris Richards, one of England's best comedians, is also booked. Barrows-Lancaster Company presents their laughable post bellum sketch "The Auction." Of special interest will be the appearance of J. N. Norcross and company in their turn representation of a refined up-to-date minstrel first part. Mr. Norcross is an old time resident of Newark. Hanson and Nelson, two prett looking misses appearing in a neat singing and dancing act. Madden and Fitzpatrick company will be seen in a slang classic entitled "The Turn of the Tide." The Four American Trumpeters will give a series of musical selections featuring a quartette finale on xylophones. New animated pictures.

As the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, Manager Counihan will present a big vaudeville bill, headed by May Ward and her "eight Dresden dolls," and George Thatcher, the minstrel man. Popular prices will prevail.

It is a matter of congratulation that in these days of Frenchified farces, when bedsteads and pajamas seem to be a necessary adjunct to create laughter, that an American farce constructed on legitimate lines, pure, clean and wholesome without the shadow of suggestiveness, has scored a greater triumph than any of the imported ones. This is the first season of "Two Jolly Companions," and we do not feel at all egotistical when we say that the play will last for many seasons to come. The scenes of the play are laid in and about New York city, and the characters of the people that we meet in every day life. Mr. Herman R. Rose has been especially engaged for the leading comedy role, and he will be ably assisted by an excellent acting and musical company. "The Two Jolly Companions" will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

STATE HEALTH REPORT

Of the 3,268 deaths reported to the State Bureau of Vital Statistics for the month ending March 15, 392 were caused by pneumonia, a decrease of 124 from the previous month; 265 were caused by diseases of the respiratory system (pneumonia and tuberculosis excepted); 344 from pulmonary tuberculosis; 402 from diseases of the heart and circulatory system; 407 from diseases of the nervous system. Bright's disease caused 228 deaths, suicide 46 and cancer 130.

During the month ending March 31, 514 samples were examined in the State Laboratory of Hygiene under the direction of the State Board of Health, of which 360 were above standard and 77 below standard.

SAFE HOME.

Safe home, safe home, with Jesus over there
On Canaan's blissful shore;
Beyond the sky, where all is bright and fair,
To rest for evermore.
The weary days, the restless nights are past,
The sufferings o'er, safe home, safe home at last.

Safe home, safe home, where saints and angels dwell,
Her soul has taken flight;
Away to fairer clime—no tongue can tell
O' what a glorious sight
Her eyes behold! Farewell, farewell—I'll wait
For my belov'd ones, near the pearly gate.

Safe home, safe home, the Jordan safely crossed
Where storms can never beat;
We follow, though a little longer tossed.
And then again we'll meet,
To walk the golden streets, sing songs of praise
Rehearse the sweetest story: "Saved by Grace."

Almost.

"Why, Bill, what in thunder—! I heard you were dead!"
"Nope. Only married."

BAD WEATHER FOR BASEBALL.

Base On Balls and Errors Plentiful On Crescent Oval In Cold Wind—First Regular Game.

Hampered by a heavy wind and a low temperature, which made good baseball impossible, the Plainfield High School nine defeated the DeWitt Clinton High School team, of New York, in an up-hill game on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The final score was 11-9, although the visitors had a lead of 8-2 in the sixth. It was the first regular game of the season for both nines.

Cold fingers made it impossible for the players to handle the ball at times, and slight errors were tallied against the local nine, while the visitors made five misplays. It was a bad day for the pitchers, Murphey, of the High School, fanning but four men, while eleven drew free passes. Thomas, the colored twirler of the visitors, gave fifteen passes and fanned six. The local nine got seven hits and Clinton four.

For the first seven innings looked hopeless for the local team. Saunders, two-bagger, with a couple of passes and some errors, gave Clinton four runs in the second, and they scored again in the third, and hammered in two more in the fourth. Dean's hit and some errors by Clinton started the scoring for the Plainfielders in the third, when two runs came in. Thomas weakened after the seventh, and the High School runs came in, three in the seventh, four in the eighth and the two necessary for the game in the ninth. Dutcher scored the winning run on Dey's hit, but a question as to the score continued the game until Van Zandt was forced home when Thomas passed Dodwell. The official summaries:

THE FARMER AND THE GUN.

There is no one article more necessary to the welfare of a farm than a good, reliable firearm. As a means of protection from prowling marauders, horse stealing, highwaymen, etc., and as an efficient remedy for the annoyance of crows and hawks that destroy the crops and damage the pasture, there is nothing to equal a shooting iron." It's the best argument the filler of the soil has for the invaders referred to, and they do not repeat their visit after one dose.

Both the farmer and the farmer's son have been spurred "to get a gun" by the campaign of education which the J. Stevens Arms & Tool Co., Chicopee Falls, Mass., makers of the celebrated Stevens firearms, are constantly waging in behalf of this logical weapon. Stevens rifles, pistols and shotguns are better than scarecrows, and any object struck by their bullets stays dead.

A natural evolution of the farmer and sportsman is the valued veteran shots that gave the British redcoats the tussle of their lives in '76. That's a point most people lose sight of in analyzing the reasons for the surrender at Yorktown.

Exhibition of Paintings.

Miss Caroline Minturn Hall, daughter of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, formerly of Madison avenue, has sent out invitations for an exhibition of paintings at the Women's Municipal League, 19 East Twenty-eighth street, New York, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week from 4 until 7 o'clock.

CHURCH 70 YEARS OLD

Seventh Day Baptists Celebrate Anniversary of Local Congregation's Beginning

AFTERNOON & NIGHT SESSIONS.

Election of Officers Part of Yesterday's Observances When All Committee Reported On Church Growth.

Celebrating the seventieth anniversary of the founding of the local Seventh-Day Baptist church, practically the entire congregation was present at the anniversary services held Sunday afternoon and evening at the church. The services began at 2:45 in the afternoon, when Rev. H. Lewis, former pastor of the church, officiated at simple devotional exercises. At 6 o'clock the afternoon session concluded, when supper was served to about 150 of the parishioners. A feature of the gathering was the greeting read by David E. Titsworth, chairman of the general committee, from the retiring pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw, now in charge of a pastorate at North Loup, Nebraska, and from the pastor-elect, Rev. Edwin Shaw, who assumes charge of the local church July 1. Mr. Titsworth also read communications from absent members of the community, among them a letter from Mrs. Mary Ann Rogers, of Horseheads, N.Y., who is the only surviving constituent member of the local church.

The officers of the church for the coming year were elected at the afternoon session. William M. Stillman was re-elected trustee for a term of five years, and the other elections are these: Asa F. Randolph, church clerk; William M. Stillman, treasurer; G. E. Stillman, assistant treasurer; Arthur L. Titsworth and C. H. Dunham, auditors; D. E. Titsworth, chorister; Miss Jessie L. Titsworth, organist. The ushers elected were Arthur J. Spicer, George M. Clark, Charles F. Neagle, F. Rollin Williams, Milton St. John, Raymond Burdick, Arthur B. Titsworth and Roland Davis. W. C. Hubbard and Miss Mildred Green were elected to the canvassing committee and the entertainment committee will comprise W. C. Hubbard, Dr. M. C. Clawson and George Clark.

John B. Cottrell acted as chairman of the business session, when reports of the trustees, treasurer and various committees were received. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield public schools, as secretary of the trustees, recommended a building be erected on the church lot for the use of the ensuing year, and the report of Treasurer William M. Stillman showed the church to be on a firm financial basis.

During supper phonograph selections were rendered on Arthur Spicer's instrument. A committee from the women's Christian Endeavor Society of the church was in charge of the supper, including Mrs. I. N. West, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. W. B. Gamble, Mrs. L. Titsworth, Mrs. A. L. Rogers, Miss M. T. Green and Miss Elizabeth Dunham. The evening session was opened by devotional exercises at which Dr. Theodore L. Gardiner officiated and Theodore G. Davis sang a bass solo, "Vesper Prayer." David E. Titsworth gave a summary of the year's work in the church and the various societies, and various questions of denominational and church government were discussed.

The general committee in charge of the anniversary consisted of David E. Titsworth, chairman, J. D. Spicer, Mrs. J. E. Kimball, Mrs. C. M. Burdick and Miss Mildred Green.

PASTOR LOSES PULPIT FOR JOINING THE ELKS.

It is a sad offense in Pine Plains, New York, among some of the church folk, at least, to belong to the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The order may be all right for actors, lawyers, physicians and others, but the Pine Plains Baptists won't have an Elk for their pastor. By a majority of three they have just requested the resignation of the Rev. Meredith V. Jacobs because he joined Poughkeepsie Lodge of Elks, although warned beforehand by his anti-Elk parishioners to keep out of the order.

The Rev. Mr. Jacobs has learned, as he will be lot about how little the Pine Plains Baptists know about the Elks. He arrived in the village a year ago and soon afterward joined Poughkeepsie lodge. Influential leaders of his flock told him the Elks sold liquor. He denied it, and steps were taken to depose him. The opportunity came when he visited ruler George Kennedy, of Poughkeepsie lodge, which has three hundred and fifty members, appointed the Rev. Mr. Jacobs chaplain. Straightway the dominie was asked to resign, and when he refused a meeting was called and after a heated session the congregation divided, and a motion to ask him to resign was carried by a majority of three. The Rev. Mr. Jacobs has submitted his resignation, to take effect July 1. Representations have been made to him that if he will give up the Elks his congregation will reinstate him.

ANNUAL BUDGET $139,890

City Fathers Pass on Second Reading Finance Committee's Appropriations.

SOME BIG ITEMS INCLUDED.

Fire Police and Street Departments Get Large Lumps—$15,000 For the Street Lights.

The finance committee, of which Councilman Herbert Button is the chairman, presented the annual ordinance at the April meeting of the Common Council Monday, showing that the total amount to be raised during the coming year is $139,890.

The report as presented follows:

"Your finance committee, after carefully considering the estimates furnished by the various committees, have determined that the amount necessary to be raised by taxation to be the sum of $129,890, distributed as follows:

For general fund, $50,000; (which includes $30,000 for the improvement of streets); for electric lights, $15,250; for principal on sewer bonds, $6,000; for interest on sewer bonds, $10,592; for support of the city poor, $8,000 (which includes the sum of $1,500 for support of indigent patients at Muhlenberg Hospital; for maintenance of the public library and reading rooms, $7,500; for maintenance of the fire department, $13,000 (which includes hydrant bill for the last quarter of 1907, $1,220.55, and claim of Wyman & Haberle for improvements of No. 1 engine house on West Second street, $1,385.25, and other sundry bills amounting to about $250, carried over from last year); for interest on school bonds, $5,440; for principal on school bonds maturing this year, $1,000; for the care of shade trees on the highways, $2,200; total, $129,890.

"Estimating that the amount required for schools and the amount of the county, State and school tax will not exceed what was levied in 1907, the total amount to be raised by tax will be about the same as last year."

The ordinance was read twice and ordered advertised.

MYGATT CALLS HALT ON COUNCILMANIC METHODS

The action of Councilman Ghost, chairman of the street committee, in endeavoring to obtain the passage of an ordinance at the April meeting of the Common Council, Monday, calling for the permanent improvement of certain streets, brought forth a protest from Mr. Mygatt on the grounds that such ordinances were passed too heastily, no opportunity being given to change them after the adoption on second reading.

During the lively debate between the two members, Mr. Ghost said that the ordinance was drafted by Corporation Counsel Marsh and having been considered, in his opinion, should be passed. Mr. Mygatt contended that while he was a member of the street committee, he knew nothing about the ordinance and doubted whether the other members of the body were aware of its provisions. He took a firm stand for the principle involved and finally won his point by having the ordinance laid on the table. The point was raised that after an ordinance is read for the first time it should be laid on the table for a time and each member of the body should be furnished with a copy so that he may vote intelligently.

The ordinance called for the improvement of North, Garland, Nelson, Wood and Clinton streets, West Eighth and West Third street and Clinton avenue, and contained a provision for the issuance of $20,000 worth of municipal bonds, of $1,000 denomination each, payable within thirty years. Ghost and Buxton were the only two members to vote against laying the ordinance on the table.

A TRIBUTE.

Plainfield, April 5, 1908.

In the death of Dean Rodman, Plainfield mourns one of its oldest and best beloved citizens. For many years he has gone in and out among us, loved and respected by all. Always cheerful and kind, he was particularly attentive in times of sickness and death. It mattered not to him in bereavement, whether the departed was a member of the communion to which our friend belonged, he was ever ready to render his services. He died full of years and honors, and we very truly say of him that he fought a good fight, kept the faith and finished his course.

"Now the laborer's task is o'er;
Now the battle day is past;
Now upon the farther shore
Lands the voyager at last.
Father, in thy glorious keeping
Leave we now Thy servant sleeping."

WEST END GETS SCHOOL?

Board of Education Likely to Erect $50,000 Building near Clinton Ave. and Front St.

FOR FIRE PROOF STRUCTURE.

New Bids Are to Be Received For Darrow Avenue School House to Cost $90,000.

When the Board of School Estimate meets in the last part of May the Plainfield Board of Education will ask for approximately $50,000 for the erection of a school building in the west end section, north of the railroad tracks. The persistent and reasonable agitation for better school accommodation for the section west of Grant avenue and north of the railroad tracks has promoted the Board, it is said, to plan the erection of a building in the vicinity of Clinton avenue and West Front street.

At the meeting of the Board of Education at the Plainfield High School Monday, considerable time was spent in consideration of sketches for six and eight room buildings, and it has been decided to erect a school of this size. The plan of the new building, which, with the Darrow avenue school will give ample accommodations for the pupils in the west end, is to be such that it can easily be enlarged to twelve or more rooms as the number of pupils increases.

Conservative in the matter of expense, the Board decided last night that sufficient foresight should be used to secure a building which can be used for many years, and enlarged to suit increasing needs. It is essential that such a building be fireproof, and with this in mind, the Board will ask for an appropriation of between $45,000 and $50,000. This will be entirely expended in the erection of a six or eight room building, which will be so constructed as to allow for enlargement.

Charles F. Abbott, chairman of the building committee of the Board, has been especially active in the consideration of the new building, and it has been through him that sketches have been prepared for the ground plan of the new primary school building.

Because the bids for the proposed Darrow avenue school were all too high for the appropriation of $90,000, it was decided at the meeting last night, to re-advertise for bids, making certain changes in the plans and specifications. The bids opened several weeks ago showed the lowest to be $106,000, so that the building committee has revised the plans for the new school to cut down the cost about $15,000. The bids for this school will be opened at the special meeting of the Board to be held Monday, April 27.

MISS CAMPBELL TALKS ON "THE IMMIGRANT"

The consideration of "Problems of American Life," the subject of study chosen by the members of the Monday Afternoon Club for the rest of the season, was opened Monday by an interesting lecture on "The Immigrant" by Miss J. M. Campbell, of Passaic, at the meeting held at the Casino. Miss Campbell, with two other commissioners, was appointed by Governor Stokes in 1907 to investigate and report on the subject of immigration in New Jersey.

Beside the large number of European and Slavonic nationalities in the cities and towns of the State, Miss Campbell said there were 1,500 Chinese and Japanese, and a Jewish municipality unlike any other in the world. This vast incoming population she classed as a rude, docile, industrious and law respecting, but received by us only with tolerance. When it should be the aim of the State to advance their virtues and utilize the many good qualities they bring with them "immigration," she said, "was no ground for distress. Some one had said if America there were only two things native here, Indians and buffaloes. So the citizen of longer standing should be patient and helpful to the new comer." Miss Campbell asked pertinently, what would become of us without immigration as most of the farmers were our miners, agriculturists and manufacturers. She thought it easier to teach the foreigner our ways than to teach an American the dignity of labor.

REV. ERSKINE M. RODMAN GOES TO HIS REWARD; ALL PLAINFIELD MOURNS LOSS OF A MAN OF GOD

Rev. E. M. Rodman.

Rev. Dr. Erskine Mason Rodman, dean of the Plainfield clergy and rector-emeritus of Grace church, died suddenly at his home on East Seventh street shortly before noon Sunday. The end came while the congregation to which he had ministered for thirty-eight years was at morning prayer and the sad news was conveyed to the members of the parish by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevens. The service was interrupted while the people, nearly all of whom had been baptised or married by the departed rector, offered up a prayer.

The death of Dr. Rodman came as a great surprise as he had been enjoying his customary health and activity until Thursday. Then, for the first time, he complained of heart trouble but the manner in which it was manifest caused his family and friends no especial alarm. It was thought yesterday morning early that he was improving and this information was imparted to those who inquired about him on the way to church. The sinking spell that resulted in death began at 11:30 and in less than half an hour he had passed away.

Rev. Dr. Erskine Mason Rodman was born seventy-eight years ago in the Greenwich village section of New York city. His father was Washington H. Rodman, a vestryman in St. Luke's church. It was in this parish that Erskine Rodman was reared. As a boy he was quick to learn and he entered Columbia College when he was sixteen years old, graduating with the class of 1850 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The honorary degree of M. A. was conferred upon him by the same college in 1856. He prepared for priest's orders in the Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Va. He was ordained a deacon by Bishop Meade in 1854 and one year later was admitted to the priesthood by Bishop Johns, of Virginia.

Dr. Rodman's first charge was at Meckleburg, Goochland county, Va., and while there he married Miss Nannie Selden, of Powhattan county. She died in 1868, leaving one son, Randolph Rodman, now residing at South Orange. Dr. Rodman left Mecklenberg to become rector of Christ church, Norfolk, Va., where he remained seven years. He was there before and during the war of the rebellion and while the conflict was on he served as chaplain in General Longstreet's corps of the Confederate army.

His next charge after Norfolk was at St. Peter's church, Peekskill, N. Y., and shortly after becoming rector he married his second wife, the widow of Miss Sarah Wickham Sharpe, of Goshen, N. Y. She died in this city in April 1905. By this union there were two daughters of whom one is surviving, Miss Mary Wickham Rodman, of this city.

Leaving St. Peter's church, Dr. Rodman became secretary of the Episcopal Board of Missions and continued in that capacity four years, resigning to accept the rectorship of Grace church, this city, in November, 1870. The parishioners at that time worshipped in a frame structure at East Front and Richmond streets. This structure was afterward removed to Sixth and Sycamore streets where it was used as a parish house after a new church building had been erected at Seventh and Sycamore, cornerstone of the present Grace church was laid in 1884. He continued to serve until 1902 when he was made rector-emeritus.

Dr. Rodman in Plainfield was one of continual activity and he endeared himself to everyone in the city. While ministering to the wants of his parishoners he was always ready to do a kindly act elsewhere and it was seldom that he was called upon that he did not respond immediately. He was the first president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, and was the father of that institution which was originally an Episcopal church charity, and was one of the founders of the Ministers' Association and at the time of his death was president of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. He was a member of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, and Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum. He was chaplain of Anchor lodge.

STRAY SPARK FIRES BARN; LOSS OF $600 FOLLOWS.

A barn belonging to R. B. VanArsdale and situated in the rear of his home at 426 Orchard place, caught fire Monday morning and was badly damaged. An alarm was turned in from box 46 at 10:48 and the fire department put in an hour extinguishing the flames. Two streams of water were used.

The blaze was in the hay mow when first discovered and was evidently started by a spark blowing from some debris burning nearby. The building is of brick and frame construction and the burning was slow, thus enabling the firemen to keep the flames confined to the upper part. A lot of mantels and tiling material stored on the first floor and these were somewhat damaged.

The loss is placed at $600, covered by insurance.

METHODIST PREACHERS IN THE LOCAL PULPITS

Methodist ministers in this city for the conference preached at services in the local churches Sunday morning and evening. Music was a special feature at most of the churches and the congregations were unusually large.

Taking for his topic "The Two Lives," Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, pastor of the Centenary Methodist church, of Newark, addressed a mass meeting of men at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium yesterday afternoon. Illustrating his topic by the story of Nicodemus, the speaker emphasized the saving value of strong development of the moral and spiritual man as well as the physical body. Nelson A. Miller led the singing, and there was a violin solo by Martin A. Korff, leader of the association orchestra.

Rev. Dr. Robert S. Young, another of the Methodist ministers in conference here, addressed the mass meeting of the boys' department at the same time in the boys' room of the association. He spoke on "The Making of Man." He spoke of the value of developing the sterling qualities of character in youth, using Abraham Lincoln as a model young man of character. Phillip VanArsdale led the singing at the meeting.

Rev. Dr. William J. Morgan, pastor of the Central Methodist church, Newark, preached at the morning service at Trinity Reformed church Sunday. His text was from Acts 26: 19, "Wherefore, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision," and the discourse was a powerful one. In the evening, the sermon was by Rev. Dr. Warren L. Hoagland, pastor of the Park church, East Orange, who spoke from the text "These things I speak in the world that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves," found in John 17: 13. Dr. E. P. Johnson, pastor of the church, officiated at both morning and evening services, which were largely attended.

Other local pulpits were supplied as follows:

Crescent Avenue church, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, morning; Rev. George W. Smith, evening. First Presbyterian church, Rev. D. F. Diefendorf, morning; Rev. Samuel Jones, evening. First Baptist church, Rev. N. W. Clark, morning; Rev. Dr. Richardson, evening. Congregational church, Rev. G. C. Wilding, morning; Rev. W. E. Palmer, evening. Park Avenue Baptist church, Rev. C. S. Ryman, morning; Rev. C. L. Mead, evening. Grace M. E. church, Rev. A. H. Tuttle, morning. Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Rev. A. H. Hayes, morning; Rev. W. B. Fleming, evening. Hope chapel, Rev. H. E. Lytle, morning; Rev. M. W. Womer, evening. Faith chapel, Rev. R. W. Lake, morning; Rev. Alfred Yoe man, evening. Warren chapel, Rev. J. H. Tunbnell, evening. A. M. E. Zion, Rev. W. C. Kinsey, evening. Y. W. C. A., Rev. H. A. Buttz, afternoon. W. C. T. U., Fletcher Gariss, afternoon. Plainfield Rescue Mission, Rev. C. H. Powers, evening. Salvation Army Hall, Rev. Thomas Hall, evening.

Mountain Fires Threaten Property.

Brush fires on the mountain in the vicinity of Scotch Plains threatened the houses of several residents near Johnson's Drive Saturday afternoon, when the flames, driven by the high wind, spread rapidly. A dozen men went into the woods at nightfall and beat out the fire, before it had done damage to out-buildings. Much valuable timber was burned.

Communion at Marconnier.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated at Marconnier chapel yesterday morning, when Rev. J. T. Lansdale, the pastor, acted as celebrant. Mrs. Bertha E. VanCourt, wife of W. E. VanCourt, was received as a member on confession, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Schenck were received by letter. Elder A. L. Force and Deacon William R. Kriney, of Trinity Reformed church, assisted the pastor by distributing the elements of the sacrament. Dr. Lansdale's sermon was on "Faith, Hope and Love," as qualities resulting from regularly attending the communion service.

GET-TOGETHERS HONOR FREEHOLDER 'SAM' WILBUR

Saturday was the birthday anniversary of Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, and twenty-three members of the "Get-together-Club," the "Ames Corner" of the local Republican camp, called on him unexpectedly at his home on Westervelt avenue in the evening. The "Get-togethers" bore with them a handsome silk umbrella, which was presented to the Freeholder by former Mayor James F. Bickle. The evening was passed with songs and music, and refreshments were served at midnight.

In accordance with a custom which he has observed for the past fourteen years, Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, dined with Mr. Wilbur on his birthday night. Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Aatham, of Baltimore, and Miss Mabel Willet, of Westfield, were also at the dinner.

Doorkeeper "Aleck" Ayres, of the "Get-togethers," wishes it to be understood that he will have a birthday this year.

SPLIT MAN'S SCALP IN AN UNPROVOKED ASSAULT

Angered because he had been "kidded" over missing an easy shot in a pool game at Blimm's hotel, Saturday afternoon, William H. Bohl struck James Calloway, of the borough, a terrific crack on he head with the butt end of a cue. The impact was so great that Calloway's scalp was split open and the weapon used was broken in three pieces. The injured man was rendered partially unconscious and did not fully revive until he had been taken to Dr. Hughes' office and cared for.

Bohl left the place immediately after the assault but was arrested later by Detective-Sergeant Flynn and was arraigned in the city court Monday. Calloway attended the session with his head swathed in bandages and his counsel, S. S. Swackhamer, asked for an adjournment until Saturday morning. The reasons he gave led Judge Runyon to grant the request. It is understood that Calloway will begin a civil suit against Bohl and the result will depend upon the outcome of the assault charge.

Men who were in the hotel at the time and who saw the blow struck say it was entirely unprovoked and that Bohl would have fared badly at the hands of Calloway's friends but for his leaving in a hurry.

KEELY HAS "REP"—THAT'S WHY BUNDY BACKED AWAY

John E. Keely, a contractor, of East Seventh street, appeared in the city court, Monday, as complainant against Henry Bundy, colored, who he alleged had assaulted him in the yard at his home, yesterday morning, following an argument over a money matter. There was no doubt in anybody's mind but what Keely had been given what is commonly known as a "trimmings" as he had a most artistically damaged face to prove it but Judge Runyon found it a hard matter to decide who was to blame for the fracas. Bundy claimed that Keely attacked him and he only defended himself while the complainant asserted the colored man had struck the first blow.

In the course of his testimony, Bundy said he had gone to Keely's place to get paid for a harness he had sold him and that a dispute arose over the amount because he had failed to return a horse clipping machine which he borrowed. It ended by Keely ordering Bundy off the premises and the colored man said he started to "back away." When asked why he proceeded in this manner he replied:

"Well, Keely has a reputation of telling men to clear out and then planting his foot against them when they turn. I made up my mind he wasn't going to catch me napping; that's why I backed."

Bundy also said that Keely hit him on the side of the head as he was going away and he struck back in self-defence.

"After I was out of the yard," continued the defendant, "Keely threw big rocks at me and if his aim hadn't been poor I'd have had a crushed skull."

The case was adjourned until Saturday morning to allow Bundy to procure witnesses he said had been near at hand. Councilman William Gloak and John Gill were on the premises at the time but neither saw who struck the first blow.

BANKER GILBERT'S TALK

Former Mayor Addresses Massachusetts Institute on the Financial Situation.

DWELLS ON CENTRAL BANK.

Plainfielder in Speech at Springfield Is Optimistic—The Evils of a Central Bank.

Before Springfield Chapter of the American Institute of Bankers, at Springfield, Mass., the other night, former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of the New York Clearing House, gave a talk on the times in finance, touching incidently on the central bank idea which has been so much agitated.

In part Mr. Gilbert said:

"Great changes have taken place in the history of the world during the past ten years. Whilst we have been working out our own small problems in small and circumscribed environment, the Orient and Africa, with more than one-half of the world's population, have been opened up to western civilization, the age of electricity has been ushered in, with its multiple uses of power and cost per and steel. The age of the automobile, and big battleships, stop and think of how much costly material and labor the world has been expending for these things, and the multiplex improvements, too,—old cities are being torn down and rebuilt—and the wonderful expansion of railroads, which during my own lifetime, in our country alone, have increased more than 200,000 miles in trackage, and which owing to ever increasing traffic and the necessity for heavier locomotives and larger cars, require to be renewed every few years. The mineral production of the world shows the same amazing expansion. Consider what an impulse these things alone have given to the demand for material things of life.

"The demand for the material things of life has been doubled during the past fifteen years; the world at large has felt the impulse of this quickened demand and experienced a prolonged period of business prosperity. In our own country during the past seven or eight years the value of farm lands alone has advanced fully 8000 millions of dollars, and the value of farm products proportionately. Arid and semi-arid, and swamp lands have been redeemed, and today are filing up rapidly with a new population, and distributing throughout the markets of the world the agricultural and industrial products of this newly developed area. Our farmers have grown rich, they are no longer satisfied with the common necessities of life, but demand a share of the luxuries as well.

"Our manufacturers have shown the same amazing growth; the product of 1907 expressed in dollars being at least 5000 millions greater than in 1900, and our foreign commerce 1000 millions greater, and until the recent panic burst upon us our industrial masses were in the highest state of prosperity ever experienced in our history. I wish that my vision was broad enough to take in all of the remarkable changes that have occurred in the world's development during the past decade, but the few I have suggested will enable you to understand better some of the causes which are responsible for the period of prosperity which so recently and so disastrously was brought to a close. Why was it brought to a close? Why could it not have gone on? What was there lacking in our business system or our financial system that we could not prevent excess?

"This brings up an interesting question. What caused the panic? Nearly every business man who does any serious thinking has his own theory—the consequence is we have among the many assigned causes—overcapitalization, overtrading, speculation, too much prosperity, lack of capital, defective currency system, indiscreet utterances of the president, combined with the aggressive policies for reform. Now you can make your own selection—you may choose from the number the provocative which is most inharmony with your own theory. A diagnosis which would come nearest the truth, however, would probably suggest the grouping of all of these assigned causes together under one expressive title, namely, excess. Excess not in one department alone, not confining itself to any particular line of business, but excess which has gradually eaten its way into our whole business life during the past eight or ten years of remarkable national development and prosperity. Every panic through which I have passed during my banking life has been the product of excess.

"The American people in their business affairs seem inclined to excess. They cannot stand too much prosperity. In this respect they seem different from other people, which may be accounted for in this way—we inhabit a country of vast and unexplored resources—opportunities for acquiring wealth are great, business men feel that they ought to get rich in a few years, and they steam up to the full limit of their business energy and their business credit in their effort to accomplish this one thing. This always leads to excess—it led to excess in 1907, and bankers saw the signs of panic and discussed the probability of it a year and a half before the panic came, and it is because we are prone to excess in our business life that panics become necessary, to prevent our going to too great excess, to compel us to stop, to force us about to face the other way and let the great law of compensation and readjustment work out for us a restoration to normal conditions.

"Grand old bank of England! How I wish it were possible to have such a bank here. Why not? We are told that this country is too large—that because a central bank works well in England, France or Germany it furnishes no criterion for the United States with many times the territorial area of either of them. We are told that this country politics would dominate a great central bank. Are we willing to confess that we lack the wisdom to select and appropriate from the world's best systems the principles which work so admirably to prevent the serious financial disturbances which are so prevalent with us?

Must we confess that we are unable to formulate a plan by which politics could be kept out of a great central bank? I cannot believe it. We may not be able to agree upon a central bank, but sooner or later we must agree upon a system which will enable us to utilize our reserve fund whenever it shall become necessary. Why should there ever be a suspension of a panic suspension of cash payments with a thousand millions of lawful money locked up in the bank vaults of the country?"

MR. MOTT NAMED AND CONFIRMED

Trenton, April 7.—Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott, of Essex county, who was appointed by Chief Judge Gummere to fill the office temporarily owing to the death of Prosecutor Henry Young, was confirmed by the Senate last night, his name having been sent in by Governor Fort for the permanent appointment.

When Mr. Mott, who was Assistant Prosecutor under Mr. Young, was named for the office objection was made on the ground that he was not a counsellor at law, having never taken the necessary examinations. The answer of Governor Fort was that he had looked into the matter and that as the Prosecutor is constitutional officer the statute requiring that he must be a counsellor could not operate against him, and that if he deemed it wise the Governor could actually appoint a layman to the position.

Upon the sending of the name of Mr. Mott to the Senate last night it developed that in order to remove any possible friction over the matter Mr. Mott took the required examinations for counsellors last week. He passed them easily, and yesterday his commission was sent to Newark from Trenton. Early last night he went to the house of Chief Judge Gummere, in Newark, and was sworn in as a counsellor at law, thus removing all technical objection to his appointment.

Baked Apples With Nuts.

Peel and core the apples, then place in a deep pan, allowing a chapping tablespoonful of sugar and half a cup of water to each apple. In the centre of each apple place a tablespoon of chopped nuts and a strip of lemon or orange peel, and over the whole sprinkle cinamon and nutmeg. Bake very slowly and the juice will become jelly-like.

POPULISTS' TICKET WATSON AND WILLIAMS

All that W. J. Bryan's friends were able to save from the wreck of fusion, in the People's Party national convention, which yesterday nominated Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, for President, and Samuel W. Williams, of Indiana, for Vice President, was the State of Nebraska, his home, and Minnesota, the latter represented by only one delegate.

George A. Honnecker, of Jersey City, was the permanent chairman of the convention.

The convention practically reaffirmed the Omaha platform. The first plan adopted is for the issuance of money direct by the government to the people without the intervention of banks, to be distributed through Federal and internal improvement. The idea of distribution was backed on by Jacob S. Coxey. Other planks adopted follow:

Public ownership of railroads and other public utilities; homesteading of land; parcels post; governmental regulation of corporations by a general law regulating corporations do[illegible] an interstate business; initiative and referendum; direct vote for all public officers with the power of recall; federal statute recognizing the principle of the initiative and referendum; giving the people power of instructing their national representatives in Congress; abolition of child labor; eight-hour day; employers' liability laws; condemns federal injunctions and gambling on futures.

The New Jersey members of the new national committee are:

Jacob R. Klein, Jersey City; James Edgarton, Ridgewood; George A. Honnecker, Jersey City.

PRODDED PANTHER SPRINGS ON KEEPER.

Animal Fearfully Tears Man's Leg Before Beaten Off With a Heavy Club.

While transferring a large panther to a cage in the menagerie at Hillside Park, Belleville, Saturday, Samuel Alexander, a keeper, was attacked by the animal and had his right leg torn from the knee to the ankle.

When he men shoved a box containing the panther against the cage the animal refused to move and was prodded with a bar.

Enraged, the panther sprang into the cage and upon Alexander, who stood close to the cage. Herman Schmitt, fellow keeper, went to Alexander's assistance and drove the panther off with a heavy club. Alexander probably will lose his leg.

Letters Answering Tempting Offers of Employment Lead to Arrest of Atlantic City Man.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 6.—Promises, in advertisements, of pleasant places, with good pay, in resort hotels and cottages, brought to William Blackledge hundreds of letters. He was prospering until the victims of his promises wrote to the police here.

Seventy-five of these letters from Philadelphia and interior towns of Pennsylvania, covering an area from Harrisburg to Pittsburg, led to his arrest and release upon bail. The police say some of the letters were pitiful and the agent collected from $1 to $15 for his promise to place the writers. He was arrested under a special State law, passed a year ago, regulating employment bureaus. Blackledge is to have a hearing Tuesday before the Recorder.

MRS. JOHN F. DRYDEN ROBBED.

Wife of Erstwhile New Jersey Senator Accuses Footman of Taking $1,350 Watch.

Washington, D. C., April 6.—Accused of stealing an open face watch, the back of which was studded with diamonds, attached to a triangular diamond studded chatelaine, from Mrs. John F. Dryden, wife of the one time Senator Dryden, of New Jersey, Alonzo Harris, a negro footman, twenty-five years old, was held in $2,000 bail in the police court Saturday.

The watch and chatelaine are valued at $1,350. They have not been recovered by the police. Mrs. Dryden appeared in court as the chief witness against Harris.

The robbery is alleged to have occurred on March 7, while Mrs. Dryden was calling on Mrs. John Dalzell, wife of Representative Dalzell, of Pennsylvania.

BAYONNE SCHOOL VACATION.

Officials Grant Easter Week—Teachers Said to Be Underpaid.

Bayonne public schools will remain closed during Easter week. This was decided by the Board of Education today, and the pupils and teachers are elated.

That Bayonne pays some of its teachers too small salaries was declared yesterday by the superintendent, Mr. Christie. He recommended to the Board of Education that the salary schedule be revised, and said that the city has difficulty in obtaining teachers, especially for the high school, because other cities pay larger salaries.

An entertainment and dance will be given at the Casino by Benovolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., next Wednesday night.

The lady was leaving after making a call, and stopped a moment to chat with the small daughter of the house on the lawn.

"Are those your two little brothers over there by the swing, Dorothy?" she asked.

"Yes," replied the little girl slowly. "I mean they are my two half brothers." There was a longer pause, and then she added musingly, "And I think I'd rather have one whole brother than two halves."—Woman's Home Companion.

HELD FOR DOBBINS MURDER.

Negress Identifies Somers and Schmels As His Assailants.

Jersey City, April 6.—John Somers and Christian Schmels were held without bail for the Grand Jury in the First Criminal Court Saturday on a charge of slaying Martin Dobbins last Sunday night.

Fanny Bee testified that she saw Somers strike the blow that felled Dobbins. George Wesselhoef and August Metzger, the companions of Somers and Schmels, who made statements to Captain Larkins to the effect that they followed Somers and Schmels on the morning of the assault and heard a thud, supposedly of a man falling, repeated their stories.

Assemblyman Joseph Tumulty and Alexander Simpson appeared for the prisoners. Acting upon their advice the prisoers declined to make any statements. Mrs. Bee was held in $1,000 bail as a witness, and Wesselhoef and Metzger in $500 each.

GAME WARDENS WARNED.

State Board Prohibits Them Acting as Guides to Gunners.

Trenton, April 6.—The State Fish and Game Commission has sent out circular letters to all of the deputy game wardens of the State warning them that they are not to act as guides for private gunning parties or otherwise serve private interests on public or private game preserves.

It is intimated that the wardens are appointed for the purpose of protecting game and enforcing the law rather than to assist in any way in the wholesale slaughter of game.

APPROVES THE PLAN FOR $60,000,000 SUBWAY.

New York, April 6.—The proposition to build a new subway from the battery to the Bronx under Broadway and Lexington avenue to cost $60,000,000, was approved by the Board of Estimate Saturday. The board adopted a resolution calling on the Public Service Commission to submit forms of contracts for digging the new subway.

Mayor McClellan and Comptroller Metz opposed the action on the ground that the city will not be able to secure the funds necessary to begin the work.

SNOW THE INCENDIARY.

That's How Amateur Sleuths Explain Jersey City Fire.

Jersey City, April 6.—Amateur sleuths think they have discovered the author of the fire which destroyed the woodshed in the rear of 234 Duncan avenue Thursday night.

It was Snow. In the flurry at about 8 p. m. they say flakes dropped into a small heap of unslaked lime lying close to the shed. The police, however, are looking for a human incendiary.

HIS OWN SURGEON.

Mt. Holly Man Cuts Bullet from His Leg With Penknife.

George Henry, living near Mount Holly, acted as his own surgeon, not having money to pay one, and extracted a bullet from his leg with his penknife. He then poured salt water into the wound to prevent blood poisoning.

The accident happened while he was cleaning a revolver, which was discharged in some way unknown.

Recommends Receivership.

Vice-Chancellor Howell Saturday filed at Trenton an opinion recommending the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the United States Independent Telephone Company. The company, according to the bill of complaint recently filed with the court, was capitalized at $50,000,000 and has no assets, with liabilities amounting to about $13,500,000. The company is a New Jersey corporation, doing business in New York, and similar proceedings have been instituted in that State.

Glee Club Concert.

Plans are being perfected for a glee club concert, under the direction of Mrs. H. L. De Forest, chairman of the music committee of the Young Women's Christian Association and of Mr. Holmes, who has had charge of the glee club in that institution for the past ten ten weeks. The concert is to be given in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening, May 5. Out of town talent and local musical talent of a very high order has been secured to assist the glee club.

Hires Foreign Lawyer.

Perth Amboy, April 4.—The Board of Water Commissioners has employed a New York lawyer to draft the form of bond for the $100,000 issue for the extension of its water system. President Clark of the board said few New Jersey lawyers can prepare bonds that will pass in New York State.

Rubber Plant to Resume.

New Brunswick, April 6.—Superintendent James Deshler, of the United States Rubber Company, announced Saturday that the big plant of the company here, which has been shut down for a long time, will be reopened on full time this week.

—A spring class in embroidery will be organized at the Young Women's Christian Association on Wednesday evening, April 8. The course will include the popular white work of all kinds, instruction being individual. The course will continue for eight weeks at a very nominal cost.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 12, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Temperance meeting. Lessons from the life of John B. Gough.—II Sam. xxii, 17-27.

John Bartholomew Gough, one of the world's greatest temperance orators, was born at Sandgate, Kent county, England, Aug. 22, 1817. His father was a soldier and had served in the peninsular war, for which he received a pension. His mother was a village schoolmistress. When but twelve years of age Gough came to America, where he first worked on a farm in Oneida county, N. Y. In 1831 he went to New York city and was employed in the binding department of the Methodist Book Concern. He was a member of the Methodist church. He lost this position through dissipated habits, and his means of livelihood came from singing and dancing in low grogshops. He was married in 1839, but his habits became worse. Through drink and delirium tremens he was reduced to poverty and probably through them caused the death of his wife and child. Through the influence of a Quaker he was led to attend temperance meetings and signed the pledge. He soon afterward decided to give his life to the temperance cause. He once relapsed into drink, but recovered himself and in America and England he was a most powerful advocate of temperance. He afterward wrote books and acquired a moderate fortune through his lectures. He died at Frankford, Pa., Feb. 18, 1886, after having spent forty years in the temperance work.

1. Gough's life, first of all, stands before us as an awful warning against the drink habit. It is true that he reformed and was used mightily of God for good. But how much better many never do. He was a man of strong will and character, and hence could do what many others could not, and, though reformed, he paid for every drop of alcohol that he drank. He was subject to delirium tremens. He lost the wife that he loved so dearly and his only child through the drink habit and spent years of his life in debauchery and in sin that must afterward almost have crushed the great, generous nature which he possessed. He once said, "If all the money spent in the temperance cause saved but one boy it were well spent." Asked if this were not too strong, he answered, "Not if it were my boy." This was his estimate of intemperance.

2. Gough's life is an inspiration. It shows what can be done by the grace of God. It says to every drunkard, "Do not despair." It says to every worker for the intemperate, "Do not give up." But it is not an inspiration to every reformed drunkard to become a temperance orator. No one can do this without a great risk. No one can describe the scenes of his drunken life without arousing the appetite within him. Gough was an unusually great man and could do what hundreds of others failed in attempting. If saved from drink, keep as far away from it as possible. "Avoid the very appearance of the evil."

The saloon seems doomed in our land. The people have apparently determined that it shall go. But if it does not go, young people, do not go to it. The law may permit it, but it compels no one to visit it. The best way, to avoid drunkenness is to leave it alone altogether.

BIBLE READINGS.

Lev. x, 9, 10; Isa. v, 11; xxvii, 1-4; Joel i, 5; Num. vi, 1-14; Nah. i, 10; 1 Cor. vi, 10; Gal. v, 19-20; Eph v, 18; Rev. xxii, 12-15.

Having Christ In Our Endeavors.

Being active in all the outward matters of the Christian Endeavor society, keeping its pledge to the letter, serving in its offices or on its committees faultlessly, attending all the meetings faithfully, is not Christian Endeavor. One may do all these things under a false motive. Christian Endeavor means having Christ in our endeavors. He must be the motive power for all our service. He must be seen and felt, not we or our works. After Da Vinci had finished his great painting, "The Last Supper," a friend came to see it and greatly admired a goblet on the painted table, saying: "How wonderful! The hands cut like solid silver." Da Vinci immediately drew his brush across the goblet, exclaiming, "Nothing shall draw men's eyes from my Lord!"—Ida Q. Moulton in Record of Christian Work.

A Helpful Acrostic.

The Pasadena (Cal.) Presbyterian Endeavorers (this is the church attended by John Willis Baer) use in their topic card the following interesting and helpful acrostic interpretation of Christian Endeavor:

Come unto Me, and I will give you rest.
He shall give His angels charge over thee.
Rest in the Lord; wait patiently for Him.
I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.
Search the Scriptures.
The Lord is my Shepherd.
I am the Good Shepherd and know My sheep.
Ask, and it shall be given you.
Not as I will, but as Thou wilt.
Enter ye in at the strait gate.
No man can serve two masters.
Draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you.
Every one that asketh receiveth.
And be ye kind one to another.
Verily there is a reward for the righteous.
Oh, how great is Thy goodness!
Rejoice in the Lord, for He is good.

St. Paul in 1909.

In a three cornered fight for the 1909 international convention of Christian Endeavor St. Paul, the Minnesota city, won out and was selected by the board of trustees as the convention city for Christian Endeavor's twenty-fourth international convention. Kansas City and Atlantic City were the other contestants.

COFFIN KNOCKED OVER IN A PANIC

CORPSES OF TWO BOYS ROLL OUT ON FLOOR AND ARE TRAMPLED ON.

CHURCH BUILDING SETTLES

Report That Structure Is About to Collapse Causes Mad Rush for Doors—Parents Unable to Protect Bodies.

York, Pa.—While several thousand persons were assembled in and about the old Quickel church, near Zion's View, the other day, to listen to the funeral services over the bodies of William and Curvin Hoover, the boys who were murdered in Pleasureville, the settling of the building caused a panic.

Men, women and children were trampled upon, and about 40 persons were injured, several seriously.

The panic started during the service. A report was circulated that the building was giving way under the weight of the crowd within. Shortly afterward the beams began to crack and the walls to collapse. Instantly women began to shriek and there was a mad rush for the doors.

Rev. Adam Stump and Rev. George Enders of this city retained their posts in the pulpit and tried to quiet the crowd. Their efforts were futile. At least a score of persons were hurt by jumping from windows.

The two caskets were overturned, the bodies rolling out on the floor and being trampled on.

The doors of the little church were small and the windows were soon clogged by screaming men and women. The men outside tried to drive back the throngs by shouting that the church was safe and that everybody could get out unhurt.

As soon as those outside realized what had happened the work of rescue began. Women who had sustained injuries and others who had fainted were carried to the lawn outside. Many women in their frenzy threw their children through the windows. Others who had got separated from the little ones tried to fight their way back into the church.

At the rear door a band of men succeeded in checking the stampede. Physicians were called from near by towns to attend to the injured.

During the panic the grief of the parents of the murdered boys was overwhelming. As soon as the rush started they threw themselves in front of the caskets and tried to frighten the fleeing crowd off. They were unsuccessful in their efforts to protect the bodies.

The Two Caskets Were Overturned.

As soon as peace was restored Rev. Dr. Stump preached a sermon from the doorstep of the old church to those who remained. The bodies of the boys were then buried in the adjoining churchyard.

SACRIFICES LIFE; SAVES TOWN.

Brave Engineer Runs Flaming Powder Train Through Settlement.

Douglas, Ariz.—John Garcia, a locomotive engineer, saved Nacozari, Ariz., from destruction by running a blazing powder train through the town at top speed, but lost his own life. John Chisholm, a boy, and a dozen or more Mexican section hands were killed by the explosion of two cars of powder, just as the flaming train was passing a section house.

According to details received here, a powder train on the narrow gauge railroad of the Pilares mine caught fire near Nacozari. In the train were two open cars heavily loaded with explosives.

Realizing that the concentrator and a good part of the town of Cacozari would be destroyed if the powder exploded there, Engineer Garcia called to the rest of the crew to jump and started to run the train away from the town. He had taken it about half a mile when the explosion occurred, blowing the house, the train, the Mexicans and the engineer to atoms.

Young Chisholm was stealing a ride.

Revival in Whaling Industry.

There has been a revival of the whaling industry. A few years ago the annual death had dwindled to 150.

TRADING STAMPS FOR WIDOWS.

Chicago, March 21. — "Trading stamps with every funeral" is the placard that may soon be seen in the windows of the up-to-date Chicago undertakers.—News item.

The weeping widow sat beside
What once to her was dear.
"I care no more to live," she cried,
"Since John has gone from here.

"Of all the men I ever knew,
Her 'kerchief here she dampa;
"He was the best, so good, so true—
And he ne-er forgot the stamps.

"To market for me he would go
Each morning of his life,
And meats, potatoes, jam, H. O.
Could buy like any wife.

"He made the bed, and lovely pies,
And also trimmed the lamps.
At other girls he ne'er made eyes—
And he always brought the stamps.

"And now he's gone, what shall I do?
My heart is broke in twain."
"Oh, rats!" her friend, who'd buried two,
Broke in; "you'll try again.

"There's plenty men on sea and land,
In office or in camps.
So, cheer up, dear, and take a hand
Yourself at gathering stamps.

"We'll bury John, and do it right,
Then put away your fears;
Another man's always in sight,
There, dry up all those tears.

"We'll see a funeral man who's fly,
Nor deal with cheap-skate scramps,
And start a new trousseau to buy
With poor John's trading stamps."
—Newark Star.

PREACHER OFFERS TO BURY NEGROES.

A Philadelphia preacher, in whose breast the milk of human kindness is still fresh, has come forward and offered to bury dead negroes—free of charge. Here is the story, as told by Ray Stannard Baker in the American Magazine:

The worst negro slum in Philadelphia is completely surrounded by business houses and the homes of wealthy white people. Within a few blocks of it and several of the most aristocratic churches in Philadelphia Miss Bartholomew conducts a neighborhood settlement in the very centre of this social bog. Twice during the many years she has been there white millionaires have ventured down from their churches. One of them said he has been troubled by the growing masses of ignorant colored people.

"'Can't I do something to help?'

"Miss Bartholomew was greatly pleased and cheered.

"'Of course you can,' she said heartily.

"'We're trying to keep some of the negro children off the streets. There is plenty of opportunity for helping with our boys' and girls' club and classes.'

"'Oh, I don't mean that,' said the minister, 'I thought, in cases of death in their families, we might offer to read the burial service.'

"And he went away and did not see the humor of it.

"Another minister made a similar proposition; he wanted to hold a Sunday-school for colored people. He asked Miss Bartholomew anxiously where he could hold it.

"'Why not in your church in the afternoon?'

"'Why we couldn't do that!' he exclaimed; 'we should have to air all the cushions afterward!'"

Boudoir Suggestions.

One teaspoonful of glycerine, with five times that amount of water, will often make refractory straggles stay in place. The mixture should be applied with a soft brush just before going out.

The woman who can make it a rule to lie down for twenty minutes after lunch will be the woman who keeps fresh-looking longer in life and can stand more fatigue as she goes along.

A shining nose is an effect than can hardly be overcome by the ingenuity of the novelist. A mixture composed of one ounce of distilled water, eight minims of distilled tincture of lavender and two grains of sulphate of zinc, will, if applied with a soft piece of muslin four times daily, do much to correct the trouble. The balm should be well mixed and should not be allowed to remain overnight.

Many girls wash their hair too often, especially if it is inclined to be oily. Too frequent shampooing only aggravates the condition. A dry cleaning will do all that is required at times, especially if correct meal is used. Perfume half a pound with an ounce of orris root, powdered. Let this stand in a jar for several days (it is well to keep the mixture prepared) and then rub it well through the hair up over the scalp. Then let it out. This will absorb the oils and bring the dust, too.

A Distinction Without a Difference.

Five-year-old Deborah had been invited to take luncheon at a restaurant with Miss K.

"Do you like cocoa?" she was asked.

When the answer was "Yes," the beverage was duly brought, but remained untasted.

At last Miss K. said, "Why don't you drink your cocoa, Deborah, when you said you wanted it?"

"I didn't say I wanted it," replied the child politely; "I only said that I liked it."—Woman's Home Companion.

TO THE BOOK BORROWER.

Use a bookmark.
Refrain from using a pencil.
Cut the leaves with a paper knife designed for that purpose.
Don't moisten your thumb to turn the pages.
Don't leave the volume open, face downward.
As a rare value, its owner's friendship don't turn the leaves down.
Don't give it to the children to play with.
Don't crack it out of the binding to make it stay open.
Read it in good time, and for heaven's sake, return it some time.

Summoning Sleep.

"At all times a perfect mob of ideas and words stands at the gate leading into the mind, trying to get in. While we wake and are sane, says a writer in Everybody's Magazine, there is something that stands at this gate and lets in only the sensible ideas and the words that have relation to the subject to hand. All the others it keeps shooting away with: "Get back there! Go on away!" It is this inhibitive faculty that keeps us sane. But in order to reach the general paralysis of sleep we have to pass through a preliminary stage wherein we become foolish as any lunatic. When the sentinel at the gate of the mind goes off duty for the night the mob of irrational ideas and words comes trooping in, and so when I would court sleep I deliberately open the door of my mind and let the rabble, turning loose upon it a troupe of unrelated words and phrases. For some reason or other I find that the vocable "abracadabra" is a good one to start off with. Often a word or sentence will repeat itself with increasing rapidity—and shall I say loudness?—until it is all a jumble which breaks up simultaneously with the disintegration of the colored pattern before my closed eyes.

"Regulars" On the Honor Roll.

The eight "regular" Republican Assemblymen who stood so manfully by Leader Marsh, in refusing to break their party pledges at the demand of King Caucus, are worthy of especial honor by the people of the State. Four of these men were from Essex county—Messrs. Braun, Clark, Lowrey and Smith. Bergen county furnished two others—Assemblymen Fake and Rue. Mr. Pierce, the successor of Randolph Perkins, of Union, was the seventh, and Mr. Crosby, of Ocean, completed the list. These organization Republicans will undoubtedly be branded as "traitors" by the bosses in their respective counties, but they can smile at that charge so long as they have a clear conscience and know they are honestly representing the wishes of their constituents and are living up to their campaign pledges.—Newark News.

Practical Work for an Automobile.

Edward C. Belden, a young and prosperous farmer near Sumield, Conn., has turned his ordinary road runabout automobile to practical uses both as a labor saving machine and money earner. About a year ago Mr. Belden purchased a second-hand Ford automobile of nine horsepower and at once put it to work sawing up cord wood during the part of the season when there was little doing on the farm. He soon after gave up part of the farm life and started in to take jobs sawing wood and bailing hay and has already several jobs booked for cutting up tobacco stalks next month. Last winter he baled between 300 and 400 tons of hay, sawed between 250 and 300 cords of wood and cut several tons of tobacco stalks.

What We're Up Against.

I'd like to write a pretty poem
On winter's magic beauty,
Or any other stirring theme—
'Twould be a pleasant duty.
But Pegasus has thrown me off,
The muse declines my wooing,
No matter how I long to sing,
There's nothing doing.
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Sick Enough.

De Quiz—I thought you made a resolution to stop drinking during Lent.

De Whiz—Well—er—I'm just taking this for medicinal purposes.

De Quiz—Nonsense! You're not sick.

De Whiz—Yes, I am. I'm sick of the resolution I made.

English Queens and Good Cheer.

The English queens have nearly always been fond of good cheer. Queen Anne was no exception. She was fond of holding profound culinary discussions with her cook, and English cookery books still contain many dishes "after Queen Anne's fashion."

The Real Trouble.

"I'm sure I heard her telling you," said Miss Mugley, "that the trouble with me was that my complexion wasn't genuine."

"O! no," replied Miss Knox, "she said your complexion was genuine and that that was the trouble."—Philadelphia Press.

Tillman Going Abroad.

Columbus, S. C., April 2.—Senator Tillman seems to be in his usual state of health, and will not return to Congress this session. He expects to go to an Atlantic sanitarium, and he and Mrs. Tillman will go to Europe for a complete rest.

Maryland Editors for Taft.

The Republican Editorial Association of Maryland has indorsed Secretary Taft for the Presidency.

THE MAIN THING.

We got a heap of good advice
On how to keep a wife,
From men who claim that they have seen
Most every side of life.
The gist of all of it is we Should kiss her every day,
But don't forget to hand her out
The large end of your pay.

It's very nice to bring her home
A bunch of roses and
A box of candy as you did
Before you won her hand.
But if your change is somewhat shy
It makes life more complete
If in its place of flowers and sweets
You bring her home some meat.

They tell you so be kind to her
And treat her as you did
Before you took her to your heart
When you were but a kid.
That all sounds very nice, indeed,
But would the lady thrive
On ice cream sodas and the things
That kept her then alive?

The kissing part is right enough
Provided she will stand,
But will it ever take the place
Of ready cash in hand?
Perhaps it might be well to use
A mixture of each soap
But don't forget to bring her home
Your weekly envelop.
—Nashville American.

"Do Women Like to Be Bossed?

Speaking of the "Taming of the Shrew," a woman whom one would scarcely imagine cherished such sentiments remarked: "All women love masterful men, and, though I do not approve of the whipping method of Petruchio's wooing, still even that is preferable to the pleading, humble style of lovemaking some men assume, for it is only assumption after all, not their genuine feelings. I like, and I know most women feel the same, a man that above all else they can respect and are just a tiny bit afraid of. Just as soon as the woman gets the upper hand she loses half the delight of being ordered around by one whom she would feel times rather serve as slave than rule as master."

Using Court Plaster.

In mending articles with court plaster never apply while the latter is wet. Wait a few seconds until it gets sticky; then there is no danger of moisture penetrating the goods to make a soiled place in the right side. Persons experienced while mending in this manner. Turn the right side toward you, lay on it t clean cloth and iron perfectly smooth. If any frayed pieces are noticeable, clip these with a pair of scissors. Mending done in haste is not to place, as the basting threads are easily drawn out. To take out a hem put in with gum tissue it is only necessary to run a warm iron over the goods, and the material is easily pulled apart.

No Visible Signals.

"Yessum," said Sandy Pikes as he devoured the wedge of pumpkin pie, "I'm entirely object to the nefarious practice of clipping off de tails of dogs."

"Ah, I am glad you are so tender hearted, my poor man," sympathized the good housewife.

"Well, it ain't exactly dat, mum, but when a dog hasn't any tail I can't tell by de wags if he is in a good humor or not, and it makes me skeery about approaching de house."—Chicago News.

Lincoln Loaf.

Beat half a cupful of butter to a cream. Gradually beat in one cupful of sugar, then one cup of currants, and the beaten yolk of three eggs. Add alternately half a cup of milk and one cup and three-fourths of sifted flour, sifted again with four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and lastly the whites of three eggs beaten light. Turn into a shallow pan, dredge the top with granulated sugar and bake about forty minutes.

Sic Transit.

The Kindly Old Gentleman—Well, my little man, and what's your name?

The Little Man—Please, sir, a dunno.

The Kindly Old Gentleman—Bless my soul, you don't know?

The Little Man—No, sir. Please, sir, mother got married again yesterday.—The Sketch.

Poor Prospects.

"Yes," said Miss Passay, "I found a very nice boarding-house today, but the only room they had to offer me had a folding-bed in it and I detest those things."

"Of course," remarked Miss Pert, "one can never hope to find a man under a folding-bed."—Philadelphia Press.

Not According to Rules.

"Poor man! His family was starving, and he stole a loaf of bread."

"I suppose they arrested him and sent him to jail very promptly."

"No. No one ever discovered it."

Accounted For.

"Hoh!" sneered Marty, "Of course horses can run faster than boys. They've got twice as many legs. If they had to stand on their hind legs the way we do they wouldn't."

No Penalty.

"Suicide isn't against the law in Italy."

"That ought to be a good country in which to sell automobiles."

"I always have a great deal of charity for the unfortunate."

"Indeed? What do you do with it?"

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY.

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember those with homes of glass
Should never throw a stone.
If we had nothing else to do
Than talk of those who sin,
'Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—and who has not?
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may, for aught we know
Have fifty to their one.

Then let us all, when we begin
To slander friend and foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
To those we little know.
Remember, curses sometimes, like
Our chickens, roost at home,
Don't speak of others' faults until
You have none of your own.

Time She Began.

It was on a Sixth avenue surface car. A woman sat with her little daughter, who to all appearances was seven or eight years old. The conductor came for the fares, and the woman gave him a five cent piece.

"Is the little girl with you, madam?" asked the conductor.

"Yes," assented the woman.

"Her fare, please," said the man.

"But I never have paid for her," began the woman.

"And does that prove that you're never going to?" asked the conductor, taking the fare reluctantly tendered.—New York Press.

Why the Band Left.

First Actor—I hear that the orchestra in your theatre was sacked in a body the other night. What was the matter?

Second Actor—Why, they spoiled the best situation in the play. You know the court scene, where the hero is sentenced to death?

"Yes."

"Well, they were told to play something appropriate, and the judge had no sooner put on the black cap than the idiots struck up 'Where Did You Get That Hat?'"—London Scraps.

Flowers and Trees—A Game.

A game full of fun, although it is old, is called flowers and trees. As many as are present can play. The first one says, for instance, "My first is a public house, my second is a state to which all must come, my third is a common way of departing, and my whole is a flower." Answer: "In-di-go." Only a minute is given for guessing; the one who guesses having a turn. A list of flowers and trees can be looked up before playing unless one is familiar with a good many.—Washington Star.

Woman's Wit.

A man found that his wife had bought a few puffs of false hair. This displeased him. So one day he hid in the hall outside of her room, and just as the lady was adjusting the false puffs he darted in upon her.

"Mary," he said, reproachfully, "why do you put the hair of another woman upon your head?"

"John," retorted Mary, with a glance at her husband's shoes, "why do you put the skin of another calf upon your feet?"—Everybody's.

How Are Your Ears?

One asks not in levity.
Rather is one very sincere.
Ears have grown in importance.
Of yore woman powdered her nose.
Now she gets in deeply for ear culture.
Perhaps she bleaches them with peroxide of hydrogen.
Then, tell it not in Gath, she may give them a touch of pink paint.
Of course, the woman of the flaring ear does not exist—she slept in bandages in her youth.

To Thaw Frozen Pipes.

When pipes become frozen during intensely cold weather they may be thawed by spreading on a piece of cloth a thick layer of unslaked lime, tying the cloth around the frozen pipe and throwing water over it. The heat produced by combining the water and lime is sufficient to thaw the pipes. This is especially good in vertical pipes, on which it is usually difficult to apply external heat.—Good Housekeeping.

Anticipation.

The teacher of a private school allowed her pupils only one drink of water in the morning, unless they had had salt meat for the first meal. When one day a child asked for the second supply she was therefore cross-questioned, "Had you salt meat for breakfast?"

"No," was the innocent reply. "But we're going to have it for dinner."

HIS NEW TOY.

I'm tired of my choc-choc cars,
I've no use for my ball—
I do not want that watch of pa's;
I'm weary of them all.

The dolls and wagons, horses, men,
I've played with day by day
I do not care to see again
So take them all away.

I've got a new and lovely toy
That beats these out of sight;
A pinky, white, small baby boy
Came to my house last night.

TO THE BARGAIN COUNTER.

Be discriminating.

Never run into debt to buy anything no matter how advantageous the opportunity may seem to be.

Familiarize yourself with prices so that you know about what an article should cost.

Buy only at reliable shops. If the article is not good of its kind it is not a bargain at any price.

January, July and August are the months when read bargains may usually be found.

Be chary of buying trifles that are merely passing fashions. If such things are needed it generally means that their day is over.

Don't buy anything unless you know what you are going to do with it.

In certain things there is practically no chance in fashion.

Materials for underclothes, trimming for the same, materials for children's clothing and household linens can often be bought advantageously, and put away until needed.

BLAMES CITY CONTRACTOR

Says Letcher Fire Fiasco was Due to Negligence of Street Sprinkler Man's Drivers.

WATER CO. HEAD'S CHARGE.

Monthly Reports Presented at Common Council Meeting—More Street Lights—Hospital Appropriation.

Replying to the communication from the fire and building committee of the Common Council following the investigation of conditions as to fire hydrants, Frederick Bevan, president of the Plainfield-Union Water Supply Company, informed that body at the April meeting Monday that after a careful investigation of facts in his opinion neither the company nor the fire department was to blame for the hydrants not being in working order or frozen. He called attention to carelessness on the part of drivers of sprinkling carts in not properly shutting the hydrants off. He recommended that the question of establishing stand-pipes for the use of sprinkling carts be taken up by the company and Common Council. The matter was referred. John E. Keely holds the city contract for street sprinkling. Only a short time ago his contract was renewed witnout competitive bids.

The petition from Andrew Vanderbeek and A. L. Force referring to a notice requesting that the iron railing at the point of entrance to the high bridge on Madison avenue at Park and North avenues be removed, and requesting permission to allow it to remain, was referred to the street committee.

Another petition from Louis Levine, sawyer, and Morris Roberts, contractor, pertaining to the removal of a building, without a permit, in which explanation was made, was referred to the street committee. Petitions were received from the Highland Park Realty Company, requesting that crosswalks be laid in its property on East Second street, and for the elemination of a street assessment, were referred to the proper committees. Elston M. French offered the city a site for the proposed new fire in the East End, the location being at Leland avenue and George street, and the price $750. It was referred to the fire and building committee.

Petitions were received from J. C. Manning and others for electric lights and hydrants on Randolph road, Cameron and Lenox avenues, and one from Yost Brothers for permission to erect an awning at Front and Somerset streets; also from Mr. Deanin for Deanin road from W. L. Lockwood, were referred to the proper committees. Those from Mr. Manning were referred back for correction and the other one was granted.

Another petition was received from L. E. Hart and all the other owners of land interested in the movement to have an unknown street on Elmwood place vacated, was presented and referred to the corporation counsel.

A request from the Shade Tree Commission for an appropriation of $200 to include the care of the city park, was received, and later it was granted, the sum being understood to include the annual appropriation made to the Town Improvement Association.

City Judge William Runyon presented his first quarterly report as follows: Total number of cases, 212; sentenced, 28; sentences suspended, 15; committed to county jail, 40; dismissed, 11; turned over to juvenile court, 2; on probation, 1; cases pending, 7. The receipts were $152, expenditures, $58.45, and the balance, $93.55, turned over to the city treasurer.

The granting of fourteen sewer permits was reported by City Engineer Gavett and Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of six permits in February and 24 in March. Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the district court, reported the receipts for the month to be $146.92, the expenditures, $49.72, leaving a balance of $97.20.

Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayres presented his report, showing the expenditure at the Industrial Home to be $116.55. The outside expenditures were $285.60, the total amount being $402.15.

An old tax matter concerning which R. W. Emerson petitioned was reported on by Corporation Counsel Marsh, and an adjustment will be made. A communication was received from the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital offering to care for the city's indigent poor there during the coming year for the sum of $1,500, the usual appropriation. The offer was accepted.

A resolution by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, which was adopted, approved the plan to make Terrill road a State Aid Road and the clerk was instructed to communicate that fact to the board of Freeholders. Another resolution by Mr. Gloak, which was adopted, put the property on which the sewage disposal plant and Industrial Home is located, in the care of the alms committee.

The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, in accordance with a previous petition, were granted permission to erect an awning at its place of business at 620 North avenue, and the petition of Schenck & McAfee to enclose a rear porch at 112 West Front street, was refused, as was also a request from A. D. Thomson for lights in the vicinity of Ravine and Denmark roads.

There was considerable discussion regarding a petition for six lights on West Sixth street, between Monroe and Clinton avenues, and despite a strong argument in favor by Mr. Boydam, it was refused. He thought it was about time the West End of the city received something for its money, and Mr. Buxton concurred with him. Later the petition of A. J. Harris for two lights on West Seventh street was granted.

The protest on the part of Mr. Suydam did not prevent Mr. Montgomery from placing lights on Hillside avenue, between Evergreen and Martine avenues, and he tried hard to have two more lights on Central street, but this motion was laid on the table, after Mr. Buxton made a vigorous kick as to the limited appropriation for lights. The motion to table the motion was carried by one, Mr. Buxton expressed the opinion that the Second Ward has been receiving all the attention and he believed it was time that other parts of the city received some attention.

At this time Mr. Buxton offered several resolutions which were adopted. One provided for the borrowing of $9,000 on account of the brick pavement work, another for borrowing $14,000 on account of sewer extension work and a third for borrowing $1,000 on account of the Southside sanitary sewer work. Other resolutions by this member provided that $12,000 be borrowed for street and sewer work until the regular appropriations are made, that $2,000 be transferred from the general to the fire fund, that the city treasurer be authoized to buy in for the city property sold for taxes. Upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh, and in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Buxton, the property at 1010-1014 Prospect avenue, formerly owned by the estate of Anna M. Balen, but now in possession of the city, was sold to the Union County Trust Company for $1,000, the offer being made by the company at that price. The city purchased the property sometime ago under a Martin Act sale.

DR. JOY AGAIN CHOSEN AS SCHOOL BOARD HEAD

Dr. James R. Joy was re-elected president of the North Plainfield Board of Education at the organization meeting held in the Somerset street school Monday night. Councilman Charles L. Nichols was chosen vice president to succeed Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, who was not a candidate for re-election to the board.

The new members of the Board, Edwin S. Boyer and Edmund Rockwell, were sworn in at their first meeting of the school fathers, and Mr. Woodruff was made chairman of the finance committee and a member of the grievance and truancy committee. Mr. Boyer was elected a member of the building and grounds committee and the auditing committee. The complete list of committees, as announced by President Joy, is as follows, the first name being that of the chairman:

Finance committee, Messrs. Woodruff, Nichols and Rushmore. Building and grounds committee, Messrs. Case, Cooley and Boyer. Supplies, Messrs. Miller, Lowe and Rushmore. Grievance and triuancy, Messrs. Cooley, Woodruff and Rockwell. Auditing, Messrs. Lowe and Boyer. Teachers and text books, Messrs. Joy, Miller and Case. The truancy and teachers committees are headed by the same chairman this year as last. Routine business, together with the payment of the usual budget of bills, occupied the remainder of the session, which was a short one.

COMPLAINANT SCORED DESERVEDLY BY COURT

Mrs. Annie Sutphen, of South Second street, appeared in the city court, Tuesday, to prefer complaint against Mrs. Theodore Vroom, a neighbor, who she alleged had assaulted her. There was hardly a noticeable scratch on Mrs. Sutphen's face but Mrs. Vroom's looked as if it had been through a fight, and after Judge Runyon sought an explanation. It then developed that the complaining witness was the one who had committed the assault and the case was immediately dismissed.

Mrs. Sutphen made the fatal mistake of trying to argue the matter after the dismissal and sought to tell Judge Runyon that Mrs. Vroom owed her for a stove. This assertion practically explained why the complaint was not heard and the magistrate gave her a scoring that will last her over Easter.

"You can't make any collecting agency out of this court," he exclaimed in conclusion; "and don't you come here again with a trumped up charge like this or you do you'll be sorry. Now get out."

And Mrs. Sutphen stood not on the order of going but went.

KILL DEPEW RESOLUTION

City Committee Urges Union County Legislators to Have Platform Pledges Fulfilled.

CONSERVATIVE ACTION TAKEN.

Chairman Angleman Announces His Various Committees—Plans For the Primaries.

After prolonged discussion the resolution introduced by R. Henry Depew, president of the New Jersey "People's Lobby," at the Republican City Committee meeting Monday was effectually killed. Mr. Depew attempted to get through a resolution, as told exclusively in these columns some days ago, directed to Governor Fort and the Legislature that the lawmakers remain in session until they enact the Martin utilities bill, the Ackerman civil service measure and other reform schemes.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith demonstrated in short order that it was going beyond the province of the committee to attempt to dictate to the members of the Legislature accredited to other counties and that it would be impertinent to demand of the Union county representatives that they work for the passage of a particular bill. Mr. Smith asserted that it was the duty of the senator and the assemblymen of the Union to judge which utility bill is preferable and which civil service measure should be passed. City Chairman Angleman and others coincided with Mr. Smith's declaration that the wisest course for a city committee to pursue would be for it to request that the senator and assemblymen of their own coufty use their efforts to obtain the passage of such reform measures as promised in the Republican party platform. The committee agreed with him.

These committees were appointed by Chairman Angleman for the year: Finance—R. I. Tolles, Duncan W. Taylor, Herbert Boxton and R. H. Depew; legislation—G. W. V. Moy, C. S. Smineh, F. L. Holt and W. L. Hedden; naturalization—S. P. T. Wilbur, H. Tracy, Mr. Fletcher and F. D. Randolph; registration—J. S. Higham, Amos Andrews, R. H. McCready and H. C. Runyon.

The call for the primaries on April 16 will be issued as soon as the county committee acts.

It was announced at the meeting that there would be a big crowd out for the meeting called for at the Casino tomorrow night when the Plainfield Republican Club will be formally organized.

TWO COPS DISMISSED; HUMILIATING CEREMONY

Councilman Randolph, as chairman of the police committee, announced to the city fathers Monday that after a fair trial, Patrolmen Thomas Burns and Edward S. Smith had been dismissed from the police department on the charge of being intoxicated while on duty and entering a public bar-room in uniform while in that condition. The action of the committee was confirmed by the Common Council. The two men were brought before Mayor Frank Cerlier for sentence for sentence.

At His Honor's orders the brass buttons were ordered cut off their uniforms, after which the two men were formally dismissed

POLICE HEADQUARTERS BIDS ON MONDAY, MAY 4

Councilman Frank Randolph, chairman of the police committee, presented the approved plans by Tracy & Swartout, and also the deed for the property at West Fourth and Sycamore streets, where it is proposed to erect a new police headquarters' building, at Monday's meeting of the Common Council. A resolution offered by Mr. Randolph and adopted, provides that on the day of the old police headquarters' building used for the patrol wagon and horse and some fixtures in the building for $250.

The resignation of John J. Neylon as a member of the fire department was received and referred to the fire committee.

Fraud Order Issued.

The Postmaster General of the United States has issued a fraud order against the National Cement Company, whose plant is at Carpenterville, N. J., and a large part of whose stock is said to be owned by Plainfielders. The mail matter of the concern is now officially barred by the Postoffice Department. The State Geologist of New Jersey is also after the concern, whose first president was Clarence L. Murphy, of this city. Mr. Murphy quit the presidency sometime ago and it is said he intends to resign as treasurer.

STOCK FARM NOT IN E. R. THOMAS'S NAME

Edward R. Thomas, the young millionaire, spectacularly identified with stock market plunging, auto speeding, horse racing, stock breeding and a few other things, has transferred his farm which he purchased in relative for $1 "and other valuable consideration."

This transfer was accomplished very quietly, Feb. 11, only one week before creditors of Mr. Thomas bethought them of the valuable stock farm in New Jersey and began proceedings to attach its contents.

The first to move was the firm of Carton & Devlin, keepers of a general store at Mattawan, N. J., who got a writ of attachment against the Brookdale farm on a claim of $1,-170.70 against Mr. Thomas. But when the Sheriff of Monmouth county levied upon the sixty-six horses ramged in the Carton & Devlin writ, he found that Mr. Thomas, just one week before, had transferred the entire property to Anna Augusta Thomas.

In this transfer, seventy-eight horses were enumerated—twelve more than Carton & Devlin specified in their writ. Apparently news travels slowly in the Brookdale and Mattawan sections of New Jersey because a motion passed before the big New York creditors of Mr. Thomas got word of the doings at the stock farm. Then the Metropolitan Trust Company rushed in with a second writ of attachment for an alleged indebtedness of $172,000.

One week ago the Monmouth county Sheriff levied on the property for the Metropolitan Trust Company and since then the Sheriff's representative has been in charge at Brookdale.

The Metropolitan Trust Company's writ covers twenty-six two-year-old horses, thirteen yearlings, seven colts and three stallions, together with stable trappings and harness, appraised at a total value of $32,598.

Lawyers Reed and Coddington, of this city, are the legal representatives of the trust company in this action, and they insist that unless Mr. Thomas settles his obligations before April 15 the horses will be sold.

The claim of the Metropolitan Trust Company against the young millionaire figures prominently in a schedule of loans stated in a Grand Jury indictment which was found against Thomas, Maclay & Co. on account of E. R. Thomas. The biggest individual loan in this list was one of $700,000 by the Metropolitan Trust Company.

All of these loans, according to the indictment, were payable on demand, and for the payment of each E. R. Thomas, by reason of his guarantee, was personally liable. Mr. Thomas could not be seen yesterday on account of his version of the stock farm seizure.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

"The annual Birthday Tea was held on January 31, and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Mrs. Mead, our president, opened her home for the occasion and despite the very stormy day there was a good attendance. Mrs. Perkins, treasurer of the American McAll Association made an address of great interest and Mrs. Ring one of our members, sang several selections which added much to the pleasure of the afternoon, and all came away feeling well repaid for having braved the stormy day. The birthday envelopes gave us $100.37. We resumed the monthly meetings instead of the plan we followed last winter as the majority of the ladies deemed it wiser to go over the work once a month.

"During the year removed Mme. St. Vidal, who have had charge of the Limoges station, resigned and M. Canet, a native of Limoges and a man who was converted in a McAll meeting, has taken charge. M. St. Vidal was transferred to Nice, where he was in hopes that the milder climate would do much to restore his wife's health, which has been so broken for a number of years.

"With a strong faith and deeper desire to do well the work the Master has given us to do we begin our new year of labor. We thank the managers of the Library for the use of this room and the press for its many courtesies.

"Respectfully submitted,

"JESSIE R. HEELY, Secretary."

STONE CONTRACT MIX-UP

Contractor Smalley Fires Hot Shot at Rival Bidder During Council Meeting.

LIVELY SCENE AT THE SESSION.

Another Bidder Claims to Be Hounded—Corporation Counsel Marsh Tells About Defects.

The action of the street committee at the April meeting of the Common Council Monday night in recommending the rejection of all bids submitted for furnishing crushed stone, culverts and crosswalks, resulted in a lively argument in which former Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, representing the Watchung Stone Company; William M. Wherry, counsel for the Watchung Stone Company and Corporation Counsel Marsh took part.

The trouble began when Councilman Gloak offered a resolution to that effect. Councilman Mygatt and Councilman Hall wanted to know upon what grounds the bids were rejected, and the First ward member explained that the action was taken upon the advice of Mr. Marsh. This did not satisfy the curiosity of the two inquiring members, who stated that there must be some more tangible reason, and if so they wanted to know it. Mr. Gloak declared that the bids had been found irregular.

But Mr. Hall wanted to know in what respect they were irregular, and this brought forth a request from Mr. Gloak that Mr. Smalley, who was present, be allowed the privileges of the floor. The contractor stated that in a town the size of Plainfield three crusher plants were necessary to insure prices. His firm, he said, had furnished stone to Plainfield for ten years, always getting the contract until last year without competition. Last year three bids were submitted and the street committee voted to give the contract to him, but on finishing stone for two weeks under that contract when he was informed that there was an error, all of the members of the committee were not present when the contract was awarded. In consequence the contract awarded to the Watchung Stone Company after another advertisement for bids.

"I want to ask did the city get first quality stone?" continued Mr. Smalley. "I know it did not and if you are in doubt ask the road commissioner. The company has submitted a bid of 75 cents for furnishing blue trap-rock screenings and it cannot get it. On Belvidere avenue stone and dirt were delivered together. There is a nigger in the fence, but I am not here to tell you where he is. I would like to have the city contract, but I am not here to ask for it. I recently delivered a load of stone to your corporation counsel. I asked him what about the city contract' and he replied, 'I cannot discuss the matter.'

"No one can show where I have acted unfairly in this matter. The Watchung Stone Company being the lowest bidder should have the contract or else be cut out from further bidding. It is a physical impossibility for the company to furnish the stone required."

When Mr. Smalley concluded the same privilege was extended to Mr. Wherry, representing the Watchung Stone Company. He said that while he felt that some misstatements had been made, he assured the members that the city had its redress if the company failed to live up to its contract, as it was heavily bonded to do so. He added that as a result of the competition Plainfield was getting its stone twenty-five cents less a ton today than ever before and that he thought was an advantage to the taxpayer. He said he believed it to be unjustice to the taxpayer not to have the contract accepted, while it was also unjust to the quarrymen. He contended that the members of the Common Council have a right to know why the bids are rejected, and he declared that Mr. Marsh should be asked to explain.

"It is a common knowledge," said Mr. Wherry, "that there was no competition until this last year. Now efforts are being made to drive the Watchung Stone Company out of business. Pressure has been brought to bear on officials to do this and the issue has been clouded. The important question is that the city shall get the highest quality trap-rock. You may drive the company out of business, but you will not be able to get stone cheaper afterward. As a matter of business policy a bid should be accepted.

"What is the corporation counsel's reason for rejecting the bids? He should be required to give them. Under the conditions which the company gets its stone it can afford to sell cheaper than the competition and if the concern does not deliver the goods why there is legal redress."

In reply to Mr. Wherry, Mr. Smalley denied that any unfair advantage had been taken by him. He said that he always insisted on the lowest possible prices, consistent for a fair profit, for Plainfield and the city paid him less than stone can be bought for elsewhere. He declared the statement about pressure and unfair methods as false as the man that made them and he is not far away, added Mr. Smalley.

In the meantime, Mr. Marsh was telephoned for and he arrived soon afterward. He stated briefly that the bids did not comply with the specifications in the advertisement and for that reason he advised the committee to reject them all. He added that the Watchung Stone Company did come the nearest to complying with the wording of the advertisement, but even in its bid there was an irregularity. Besides, he added, the Common Council always reserves the right to reject any and all bids if it see fit to do so.

Explained by Mr. Marsh that while the specifications called for stone equal to samples in the office of Mr. Gavett, there were irregularities as to the texture of the bidding in reply to Mr. Hall's statement that it was unfortunate that the trouble should have occurred after the bids were in, Mr. Marsh said that he alone was to blame for that, for thoughtlessness he did not instruct the committee as to the legal and proper way of advertising for bids.

Both Mr. Hall and Mr. Mygatt expressed the opinion that the Watchung Stone Company was entitled to the contract. Mr. Gloak offered a resolution calling for new bids to be received Monday night, May 4, at 8 o'clock, and pursuant to the provisions the bids must be made on blanks to be furnished by Mr. Gavett and the form printed thereon must be followed.

GET FIRE HOUSE SITE; BUILDING BIDS NEXT

The property on South avenue, near the Netherwood station, was purchased by the city at Monday's meeting of the Common Council, as a site for the proposed new fire house in the East End. The lot, which is 60x200, was offered by the Warren Ackerman Estate. The consideration was $1,800.

The action was taken through a resolution offered by Mr. Hibord, chairman of the fire and building committee, and the money with which to pay for the land will be taken out of any available funds, until the issue of bonds is negotiated covering the entire expenses of land and fire house, which it is proposed to erect there. The resolution adopted that the committee submit the plans for the buildings and all other matters in connection with the deal for the property to Corporation Counsel Marsh for approval.

Objection to this action was made by Councilmen Thrall and Montgomery, who argued that too much haste was shown. Remarks favoring the purchase of land and erection of a fire house were made by President Tolles and Councilmen Suydam. Mr. Mygatt still objected however, and by consent of the members was excused from voting on the resolution.

EX-COUNCILMAN TYLER ON SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Former Councilman William F. Tyler attended his first meeting as a member of the Plainfield Board of Education at the Plainfield High School, last night, and at the organization of committees for the coming year, he was made chairman of the committee on supplies and a member of the committee on teachers and text books and the finance committee.

President Leander N. Lovell announced the following committees: Teachers and text books: L. N. Lovell, chairman; C. F. Abbott, W. S. Tyler. Books, stationery and supplies: F. T. Woodhull, chairman; M. Cave, L. N. Lovell. Buildings and repairs: C. F. Abbott, chairman; F. T. Woodhull, L. N. Lovell. Finance: E. M. Cave, chairman; C. F. Abbott, W. S. Tyler. Fuel: W. S. Tyler, chairman; F. T. Woodhull, E. M. Cave.

At the beginning of last night's meeting, the regular order of business was suspended to receive and open the bids for school supplies for the coming year. Bids were received from E. Steiger & Co., Boston; Peckham, Little & Co., New York. The Official and School Supply Co., New York; The J. L. Hammett Co., New York, and Matthias Plum, Newark. They averaged about $1,000, and were referred to the committee on supplies, to be awarded on April 16 at the next meeting of the Board will be held.

The Board requested the Common Council to arrange for the placing of fire alarm boxes in the immediate vicinity of the schools not now adequately protected, and a commendation from Mayor Fisk was read in regard to the inspection of the schools on March 15.

The report of the tax collector showed that $1,063.59 in school money had been collected during March, and the custodian of schools' report showed a balance of $41,237.-34. Bills totalling $2,295.28 were ordered paid.

At the special meeting of the Board to be held April 27, bids for 750 tons of coal, for use in the high schools, will be opened and awarded. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson was authorized to secure a speaker for the High School commencement exercises in June.

turned.

Taking everything into consideration there appears to have been a far less number of changes this year than usual. This may be due to the full knowledge that Bishop Spellmeyer has of conditions in the Newark Conference. Rev. E. C. Dutcher remains at Dunellen, as does also Rev. Perry C. Bascom at Bound Brook. Rev. A. W. Hayes was returned to Westfield.

One appointment of especial interest is that of Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, who goes to Rev. Dr. Wilding's charge at Paterson, while the latter has been sent to the charge at Perth Amboy now held by Dr. Snodgrass. There was general satisfaction over the appointments and no complaint of any significance has been heard. The changes will become effective at once.

During the afternoon, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, was introduced to the conference and he made a happy response. He said that he first started as an exhorter and local preacher in the Methodist church, and sometime later identified himself with the Presbyterian church. He gave the ministers a hearty welcome and expressed the hope that their entertainment and meetings here had been pleasant.

Before adjournment was taken, resolutions thanking those who had assisted in any way in the entertainment of the conference were adopted by a rising vote. Those included in the resolutions were the Board of Trade, the First M. E. church, Rev. J. C. McCres, chairman of the committee, the First Baptist church, while as an act of appreciation for his services, an offering amounting to $56.69 was given to Isaac W. Kennedy, sexton of the church, another of the ministers was that of presenting a sum of money to Henry Johnson, steward at the Park Club, where luncheon was served every day at noon, and resolutions expressing the thanks of the body were given to the watchman for the kind and courteous treatment.

Grateful recognition of long service performed by Rev. Dr. J. A. Gutteridge, statistical secretary, and Rev. Jacob Cole, treasurer. Both have held their respective offices about thirty years and Rev. Dr. F. F. Dodd, who has been the secretary of the conference for twenty-eight years, was also extended a vote of thanks.

FORT DISPOSES OF BILLS

He Has Already Passed on 268 Measures Enacted by this Year's Legislature.

150 STILL TO BE ACTED ON.

Numerous Irregularities That Marked Closing Hours of Session Coming to Light.

There is going to be something doing tonight, when the time limit that Governor Fort has fixed for signing bills passed at the legislative session just closed nears expiration. The irregularities that marked the closing hours of the session are coming to light rather more numerously than is usually the case, and there are a number of measures of importance that passed both branches of the Legislature, but have not been turned over to the executive office.

It has been established beyond a peradventure that Senator Avis' bill, Senate 298, to prevent boroughs from issuing ten year 6 per cent. waterworks certificates, which the Governor signed yesterday morning, never passed the House, but was, through error, sent directly to the executive from the Senate chamber.

Governor Fort recalled the bill after sending it to the Secretary of State for record as a law and cancelled his signature because of the defective record. Speaker Jess' name was not signed, and there was no certification by House officials that it had been passed by that body.

Senate joint resolution No. 12 was a law for a little while, but it isn't any more. The resolution aimed to continue the commission appointed by Governor Stokes to investigate the whole subject of municipal government. It is shown by the records that the bill was approved yesterday. The executive office books show that the record of approval and the title of the bill were erased after being placed therein. This afternoon it was announced by the Governor that he had vetoed the resolution because he could see no reason for further continuance of the commission.

In explanation of the checkered career of S. J. R. No. 12, it is said that the measure was filed before it reached the Governor's hands, having been rolled up with some approved bills through error.

One of the bills that had not reached Governor Fort late last night is Assemblyman Martin's measure providing for recount of votes cast at any primary election on order of the court—in fact, extending to primaries the recount provisions covering general elections.

Yesterday was nominally Governor's Day and the State House has been crowded with politicians and officials hunting up bill records or pleading with the Governor to sign pet measures, the prospects are good for a general assault of anxious folk on the State House today and Thursday.

At the Governor figures it, he has until midnight Thursday to dispose of the remainder of the 150 bills that should have been in his hands at final adjournment.

Of the measures passed by the Legislature, 268 bills and joint resolutions had been filed by the Governor with the Secretary of State up to the time of his leaving the State House last night. That includes the Senate joint resolution recalled and the bill which has been held up for investigation. The excise commission resolution was concurrent and does not require executive action.

The House and Senate passed 136 bills the last day of the session. On Tuesday and yesterday the Governor disposed of eighty-four of these, and eighty of them are new laws. With those on his desk Friday and those passed Friday afternoon and night and Saturday morning, about fifty still remain to be considered.

Comedy Stunts on the Piano.

Harry Anton Smith, novelty piano player, will be at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night in a musical program of unusual merit and real performance. A series of imitations will be rendered, including a full military band, a vocal duet, a harp, a music box, and a blacksmith. Smith will also give an exhibition of playing two selections at the same time, and will render the intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" on the piano with his nose.

Surprised Fred Endress.

In honor of his birthday anniversary, a large number of friends gave a surprise party to Fred Endress at his home on West Front street, last night. The affair was planned by Mrs. Endress and was greatly enjoyed by everyone present. The evening was spent in a social manner, during which there was a program of vocal and instrumental music. Later refreshments were served. Mr. Endress was the recipient of many congratulations and many happy returns of the day.

MEN'S CLUB REVIEWS THE PAST YEAR'S WORK

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church held the annual meeting and election of officers at the home of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie on Park avenue, last night. The major portion of the time was devoted to a review of the past year's work which has covered an extensive field. Among the matters that have occupied the attention of the members are the following:

The publication of the church bulletin, "The Messenger," the organization and conduct of the men's Bible class which serves after church Sunday mornings; the carrying on of men's meetings at which prominent speakers have appeared; the management of monthly missionary meetings, members of the club giving a stereopticon lecture on a mission country each time; the making of a card catalogue of the church membership and the care of ushering at morning and evening church services. The club has now an active membership of sixty and during the coming months it is hoped to accomplish much new work.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Lindsey Best; vice-president, Edward J. Cochran; secretary and treasurer, Arthur Lovell; executive committee, James E. Kimball, Henry L. Sy Ferrell, Frederick Genung and P. S. Ceigler. At the conclusion of business the members enjoyed a social hour.

P.H.S. GIRLS TO GIVE COMEDY IN VACATION

Pupils of the Plainfield High School will present the farce comedy "My Aunt from California" at the school auditorium Saturday evening, April 25, in connection with a concert by the school musical clubs. The cast of the play is composed of seven girls and regular rehearsals are being held under the direction of S. B. Howe, Jr., of the faculty as dramatic coach.

Those who are to take part in the production are Miss Louise Ashmead, as "Sally Needy;" Miss Bessie Alpaugh, "Felecia Needy;" Miss Marion Snyder, "Rosalie Needy;" Miss Barbara Fisher, "Mrs. Huntington Thurra," their aunt; Miss Harriet Knox, "Mrs. Needy," their mother; Miss Kathleen Phillips, "Miss Wilcox and Gibbs," a dressmaker; and Miss Margaret Leggett, "Greta," a maid. The school glee club of forty-eight voices and an orchestra of twelve pieces will render several selections and there will be cornet solos by Percy Mygrant, violin solos by Benjamin Sturman and a piano duet by the Misses Muriel Collins and Frances Rittenhouse.

BOROUGH TEACHERS WILL GET MORE PAY NEXT YEAR.

The report of the teachers' committee, fixing the salaries for next year and making the re-appointments for the borough schools was made at a short meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night. James R. Joy presented the report, as chairman of the committee, and the salary budget provides for a slight increase in nearly every case. The members of the committee was the sole business of the meeting which adjourned after a twenty minute session. Mr. Joy will announce the re-appointments to the various borough school teachers today and give them opportunity to accept or *reject before May 1. The announce*ments of faculty changes will be made in June.

Buys Cab Company.

William J. Hudson, a former resident of North Plainfield, his wife, Mrs. Laura A. Hudson, and William Green, of Brooklyn, have purchased the business of the Plainfield Cab Company on North avenue, and possession was taken on Monday. The property will be completely renovated and equipped in a first-class manner. The business is conducted by H. G. Toense and his two sons, who have since engaged in the manufacturing business in Philadelphia. Mr. Hudson was for many years proprietor of the Windsor Stables, on Putnam, and is experienced in the business. He will give his personal supervision to the business here.

Inspected County Roads.

The road committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders made a general inspection of roads throughout the county, yesterday, and decided on some repairs to be made during the summer. Tomorrow the committee will inspect Terrill road for the purpose of recommending that that thoroughfare be made a State aid road.

FINAL LENTEN SERVICES

Solemn Services Will be Held in Episcopal and Catholic Churches Good Friday.

ELABORATE EASTER PROGRAMS.

Music Will Be a Feature of Sunday's Observances in the Churches.

Making the End of Lent.

The closing days of Lent are being marked by special services of particularly impressive nature in the local Protestant Episcopal and Catholic churches, and there will be services of rejoicing at the churches on Easter Day, when the edifices will be decked with flowers and there will be special music.

Celebrations of the Holy Communion will be held daily except Friday and Saturday, and masses will be said at the Catholic churches. On Easter Day there will be several celebrations in the Episcopal churches and the customary five masses among the Catholics. The final Lenten services are being held daily in the Episcopal churches, and a feature of these will be the three hour service to be held Friday at Holy Cross church and Grace church as the Good Friday service to be held at the First M. E. church in the evening. At St. Mary's church, the three hours of agony will be impressively observed, and there will also be special sevices at St. Joseph's.

Holy Cross Church.

Special services will mark Good Friday at Holy Cross church, where the morning prayer and ante-communion service will be held at 9:30 o'clock. This will be followed by a young people's service. From noon until 3 o'clock, the principal service of the day will be held, with the full vested choir in attendance. There will be a special printed form of this service distributed at the church which will be for all Christian people who wish to commemorate the agony and passion of Our Lord, regardless of their sect. Members of the congregation will be free to leave at any time. In the evening there will be the evensong service, with sermon, at 7:45 o'clock. Saturday there will be a service at 10 for baptism at the church at 5 o'clock.

On Easter Day, there will be celebrations of the Holy Communion at 6 and 8 o'clock and at the principal service of the day at 11 o'clock. The children's service and mite box offering from the Sunday-school will be held at 9:45 o'clock, when the choir will lead the singing of the Easter carols. The choir of thirty-five voices will sing at the morning service and there will also be special music at the evening service at 7:45 o'clock.

St. Stephen's Church.

Tomorrow, Maundy Thursday, there will be services at St. Stephen's church at 7 and 10 o'clock in the morning, and 4 in the afternoon, including low celebrations of the Eucharist and evensong. On Good Friday, the service of the pro-Anaphora will be at 10 o'clock. A Passion service at noon and tenebrae at 8 o'clock in the evening. On Holy Saturday (Easter Even), there will be another low celebration in the morning and the first vespers of Easter Day at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Easter services will begin with low celebrations at 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock in the morning. Matins will be said at 10:30 and then will come the high celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 o'clock. The carol service for the Sunday-school will be held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Grace Church.

A commemoration of the institution of the Holy Communion will be held tomorrow night at Grace church, and there will be five services on Good Friday. These will include the ante-communion at 7:30 in the morning, following which will come a children's service at 9 o'clock. Morning prayer, litany and sermon will be at 11 and the meditations on the Passion will last from noon until 3 o'clock. Evensong will be said at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Celebrations of the Holy Communion will be held Easter Day at 7 and 8 o'clock in the morning. The principal service of the day will be at 10:30 o'clock, when there will be morning prayer, Holy Communion and sermon by the rector. The children's carol service for the Sunday-school will be at 3 in the afternoon and there will be evening prayer with sermon at 8 o'clock.

Heavenly Rest Church.

Rev. Charles Townsend will make an address in connection with the service at the Church of the Heavenly Rest tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, and there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion. The principal service of Good Friday will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning, when there will be the altar service and an address by the rector. In

SCOTT POST LEAVES THE COWARD BUILDING

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., which has occupied the top floor in the Coward building on East Front street for a great many years, has decided to remove its property, place it in storage and have the members meet in Reform Hall, until permanent quarters can be found. The decision is the result of action on the part of the new owner of the building, Henry Haurand, in making extensive repairs throughout the building, without notifying the veterans.

Owing to the changes it has been impossible for the Post, Women's Relief Corps or Sons of Veterans to hold their regular meetings during the past two or three weeks and they feel quite indignant that Mr. Haurand should not have consulted them before beginning operations.

Last night the Post planned to have an entertainment, at which Col. John F. Wilson and S. S. Swackhamer were to have made addresses, but when the veterans arrived and saw the condition of the room, it was decided to postpone the affair. The place was not in a fit condition for meeting purposes, it being filled with dirt and dust, while the entrance to the upper floor was blocked, making entrance and exit rather hazardous. A large sign with the word "Danger" was displayed in front of the door way. Last week the Women's Relief Corps was obliged to postpone an entertainment, after all arrangements were made, because the condition of the building, in planning the entertainment expenses were incurred, which were an entire loss to the organization. Thus far Mr. Haurand has made no explanation for his action from the post-school will be held at 9:45 o'clock, when the choir will lead the singing of the Easter carols. The choir of thirty-five voices will sing at the morning service and there will also be special music at the evening service at 7:45 o'clock.

CHATTEL MORTGAGEE HAS THE PRIOR CLAIM

Without leaving their seats the jury in the case of Morris Kunzman against Louis Pollack, tried before Judge Newcorn in the district court, yesterday, promptly returned a verdict for the plaintiff under instructions of the court. Two levies were made on property owned by Pollack, a grocer, of West Third street: one for the New Jersey Produce Company to satisfy a claim of $100, and another for Abram M. Furtig, for a like amount. It appeared that this came to Kunzman, who holds a chattel mortgage on the property for $1,400, and he claimed that his claim took precedence over the actions on the part of the New Jersey Produce Company and Mr. Furtig. Kunzman was represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Judge Newcorn agreed with him in his contention. The jury then returned a verdict for the plaintiff.

Charles J. McNab represented the New Jersey Produce Company and also Furtig. The jury was composed of F. F. Metcalf, Sylvester Sharkey, Gilbert H. VanNess, William M. Ragin, Thomas Kromer and Robert Whittaker.

FIRST BAPTISTS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

The annual parish meeting of the First Baptist church for the election of two trustees to succeed L. V. F. Randolph and Oliver B. Leonard and to receive the report of the treasurer, J. Herbert Case, was held last night. Alexander Gilbert was chairman of the meeting.

The report of the treasurer showed a balance of last report of $1,181.86 and the receipts for the year to be $7,239.19, making a total of $8,421.05. The expenditures for the year were $8,305.89 and $1,200 was appropriated for extensive improvements made in the Sunday-school room. The present cash balance is $115.16, with several hundred dollars due from pew rents and other sources. The estimated expenses for the coming year for fixed items is $7,200.

In the election of trustees, L. V. F. Randolph and Oliver B. Leonard were chosen to serve a full term of three years.

CLASSIS DISSOLVES BOND

At a Meeting in Newark, Dr. Schenck is Formally Relieved as Trinity's Pastor.

MAKE HIM PASTOR-EMERITUS.

Resolutions of Local Congregation's Consistory Are Presented By Elder Robert Clark, Jr.

The spring meeting of the Classis of Newark, Reformed church, was held today at Newark. The resignation of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck as pastor of Trinity Reformed church, this city, was presented and the dissolution asked for was granted by the Classis. Elders Robert Clark, Jr., and F. E. Smith, a committee from the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, were instructed at a recent meeting of that body to draft suitable resolutions bearing on the resignation. Trinity Reformed church, of this city, was represented at the Classis meeting by Elders Robert Clark, Jr., and Horace J. Martin, Sr.

Mr. Clark presented the following resolution, which was read before the Classis by Stated Clerk Rev. Henry Meeter and adopted:

"Be it resolved; that we in with sincere regret that we join with our pastor, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, D. D., in asking this Classis for a dissolution of the active pastoral relation now existing between him and Trinity Reformed church of Plainfield, and in so doing we desire to give expression to our appreciation of the work done by him as our pastor; his lovable character; the many good and noble qualities he has always exhibited and by which he has endeared himself and his noble untiring energy; continued zeal and consecrated devotedness to the cause of the Master.

"And furthermore; Be it resolved, That we take this opportunity of officially placing on record our continued love and esteem for our pastor as a man, as a citizen and as a minister of God and thank Almighty God for his long and successful ministry and that though laid aside from the active duties of the ministry he may be many years spared to be with us for many years to come.

"And furthermore; be it resolved, That for the love and esteem in which we hold our pastor, and in recognition of his long and faithful ministry we, the consistory of Trinity Reformed Church, of Plainfield, respectfully petition this Classis that our pastor be relieved from the active pastorate and that this Classis make him a pastor emeritus, we the consistory, pledging ourselves to contribute to his support."

Dr. Schenck was made pastor-emeritus by an unanimous vote. Trinity Reformed was warmly congratulated by members of the Classis over the way it had chosen to show the appreciation of his work.

FREEDOM CASTLE EXEMPLIFIES THE EAGLES' SECOND DEGREE.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, entertained a delegation of six members from Bushwick Castle, No. 12, of Brooklyn, last night. Those attended were Supreme Grand Chief John Diehl, William Lefferty and J. W. Poole, accompanied by three other members. They visited Freedom Castle especially to see the degree team work, the second degree being conferred on six candidates.

Freedom Castle now numbers an even 200 in membership. On Thursday night, April 30, the team will work the third degree on a class of candidates at a meeting of the Somerville castle. After the business session last night the knights enjoyed a banquet.

Patrick Moran.

Patrick Moran, for many years a resident of the West End, died last night at his home on West Fourth street, following an illness from a complication of troubles. He was seventy-one years old and was a veteran of the Civil War, having served with a company recruited in Rahway. He was an expert gardener and was employed for a long time by Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street. Surviving him are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Thomas Comerford, and a son, John Moran. The funeral will be held from his late home on Friday morning at 10 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Planning a "Kinder-Symphony."

Plans are being perfected for a "Kinder-Symphony" to be given at the home of Mrs. H. G. Runkle, of West Eighth street, on Thursday evening, April 30, for the benefit of the King's Daughters work in Plainfield. The affair, which will be an elaborate one, will be given by a number of well-known young society women.

CLIMBED OVER SEATS TO SLAP HUSBAND'S ANNOYERS

The recording blotter at police headquarters bore the following entry today, entered by Patrolman Tobias Nolan:

"Mrs. Bertram Sherman, who is known as Gertie Coddington, complained to me at 11:50 last night that three colored women had called her names and insulted her while she was attending the performance at the New Plainfield theatre. I advised her to appear in court and make a complaint and afterward hunted up the women she spoke of. They are Cora Wales, Ethel Tims and Ethel Mayberry. When I asked them about the trouble, they said Mrs. Sherman had been sitting two rows ahead of them and that she suddenly accused them of winking at her husband, who was with her. At the same time she climbed over the two rows of seats and attempted to slap all three of them, meeting with one-third success. They denied winking at Gertie's husband and added that when they winked they made sure the object was worth the effort. I told them they would be sent for if wanted."

This morning's session of the city court did not adjourn until 10:15 but up to that time Mrs. Sherman had not appeared to prefer any charge against the women who had "made a firt" with her husband.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS HAVE A BUSY SESSION

The regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held yesterday in the court room in Somerville, when all the members were present except Mr. Powelson, who was reported to be ill. William R. Sutphen was elected clerk pro tem because of the illness of his father, A. P. Sutphen, the regular clerk, who is suffering from muscular rheumatism.

*The matter of awarding the con*tract for the macadamizing of the Watchung-Warrenville road, which was laid over from a previous meeting, was taken up for consideration. The contract was awarded to Thomas E. Hann, of North Plainfield, the lowest bidders. Their figure was $21,600.05.

Charles C. Kenyon and Joseph Barras, representing the Somerville Board of Commissioners, asked to have a new bridge built on East High street.

A communication was received from the Mayor and Council of North Plainfield requesting that the board construct a bridge on the recently accepted extension of Watchung avenue across the east branch of Stony brook, which intersects such street. This was filed.

A communication was received from the N. J. Central R. R. Co. in reference to the condition of the crossing on the Chimney Rock branch, with a promise that it would be improved as soon as possible. Filed.

Attention was called to a dangerous place on the new road from Bernardsville to Oak Stump and request was made that guard rails should be placed there. Counsel Frech gave the opinion that it was up to the Township Committee to do this, as the road is under its jurisdiction and control exclusively.

The action of Senator Frelinghuysen in having the salary of the Prosecutor increased from $1,200 to $1,800 a year, by the introduction of a bill in the Legislature, which passed both Houses and is awaiting the Governor's signature, was unanimously approved.

Milton Lebaw spoke before the board introducing metal culverts.

It decided that the matter of expending $120 extra for placing slop sinks in the new court house be left with the building committee with power.

The bridge committee was given power to advertise and receive bids and award contracts for bridges on the South Bound Brook road.

The board adjourned to meet in North Plainfield tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the fire house, to go from thence to inspect bridges.

COURT GRANTS LICENSES

Judge Schenck warns Tavern-Keepers They Must Serve Better Meals to Transients.

CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

Justice Parker Orders That Alleged Liquor Laws' Violations Be Investigated.

Justice Charles W. Parker, of Morristown, who presided in the Somerset county courts at Somerville yesterday for the first time, made a fine impression. With him on the bench were Justice James J. Bergen, of Somerville, and Judge Louis H. Schenck, of Neshanic.

Justice Parker announced that since his transfer from Sussex to *Somerset recently there was a con*fliction in the dates of the opening of the September terms of the two counties, and stated that the opening day in Somerset would be on the third Tuesday, instead of the second, as heretofore announced. The other terms will be on the dates already scheduled.

In his charge to the Grand Jury the Court stated that there were two matters to which he wished to call especial attention. He declared that the liquor laws had been made more effective by recent legislation and that he understood there had been some violation of them in Somerset county. The laws should be obeyed and the Prosecutor will bring before the jury any cases for violation of the liquor laws and, the court stated, that the jurors, if they found that, in their judgment, the parties were guilty they should indict them.

Justice Parker handed the Grand Jury a communication from a number of people in Bernards township relating to the management of fiscal and financial matters. It referred to the alleged expenditure of certain moneys on streets and the improvement of dirt and mud roads. He said the matter should be sifted.

Judge Voo, of Elizabeth, will be in Somerville on Monday, April 27, for the trial of Supreme and Circuit cases.

The constables appointed for the terms were George D. Totten, Charles W. Hill, Andrew D. Flammer, William N. Pangborn, Arthur S. Dixon and Joseph de Marco.

The following hotel licenses were granted: Hugo Maul, North Plainfield; Minnie Ellis Hann, Plainfield; William H. Lyon, Bernardsville; William Greasheimer, Bound Brook; Henry Pedtiour, Warrenville; Edward G. Weaver, East Millstone; George C. Hall, Bound Brook; William B. Kohlhepp, Somerville; Morris Farbman, North Plainfield; Jacob J. Maurer, Bound Brook; John W. Hulsizer, East Millstone; John J. Kennalley and George Howard, Bedminster; William H. Earley, Somerville; Henry Schlothane, Chimney Rock; Herbert H. Mount, Rocky Hill; Richard Mount, Neshanic Station; Kenneth S. Sibley, Bernardsville; Leon W. Du Four, Bound Brook; S. Louise Fisher, Middle Brook; Philip T. Hickey, Raritan; Augustus Antonio Martinez, William H. Carey, Somerville; Vincent J. Sisser, Raritan; William O. Allen, Liberty Corner; Jacob Bailey, Somerville.

These wholesale licenses were granted to: Jersey Bottling Co., Somerville and North Plainfield; Adolph Bohlen, North Plainfield.

The saloons licensed were: Libertado De Castro, Bound Brook; William Fuer, Bound Brook; John Traynor, Raritan; Charles Hickey, Raritan; George Kous, Raritan.

The character of the meals provided at many of the hotels, Judge Scheack said was of such a nature that it must be remedied and those having a license must serve good meals, when transients come along and were willing to pay the usual prices. Accommodation must also be provided for rigs. He declared that a license granted to a public house gave a value it would not have otherwise and it is the duty of the manager of the place to keep it in repair, so that the value of other properties will not be depreciated by the slovenly condition of a hotel.

Borough Pupils in Operetta.

The operetta "The Enchanted Palace" will be presented by pupils of the grammar grades of the Somerset street school, on Good Friday night, May 8. About fifty pupils will take part in the rendition, which will be elaborate in scenery and costuming. The pupils are being coached by Herbert Lloyd, the school musical instructor, Mabel E. Tremblath, and Miss Laura Sydenham. Miss Myra Emmons will be the accompanist.

Kathleen Reagan.

Kathleen Reagan, the four-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Reagan, of Sidney avenue, died last night. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

CIVIL SERVICE TRIUMPHS

Governor Quickly Signs Bill Rushed Through as Legislature Adjourns.

MR. PIERCE'S GOOD WORK.

Union County Assemblyman Gets Ackerman Measure Through the House During Final Hours.

On the eve of final adjournment, just before the legislators went out for supper at 7 o'clock last night, Governor Fort turned the tables on the machine leaders by mustering enough votes to revise and pass the

Carlton B. Pierce,
Union's Model Assemblyman Who Got Bill Through the House.

much pitched-up civil service commission bill. The act carries $10,000 appropriation, mandatory on the State, and municipalities can vote to accept its provisions. The State leaders are much disgusted at the action of the Governor, who got thirty-two votes for the bill. One reason for their disgust is that under its provisions to solicit a political subscription from an employe of the State is a misdemeanor.

Governor Fort clinched his victory over the leaders by demanding the passed civil service bill, and immediately made the law by his signature. It is a clearcut Fort victory.

On getting the bill before the House again Assemblyman Pierce had it passed by a vote of 32 to 28. The rollcall was as follows:

Yeas—Braun, Burpo, Buxton,

Ernest R. Ackerman,
Father of the Civil Service Bill and Union's Energetic Senator.

Clark Colgate, Crosby, Daab, Devine, Jr., Fake, Hendrickson, Jr., Hines, Holcombe, Irick, Jess, Kirstein, Lowrey, Martin, McCold, Miller, Morgan, Morris, Moxon, Pierce, Prince, Radcliffe, Roberts, Smalley, Smith, Thompson, Tumulty, Whitehead and Young.

Nays—Auf Der Heide, Baker, Beecroft, Biohm, Buck, Cattell, Eppinger, Firth, Gibbs, Ginnelly, Holzapfel, Housel, Keffer, Kenney, Keough, Lewis, Lyon, Otwell, F. B. Potter, J. Potter, Ramsey, Ridgway, Stille, Sullivan, Tattum, Valentine, Van Cleef and Voorhees.

These Democrats voted with the Republicans for the bill: Daab, Hendrickson, Jr., Holcombe, Morris and Tumulty.

Now Pastor at Atlantic Highlands.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of West Eighth street, formerly pastor of the Baptist church at Dunellen, has accepted a call to become pastor of the First Baptist church at Atlantic Highlands for a period of six months. Dr. Fletcher and his wife moved to Atlantic Highlands last week and will board there during the domine's pastorate. During most of the past winter, Dr. Fletcher has been supplying at Atlantic Highlands, and was urged to become permanent pastor there, but refused.

Telephones for China.

Active construction work has been begun on the telephone lines which are to link the leading towns of China together. The construction and operation is entirely under control of the Chinese government.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT FREEHOLDERS TO ACT

Petitions are being circulated among property owners on Green brook road and upper Watchung avenue, North Plainfield, urging the Somerset County Board of Freeholders to assume charge of the opening up of these roads and their maintainance. The Freeholders will hold their next meeting Tuesday, and at this time, it is expected that the owners of at least two-thirds of the property abutting on the roads will have signed the petitions.

An effort was made at the last Freeholders' meeting to have the county construct a macadam roadway on Greenbrook road from Somerset street to the borough limits on Rock avenue, and to extend Watchung avenue to Somerset street. The petition of the Borough Council was at that time rejected, because it was not properly framed. Former State Senator Charles A. Reed, the borough counsel, has drawn up the formal request to the Freeholders and George Bird is circulating the petition for the Watchung avenue extension, while W. L. Smalley has charge of the Greenbrook road petition. Many of the largest property owners abutting each street have signed the petition endorsing the county maintainance of the roads.

HAVEN FOR THE POOR NEAR TO BOUND BROOK

Through the kindness of George La Monte, of New York, the Christodora Settlement, also of New York, will have seventy-two acres of fine open country among the hills near Bound Brook, N. J., for a vacation centre this year. The place, which is known as Northover Camp, is an ideal spot where the tired mothers and children of the city will be able to enjoy the fresh country air and come back to the city refreshed.

The sum of $3,500 will be required to equip the site, and only $2,500 of that amount will be spent in permanent equipment. Mr. La Monte has given $500 toward the fund, besides the land, and William L. Sexton, the treasurer of the settlement, will be pleased to receive any contributions toward the cause at 147 Avenue B, New York.

JUDGE SCHENCK SITS AT SOMERSET COURT

In the Somerset county courts at Somerville Friday, Judge Schenck finally disposed of the two wholesale license matters from Raritan. The application made by M. Ruggieri for a license on the Curcio place was withdrawn and a new application made for another location. This was granted. The court would not grant a license on the old place, because of violations of the law there on former occasions. The Troisi application, made by Antone Baroni, was withdrawn.

William Bird, of North Plainfield, charged with stealing a coat from the automobile of Judge W. A. Codington, was arraigned on allegation and pleaded guilty. He was placed in charge of the probation officer for two years.

William Duval, charged with stealing $90 from his brother at Bernardsville, was also arraigned on allegation and pleaded guilty. He was turned over to the probation officer for two years.

Several boys implicated in the theft of some articles from the Somerville Woolen Mills store houses, were arraigned on allegation and pleaded guilty. They will report to Probation Officer Osborn for a year.

The Smallest Engine.

The smallest locomotive engine in the world weighs twelve grains, and three drops of water fill its boiler. This miniature marvel was constructed by an ingenious American. Despite the fact that it could be placed inside a thimble, it is composed of 140 distinct parts, and is held together by fifty-two screws. The gauge of an inch, and its diameter is less than one-ninth of an inch. Yet when it gets in motion it works as though it were the strongest and biggest locomotive that ever ran on rails.—Philadelphia Press.

LAD'S HAND LACERATED BETWEEN COG WHEELS.

Salvatore Delicci, an 19-year-old Italian employed at Debele & Stahl's, on Somerset street, got his left hand caught in the cog transmission of an ice cream freezer Saturday, and it was badly torn and lacerated before the power could be shut off. The ambulance was summoned, and he was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where an examination showed his injuries to be but slight flesh wounds.

The accident happened as Delicci was re-filling a freezer with ice. The lad's hand was caught between two cog-wheels. Mr. Debele, who was near the freezer, instantly threw off the power belt and released Delicci, who was thrown into a pasle of fear by the sight of blood and the pain. There were no broken bones.

WOULD LYNCH FIREBUG

Detected in the Act, German Youth Barely Escapes Being Strung Up.

THE PRISONER HAS CONFESSED.

He Gives Assistant Prosecutor No Reason For His Setting Fire to Valuable Barns.

Eugene Pfester, a German, aged 18 years, was arrested Friday at Berkeley Heights, while in the act of setting fire to the barn and hay-stack of George Wahl at that place. The prisoner confessed that he set their novel minstrel show conception, fire to the barn and hay-stack on the night of March 21, at which time the entire building, together with many cows, calves, horses, was one and a quantity of hay and straw were consumed.

When the fact became known that the fire-bug had been captured, Constable Dandelion, who made the arrest, had great difficulty in preventing a lynching from taking place. The citizens turned out in large numbers and threatened to bodily harm to Pfester, and only for the prompt action of the constable, it is said, he would have been strung up to the nearest tree in short order.

When he was detected setting fire to Mr. Wahl's property last night, the blaze had a good start in the hay-stack and the barn and it was only after the hardest kind of a fight that the fire was extinguished.

The barn owned by Mr. Zimmerman was one of the largest in Northern Union county and its destruction entailed a loss of thousands of dollars. At the time the citizens were greatly incensed, believing the fire to be of incendiary origin. Soon afterward Pfester, who was living in the neighborhood, acted in a suspicious manner and there were many who believed him guilty of arson. The suspicion was well founded and substantiated last night.

This morning Pfester made a full confession of his acts before Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. When questioned as to why he had set fire to the buildings, he could give no reason. It is the opinion of the county authorities that he simply had a mania for committing such deeds. Pfester has been in this country about eighteen months, having come here from Germany. Soon after landing, he settled at Berkeley Heights, where he found employment on various farms. As far as can be learned, he was always treated well and had no grudge against any one in the vicinity.

UNION'S SENATOR LAUDS UNION'S CO. CHAIRMAN

Nothing in recent years, has stirred State politics like the Senator Ackerman interview printed a few days ago, in which he denounced the political bosses right and left.

"It has had a splendid effect," said Senator Ackerman yesterday, "and I am glad such has been the case. There was no word of exaggeration in what I said or in what was printed. It was certainly time that a warning was sounded if we wished to save the Republican party in New Jersey from ruin.

Distinguishing between a man who leads and the one who bosses, Mr. Ackerman held up County Chairman Frank R. Smith, of Union, as one of the leading men. He said that the heads of county organizations in other parts of the State took the same reasonable view of things as Mr. Smith did the party would be in no danger and there would be no scandals in legislative halls.

"And whatever may be the fate of the civil service bill," said the Senator, "I cannot say too much for the work of the Union county Assembly men in its behalf. They earnestly did their utmost to put the measure through."

Several councils of war have been held at the State House on the interview with Senator Ackerman and newspapers from Sussex to Cape *May have made it a subject for dis*cussion.

Exempt Firemen Elect.

The Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association, at its regular meeting this week, elected these officers for the coming year: President, V. W. Nash, Sr.; vice president, Charles Conover; secretary, G. MINSTRELS MAKE A HIT Salaam Temple's Arabian Patrol Troupe Delights a Large Audience.

LOCAL "GAGS" WERE PLENTIFUL

Illustrious Potentate Marshal Presented With Silver Loving Cup at Close of the Performance.

Barrels of fun were on tap at the New Plainfield theatre, Wednesday, when members of the Arab Patrol of Salaam Temple, Ancient Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Newark, delighted a large audience with and the efforts of the troupe were aided by scenic and electrical effects that revealed the "lavish expenditure" so often boasted by professional productions.

As minstrel men without the aid of stagecraft, the Patrol certainly made good. At times the performance crept close to the professional line and there were encores that showed unlimited enthusiasm. The end men were really funny, the soloists were good singers and several specialty numbers made certain that dullness would have no place in the show. And at the close of the program, a number not down on the bills showed that the performers are rattling good fellows and that they entailed a loss of know their way "twixter" in their illustrious potentate, Harry W. Marshall, of this city.

The minstrel entertainment is an original conception, written, arranged and staged by Noble Edwin S. Fancher, of Parwood, a member of the patrol. It was given originally in Krueger's Auditorium, Newark, on February 28 and Illustrious Potentate Marshall was one of the spec*tators who was delighted* with it. He made overtures to have it repeated in Plainfield and Wednesday's invasion resulted.

The plot of the performance revolves about a supposed pilgrimage of the Arab Patrol of Salaam Temple to Mecca, in Arabia, traveling across the desert. Fearing that they will be harassed by the real natives, they disguise themselves as Arabs. At the opening of the show the members of the Patrol are seen encamped in the oasis of the desert, with the Sphynx and the Pyramids in the distance as a background. The gas bags burst during an international balloon race and the contestants are the end men, drop into the camp. During the minstrel show, that the Patrol and their unexpected visitors give to pass away the time, a sand storm occurs and scatters the tribe. "An army hastily recruited from Egypt" is shown, with a performing camel, ostriches, crocodiles and mummies is a feature of the production.

Mr. Fancher was interlocutor and the end men were Nobles Harold E. Kellnes, Forrest A. Heath, Albert A. Schurr and Henry W. Egner, Jr., W. Harry Rees and Frederick Hamilton. The chorus and specialty artists numbered thirty while an orchestra of fifteen pieces, in charge of George W. Vandenburg furnished the accompaniment.

All of the end men made a "hit" with their songs and impersonations and the bunch of local gags they handed out kept the audience in a roar. Among those "poked" were Mayor Fisk, Former Mayor Buckle, Freeholder Wilbur, John Kenney, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Harry Marshall and Dr. Adams. Fred Hamilton, in Scotch kilts and a Harry Lauder accent, got three encores on a clever Highland fling and Albert Schurr carried off a large share of the honors by his rendition of "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark." A dancing number by Cooper and Brown and baton twirling by Fred Clark were among the best numbers on the program.

After the curtain had fallen on the closing scene, Chief Jenkinson, of the patrol, called Potentate Marshall to the stage and in behalf of the troupe presented him with a handsome silver loving cup. He stated that they realized he was "a prince of good fellows" and had decided to express their appreciation of his interest in them in concrete form. Mr. Marshall responded fittingly.

The committee in charge of the local arrangements comprised L. B. Woolston, chairman; Harry W. Marshall, B. Frank Cordell, Henry Woodland, Henry Liefke, Frederick Hand and H. C. Levy. Plainfield shriners and those from other places were in the audience with dress suit, fez and claws. The Patrol came from Newark in a special train and after a short parade through the streets were entertained at supper in Masonic Hall.

Lead and Tin.

Lead and tin can be obtained very pure. Good brands of commercial lead contain 99.95 per cent. lead and are often even purer. Lead is the purest metal which is made commercially. Good brands of tin are 99.98 per cent. pure.

STEEPLECHASE IS PLANNED

Arrangements Made by Watchung Hunt Club for Its Annual Event.

NOW NUMBERS 130 MEMBERS.

Dinner for Farmers to Follow Big Card On Decoration Day—Chase This Afternoon.

The Watchung Hunt Club is making excellent progress in preparation for the opening of the season on May 1. Thursday night at a regular meeting held by the organization seventy new members were elected, making the total at present 130. Of this number about twenty-five are prominent New York horsemen. The limit of membership has been fixed at 200 and up to the number of 150 no initiation fee will be charged. After that it will be $25 in addition to the regular dues.

The work of putting the club's new grounds and home in first-class condition is now in full swing. Yesterday the house and kennels were removed from Mayor Fisk's farm on Park avenue to the new home. A large force of carpenters are busy making the necessary alterations and changes at the clubhouse, while other men are busy on the grounds.

There is no fact that Decoration Day falls on Saturday, this year, the club has decided to hold a one-day race meet, which will take place on that day. An exceptionally strong program, comprising four steeplechases, two flat races and even the celebrated farmer's race, to be followed by the big dinner to the farmers. The racing committee comprises Harry A. Bourne, C. E. S. Bellows, Peter Hauck, Jr., Harvey Fisk, C. F. Wilder, Jr., and Lewis Waring, master of the hounds. Because Mr. Waring has been selected as one of the judges in the saddle class at the Philadelphia Horse Show to be held in the Quaker City, commencing May 25, it is likely that Mr. Bourne will be made chairman of the committee. W. S. Blitz will be secretary and clerk of the course at the steeplechase meet. Of the two flat races, one will be for ponies and the other for mokes.

Applications for membership in the club are held a stated time before action is taken, and at present there are ten such applications to be acted upon. It is predicted that the full list of 200 will be received by June 1. In the meantime the club has started its regular hunts, during the week and on Saturdays. This afternoon the riders met at Mt. Pleasant school-house and hunted throughout Middlesex county.

TRAVELING MEN PLAN PROSPERITY CONGRESS

Frank W. Weed, of this city, a prominent member of the Plainfield Council, United Commercial Travelers' Association, has been appointed a member of the publicity committee for the Commercial Travelers' International Prosperity Congress to be held in New York on August 14 and 15. Comptroller Herman A. Metz, of New York, has been made honorary head of the Congress which has been inspired by a desire on the part of the members of the two organizations to restore confidence and trade. The idea is to make the commercial travelers the real advance agents of prosperity.

The large number of members, as well as those of the New York Merchants' Association, who will join in the Congress, will be entertained by speakers, including the most influential business men. The Congress *will meet in the rooms of the Mer*chants' Association of New York, and the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, will unite in making the affair a success. Among those who will take a prominent part is Hon. John S. Whalen, of Albany, who is vice-president of the Congress association. On August 15, the members and their wives and friends will take possession of Manhattan Beach, where there will be athletic games, to be followed in the evening by a banquet and ball. A number of Plainfielders are expected to attend.

Miss Nancy M. Wade a Bride.

Miss Nancy M. Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, of Sturgis burg avenue, Scotch Plains, and Rev. C. B. Livingston, of Wampum, Pa., were married Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents at 4 o'clock. Rev. James Hoffman, a former pastor of the Methodist church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. W. W. Dietrick, the present pastor. After a honeymoon the couple will reside at Wampum, where the groom is pastor of the Methodist church.

Mr. Runkle a Director.

Harry G. Runkle, of West Eighth street, was elected a member of the board of directors of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Co., at a meeting of the stockholders at New Haven yesterday. This company, through a lease, is now a subsidiary property of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

DEMOCRATS VS. BRYAN

Stormy Scene When Dilts Introduces Resolution at Co. Committee Meeting.

IT'S SIMPLY SNOWED UNDER.

Member of State Committee Will Be Picked On April 24—Primaries On April 21.

The efforts of J. V. F. Dilts, of this city, to have the Union County Democratic Committee endorse the candidacy of William J. Bryan for the Presidency and favor the selection of delegates who would vote for him at the National convention, were promptly and decisively defeated at a meeting of the committee in Elizabeth Wednesday night.

The matter was brought before that body in the form of resolutions offered by Mr. Dilts, and immediately there was a storm of protest. It was the opinion of a majority of the members that it was entirely out of place to seek the committee endorsement of Bryan or even attempt to dictate to the Democrats of the county who should be elected delegates or how they should be instructed. The proposition was resented emphatically and the resolutions were defeated by a vote of 60 to 6.

There was a rumor at the meeting that the resolutions had been prompted by James E. Martine, but no one was willing to stand sponsor for the allegation. It was plainly evident that the committee is not favorable to Bryan, and even if some of the members would like to see him nominated they were opposed to an endorsement of him at this time.

It was announced that a caucus would be held on Friday, April 24, to select a successor to Peter Feigenoff, who has resigned as a member of the State Committee. There are two candidates for the place, Gen. E. F. Collins, chairman *of the County Com*mittee, and J. J. Lane, chairman of the Congressional Committee. It is said that Collins is likely to be named.

The county primaries will be held on Tuesday, April 21. A report from the committee on naturalization recommending that important features of the law be printed in English form for distribution was adopted. Fred Zlor was re-elected a member of the county board of elections.

A communication was received from Robert Hudspeth, State chairman of the committee, stating that the State convention will be held in Trenton at 12 o'clock noon, April 28, at which time four delegates at large will be elected to attend the National convention. At 11 o'clock on the same day the Fifth Congressional convention will be held in room 15, Trenton House, to select two delegates. W. E. Tuttle, of Westfield, will probably be one of the delegates elected at the Congressional convention.

Two vacancies in the county committee at Rahway, were filled last night by the election of George B. Cladek from the Second ward and Frank V. Dobbins from the Fifth ward.

James E. Martine today republished any connection with the fight. He declared that in his opinion, it was very unwise to press such a question at this time.

Bottlers' License Bill a Law.

Governor Fort yesterday morning signed House bill No. 298, the Morris liquor bottlers' license bill. The Hudson delegation in the Assembly Thursday got through a motion to recall the bill, but it did not reach the Governor. The real object was to try and kill it. The measure as amended by the Senate provides for a license fee of $100 on all peddlers of bottled liquor. It passes both houses, but in some unexplained way it reached the Governor's office minus the Senate amendment.

Mrs. Chamberlain Seeks Divorce.

Mrs. Emma R. Chamberlain, of Dover, Sussex county, has instituted a suit for divorce from her husband, Joseph Chamberlain, of this city, on the grounds of desertion. According to the bill, Mr. Chamberlain left his wife several years ago, and has not since contributed toward her support. Mrs. Chamberlain is represented by M. J. Smith, attorney, of Dover, and papers were served on Mr. Chamberlain last night. By the marriage there were four children, two being dead. There are two daughters living with the mother, one aged sixteen years and the other aged nine years. Mr. Chamberlain is now employed by the Quincy-Manchester-Sergeant Company's plant, as a laborer, and he resides on Lee place.

Sunday-school Teachers Elect.

The Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Association has elected these officers for the coming year: President, Miss Ethel Beeching; first vice president, Mrs. J. A. Powlison; second vice president, Mrs. F. R. Baker; third vice president, Mrs. D. L. Darby; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Barnes; assistant secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Elvalo J. Wyckoff; librarian, Miss White; pianist, Mrs. L. R. Schofield.

KEELY CASE DISMISSED

Contractor Fails to Appear Against Henry Bundy who Blacked His Eye.

A SUNDAY MORNING FRACAS.

After He Got the Worst of Encounter Keely Had Bundy Arrested and Then Assault.

Much to the disappointment of a large number of spectators, John E. Keely failed to appear when Judge Runyon called for a hearing of the charge of assault and battery against Henry Bundy in the city court Saturday. The defendant stepped forward and announced that he was ready to proceed and had witnesses to prove that he was not to blame for the altercation that led to Keely's getting beautifully "trimmed."

"Complaint dismissed" was all the magistrate said.

When the case was first brought up last Monday, Keely claimed that no one witnessed the fracas but Bundy and the matter was adjourned in order that he might produce them. Since then two have been found who came forward voluntarily and asserted that Bundy had simply acted in self-defense, adding that they would attend court in order to see that her received fair treatment.

"And furthermore," said one of the witnesses, "Keely got just what he deserved."

It was rumored in court, this morning, that an inkling of this information had reached Keely and that the complainant and it may have been a big factor in his determination to make the best of a bad bargain by remaining away. At all odds, Bundy left court with a satisfied smile on his face and several friends wanted him to remain and prefer a counter-charge.

After the trouble occurred in the yard of Keely's home on South avenue, last Sunday morning, he jumped in a rig and drove post-haste to police headquarters and made the complaint. After this was done he offered to take Detective-Sergeant Flynn to where Bundy might be found in his anxiety to have him arrested and locked up. The officer went with him and Bundy was soon located but he protested at the time that he had only struck Keely to save himself from being injured.

SECOND SONG RECITAL GIVEN BY MR. M'INTYRE

The second song recital given Thursday afternoon by Jos. McIntyre, at the home of Mrs. J. P. Stevens, of Hillside avenue, attracted a large and cultured audience that thoroughly appreciated the choice program and the work of the singer.

Mr. McIntyre, whose delightful work at the piano, has won for him first place in the hearts of Plainfield's music-loving people, was assisted by Dr. Carl Duft, basso, and Paul Dufault, tenor. Dr. Duft is no stranger here, and his appearance was marked by a hearty reception. His voice possessing those rare male qualities which have for years made him famous in the world of music, was heard to the best advantage. His selections were peculiarly suited to him and he recinated his audience with the rendition of them. He was generous with encores and with each succeeding song he seemed to strengthen the true appreciation for his work.

It was the second appearance of Mr. Dufault in this city, the first being at one of Mr. McIntyre's chamber music concerts, and in the several numbers sung by him he displayed a tenor voice possessing sweetness, strength and breadth that was a delight to all. He showed complete control in the higher range, making his renditions most effective.

Too much cannot be said in praise of Mr. McIntyre. As an accompanist not a thing is left to be desired, and it was largely due to his work that the recital was such a great success. The violin solos given in the high and handsome music-room at Mrs. Stevens' home, which is particularly adapted for such affairs.

The program comprised eleven numbers by Dr. Duft and six by Mr. Dufault. Those by Dr. Duft were the following:

"Caro-Mio-Ben," old Italian; Schumile," old French; "Ich Grolle," old German; "Come Rosalind," old English; "Mary of Argyle," old Scotch; "Skye Boat Song," old Jacobite air; "Rantin' Rovin' Robin," old Scotch; "Warning," Mozart; "Mit Eined Formula Veris," and "Spielmanslied," Grieg; "Schyagende Herzen," Strauss.

These numbers were given by Mr. Dufault:

"My Desire," Nevin; recitative and aria from "Joseph in Egypt," Mehul; aria, "Elle ne Croyent pas," from Mignon, Thomas; "At Twilight," Nevin; "An Interlude," Ronald; "At The Dawn," D'Hardelot.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 12, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Sunday, our weekly Easter, and how to observe it.—John xx. 1-18; 19-23; Rev. 1. 10.

When Easter Sabbath comes we are always reminded that Christ arose from the dead upon the Sabbath, but throughout the rest of the year we fail to remember that every Sabbath is a memorial of Christ's resurrection. But it is. In the Old Testament the seventh day was the Sabbath day, but in the New Testament it was changed from the seventh day to the first in honor of the fact that on that day our Lord rose from the dead. The seventh day is no longer mentioned as the Sabbath day. The apostles met on the first day of the week, and they speak of the Sabbath as "the first day" and "the Lord's day." John says, "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day." There is no question but what the change was made and that today the first day of the week is the Sabbath, so that every Sabbath day is Easter Sabbath so far as the commemoration of Christ's resurrection is concerned.

It is well to remember this tremendous fact. It may help us to attach more importance to the Sabbath and inspire us to honor it and keep it holy in a higher and truer sense than we now do. This is a commercialization devoutly to be wished." There is a great increase in the desecration of the Sabbath day. The enemies of Christianity disregard it, denounce it and try in every way to break it down. Moreover, the professed followers of Christ are more and more disregarding the Sabbath. This should not be so. Man needs the Sabbath. For the best interest of body, mind and soul he needs one day out of seven "to be in the Spirit" and to rest from worldly cares and recreations. The man who disregards the Sabbath is his own enemy, shortening his life here and risking the loss of his soul in the life to come.

But how are we to observe the Sabbath? God has told us. (1) We are to rest. This resting is not loafing or pleasure seeking or visiting. Body and mind are to rest from usual cares that attention may be paid to the soul. (2) We are to honor the Sabbath. The man who truly honors it will find the proper way to keep it holy. God through His word and Spirit will reveal to him what to do and what not to do. "Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ohio's New President.

Rev. W. S. Harpster, the new president of the Ohio Christian Endeavor union, is a Buckeye by birth and with the exception of a brief stay in St. Louis has always resided in Ohio. For many years he has been an active Endeavorer and has always been in full sympathy with the movement. He has served successful pastorates at Lancaster, Canton, Akron, Cleveland and Carey. He has been eminently successful in revival work, and his services have been in demand in many fields as an evangelist. He is president of his conference union of Christian Endeavorers in the United Evangelical church and a secretary of the mission board of his conference.

President Harpster is the busy and successful pastor of the United Evangelical church at Carey. He is one of the leaders in his conference and denomination. For many years he has been one of Ohio's most active and interested vice presidents.

Busy Men and Christian Endeavor.

The other night when the rain was pouring torrents an editor met Pres. Grant Hervey of the Massachusetts union on a train. He had been speaking for a local union. "When will you reach home?" he was asked. "About 1 o'clock in the morning." was the answer. "How often do you make such trips?" "About once a week." That is a sample of the splendid consecration that busy men are making for Christian Endeavor.

Endeavor.

Strive, endeavor—it profits more
To fight and fall than on time's dull shore
To sit and idle ever.
Then let him who bares his arm to the strife,
Stem at his post in the battle of life.
The victory glorifies ever.
Therefore in faith abide,
Abide thou and endeavor.

HERE'S IDEAL MODEL CITIZEN.

The Coming Man as Seen by Admirers of Socialism.

To describe an ideal modern citizen now is at best to make a guess and a suggestion as to what must be built in reality by the efforts of a thousand minds. But he will be a very different creature from the different, well-behaved business man who passes for a good citizen to-day. He will be neither under the slave tradition nor a rebel, nor a vehement elemental man. Essentially he will be aristocratic; aristocratic not in the sense that he has slaves or class inferiors, because probably he will have nothing of the sort, but aristocratic in the sense that he will feel that the state belongs to him and he to the state. He will probably be a public servant; at any rate he will be a man doing some work in the complicated machinery of the modern community for a salary and not for speculative gain. Typically he will be a professional man. I do not think the ideal modern citizen can be a person living wholly by buying for the lowest he can give and selling for as much as he can get; indeed, most of what we idolise as business enterprise, I think he will regard with very considerable suspicion. And then I am a Socialist and look forward to the time when the economic machinery of the community will not be a field for private enrichment but for public service.—Everybody's Magazine.

CAN ALWAYS TRUST CHINAMEN.

Customs in Celestial Empire Have Made Dishonesty Scarce.

"You soon learn in China that you can trust a Chinaman to carry through anything he agrees to do for you," says Samuel Merwin in Success Magazine. "I received Tai Yuan-fu I handed my interpreter a Chinese draft for $200 (Mexican), payable to bearer, and told him to go to the bank and bring back the money. I had known John a little more than a year, yet any one who knows China will understand that I was running no appreciable risk. The individual Chinaman is simply a part of a family, the family is part of a neighborhood, the neighborhood is part of a village or district, and so on. If John had disappeared with my money after cashing the draft and afterward been caught, punishment would have been swift and severe. Very likely he would have lost his head. If the authorities had been unable to find John they would have punished his family. Punishment would surely have fallen on somebody."

A Lithuanian Funeral.

On Sunday morning a strange funeral cortege passed through the Mission streets. The hearse was followed by a procession of vehicles which filled the middle of the street. They wore dark skirts trimmed with bands of lace, embroidery, or colored strips, and all wore aprons, some of black silk or cloth, but more of sheer white embroidered corners, and fringed shawls were over their shoulders. It was not a uniform, but more in the nature of holiday attire such as one sees in Italy and France on carnival occasions or fete days. The men in the procession wore conventional dress, but their bearded faces were not American. Inquiring as to the nationality of these odd figures who made such a strange picture in San Francisco, I found they were Lithuanians, and that there is a large colony of them here, mostly employed at a laundry over toward the Potrero.—San Francisco Call.

Driving a Good Bargain.

The barber's small son was in the habit of playing around his father's shop, and he was always keenly interested in the patrons. Many a stray penny found its way into the little dubby hand, and sticks of gum were dropped in quite as though by accident. Judge Williams drifted into the shop the other afternoon for a hair cut. The lad recognized the fact that the Judge was a new patron, and so was more than usually interested in him. He hung at the foot of the chair and looked musingly at the judge's bald head. Then he walked slowly to the back of the chair and surveyed the scanty fringe of hair from that point of vantage. He could contain himself no longer and burst out incredulously: "Father, do—you—get a quarter for cutting that?"—Lippincott's.

Must Charge to Get Crowd.

The Ladies' guild of a certain New York church had planned an evening entertainment and reception, and asked the rector to make announcement of it the Sunday preceding.

"This is all right," he said, "but you must charge admission."

"Why this is just a social evening," they protested. "We are inviting people."

"They won't come," said the rector, "because they will think it is not worth while. But charge a small admission and you will have a good crowd." So the women gave in, and subsequent events proved the rector was right.

Daniel Up to Date.

Jimmy, aged five, was told the story of Daniel in the lions' den, by his grandmother. When she had finished the story she asked Jimmy what he thought Daniel did the very first thing when he found he was saved from the lions?"

"Oh, I guess he telephoned home to his wife to tell her he was all right," answered Jimmy.

HIS NARROW ESCAPE.

For Once Ferguson's Brain Acted Quickly Enough.

"George Ferguson," sharply exclaimed his wife after the visitor had gone, "I wouldn't for worlds be as big a hypocrite as you are!"

"In what way," he demanded, "have I been acting the hypocrite?"

"You know well enough. Why, Cousin Jerry showed us the pictures of the young woman he is going to marry you said, 'She's pretty as a picture!' and you know she is homely enough to loosen the paint on a brick wall."

George scratched his chin and reflected a moment.

"Mrs. Ferguson—madam," he said, "don't accuse me of hypocrisy. She is as pretty as a picture—her own picture."

Even then it did not occur to Mrs. Ferguson to retort that this explanation didn't help him any, as the photograph surely was untouched.

And an opportunity for crushing a husband, once lost, never turns up again.—Chicago Tribune.

Realty Transfers and Contract.

These real estate transfers and contract have been made during the past week: Phebe A. Williams et al. to Viola Williams, southeasterly side North avenue, 100 feet northeasterly of Henry Hays, $1; Solomon Gottlieb to Hannah Keller, westerly side East Second street, 198 feet of Wiley avenue, $1; William H. Smith et ux. to Ira L. La Rue, Park lane, 147 feet easterly of Woodland avenue, $1,000; Manning F. Gano et ux. to Jennie M. Jepson, Lee place, 150 feet southeasterly corner of South avenue, 25 feet southwesterly of Lee place, $1; Frederick W. Snover with Spencer Conway, entire work on partly constructed new building, 543 West Fourth street, $760.

Beef and Ham Pie.

Cut cold roast beef into pieces three inches long and one inch wide and cut raw ham into similar pieces, three hard boiled eggs cut into quarters. Line buttered baking dish with pie crust, pack in the meat and egg, and season well, then add just enough gravy to moisten. Cover with crust, cutting an opening in the centre. Bake for one hour in a moderate oven. When done pour in some more gravy just before sending it to the table.

Egg Puffs.

Soften a tablespoonful of butter to a cream; then stir in gradually with a fork; beat three eggs to a froth and add them to the butter; add a level teaspoonful of salt and six tablespoonfuls of flour. Beat all these ingreditents together until they foam, then put them into buttered gem pans or small tin pans, and bake in a hot oven for half an hour, or until they are cooked through and nicely browned.

Pecan Cookies.

Cream one scant teaspoonful of butter with half a cup of flour; add two eggs, one scant cup of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, four tablespoons of milk, a generous cup of chopped pecan meats and vanilla to flavor. Drop with a teaspoon on buttered pans about two inches apart. Bake in moderate oven.

Value of Rubbish Cans.

No other movement inaugurated for years for improvement of town or village life has met with such a universal response as the placing of cans or other receptables for rubbish along streets. But a few years ago they were not to be found in Southern California. Now they are present in every really live place, and reports from other sections of the country show conclusively that the practice has become quite universal. The individual receives in this way a suggestion to keep his premises as well as street frontage free from rubbish and litter of all sorts.

Information Desired.

"Say, pa!"

"What is it?"

"Can a man who is rounded off at the corners be called a square man?"

"What kind of a man is one who is rounded off at the corners?"

"A bowlegged one."—New York Press.

The railroads of Hailand are so well managed that the deaths by accident on them average but one a year.

Changed Color.

Howell—Is your wife a blonde or a brunette?

Powell—I think she is a chameleon.—Harper's Weekly.

Candles in the Commons.

Previous to 1824 the house of commons was lighted by candles which were affixed to massive chandeliers.

Mistaken.

"Ah, I see you are married," exclaimed the mendicant.

"No, sir," replied the applicant for a position. "I got this scar in a railroad accident."—The Bohemian.

Cream Finnan-Haddie.

Take one-half pound of finnan-haddie, pick apart and cook in one heaping tablespoonful of butter till heated through; then stir in one tablespoonful of flour, moistened in one cupful of cream or rich milk, and let it cook for five minutes; add the yolk of one egg, a dash of pepper, and one teaspoonful of grated cheese. When smooth serve immediately on hot toast and garnish with parsley.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Secretary Taft will deliver the Memorial Day oration at Grant's Tomb, on the Hudson river, New York. The President may attend.

A double distinction belongs to Henry Dorman, of Liberal, Mo., he being the oldest man in his State and the oldest survivor of the Civil War. He has lived in three centuries, for lately he celebrated his 109th birthday.

Denman Thompson, the veteran actor, and Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, are close friends, and when the Senator visits his home State he never fails to spend at least a brief part of the time with "Uncle Josh."

John W. Stewart, who succeeds the late Senator Proctor, of Vermont, is 82 years of age, and will be the oldest man in the Senate. He is one of the best known men in the State, a liberal, broad-minded man, who has made his mark in State and National affairs.

Miss Martha Foley, author of the famous "Elsie Dinsmore" series, is still writing and is busy as ever, nearly 80. She lives at Elkton, Md., and her first book of this series was printed more than forty years ago, when she was a school-teacher.

It is not generally known that King Edward and Queen Alexandra, of England, though far from being the oldest of the royal couples, have been married for more years than any other pair of crowned heads of Europe.

His Majesty King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, has conferred upon Harry St. George Tucker the degree of "Commandatore" of the Order of the Crown of Italy, in recognition of the high regard in which the latter is held by Italian officials who were received by him while he was president of the Jamestown Exposition.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

The man who sees no good in others is no good.

There's no hope for the man who has lost his self-respect.

It's harder to remember some things than it is for us to forget others.

Something you get for nothing is usually worth just about that much.

Beware of a meek man or a meek mule; it's the unexpected that happens.

Stop worrying about the sorrows of yesterday and go after the joys of today.

There is always some man around who is willing to second any kind of a motion.

Money makes the mare go—or come, or stay, according to the way it talks to the jockey.

If there is such a thing as a perfect woman it must be one who is able to conceal her imperfections.

The man who loses the bartender once so often should not be surprised to find himself in a tight place.

Don't worry about your looks. You look all right to your friends and the rest of the world doesn't care how you look.—Chicag Daily News.

THE COOKBOOK.

Add a half cup of milk to mush and it will brown much nicer when fried.

For mixing flour and water use a fork or egg beater to make it smooth and free from lumps.

Cake icing will not crack when cut if a little thick cream is added to it. Allow one teaspoonful to each white of egg.

Any nut makes a cake more delicious. Nuts chopped and sprinkled over puddings, hot or cold, give a new flavor and greatly improve them, while mixed through custard they make a surprising change in this simple dish.

Careless.

Two irishmen, meeting one day, were discussing local news.

"Do you know Jim Skelly?" asked Pat.

"Faith," said Mike, "an' I do."

"Well," said Pat, "he has had his appendix taken away from him."

"Ye don't say so?" said Mike. "Well, it serves him right. He should have had it in his wife's name."—Everybody's Magazine.

New Electric Wire.

A new wire of special advantage in electrical industries is obtained by a Parisian metallurgist through a perfected process of welding copper to steel wire. Great conductivity is combined with tensile strength and elasticity, giving a wire stronger than copper and smaller and less exposed to wind action than iron or steel of the same capacity.

Soap Bubbles.

To make bubbles that can be blown big and will last, take a piece of pure white soap about the size of a walnut and cut it up in a cupful of warm water. Then add a teaspoonful of glycerin. Stir well and blow from a small pipe. Strawberry juice will make pink bubbles and orange juice will make yellow ones.

Wasted.

Brown—I made a remark to my wife last week, and she has not spoken to me since.

Robinson (eagerly)—What was it?—London Opinion.

There is an old axiom that we ought not to judge by appearances, so we may well ask, "What else is there left for us to judge by when taking our earliest impressions of a person's character, since the face is the first thing that, as a rule, attracts us, and we instinctively feel that it ought to be the mirror of the mind?"—Woman's Life.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

ACKERMAN—RIGHTEOUS WRATH

(From the Newark Evening News, Wednesday, April 8.)

Senator Ackerman, of Union, an organization Republican but a clean man, is discouraged, disgusted, indignant and full of righteous wrath, because of the audacity, the insolent assumptions and the power of the bosses in matters of legislation. He declares that as things now stand at Trenton the Legislature might as well be abolished, for a commission of the political bosses could do the work just as well as the present body of lawmakers. In point of fact the bosses are legislating and the legislators are going through the motions like puppets, as the bosses pull the strings.

Senator Ackerman's indignation has been aroused primarily because of the treatment given his civil service bill. He spent much time and care in perfecting it, calling to his aid, in addition to experienced counsel that could be obtained. No man sincerely desirous of abolishing the iniquitous spoils system, and establishing civil service in this State, as it has been established for many years under the United States Government, could find any fault with the Ackerman civil service bill. It was as nearly perfect as such a fulfilment of the Republican platform pledge, and the Senate passed it by an overwhelming vote.

But when it went to the House "Davy" Baird and "Dory" Strong and the other Republican bosses began their iniquitous work. As Senator Ackerman says, it was impossible to find out just where they stood. They would say that if certain provisions was changed they would not oppose the bill, but when they found other grounds for opposition, kept up an endless fight against the civil service policy, and finally defeated it.

Senator Ackerman is not a "new idea" man, but he has sought earnestly to do what is right, has endeavored to promote unity in the party, and is one of those who believe that party pledges should be kept. He voted for the Certain Political Provisos bill, but when they found other grounds for opposition, kept up an endless fight against the civil service policy, and finally defeated it.

Senator Ackerman is not a "new idea" man, but he has sought earnestly to do what is right, has endeavored to promote unity in the party, and is one of those who believe that party pledges should be kept. He voted for the Certain Political Provisos bill, and, therefore, Senator Ackerman says that as things stand now it would be as well to let a commission of political bosses do the work, or let the Public Service and a few other corporations take charge of New Jersey and run it to suit themselves.

It is to be hoped that Senator Ackerman's honest, righteous indignation will not abate, and that he will be encouraged and upheld by those who are disgusted with bosses and blasism and who will fight against these political usurpers till they are utterly and overwhelmingly defeated. Senator Colby found them intolerable several years ago and has fought them ever since. Senator Ackerman now finds that they twist legislators around their fingers, but he refuses to be twisted. He tells the people plainly that unless conditions are changed the State might as well be turned over to a commission of bosses or to the Public Service and other corporations.

How long will the people of New Jersey stand for the disgrace which Senator Ackerman says is the last straw far to point out? How long will they elect Senators and Assemblymen who cringe like curs whenever the bosses crack their whips? How long will they elect and re-elect men who dare not keep their pledges if the bosses order them to become perfidious? Senator Ackerman has not made a sudden, impulsive, exaggerated statement; he has told a truth that has been forced in upon his honest consciousness. The bosses are more powerful than the Legislature. How much longer will the people submit to this humiliating condition of affairs?

MISS SARAH MAE HOWELL TO WED HARRY L. McGEE.

Invitations were issued yesterday, announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Sarah Mae Howell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Hallett Howell, of Myrtle avenue, to Harry Livingston McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard place. The wedding, which will be a large one, will take place at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Wednesday evening, April 29, at 7:30 o'clock, to be followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Both Miss Howell and Mr. McGee are prominent in the younger society set and have been leaders in many social functions held at the Park club, of which they are both members. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Wesleyan Ohio University, Delaware, Ohio, an uncle of the groom.

In honor of the approaching event, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Abbott, of Myrtle avenue, gave Miss Howell a kitchen shower at her home last night. There were about twenty-five guests and the affair was a delightful one.

STORY OF A RARE COIN.

How Many Denied Ownership, but All Soon Were Sorry.

"Mr. Peaberry," said the man with the frazzled mustache, "I bought a bottle of tomato catsup here last Wednesday afternoon, and—"

"Anything wrong with the catchup?"

"No; I'm only mentioning it to bring the matter to your recollection. I handed you a five dollar bill, and you gave me the change. Perhaps you don't remember that the change was nearly all in silver dollars."

"I certainly don't Mr. Clayburg."

"Are you sure you didn't have this silver dollar in your money drawer?"

Here he produced the coin.

The man behind the counter took it and looked at it.

"Are you sure, Mr. Clayburg, that I gave you that dollar in change?"

"No, I'm not. But—"

"Then how do you expect me to remember it?"

"I don't expect you to, but I thought it might be possible".

"What's the matter with it? Doesn't it pay all right?"

"Yes, but you'll notice it has a peculiar look."

"It looks all right to me. You'll have no trouble in passing it."

"I don't want to pass it. If I got it here, I want you to take it back; that's all."

"Well you thought there was anything wrong with it, Mr. Clayburg, you should have spoken about it at the time."

"I didn't notice it at the time."

"Then what makes you think you got it here?"

"I looked at every other place where I bought anything that day, and I can't get any satisfaction."

"That's no proof that I gave it to you."

"I know it. I'm the last man on earth to want to do anything unfair, Mr. Peaberry, but"—

"It seems to me you're taking altogether too much for granted. If you don't know where you got that coin, what right have you to ask me to take it off your hands and give you another one in exchange for it?"

"No right at all if you absolutely refuse to do it."

"I certainly do. To the best of my recollection I never saw that dollar before."

"Well, that lets me out. Mr. Peaberry," said the customer, putting the piece of money back in his pocket. "I found one a little while ago that it's an odd one exceedingly rare coin and worth $50 to a collector. I've tried honestly to find where I got it, and I can't. I can sell it now with a clear conscience. Good afternoon, Mr. Peaberry."—Chicago Tribune.

BRYAN SEES NEW DAY

FOR VISITING TRENTON.

Trenton, April 13.—William Jennings Bryan, who was expected at Trenton to-day in a letter written to Governor Fort and received by the latter Saturday morning, stated that he would not visit Trenton while the Legislature was in session, but will be in that city April 21, at which time he expects to address the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

The Governor turned the letter over to the president of the commerce board.

Mr. Bryan will meet the Governor at the State House at noon and will call on Governor Fort. The latter will entertain Mr. Bryan and a number of State officials at luncheon at 1 o'clock, in the Capitol building.

It was at first intended to have Mr. Bryan visit Trenton and address the Legislature last month, but Edmond W. Miller, the campaign manager in this State, was unable to arrange it satisfactorily for that time.

IMPRESSIVE RENDITION OF LENTEN ORATORIO

Stainer's lenten oratorio, "The Crucifixion," a meditation on the sacred passion of the Holy Redeemer, was most impressively rendered before an unusually large gathering of local music lovers at Grace church Monday. Solo parts in the rendition were ably taken by William J. Tallamy, tenor; William Holmes, barytone, and Frederick Fope, bass. There are no women solo parts in the oratorio. William E. MacClymont, the church organist, gave an especially good interpretation of the instrumental score. Augmented by choir singers from other local churches, the chorus choir of Grace church was most successful in the rendition of the numerous chorus parts, which form a prominent part of the oratorio.

The oratorio opens with the impressive "Processional to Calvary," following which came the lively chorus, "Fling Wide the Gates." The tenor solo, "King Ever Glorious," by Mr. Tallamy, immediately preceded the barytone recitative, "As Moses Lifted Up the Serpent in the Wilderness," by Mr. Holmes. Many considered this the best solo work of the rendition. Perhaps equally successful was the chorus, "The Appeal of the Crucified," in which the rendition was particularly effective. This was followed by the men's chorus, "It is Finished." The march to Calvary was most feelingly rendered at the organ by Mr. MacClymont.

The oratorio was rendered in connection with an evensong service at which Rev. E. Vivers Stevenson, rector of the church, officiated.

P.H.S. TRACK TEAM IN THREE BIG MEETS

Manager Stanley Robins, of the Plainfield High School track team, announces that the school athletics will compete in three out-of-town track meets next month. Teams will be the Rutgers College interscholastic meet at New Brunswick the Stuyvesant School meet at Elizabeth, May 2, and a dual meet with Adelphi Academy, to be held at Brook'yn, May 29.

The school track squad numbers about twenty-five athletes, who are holding regular practices under the supervision of Charles R. Bostwick, of the school faculty, who is acting as coach. In the sprints, the school will be presented by Murphey, Sampter, Miller, Snyder and Ricketts. Becker, Parsons and Vail will compete in the runs; Dey, Beeken and John Dutcher in the hurdles; Riffert and Caldwell in the pole vault; Murphey, Hammond, Dey, Miller, and Woodhull in the jumps. The school team will enter no weight events in the meets, except the shot put, in which Hammond and Morris are possible point winners.

The important meet of the schedule will be the dual meet with Adelphia Academy. The metropolitan school has a strong track team and the local boys will have to work hard to make a representative showing. The Pingry meet will be held early in the month, at which time the strongest of the metropolitan schools will compete in the events. The Rutgers College interscholastic meet is an annual affair, and the local athletes ought to win a high place this year.

HIGH WIND RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY LONG HITS.

A baseball team composed principally of members of Grace M. E. church defeated a scrub nine including several North Plainfield High School players on the Westervelt avenue grounds Saturday afternoon by a score of 26-19 The high wind made long hits common, and neither pitcher was efficient. A feature of the game was Holland's batting, for the church nine, who knocked out two home runs. Miller, captain of the church team, was on the slab for his nine, and Byron McClintock and Smith acted for the scrubs. The score by innings:

Grace M. E....3 0 6 0 3 4 0 2 8—26
Scrubs .....1 0 2 6 1 4 1 2 1—19

Morris H. S. Nine Entertained.

At the conclusion of Saturday's baseball game between the Plainfield High School and Morris High School, of New York, the visiting team was entertained at dinner at the home of Edward Sampter, of Putnam avenue. Covers were laid for seventeen and Captain Murphey and Manager "Emperor William" Rafferty, of the local team, were "among those present." Sampter was at one time a pupil at the New York school, and entertained his former schoolmates royally until train time.

AMUSEMENTS.

Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, the coming of which is always a matter of great interest to young and old alike, recently began a short season at the Madison Square Garden, New York. There are circuses and circuses, but to the New Yorker Barnum & Bailey's circus is the only one, as well as the greatest one, in all of the world. New York loves huge things and so it loves its circus, which, by the way, is the only one that is annually seen in the Empire City. Big as has been the circus during previous years this season it is bigger than ever. As exhibited at the Madison Square Garden it will be the biggest thing of its kind the world has known. The huge entertainment will mark an epoch in the development of the circus. A city in itself is the circus title accurately, contains fifteen hundred people. The menagerie is larger than that possessed by any of the local zoological societies around the country. There are seven hundred horses. The big spectacle, "Cleopatra," with which the circus entertainment opens, calls for a thousand men and women. On the program there are one hundred and ten acts. There are three hundred and fifty performers and they come from all corners of the earth. Twenty-seven different languages are spoken by the people on the roster.

Unquestionably the greatest of all Lew Fields' successes is the one in which he is now breaking the records of amusement attendance at the Herald Square theatre in New York. For so many years that they cannot be counted, Lew Fields has stood alone in his peculiar style of comedy work. He has had so many successes, but in the adaptation of the greatest of musical comedies by Edgar Smith, he has a production that eclipses even the most successful of previous years. Supporting him there is a company headed by Connie Edis, who was brought over from England for the part, and including such widely known specialists as Louise Dresser, Lotta Faust, May Maudain and Topsy Siegrist; George Bohan, Dorman Maloy, and Vernon Castle. Among the specialties a conspicuous feature is the number by the English Pony Ballet, the members which were brought over by Mr. Fields and the Shuberts with their original conception in a whirling, giddy, dizzy Xylophone Dance, introducing the xylophone which has now become internationally famous, "School Days." All the principals have special songs and scenes fitted to their peculiar abilities, but the greatest laugh in the show—in fact the greatest laugh on Broadway —is the scene in which Mr. Fields gives instructions to a motley assortment of volunteer waiters.

"Paid in Full" is now a perennial success for, it is drawing close to its third month at the Astor theatre, and Wagenhals and Kemper have arranged to continue this vehicle by Eugene Walter at the Astor for the balance of the spring and through the entire summer. The success of "Paid in Full" was instantaneous and it has proven lasting. Nothing equalling its triumph has been seen on the Metropolitan stage this season and it is destined to be remembered as the one phenomenal success of a season strewn with the wreckage of scores of productions. The secret of the success of "Paid in Full" is to be found in its easy naturalness. It tells in a simple direct way the story of human life and there are no frills or furbelows placed on it in order that the author may take rank as a master of English as well as a forceful playwright. He has peopled his play with the men and women we meet in every day life, the vocabulary he has given them is the same we use and hear used every day in the week. His play is a triumph for America throughout and it is the one attraction in New York that the playgoer cannot well afford to miss. Throughout the entire engagement of "Paid in Full" at the Astor the popular Wednesday matinees will be continued and the Saturday matinees will remain at the regular scale.

IN ART CIRCLES.

New York is marveling over a boy artist whose picture is shown in the National Academy of Design exhibition. George Davidson is the name of the 19-year-old prodigy. He works on crayon enlargements by day, and studies "real art" by night. He is a Scotch boy indeed, was brought to America ten years ago, has studied in the evening classes of the National Academy of Design. His painting is entitled "Evening Shadows."

Humphry Ward, husband of the novelist discovered a Rembrandt and sold it for more than twenty-five times what he paid for it. The picture which Mr. Ward purchased had been painted over a portrait by Rembrandt. This was discovered by Professor Alois Hauser, to whom the painting was sent to be restored. There is said to be absolutely no doubt as to the authenticity of the Rembrandt. It is signed by the artist, and Professor Max Friedlaender, a noted critic, and other experts declare it is genuine. Mr. Ward bought the picture, that of a handsome young man, at an auction sale in London. He sent it to Professor Hauser, who is reputed to be the first restorer of pictures in Germany.

Mutton.

The woolly taste in mutton is said to be due to slow dressing of the carcass.

CITY HIGH WINS AGAIN

Dutcher's Two-Bagger Gives P.H.S. Victory over Morris High School.

TAKE AN UPHILL GAME, 5-4.

Heavy Wind Kept Fielders Guessing and Made It Hard for Pitchers in Saturday's Game.

Dutcher's two-bagger, scoring Dey and Murphy, won for the Plainfield High School in the eighth inning of Saturday's game on Crescent Oval, when the local boys beat the Morris High School nine 5-4 in a well-played uphill game. It was anything but a good baseball day for the wind swept across the field like a young hurricane, raising clouds of dust and doing strange stunts with fly balls that kept the fielders guessing. The pitchers, too, developed lots of speed pitching with the wind, but the day was too cold for them to have much control.

Doane and Riffert tallied for the locals on Murphey's single in the first session. Three hits in the fifth gave the New Yorkers a chance to tie the score, and though Doane's hit in the seventh brought in Dodwell for P. H. S., Morris landed two swipes where there were no fielders in the other half of the inning and scored two more tallies, regaining the lead.

But it remained for Dutcher, the "Singer Building" of Dunellen, to persuade the eagle of victory to remain in this city. This was done in the eigth, which proved the last stick session for the locals, and the single that did the business scored Murphey with the winning run.

Yule was efficient on the slab for Morris, fanning seven and giving three passes, while Murphey struck out six and gave a single base on balls. The New Yorkers hit safely seven times, while the local boys got four singles and a two bagger. A feature was a double play by Morris in the sixth, when Nixon and Lord retired Dutcher and Murphey. MR. DAVIS'S TALK ON GEORGE JUNIOR REPUBLIC

"Life at the George Junior Republic," was the subject of an interesting talk given before the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church Sunday, by Theodore G. Davis, of this city, the field secretary for the institution. The Republic is located at Freeville, N. J., and Mr. Davis gave an interesting idea of the work carried on there.

At present there are about 87 boys and 68 girls being cared for at the Republic. They are of a class considered incorrigible and are sent there for not more than three years *as a rule, between the ages of four*teen and eighteen years. Occasionally they are kept until they are twen*ty-one years old, when they are held* responsible to the State.

The boys and girls are taught all sorts of trade, and the boys even make the furniture with which to furnish their homes. One thing, the speaker said, that helps to make the boys and girls better men and women is that they have their own government, conduct their own courts and in every particular carry out in miniature detail the form of government established. In this way they are taught to be responsible and are given care and *oversight over them*selves. Mr. Davis said that the boys and girls enjoy their future home at the Republic and in nearly every case a complete reformation takes place in their lives, making them useful men and women and when they are discharged they are fully capable of making their own living in the world. Following the talk by Mr. Davis there was an informal discussion on the subject by the members of the club.

P.H.S. TRIMS WESTFIELD TO TRAMP TO FRISCO FOR A $1,000 REWARD

Mt. Ararat High School Boys Defeated, Six to Three in Loose Game.

LOCAL TEAM USED 13 PLAYERS.

Captain Murphey's Good Stick Work a Feature—Westfielders' Errors Were Costly.

The undefeated Plainfield High School baseball team added another victory to the season's record at Crescent Oval, Monday afternoon, by climming the Westfield High School nine, 6-3. Captain Murphey used the entire squad of local school players in the course of the game, giving all an opportunity to work out in their various positions.

The scoring started in the first session, when Codding, the Westfield pitcher, gave Riffert and Rubenstein passes on balls and they scored on Murphey's two-bagger. Getting his base on a wide throw, Smith came home with the first run for the visitors on Otto's hit in the second. The Ararat school-boys scored again in the sixth and ninth, while Plainfield tallied in the fifth, sixth and eighth. Foster was the last pitcher used for P. H. S. and showed poor control, filling the bases in the ninth, when his place was taken by Murphey.

Errors were expensive for the visitors, for the local nine scored several times on their mistakes, of which five were registered. The *Plainfield*ers got eight hits, one of them a two-bagger. This was by Murphey, who hit safely three out of four times at bat. Snyder proved a hard proposition on the slab for the visitors, and kept the hits scattered. The official summaries:

HOSPITAL ACCEPTS HEGEMAN MEMORIAL

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at its April meeting, Monday night, accepted the offer of W. J. R. Hegeman and B. S. Hegeman to build a power-house and laundry in the rear of the hospital in memory of Mrs. Catherine E. Hegeman, and authorized them to proceed with the work in accordance with the plans and on the location approved by the building and grounds committee. A. L. C. Marsh is the architect for the building and it is expected that work will be started at once.

The medical board reported the number of patients for March as follows:

Remaining at date of last report, 1; admitted, 50; discharged cured, 32; improved, 6; not improved, 2; died, 4; remaining, 36; total number treated, 82; hospital days, 1,224; operations, 47.

In the Bethesda Contagious Disease Building, one case, the first to be received there, was treated. In the dispensary there were 48 patients, 121 visits of patients and seven operations. This was about the largest month's business ever recorded at the hospital, the average being 39½.

BICYCLISTS WARNED TO KEEP OFF THE WALKS

Victor Allo, Louis, Peter and John Marsouis and Louis Cousin, all residents of Cranford, left that place at 11 o'clock Tuesday for the purpose of walking to San Francisco, California. According to the rules governing the trip, the five men must walk their way through and while they are not permitted to beg, they are privileged to accept what-ever may be offered them. If the feat is accomplished, strictly according to the rules, the men are to receive $1,000 to be divided among them. Otherwise they get nothing. The only companion of the men is a Shepherd dog, named "Dinah."

The party arrived at the Hotel Waldorf about 1:30, where lunch was served them by Henry Spindler. When the men started on the trip they were entirely without funds, but at Garwood a $2 bill and a box of sandwiches were handed to them. While in Plainfield they received substantial aid on their journey.

In conversation with a reporter for the Daily Press, Mr. Allo said that every member of the party is a gardener and expect to make good use of his knowledge in this respect. If only one of the five reaches California he will receive the $1,000. "It is quite a task," he said, "but Allo, and everyone in the party is willing to sacrifice his life if necessary to accomplish the feat." While stopping at the Hotel Waldorf the men were the object of much curiosity and when their mission became known they were given assistance by several prominent citizens.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS AN ADJOURNED SESSION

At the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Tuesday, the major portion of the business comprised the consideration of communications and petitions.

The City National Bank asked that a police call box be installed at Front street and Park avenue and stated that it would pay $100 a year if it was connected with the bank on an auxiliary wire. The cost of installing a box approximates $200. The police committee held a meeting immediately after Council adjourned and voted to grant the request.

Residents of Union street petitioned for macadam on that thoroughfare from Arlington to Stelle avenues. It was referred to the street committee for action. Residents of Kenilworth avenue asked for a light to be located on that street between East Seventh street and Putnam avenue. C. Kendall Mason made application for the return to him of a dog tax, stating that he did not own the canine for which he was assessed.

Another communication from Corporation Counsel Marsh stated that he approved the form of application to the petition to vacate a supposed street in the rear of L. E. Hart's property on West Front street and that the Council should act upon it.

B. Frank Coriell applied to the Council in a communication for measures to compel the Public Service Corporation to install gas mains on West Third street from Clinton to Monroe avenues and also to string electric lights on the same street. He stated that twelve houses have recently been erected in the territory named and that the owners are willing to take the gas and electric service. The matter was referred to the Public Utilities Committee.

A petition from George P. Mellick for two lights on Central street between Woodland avenue and East Seventh street was granted. On motion of Frank DeW. Randolph, the bids and specifications for the proposed new police station were reconsidered in order to include a clause providing for a time limit in construction and a fine for each day over the date specified. Another motion by Mr. Randolph called for the approval of the Council in the sale to Henry Hazard of the lot available in the rear of the old police headquarters on East Front street and a quantity of fixtures in the building for $250. It was explained that this amount was more than the city would receive by tearing down the stable and selling the material. The necessary approval was given.

SHADE TREE BILL A LAW.

Measure Takes Authority from Aldermanic Boards.

The Buxton Shade Tree Commission bill has been signed by Governor Fort. It takes all power out of the hands of the Board of Aldermen regarding the commission and permits the Mayor to appoint the commission when authorized by the Board of Finance.

Despite the request of the Jersey City Board of Trade the numerous civic bodies asking for the appointment of such a commission, the Board of Aldermen refused to act and tried to suppress the move by various delays in committee.

INVITE 500 TO THE EASTER MONDAY DANCE

Plans are complete for the Easter dance to be given at the Casino on Monday night by the younger society set. The committee in charge of the affair, of which Miss Eleanor Waring is the chairman, have issued 500 invitations and thus far there have been more than 200 acceptances. Music for the dance will be furnished by a New York concern and an Out-of-town caterer will serve the supper.

The committee comprises Miss Eleanor Waring, chairman; Miss Jennie G. Fisk, treasurer; Miss Marguerite Carpenter, Miss Caroline Marin, Miss Molly Perkins, Miss Dorothy Fisk, Miss Ethel Most, Miss Gladys Peck, Miss Kathryn Mercheon and Miss Helen Thompson. The patronesses are the mothers of the members of the committee and in addition Mrs. Henry L. Hall.

Special efforts will be made to decorate the hall in an elaborate and appropriate manner. There will be a profusion of palms, greens and flowers and the committee has promised several features which will be in the nature of a surprise.

BAPTIST MEN PRESENT A MUSICAL PROGRAM

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church an enjoyable musicale was given at the church Monday. The artists were Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; George H. Smith, tenor; George C. Smith, violin; Fred Van Eps, banjo and the accompanists were Clifford A. Braider, Mrs. Fred Van Eps and Miss Jessie Utter. William Holmes was expected to take part in the program, but he was engaged to sing a solo at the Crucifixion, at the Grace church, and was unable to reach the church in time, although the audience waited until after 9:30 o'clock for him.

All the artists were well received and every one responded to encores. Mr. Van Eps and Miss Case be especially generous in this respect. The numbers were well selected and the rendition all to be desired. The program follows:

Banjo solos, "The Sleighing Party" and "Laughing Eyes," Fred Van Eps; tenor solos, "Youth," "Sweetheart," George H. Smith; violin solos, "Serenata," "Oberstein," "Cavatina," and a composition of his own, George C. M. Smith; soprano solos; "Aria from Romeo and Juliette," "Primacera," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," Miss Case. These numbers, together with several encores combined to furnished an evening of real enjoyment. The affair was arranged by the music committee of which George H. Smith is the chairman and under the direction of the entertainment committee, of which H. C. Krebs is the chairman.

OPPOSED NEW MACADAM

Councilman Mygatt Votes Against an Ordinance and Explains His Action.

EXPENDITURES RUNNING HIGH.

Declares Bonded Indebtedness of the City is Rapidly Increasing and That Extreme Care Should Be Exercised.

An ordinance to macadamize a number of streets in various parts of the city, introduced at Monday's Common Council meeting by Councilman Gloak, met with pronounced opposition from Councilman Mygatt. Before a vote on the proposition had been called for, Mr. Mygatt stated that he was heartily in favor of improving local thoroughfares but he believed that the property owners seeking it should be called upon to pay the financing and not the city. He declared that the bonded indebtedness of Plainfield is rapidly reaching the high water mark and that the new macadam work is helping it along.

According to Mr. Gloaks ordinance the cost of the work he has outlined would be $17,000 and this would be met by the issuance of seventeen coupon bonds of $1,000 each, bearing interest at 5 per cent, and payable in three years. Referring particularly to this section, Mr. Mygatt said:

"There are now outstanding $15,000 worth of macadam bonds and we expect to pay off $2,000 of this during the year. With a new issue of seventeen coupon bonds that would mean $30,000 against us, the city doing all the figuring on getting the money and paying the interest. But that isn't all. Petitions for more macadam are being received constantly and it simply means that we are going to increase our indebtedness from this source in geometrical progression. We are facing a bonded debt of $60,000 through bridge paving, new school, new police station, new East End fire house—a great deal more than we should—and this plan simply adds more.

"My idea is to let the people residing on these streets do the financing themselves on the plan we formerly had in force. When petitions were presented two-thirds of the cost had to be provided but now we get all the money, pay for the work as soon as it is completed and take the interest as long as the bonds are outstanding. I'm against the resolution for these reasons."

Councilman Buxton responded in favor of the ordinance, stating that it was in the line of a public improvement that should have been made long ago. Mr. Suydam said he agreed with Mr. Mygatt in his opposition to the bond increase but he believed that there were streets named in the list that were badly in need of macadam and that property owners on them had been bearingtheir share of other work and were certainly entitled to consideration. Mr. Montgomery spoke in a similar vein.

"Well, now that we're on the subject," resumed Mr. Mygatt, "there comes a petition from Union street; what about that? More bonds. Then there are other streets coming, North avenue and West Third street probably; more bonds, more bonds. So it goes, but as I said before, what are we going to do about Union street?"

Councilman Gloak replied that Union street would be cared for as the street committee took care of all such petitions; discussion pro and con and decided one way or the other.

When the ordinance was put to the councilmen, all voted in favor of it with the exception of Mr. Mygatt. It was placed on second and third reading and will be given a public hearing on May 4. The streets named in the ordinance are as follows:

North avenue from the northeasterly curb line of Berckman street to the southwesterly curb line of Terrill road; Leland avenue, from the present macadam on East Front street to the present macadam on South avenue; Netherwood avenue, from the present macadam on East Front street to the northwesterly curb of East Second street; Monroe avenue, from West Seventh street to West Eighth street; West Eighth street, from the present macadam on Monroe avenue to the city line; West Third street, from Monroe avenue to Clinton avenue; Clinton avenue, from West Third street to the city line.

STOCK COMPANY ENGAGED FOR A SUMMER SEASON.

Following the custom prevalent in other cities during the summer season, Manager Counihan will not close the New Plainfield theatre at the end of the present season but will install a stock organization to be known as the Plainfield Stock Company. It will be headed by Miss Alberta Gallatin, who has been starring the past year in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." Charley's Aunt," "Trilby," and Women," "Madame Sans Gene," "The Boys of Company B" and others equally well known. Popular prices will prevail.

STATE SHORT $687,655

Fort Takes Into Account This Year's Obligations and Anticipated Receipts.

HE SENDS SPECIAL MESSAGE.

Governor Suggests the Passage of the Avis Bill Increasing Reserve from Tax on the Railroads.

In a special message to the Legislature Thursday, Governor Fort told the members that he finds that instead of the State having $1,320,000, as was apparent last October, there was actually only $427,000 available.

If present appropriations are made, he says there will be a shortage of $687,655. The message is as follows:

"The condition of the finances of the State seem to require that some accurate statement should be made to the Legislature before the closing of the annual session. There is now pending before the Legislature the annual and supplemental appropriation bills.

"They carry appropriations amounting to $5,320,335.72. It will be necessary before making them, that the State treasury shall be in condition to meet the appropriations on or before October 31, 1909, the date of the ending of the fiscal years of 1908 and 1909.

"Upon a very careful examination of the finances of the State, with the assistance of the Comptroller and Treasurer, I find the situation to be such as to require legislation to meet the present conditions.

"Contracts Must Be Paid.

"On the thirty-first of October, 1907, there was shown by the report of the Comptroller to be a cash balance in the treasury of the State of $1,320,038.44, but this was not a free cash balance as there was at that time existing and filed in the Comptroller's office of the State contracts which must be paid against this cash balance amounting to $882,228.22, so that on the first day of November, 1907, the beginning of this fiscal year, there was actually only $437,810.22 of free cash balance in the treasury of the State.

"The estimated receipts for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1908, as made by the comptroller, are $4,194,870, to which should be added the free cash balance in the treasury on October 31, 1907, $437,810, making a total of $4,632,680.

"When therefore the appropriation bills now pending before the Legislature are passed we shall have State obligations for the current fiscal year of $5,320,355.72, with only $4,632,680 available to meet them, leaving a shortage in the treasury of the $5,000,000 for Schools.

"There will be practically appropriated for school purposes this year about $5,000,000, and in order to do this it will be necessary, as I have shown, to deplete the treasury, so that it will be short about $700,000.

"It is a question whether the legislation in chapter 146 of the laws of 1906 was wise legislation. The State must first support itself before it undertakes to appropriate funds to localities.

"The pending appropriations bills have been followed by the executive with great care, and constant conference have been had between the chairman of the appropriation committee and the executive. It is quite apparent that the appropriations asked in the pending bills are necessary for the support of the State government, and to do the public things which are required to be done, including the support of the various State institutions correctly with the improvements that are required State of $687,655.72.

"In figuring the estimated receipts for the State for the current fiscal year the one-half of 1 per centum of the total valuation of the railway property assessed for State purposes has been included.

Problem of Getting Revenue.

"The question now is how to get the revenue, and it is one which we must meet.

"Of the total amount received by the State last year from the assessment upon main stem railway property and the tangible personal property and franchises of railway companies in the gross amounted to $3,503,529.70.

"Of this there was allotted and is to be paid to the counties of the State for distribution for school purposes, under chapter 146 of the laws of 1906, $2,530,867.35.

"This money was delayed in payment owing to the litigation over the tax, but it must still be paid and is to be paid, nevertheless.

"In addition to that, there is also to be paid this current year, if chapter 146 of the laws of 1906 is to remain operative, an additional sum of $3,254,509.10.

Would Increase Reserve.

"For myself I think it would be better State policy to repeal chapter 146 of the laws of 1906 absolutely and leave the amount of money to be annually appropriated from the tax from railway property at the discretion of the legislative branch of government, but that probably would not be wise policy in the last hours of the session.

"There is pending before the Legislature at this time Senate bill No. 206, which permits the State to reserve three-fourths of one per cent. instead of one-half of one per cent. under the provisions as now provided under chapter 146 of the laws of 1906.

"If this bill were passed it would increase the revenue of the State $436,331.18, and would relieve the shortage as above stated just to that extent, so that we face on the thirty-first day of October, under these conditions, a not greater deficit than about $250,000.

"The treasury of the State, therefore, with this legislation, will be in a workable condition, without embarrassment, because it is probable that some of the appropriations made in the pending bills will not be required to be fully met during the fiscal year which they cover.

"I therefore, earnestly urge upon the Legislature the enactment of Senate bill 206, or some similar legislation as this which, if enacted, will still leave it within the power of the State, under existing legislation, to send down to the local cities for school purposes for the school fiscal year from July 1, 1908, to July 1, 1909, at least 50 per cent. more than has ever previously been contributed by the State."

SOME BIG BEQUESTS FOR RUTGERS COLLEGE

Bequests amounting to $34,000 were announced at the meeting of the board of trustees of Rutgers College Friday afternoon, as follows: Twenty-five thousand dollars from the late John Arent Vander Pool, class of '89, the income to be used for the support of the school of science; $2,000 for beneficiary purposes, donor not named; $1,000 from the late George Van Nest Baldwin, class of '56, for general purposes; $5,000 from Luther Laflin Kelloff, '70, trustee of the college, for the establishment of a lectureship; $1,000 for the college endowment fund from the Rev. Dr. Joachim Elmendorf, class of '00.

Announcement was also made that Ralph O. Smith had been selected assistant professor of chemistry. He is a graduate of the college, class of '02, and is now an assistant professor in the University of Pennsylvania. The acceptances were received from Professor C. H. Heck, to be professor of mechanical engineering, and from Professor Myron T. Scudder, to be headmaster of the Rutgers Preparatory School.

HIS CALL TO HOME.

Oh, breath of June from the woodland,
Oh, scent of the stream and fields,
Oh, droning winds that are whisp'ring
Of peace that the country yields—
I'm coming home!

Oh, lilies floating in bayous,
Oh, islands of rustling reed,
Oh, willows bending above them,
Oh, daisies of fragrant mead—
I'm coming home!

Oh, fields that wave like the ocean,
O, billows that ebb and flow,
Oh, groves that shelter the birdlings,
Oh, banks where the sunsets glow—
I'm coming home!

Oh, maiden, fair as the flowers,
With eyes that are soft and blue,
Await tonight by the arbor,
A-tryst for your lover true—
I'm coming home!
—Byron Williams.

COLLAGE AND SCHOOL.

All Abyssinian male children over twelve must go to school. The state provides the education and is building many schools.

Ohio, in spite of her numerous colleges, sends 408 students to the University of Michigan. Illinois sends 315, New York 299, Indiana 198 and Pennsylvania 181.

Dr. Henry T. Bovey, dean of the faculty of applied science at McGill University, has resigned to accept the principalship of the Imperial College of Science and Technology, London.

Dr. Thomas Harrison Montgomery, Jr., has been appointed to the chair of zoology at the University of Pennsylvania. He will assume his new duties on September 1 next. Dr. Montgomery is at present professor of zoology in the University of Texas.

Cheap Feasting.

Hanging on the top of one of the stalls at a church bazaar recently was a sign which ran, "Luncheons. 1 to 3 p. m. 1s. 6d."

A country farmer and his wife were passing along admiring the various stalls and their contents when he espied the above sign and was heard to remark to his wife:

"Well jiss hev our dinners here, Jeanie. Two ons' stead eatin's no' bad fur wann an' six!"—London Telegraph.

Chinese Rice Crackers.

The rice flour cracker of China is by far the whitest biscuit product in the world. In comparison with it the whitest American biscuit looks dingy. The cracker, however, is altogether too sweet for most occidental palates, and the Chinese much prefer their black cracker, which differs but little in taste from the American sweet biscuits.

LIFE ON THE CONGO THEME OF A MINISTER

An interesting and instructive lecture was given by Rev. William A. Raff, of Jamesburg, at the First Baptist church, Sunday, on "Life on the Congo." Mr. Raff, who is now pastor of the Baptist church at Jamesburg, lived on the Congo for seven years and had an exceptional opportunity to study conditions as they exist there. He was a pioneer missionary and had a wonderful experience.

Mr. Raff spoke at some length on the severe penalties inflicted on the natives for failure to bring in the required quantity of rubber. Some of these penalties included the cutting off an arm, a foot, an ear, and other cruelties. He gave some interesting experiences which he had in endeavoring to combat the witch doctor and his works, and how he had been able to so influence the old head chief that on his death he left orders that nobody should be compelled to drink poison on account of his death.

The speaker's remarks impressed all with the urgent necessity of sending the Gospel to the natives of the Congo for in that way only could they be saved and led to live the right kind of lives. At the close of his talk Mr. Raff exhibited a number of curios which he brought home with him, illustrating better than words the life and habits of the people in their peculiar form of worship. The talk was given under the auspices of the Men's Club of the church.

LENTEN ORATORIO DRAWS MANY MUSIC LOVERS

The Lenten musical service at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday, attracted an unusually large congregation, many being obliged to stand throughout the entire service. The service was a beautiful and impressive one, the rendition including "The Crucifixion," by Stainer, and an addition a soprano solo, "Come Unto Me," by Miss Anna L. Case, and a contralto solo, "There is a Green Hill," by Miss Jessamine Burd, together with "Cast Thy Burden on the Lord," from "Elijah," by the unaccompanied quartet. The rendition was perfect throughout and was generally enjoyed.

The soloists were the members of the regular quartet, Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Elmer D. Curtin, tenor, and Herbert R. Byard, baritone, and the chorus included Mrs. Thomas MacDonald and Miss Helen Farland, sopranos; Miss Jessie Haynes and Miss Irene Dunham, contraltos; Fred S. Cutter and Henry Baldwin Drake, basses; Bradley S. Hall and William L. Talbot, tenors.

Clifford S. Braider, organist and choirmaster, was in charge of the service, and was at the organ. Miss Alice C. Miller assisted at the piano. During the service the pastor, Rev. Dr. E. B. Hering, gave a short talk, appropriate to the occasion.

ANOTHER STRUGGLE FOR TOM LAWSON CUP

The officers and directors of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club at a meeting in New York took up the plans preliminary to the holding of the annual horse show in this city, on June 4, 5 and 6. Reports were received showing that practically all of last year's exhibitors will be here again, and in addition many new ones. The exhibition will follow the one to be held in Philadelphia the week beginning May 25, and, as usual, a majority of the exhibitors there will come directly to Plainfield.

The prize list will be an especially attractive one and unusual interest will be shown in the competition for the Thomas W. Lawson Cup, and the "Official Blue Book" prize offered by the club. Last year one of these was won by Reginald Vanderbilt and the other by J. W. Harriman, and according to the rules, they must return this year; otherwise the prizes will be defaulted and contested for as though they had never been won. Both of the winners who will be seen here are Tonto Sauvage, E. C. Rich, C. W. Watson, Miss Molly Maxwell, Otto Kahn, Edward Kneriem, while there will be the usual entries by W. J. Buttfield, C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. E. S. Hoyt, Miss Mabel Hooley and a host of others including Reginald Vanderbilt and J. W. Harriman.

"The Quiet Hour" Awarded.

George Saunders, of Orchard place, has been awarded the handsome painting, entitled "The Quiet Hour," the work of George Wharton Edwards, the artist, which was exhibited at the affair given at the Casino for Muhlenberg Hospital, last October. The painting, which is considered a masterpiece, is valued at $350.

Candles.

Biblical students have hunted in every possible quarter for the origin of the custom of carrying candles in the Candemas procession, it is said, without finding any record of it.

CHANGES IN AUTO LAWS Prelinghuysen Acts Will now Bring Into State Treasury $100,000 Annually

SOME STRINGENT REGULATIONS.

Registration Fees Increased—Identification Marks Required—Fees for Road Work.

The State officials are preparing to enforce to the letter the new automobile amendment, and New Yorkers who cross the river for runs will find quite a change from the rules heretofore enforced here. The changes made provide for an increase from seven to ten inspectors, and twenty unpaid. Inspectors have been added, and, according to State Commissioner Smith, this will provide a sufficient number of inspectors to efficiently instruct the local authorities and for the prosecution of violations. He said yesterday:

"The fees for registration have been increased from $2 for vehicles of less than 30 horse-power, and $5 for vehicles of 30 horse-power and above, to $2 for vehicles of less than 10 horse-power, $5 for vehicles of from 10 to 20 horse-power, inclusive, and $10 for vehicles of 30 horse-power and above. The drivers' license fees have been increased from $1 and $2 to $2 and $5, and duplicating him being at vehicles of 20 horse-power. This will make a net increase of nearly $100,000 to the revenues of the State.

"Manufacturers must obtain annual registration certificates at the price of $25 for five certificates. Not more than five certificates will be issued for $25, but if the manufacturer desires to regulate less than five cars he may do so at $5 for each car.

"Blanket licenses at $100 will be issued to cab companies. This will entitle these companies to drive their vehicles fifteen miles within the borders of the State.

"Identification marks will be furnished by the State, and all registration certificates will expire on Dec. 31. Each identification mark will also have stamped upon it the manufacturer's car number. The effect of this will be both to prevent the running of cars without renewals and the counterfeiting of numbers.

"Motor cycles will be required to carry identification marks."

The auto fees are to be used for road improvements. In addition to the other provisions of the law it is made a misdemeanor to throw glass or other sharpened substances on roads.

RIFLE PRACTICE ORDERS ISSUED BY THE ADJUTANT.

Adjutant Brotmsall, by order of the Governor, has issued the following general orders:

No. 6.—During the period from May 1 to September 30, 1908, a camp of instruction in rifle practice is hereby established on the rifle range at the State camp, Sea Girt, New Jersey.

The range and camp of instruction in rifle practice will be under the command of the inspector general of rifle practice, as assistant inspector general of rifle practice, or an officer detailed to the department; but in case no such officer is present, the senior inspector of rifle practice of the detachments on the range will be in full charge.

Colonel Charles A. Reid, Lieutenant Colonels Richard B. Reading, Alfred T. Holler and William Libbey, assistant inspectors general of rifle practice, will report to the inspector general of rifle practice for assignment to duty at Sea Girt during the season of rifle practice, from May 1 to September 30, 1908.

No. 7.—Permission is hereby granted to all military organizations of other States to enter and pass through this State, armed and equipped, en route to and returning from participation in rifle practice at the State range, Sea Girt, New Jersey, from May 1 to September 30, 1908.

Cy Young celebrated his forty-first birthday recently. The Boston twirler says he never felt younger and that this year he will play a faster game than ever before.

Tom O'Rourke, who took Wrestler Joe Rogers to England, declares that both the mat and ring games are in a bad way there owing to the few good men in either sport.

New Fish In Australia.

In a communication to the Royal Society of Queensland Mr. Douglas Ogilby records the discovery of one new genus and seven new species of fish. Now, that is to say, for Queensland waters. Among these are slender dog shark, Howe's needle fish, long beaked garfish, the combre leather jacket, and others. The ladyfish (albula macrodonta) is recorded for the first time in Australian waters.

DR. PETERS URGES MEN TO JOIN THE CHURCHES

Summarizing the reasons people give for not joining churches, Rev. Madison C. Peters made a characteristic address at this men's meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Sunday afternoon. His topic was "Popular Cloaks." There were 250 men in his audience. During the service, E. C. Martin lead in the singing of hymns, and he and Miss Leila Druse sang a duet. Phillip Van Arsdale also sang. Dr. Peters said in part:

"Many people do not enter the church as members because they say that by so doing they will be obliged to give up pleasures and enjoyments. This idea arises out of a false conception of religion, and is based on the idea that religion is looked upon by such people as a nauseous drug to be taken by a man sometime before he dies. Religion to such a man is a hearse for the dead, rather than a chariot for the living. There is not a single pleasure of the world which a manly nature can relish that is not permitted in the churches.

"Again, people say that there are many hypocrites in the churches today. It is unfair to judge the worth of Christianity by its scrub exponents. Such men also say that there is too much mystery about Christianity. How about the mystery there is in nature, in everything we see in the world? It is not by speculation and discussion that we come to know the truths of religion, but by practising these truths. Quit debating, and get down to the level of conduct.

"Some people say, 'I am not good enough to join the church.' This excuse is also based on a false conception of religion, which is a germinal principal. All the religion a man needs to join the church is enough to start as a Christian. People in some instances believe that there is no need to join a church because God is a loving Father and will permit no harm to come to his children. Christ's grace is sufficient for all, but it is efficient only to those who take it. Christianity is not 'soft,' but a man must come in. God cannot save a man against his will."

TIME'S VAGARIES.

It took one day to make the earth.
It took just forty days to drown it.
It took one month to form a trust.
It took just forty years to drown it:

It took one hour to get a loan,
It took one hundred years to pay it.
It took four years to write a march,
It took nine minutes, ten to play it.

It took an age to build a town,
It took one hour or less to burn it.
It took one year to spend a sum,
It took four decades' work to earn it.

It took twelve hours to cook a bean,
It took two seconds' time to eat it.
It took a trice to sign a note,
It took full seven years to meet it.

It took five years to build a ship,
It took five hours, five to sink it.
It took an age to age old wine,
It took eight seconds straight to drink it.

It took one day to build a trap,
It took one moment more to set it.
It took one hour t catch a skunk,
It took one fortnight to regret it.

It took ten years to make a home,
It took ten minutes just to deed it.
It took a week to write this "pome,"
It took one E. Z. mark to read it.
